Principles of B. B. C. Should Prevail With Regards to Politics

Ottawa, March 1 (CP)—Keen interest in radio policy being displayed on Parliament Hill. When Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, brought his estimates for radio services before the House of Commons last night he was showered with inquiries and suggestions which covered the whole field from the method of collecting licence fees to the International Radio Conference at Madrid. The discussion brought about the resignation of Mr. Bennett.

The present receiving set licence fee of two dollars will not be increased this year.

Conditions may be attached to the renewal of broadcasting station licences in April which will require them to give more time to Canadian programmes and advertising.

LIBERALS ARE NOW UNITED

Mitchell Hepburn And W. E. N. Sinclair Have Buried Hatchet

TORONTO, March 1.—(CP)—The Ontario Government today is a united and harmonious Progressive and Liberal Opposition. From a welter of statements and counter statements emerged yesterday the definite reply of the Liberal party as a whole to Dame Rumour. And it seems W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., House Liberal leader and Mitchell Hepburn, M.L., Provincial leader, have buried the hatchet.

Fifteen members—the entire Liberal group in the Ontario Legislature—subscribed to the following brief statement. It came after three reports of disagreement among members of the Liberal Opposition. The caucus meeting in full today, without single dissension which emphasized the unanimity which exists.

From the government caucus concluded last night there were reports of a move to include a clause in the legislation increasing the municipal empowerits; the mortgagee to obtain a report on the financial status of the mortgagor with the object of arriving at a settlement, it was also learned.

Chief interest, however, centred about the reported reconciliation of the Liberal leaders. Mr. Hepburn succeeded Mr. Sinclair as provincial leader in 1930, and since that time it has been an open secret there was not well in the Liberal ranks. True it was, Mr. Sinclair, was Liberal leader, but the voice of Harry C. Nixon, Progressive leader, was regarded as the voice of Mr. Hepburn.

BELIEVE FOUR MEN DROWNED

Bed of St. Lawrence River Will be Dragged With Irons

Three Rivers, Que., Mar. 1 (CP)—Preparations were being made here today to explore the bed of the St. Lawrence River with grappling irons for the bodies of four Nicolet men believed to have drowned early Sunday morning, when their automobile is believed to have plunged through weakened river ice.

Apprehension in the minds of the missing quartette grew today as hopes for the safety of disappearance deepened. The four were believed to have set out on the ice in a car late Saturday night to drive across the natural ice bridge over the St. Lawrence to Three Rivers. They have not been heard from since.

The missing:

Hector Lemire, 40, married.

Conrad Lemire, 25, unmarried.

Raoul Desfosses, 28, unmarried.

George Duval, 32, unmarried.

LATIN PROF. KNOWS NOT HIS BOTANY

London, Ont., March 1 (CP)—Is Plato's love Latin because he was that doesn't make Latin professors good botanists?

Professor R. E. K. Pamberton told a class of Latin at the University of Western Ontario "viscum" should be "mistletoe."

"Shouldn't that be mistletoe?" asked a student.

The professor admitted he did not know much difference between the two plants.

"And I don't mean what you think I mean, either," he added. There was a howl of glee from the class and the professor speedily led them back to the study of virgil.

ROBERT RADFORD NOTED BASSO, DIES

British Musical Circles Lose One of Greatest Singers of This Age

London, Mar. 1 (CP Cable) — A noted figure in British musical and musical circles today in the death of Robert Radford, one of the finest English basses of recent years.

He had been Professor of Singing at the Royal Academy of Music since 1896 and for a time conductor he went to the Royal Academy. He was with the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, the Beecham Symphony and all the leading festivals and concerts of the day.

He was 60 years old.

TEACHERS SHOULD BE MEN NOT WOMEN

Think More of Marriage Than Teaching, Says Professor

Cincinnati, March 7 (CP)— Dean Louis T. Moore of the University of Cincinnati Graduate School, thinks one of the "most flagrant lies" in American public school education is that most of the teachers are women.

They are, he said, more interested in marriage than in their chosen profession; they don't have the industrious patience men bring to the work; and they arouse resentment in growing boys seeking escape from feminine domination.

"Teaching," Dr. Moore said, "is one of the professions in which women succeed least. Men have a peculiarly industrial patience women teachers do not possess. Most women take on the job temporarily, admitting freely that they would give it up for marriage, and most of them do."

NEEDED REST AND GOT IT

Liebold Who Disappeared Was Patient And Physician

Traverse City, Mich., Mar. 1 (AP)—Ernest G. Leibold, General Secretary to Henry Ford, said today after a 30-hour search throughout lower Michigan and Detroit that he left on an unannounced "vacation" because he needed rest.

"I needed rest and I went to get it," he said. "I was both physician and patient and I prescribed for myself and then followed my own prescription, and I feel fine for the first time in months."

The Traverse Sylvester Nelbrezki of the Traverse City Post of the State Police, Leibold said he had been under constant high pressure for two weeks, during which I slept only an hour each night and ate little. He added that he "could not stand the strain."

Liebold had borne a major part of the burden of aiding in the search for Henry Ford, making to relieve the Detroit banking situation. His disappearance from Detroit alarmed friends and family.

BANK HOLIDAY PROCLAIMED IN KENTUCKY

Money Trickles Back Into Bank in State of Ohio

DETROIT BANKERS

Tangled Situation Gradually Being Unravelled

Columbus, O., Mar. 1.—(AP)—Money trickled back into the Ohio banking structure today as bankers builded a new machine to fit its altered institutions.

The legislative command to segregate frozen funds in the hands of the 200 or more institutions imposing a restriction on the withdrawal of old deposits apparently had struck responsive chord.

Frankfort, Ky., Mar. 1—(AP)—Governor Laffoon early today issued a proclamation which completed the action of his official family today and banks will open for business. They will pay out no deposited funds.

The Governor also declared Thursday, February and Saturday legal holidays, during which banks may not do business, and signed a fire per cent of their deposits at the close of business yesterday.

The proclamation officially declared March 1, 2, 3, 4 as "days of inactivity" in the State of Kentucky," since the Governor is em-

ORILLIA CLUB NOT IN RACE

Decision is Made Owing to Scott-Payne's Intention

Orillia, Ont., March 2 (CP)—The Orillia Rowing Club headed by Edward E. Webb which attempted to secure admission last summer by announcing its intention of entering a crew in the Hamsworth Trophy Race, has decided it will make no entry this year, it was announced today by Webb following receipt of information that Hubert Scott-Payne of England was returning to capture Gar Wood's laurels this year.

"Under the rules which control this race," said Webb, "the Club can not enter in competition with England, as we plan to have our own representative in the Empire.

"There has been a good deal of misunderstanding about my intentions in connection with this matter," he added. "What I said in the first place was that we intended to enter in 1934, but evidently it seemed to think we meant 1933. That is not the case, and in this position," said Webb, "and have not abandoned it."

Webb did not sure Bert Hawker, of Gravenhurst, who piloted the unsuccessful Canadian challenger, Miss Betty Carstairs of England, would be willing to try again, or even Orillia boat in 1934. Hawker, is the only man, Webb and his associates say, who ever passed Gar Wood on a turn of the Detroit River course where the race is run.

ALDERMEN DO NOT WANT EARLY WORMS

Hamilton Board Raises Howl Against 1 a.m. Meeting

Hamilton, Mar. 1 (CP)—The Street Railway Committee of Hamilton won't catch any worms. Alderman Alsadir, Chairman, instructed Secretary Charles Stewart to call a meeting of the committee for seven o'clock Friday morning. When the members heard about it they raised such a howl, the committee changed the meeting hour to nine o'clock.

More Than 100 Men Search for Victims of Wrecks off Alaska

Seattle, Mar. 1 (AP)—More than 100 men renewed search today for victims of two shipwrecks, in the wake of a fog gale that is believed to have killed 10 men off the Alaskan Seiner Golden Gate.

Abandoning hope for the halibut vessel Reliance, the Coast Guard cutter Alert gave up the search

Her officers expressed belief the schooner foundered off Dixon Entrance, not far from Ketchikan with five men aboard. Two private vessels joined the search.

DOMINION HAS MADE LOANS TO PROVINCES

None Since 1323 Excepting Dominion's Share

WINNIPEG, March 1.—(CP)—Loans have been made by the Dominion Government to no Province, including Manitoba, but none have been made since 1932, low direct unemployment relief stated Premier John Bracken in the Legislature last night. Neither had loans been made in respect of the Municipalities' share of the expenditure.

Any money advanced by the federal authories, he added, had only been to cover the Dominion's share of the unemployment relief burden.

"The Premier's statement was in reply to a query of W. Sanford Evans, Conservative.

ROOSEVELT COMPLETES CABINET SELECTIONS

Louis, Mac and Steve are the Secretariat

Hyde Park, N.Y., March 1 (AP)—President-elect Roosevelt completed the selection of his official family today and journeyed to the White House.

He picked "Louis, Mac and Steve" for his secretariat—Louis M. Howe, senior secretary, and Marvin H. McIntyre, of Memphis, and Stephen T. Early, of Virginia, as his other chief aides in the White House.

TREASURE SHIP IS FOUND IN DISTRESS

Yawl Used as Supply Ship For Mate Expected Daily

New York, Mar. 1.—(CP)—A cable from Panama to the New York Times said the yawl Vigilante of the Lackie treasure hunting expedition that left Vancouver a year ago with high hopes of finding the distress Treasure near Cocha Island, Later a hurricane took her adrift.

The cable added that the yawl had been used as a supply ship by the Alvin Hall, the vessel which has been digging fruitlessly on Cocha Island for almost a year.

Word of the Vigilante's plight was carried to Panama by the steamer Susan Luckenbach. Four men were aboard when the Luckenbach pulled into Panama City, and left them at the Panama Canal, and she left them one week ago.

The cable went on to say the Alvin ship Mechanic later discovered the Canadian craft and took her in tow for Prales Island, about 100 miles from Balboa.

PERPLEXING QUESTION

Brantford, Ont., Mar. 1 (CP)—The question perplexing D. O. THREATENED MASSACRE IS CAUSE ALARM

British M. P.'s Fear For Safety of Britishers in Germany

QUERIES MADE

British Ambassador Will Keep in Constant Communication

(By George Hamblelen, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 1 (C.P. Cable) — A note of alarm echoed around the House of Commons this afternoon over widespread rumors of a threatened Jewish massacre in Germany. Members of both sides of the House asked Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon.

R. J. G. Boothby, Conservative, queried if the Foreign Secretary had any information to give the House and to make representation to the German government for the safety of British residents.

Sir John said he had, of course, received communications on the situation from the British Ambassador but had no information to give. He had no reason to doubt

RAILWAYS TO USE TRUCKS?

Toronto Paper Tells of Rumor Among Railway men

TORONTO, March 1.—(CP)—The Toronto Star this afternoon declares a well-defined rumour was current in railway circles to the effect that Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have reached an agreement to enter jointly into the highway truck business. No confirmation of the report could be secured from the heads of either railways, although the statements of the Star's editors were given.

The newspaper pointed out the rumours were detailed, listing five points of the supposed service, which would be throughout Ontario, as follows:

Commencement of the service, March under licenses already secured; elimination of the less profitable lines by the railways; operation as a unit, with the competition eliminated; combination of highway trucking with express business; and introduction of methods of operation which long-distance rail hauling.

Under the supposed scheme it would be hoped to cover anywhere in Ontario from overnight to designed within 24 hours, the newspaper added.

Cabinet to Name Pen Officials

Appointment Likely to be Taken From Civil Service

Ottawa, March 1 (CP)—Changes in the manner of appointing penitentiary officials are recommended to the House of Commons by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

In a resolution placed on the order paper today he suggests amendments to the Penitentiary Act to provide that the Governor-in-Council may appoint a superintendent of penitentiaries and may appoint such inspectors, wardens, deputy wardens and other administrative or executive officers as may be required, with such salaries as are provided by the Governor-in-Council; and that the superintendent, upon the recommendation of the warden, may appoint such guards, instructors and other subordinate officers and employees as are necessary, with such salaries as are provided by the Governor-in-Council; and to make further provision in respect to penalties paid to officers on retirement and the widows or dependents of officers who die in the service.

These officials are appointed now by the Civil Service Commission and it is understood the Minister of Justice wishes to centralize control over penitentiaries. This is believed to be the result of criticism arising out of the recent riots at Portsmouth and St. Vincent-de Paul penitentiaries.

LATE WIRE BRIEFS

Chicago, Mar. 1—(AP)—For a weapon Joseph McGowan chose a shotgun when Mrs. Rose charged in a bill for divorce.

When she went to his place of employment to ask him for his prescription, and I help, he swung the boom of his steam shovel and scooped her up.

The judge said she could have an injunction preventing Joseph from annoying his wife or without the steam shovel.

Minneapolis, Mar. 1.—(AP)—Wearing pants is a crime if a woman—is as bad—according to law here—as wearing nothing at all. A 19 year old girl complained says:

"No person shall appear on any street or in any public or exposed place in a state of nudity or in any dress not belonging to his or her sex."

The maximum penalty is $100 fine or 30 days.

Chief of Police William J. Meehan says he will enforce it.

Chicago, Mar. 1.—(AP)—A little caution is a good thing. Mrs. William Selvig believes.

When a Judge told her former husband, Jos. M. Selvig to pay up his alimony or go to jail, she said,

"I'd rather have the money. Judge, Jails won't hold him. He's a beknind!"

The War Zone

Chinchow, Manchuria, March 1 (AP)—The Japanese military command announced in the army of the north entered Chi Peng, commercial and transportation centre of Jehol province at 4 a.m. today. No Chinese resistance was offered, it said.

Two other towns on China's inner defence line were reported captured early today.

The victories were reported for the time the main Japanese offensive which are swining on successively widening arcs over the province with the capital, Jehol City (Chengteu) as their common objective.

AGRICULTURAL CHAIRMANSHIP TO JAMIESON

Thrshers Uurge Changes To Allow Liens on Crops

SEEK PROTECTION

Committee Cannot See Argument of Threshers

Toronto, Mar. 1—(AP)—J. E. Jamieson, Conz., orutthvest Hastings, today was appointed chairman of the important Agriculture Committee of the Ontario Legislature. As was the case last year, the main agricultural and industrial body was split into five sub-committees and chairmen appointed.

The committee also heard a deputation from the Ontario Thresbermen's Association urging changes to permit the threshers to put a lien on a farmer's crops, giving the farmer 30 days to pay them before other claims against the crops were paid. Prieleiber, Wanted.

Presenting the case for the threshers, Wm. Bowman, W., South Huron County, declared they wanted some protection for threshing the grain. "Things stood now, the only way the thresher was assured of his pay was by taking the grain away as soon as it was threshed. The change desired, he said, would permit the thresher to give the farmer notification of the lien and before grain could be sold, enough must be reserved to pay for the threshing.

The threshers had so many debts

NO DRASTIC SALARY CUTS

Minor Adjusting Only at Abitibi Power Development

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—"We are making some minor adjustments at Smooth Rock Falls and Iroquois Falls but no drastic salary reductions or layoffs are contemplated," said G. H. Clarkson, Manager for the Abitibi Canyon Power Development, in Toronto today, concerning press reports from Northern Ontario to the effect that cuts and layoffs were being effected. North Bay, he said, would not be affected by the adjustments.

"A few men are being laid off," said Mr. Clarkson, "but there is nothing drastic about our action."

Hon. J. R. Cooke, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, commenting on the reports, said: "As a matter of fact the Hydro Power Commission has not yet received the Abitibi report, which is still in the hands of the receivers."

MGR. PUCCI MAKES VISIT

Papal Prelate on Tour of Canada, Stops in Kingston

Kingston, Ont., March 1 (CP)—Right Rev. Monsignor Enrico Pucci, Domestic Prelate to His Holiness the Pope, was in Kingston today, accompanied by Benjamin A. Bertrand, President of the Vatican Memorial Foundation Committee, Bert A. Wilson, Secretary, and J. K. Starnes.

Monsignor Pucci is making a tour of Canada to hold papal benedictions in connection with work of the corporation, Mr. Wilson said. The work consisting representations of original paintings and drawings of the Holy Family.

The paintings are by V. H. Bellini, of Rome, some 4ast of 100, 000 words by Mgr. Pucci.

One Year for Relief Fraud Handed Out by Magistrate Burbidge in Court

Hamilton, March 1 (CP) — That Magistrate H. A. Burbidge was in earnest when he warned those who perpetrated frauds upon the City Relief Department, was shown in Police Court today. Edward Dennes, found guilty of obtaining relief by fraud, was sentenced to one year in the reformatory plus six months of indeterminate plus a fine of $100 an additional six months.

Relief officials showed that Dennes had reported his wife's earning during the beginning of the year as much less than the actual sum and had by that means obtained $50.68 from the city treasury.

JEHOL SLIPS FROM GRASP OF CHINESE

Small Losses Mark Advance of Japanese Forces

DEFENCES CRUMBLE

Only South West of Fringe of Wasteland is Chinese

Chinchow, Manchuria, March 1 (AP)—Moving rapidly and with fewer losses than even the most sanguine Japanese had hoped, Jehol today appeared to be slipping from China's grasp.

CUSTOMS REVENUE IS STILL ON WAY DOWN

Decline From January Almost $6,000 For the Month of February

Continuing decline in the collections of Customs were revealed in figures released by Major E. A. Gerry collector for the Port of Belleville, for the month ending February 28, 1933, as compared with revenue for the preceeding month and the corresponding period of a year ago. Collections for last month amounted to $44,708.56, while January's collections amounted to $50,716.65, a decline of $5,908.09. The second month of 1932 of $53,861.56, and the first month of the year, February 1932, the revenue of the local Port amounted to $130,464.20.

The Weather

Toronto, Mar. 1—(Synopsis)—The eastern storm has moved slowly this morning about two hundred miles southeast of Sable Island with diminishing intensity, having caused fresh easterly winds and rain and rain in the Maritime provinces. Snow has also fallen in many parts of Quebec. A pronounced area of high pressure extends from the Arctic south with moderate winds in the northwest States to the Gulf of Mexico and Florida. Mild weather prevails in the western provinces with a moderate snowfall in Alberta.

Northern Ontario—Fair and a little colder tonight and Thursday.

March Comes in Like 'Lyin''

Toronto, Mar. 1 (CP) — March first — as March firsts go — was today. There was a mild sunshine balmy enough in most of Ontario to make the snow clouds of yesday later. The month came in "like a lamb," but listen to the weather man on the radio tonight and tomorrow.

"Spell it 'lyin'," and it would be more to the point," he declared. "We simply don't know what to expect in the manner of March's coming in has anything to do with the style of its going out in the language of today, it's the bunk."

PREMIER HENRY MAKES RECOVERY

Toronto, Mar. 1 (CP)—Premier George S. Henry, who has been suffering from influenza at his home, was reported "very much improved" today. It is not expected, however, the Premier will return to his duties at the Parliament Buildings in Toronto before the week is busy at home and held one Cabinet meeting there.

City and District News

CHECKER GAMES END IN TIES

One of the strangest series of games that has been played on a checker board in this city will probably end some time this week when either Mr. Jos. Adams, member of the local fire department, or Mr. William Bennett, breaking clerk, which has ended each checker game played by them during the past two days. Out of a tournament which continued several days ago, Mr. Adams and Mr. Bennett emerged winners—only to play each other in a continuing series each game played by them since. Playing intermittently when the occasion offers, Mr. Adams or Mr. Bennett is expected to emerge the winner of the tournament this week. So far the honors have been even.

CHECKER TOURNEY REACHES PLAYOFFS

Checker players from throughout this section will meet in Picton in the football shooting this week-end of the playoff for the Eastern Ontario checker championship. The play is to be divided into two classes of A and B, and Mr. W. Collier, last year's champion, a silver cup for the winner of the two championships. Any resident of Picton is eligible to enter the play offs. Mr. Jacob Vrooman, local superintendent of the organization sponsoring the tournament, and the local officers are James Rolston, secretary, Wallie E. Vick, vice president, and Mr. H. Bennett, treasurer. It is expected that Belleville will be well represented at the play offs in Picton.

BOB CLARE WINS PRIZE OF SUIT

Mr. Bob Clare, local resident, walked away with a brand new suit of clothes given as a special prize at the Labor Association euchre and dance, held in Memorial Hall Tuesday evening. Winning numbers, drawn from a hat at the box by Miss Gra.e Lemon, pianist of Johnnie Lloyd's orchestra which supplied the music for the dancing, Over fifty euchre were necessary to cash the euchre players, with prizes being given to Mrs. L. Goulet, Mrs. Alex Gordon and Mrs. Ted Haslip in order. For the gentlemen, Mr. O. Darnell, Mr. Bert Young and Mr. C. Staples were winners in order. Rummy prizes were to Mr. Daniel Doyle, of Tyendinaga.

ONLY ONE WALK IN SECTION ICY

On a half mile long street in this city, a local resident points out, only one sidewalk has failed to clear his own section of walk in front of his home since the snow fall some days ago. What now remains is a narrow strip of slippery ice on the walk caused by the melting snow and then freezing. And strange as it may seem, although the man is able to boast, and has most reason to boast, of the work of clearing the walk, he is the only one in that block who has not been receiving city relief for some time.

GETS JAIL AND NOT DEPORTATION

With tond hopes of being deported after the Harry Hawes-30, a North Fredericksburg Township farm helper stole a car before, ranging to Councillor Frank Marsh, Napanee, and started east on the highway at 2 p.m. Sgt. Det. Al Corbiere, who gave himself up to the police and explained in detail his actions. Chief Constable Waits of Napanee brought the youth back from Cornwall to face a charge of theft of a car before Magistrate Graham of Napanee. Instead of a recommendation for deportation, a sentence of two months in jail was meted out to Raven, with an added sentence of 30 days for fighting a boy on a bicycle while on the trip to Cornwall.

ANGLICANS OBSERVE ASH WEDNESDAY

Today being Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, there was a celebration of the Holy Communion in the chapel at St. Thomas' Parish Church at 7.30 a.m., Matins was held at 9 a.m. and at 10 a.m. the Communion Office was continued, followed by a celebration of the Holy Communion. Evensong will be held in the chapel at 7 o'clock this evening.

At Christ Church at 10 a.m. the Communion Office was conducted, followed by the Holy Communion. This evening a Lenten service will be conducted at St. George's Church at 7.30 o'clock.

LIGHT OUTFITS USED IN CUTTING

There was a hint of danger in the manner in which commercial ice men of the city were hauling the cut ice from the Bay of Quinte Wednesday morning by the one horse drawn sleighs, which have replaced the teams of horses and heavy trucks, which have been drawing the ice away last week. Loads on the sleighs composed of the cut cakes of ice are also considerably lighter. Rather than risk the loss of a horse in a heavy load over the ice to give way, single horses and lighter sleighs are being used this week. On Tuesday during the late afternoon scattering of the ice floes of the bay, work by the majority of the men was suspended at four o'clock in the afternoon. In the morning work is being pushed as fast as possible to harvest the dwindling crop.

SPEAKS ON EARLY DAYS IN DISTRICT

Members of Quinte Friendship Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, following their regular meeting of the degree in Masonic Temple, listened to an interesting talk on historical events and the early background of this city and district by Ex. Comp. W. C. Mikel, K.C., Tuesday evening. He was introduced by Ex. Comp. Dr. J. W. Kinnear, while thanks for the description of the address in this section were expressed by Ex. Comp. Fred Chapman. During the evening the lecturer contributed several selections on the violin and piano, which were greeted with great applause by the members. Ex. Comp. Ernest Smith presided most capably during the evening as toastmaster.

CAT DISPATCHED AFTER BEING HIT

Dragging its painful way from the road to the Ivor home hauling the Benjamin Street late Tuesday afternoon, a cat with a broken back and head beaten in lying helplessly in the centre of the street after it had been struck by a hit-and-run driver, was dispatched by Mr. Thomas Hogan, 15 Ivor Ave., early. He had been summoned to end the early misery by a resident of the street, where the animal and heard the pitiful caterwaulings, as it lay in the middle of the road by the fence. During the earlier part of the day Mr. Thorne also summoned to the happy hunting grounds via the lethal chamber of gas, a cat which during the past of twelve years had been a pet of a local resident. Mr. Thorne was called in to end some so feeble that its end was a merciful one.

LOST SIX WEEKS AIREDALE FOUND

Missing six weeks, completely lost during which time he had been picked on and mauled by other dogs in the district, a fine Airedale terrier and scraps from back doors, a dog which answers to the name of Sandy, Mr. J. T. Warren, of this city, was recovered by his owner Wednesday morning, when on the 4th Line of Sidney, who had recognized the dog from the description given in the "Lost and Found" columns of the Intelligencer. Communication was quickly followed by a celebration of the Holy Communion. Evensong will be held in the chapel at 7 o'clock this evening.

At Christ Church at 10 a.m. the Communion Office was conducted, followed by the Holy Communion. This evening a Lenten service will be conducted at St. George's Church at 7.30 o'clock.

LAMB GAMBOLS BUT SNOW FALLS

A woolly little lamb gambolled in the pasture lands of a farm in Sidney and bare pastures in this district when the early temperatures of the first day of March also gave little sign that winter was ready to quit. But now, if school book precepts and nursery jingles prove true, the lamb will have to wait for pastures during the end of March, while March will have the whitewashing before the month is ended. Temperatures dropped to the zero line and light mixture of snow and rain fell over the city during the early hours of the periods, and lowering clouds blotted out the bright sun that usually shines on the Bay of Quinte comparatively high for the first day of March, but no snow has been recorded during the day. Low during the early morning hours of 27 Sap is running in the bush sections of the county again, and the unseasonable appearance of sunny weather, while little frost remains in the ground.

RENOVATIONS AT CUSTOMS HOUSE

Mr. Alf. Lasier, painter and decorator of this city, with nine assistants is this week busily engaged in giving the interior of the Post Office and Customs House of Belleville a thorough renovation, beginning with the roof. The work has progressed satisfactorily and the much-needed renovation is most noticeable; the walls and woodwork of the various rooms in the building all showing the need of the attention of artists.

MILD WINTER SAVING IN CITY BUILDINGS

Present Winter Makes Record in Low Fuel Bills at City Institutions

Belleville taxpayers are faced with dwindling fuel bills for public buildings during the months of the year, caused by comparative mild weather that has just established a new era of various public buildings to make appreciable savings in the amount of coal used.

In the opinion of Mr. Jesse Harris, caretaker of the city hall, the past two years has enabled him to cut down considerably on the amount of coke and coal used by the civic institution with that year probably treating the low fuel consumption of last year. The average would have been considerably lower he claimed but for the several days of sustained sub zero weather during the earlier part of the season. Other public buildings and schools report the same saving. East winds and northwest winds bring shivery chills to workers in the city hall on occasions, it was revealed. When the northwest gales blow considerable trouble is experienced by the caretaker in the heating plant of the building, while an east wind will bring icicles on office equipment in the city engineer's department.

Give Nature a Chance

Nature at every moment of your existence is standing by your side; a silent physician to help you. But you must not ignore Nature or treat her disdainfully. You must give her an opportunity to work unhindered by your body.

The brain is the great generator of the nerve energy which is the life force of the body. This nerve energy is transmitted over the nerve cables to the various organs, tissues and cells of the body.

Electric lights will not shine with the energy cut off, neither will the nerves co-ordinate when the nerve trunks are subjected to pressure by the vertebrae. Chiropractors liberate the impinged nerves.

WHO KNOWS SNOW BYLAW?

Property Owners, Tenants Have Mistaken Idea of Regulations

A mistaken idea that property owners or tenants in the city have 24 hours grace following each new storm to clear the walks in front of their respective dwellings is being cleared up by the airing of a by-law passed in the city as far back as 1903 compelling all property owners or tenants to clear their walks following each snow fall before 10.00 a.m. the following day, on penalty of a fine not to exceed $20.

Since the 1st day of December, 1932, when the present by-law was passed, the idea that residents had 24 hours to clear the walks has been mere theory only. Following is the wording of the Section of the By-Law in question:

"Section 3 of By-Law No. 1126:— A By-Law to prevent the deposit of sand ice from the roofs and premises, and from the sidewalks in the City of Belleville, and to repeal By-Law No. 857, and Chapter 4 of the consolidated by-laws of the City of Belleville, Passed on the 14th day of December, 1903.

Snow Shoveling Sec. 3:—"That every person or corporation owning or occupying premises, in the City of Belleville shall remove, or cause to be removed, all snow and ice from the sidewalks in front of such streets and alley; adjoining such premises so owned or occupied by such person or corporation before 10.00 o'clock each morning, or in the case of a storm commencing then one within each 24 hours.

That if the snow or ice be so frozen that it cannot be so removed without injury to the sidewalks or pavements any such person or corporation shall strew or cause to be strewn sand, ashes or some other suitable substance so that same shall be rendered as safe possible from danger to pedestrians. (Signed)—F. G. Mikel, City Clerk, R. J. Graham, Mayor.

At present the office of the City Engineer is receiving the total snow bill cards to residents of the city who had neglected to clear their walks of the recent snow fall, and which were cleared by employees of the public works department.

TRENTON GIRL TELLS STORY OF ASSAULT

Wilbert O'Shea and David Brain Charged With Serious Offence

GIRL YOUNG

Statement of Accused Men as to Affair Given by Police

The prosecution rested at 12.47 today after submitting the evidence of nine witnesses in the case of a charge of a rather serious nature resulting in the alleged assault of a girl of Trenton last December. The accused men who have been committed by David Brain and Wilbert O'Shea, both residents at the Air Port. They appeared today before His Lordship, Mr. Justice Garrow in the Trial Sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario now in session.

Mr. Norman MacDonnell, K.C., of Toronto, local Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution while Mr. J. D. O'Flynn, local barrister, appeared for the two accused men.

The jury which was placed from 29 jurymen called consisted of the following: Ernest Bonisteel, Elijah Horton, Fred Treverton, Wm. Colville, Elijah Cook, Fred Sexsmith, Edgar Irwin, Emmerson Huff, Wm. Whalen, Oscar Pidgeon, Wm. Colville, Elijah Cook, Fred.

A sixteen year old girl told of an alleged assault by two men on Front Street in Trenton on the morning of Dec. 7th last, she left the Mission about 7.30 p.m. intending to return home.

"When I passed on your way home?" asked Mr. MacDonnell.

"I met a car on the bridge, the C.P.R. railway bridge," was the answer.

"Who met you? or rather do you recognize any of the two prisoners?" asked the Crown.

"Well I'm not sure but they look like him," pointing to Wilbert O'Shea and took me across the bridge," said the witness.

Dragged Across Bridge

Witness related how the men had grabbed her by the arms and neck, later dragged her across the 200 yard foot-passenger bridge along side of the C.P.R. railway bridge in Trenton.

"Did you struggle or shout?" asked Mr. MacDonnell.

"Yes, I did," was the reply.

Witness told how the girl being forced from the east end of the bridge and the men, Brain and O'Shea a nearby field, by the two men.

She claimed she was assaulted. Some time elapsed.

The witness claimed, that while being forced from the field by the other held her in spite of her struggles, she saw a number of the men coming in their direction, the men then disappeared, claimed the young girl.

After being left alone the girl started to walk to the Mission and to complain to the police. She identified a number of articles of clothing found in the possession of Turnbull of the Assault and he informed the police. Turnbull found arrival of Constable Miller and Sergeant Wolfe she again related her story.

"Where did you go then?" asked Mr. Crown.

"I went down to the Air Port, with the police, where Brain worked some men," was the answer.

"Do you identify any of the men or your assailants?"

"No, I could not."

At this point the witness broke down and wept. She was questioned by her counsel, Mr. MacDonnell.

Upon being cross examined by J. D. O'Flynn, witness claimed that on seeing any person go past the Mission she was being assaulted. She later admitted she knew that Brain and two men came from the Air Port but the fact of a statement previously heard between them. She did not know the men seen on the evening morning of the offence committed. "Did you not tell Detective Turnbull that night?" asked His Lordship.

"No, they were all asleep."

"Were the police callies as to your absence at such a late hour from the family?" asked His Lordship.

"No, Sir."

David Turnbull, garage attendant was the first informed of the assault by the girl, took the stand and told of the girl coming into the garage on the night in question. She seemed quite hysterial, said the witness. She upon request, called the police. "She was crying," said Turnbull upon cross examination.

J. A. McMullin, chief engineer, produced a plan showing a diagram of the C.P.R. railway bridge crossing Trenton.

Witness stated the garage was a half mile from the scene of the alleged assault.

Chief Bain, of the Trenton police department, did not know of the case until 9 a.m. the following morning, when he immediately left for the scene of the alleged assault to investigate, with his men. Owing to the heavy rain nearly all evidence had been destroyed, which might have been of importance. O'Shea's clothing was exhibited in court.

Dr. R. G. Williams, X-Ray and laboratory expert at the Belleville General Hospital, testified that upon examination of the clothing he found traces of human blood.

Dr. A. E. McQuade, Trenton physician, testified.

Sergeant John White of the Provincial Police told of answering a call to the above mentioned garage and found the girl crying. Later she related her story to him of the assault.

Men Paraded

Following the declaration given by the girl Sergeant White took the girl to the Air Camp where the officer in charge paraded all the men at the camp before the Sergeant and the girl. The men were brought in at the rate of 16 at a time. Later the officer was informed that he was wanted in another room and upon his arrival he found the girl there and the officer questioning them he placed them under arrest, on a serious charge. The witness then told of the accused men making voluntary signed statements to the effect that they had met the girl on the railway bridge and after striking her they assaulted Lance O'Shea kissed her and they raped across the bridge. The Sergeant then read the full statements of both men, which gave their version of the affair. They denied compulsion, as a matter of fact O'Shea, in his statement, said he had "made a date" with the girl for the following night. Upon cross-examination the witness was of the opinion that both men knew of the incident until the next morning.

The action of the girl told of her daughter leaving to attend school at the Mission. She knew if she did not see her daughter again that night at the slept downstairs. In the morning the witness was informed of the assault by her daughter.

COLOURFUL GYPSY TEA WELL PATRONIZED

A colorful and fascinating air was lent the charming afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. W. Ellery, East Bridge Street yesterday, when the ladies in charge of the affair and in brilliant costumes mingled with the guests, looking after the needs of the visitors. The occasion was the gypsy tea arranged by the members of the W. C. T. U. group of St. Andrew's Club and the affair was a most successful one. Dark-haired and dark-eyed gypsy maidens in charge of the tea table poured served. In one popular corner one could cross the palm of the fortune teller with the traditional silver, and amazing things, past, present and future, the gypsy fortune teller officiated as the seer.

The pretty rooms were thronged with guests and those in charge must have been greatly gratified with the success of the afternoon's affair. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Ellery, Mrs. A. E. Seymour. The dining room with its pretty lace cloth, its attractive centre piece of yellow daffodils and the tall green tapers was presided over by Mrs. Chas. Cameron. Those assisting were Mrs. G. A. L. Thorne, Mrs. W. D. Reckin, Miss Helen Fargey, Miss Mamie Waters, Mrs. Geo. Hill and Mrs. N. H. Bonter. The home-cooking table, where delicacies were quickly sold, was in charge of Mrs. Clifford Mayhee and Mrs. Lee Ketcheson. Miss Alice Fargey acted as treasurer.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED IN MIDDLE OF TERM

Board to reconsider His Motion Foothill Ratepayers Requests

Welland, Ont., March 1.—(CP)—A largely attended meeting of ratepayers of Foothill was held last night for the purpose of discussing the action of the school board in asking for the resignation of Principal A. W. Cook of the public school in the middle of the term. A motion was passed requesting the Board to reconsider the dismissal.

Lack of school discipline was alleged in requesting the resignation.

OBITUARY

MRS. EMMA NAYLOR

The death occurred Tuesday, at her late home on Dairyville Avenue, Ivor, of Mrs. Emma Green Naylor, formerly of this city, in her 74th year. Mrs. Naylor was born in England and had resided in Canada for 51 years, most of that time in Belleville. Previous to her marriage she was Miss Emma Green and lived with her parents at Avendale, on the Trent Road. Her husband, the late ex-Alderman Edward Naylor of Belleville, predeceased a number of years ago, and will be remembered as a blacksmith and veterinary surgeon in this city; for many years he had his forge on the premises now occupied by the Liberty garage.

Mrs. Naylor was a member of the United Church and while resident in Belleville was an active participant in the Christian activities of the city. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Lugsdin of Toronto and Mrs. Alfred Coles of London, England.

GEORGE F. CUNNINGHAM

With sincerest regret, intelligence of the passing of George Franklin Cunningham was learned throughout the city and Prince Edward County. Mr. Cunningham had died at his late residence in the 6th concession of Ameliasburgh Tuesday. He had been in ill health for some time, the result of a series of strokes and his death was not unexpected. The funeral service was held on the township, where his death occurred, 67 years ago, and had lived all his life. He was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cunningham and for United Empire Loyalist descent. Mr. Cunningham was widely known throughout the Bay of Quinte District and was most highly regarded by all who knew him. He was a member of the United Church and the Hillcrest Court of the I.O.F.; a past president of the Hyland Cheese Factory, a former member of the Ameliasburgh township council, and at one time was a tax collector in the township. In politics Mr. Cunningham had been a staunch Conservative.

LAST JAMES W. SWETMAN

The funeral of the late James W. Swetman was held Tuesday afternoon from the Merrin and Son Funeral Home, St. Church Street, to Bethesda United Church, where service was held at 3.30 p.m., conducted by the Rev. J. E. Mc-Cutcheon, pastor of the Tabernacle congregation. The Rev. Mr. Blanchard of Bloomfield, took part in the service and these two men, intimate friends of the late, at the interment service in Glenwood cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes of former friends and neighbors gathered to pay their final tribute of respect to the deceased and the many floral offerings bore silent testimony of the esteem in which he was held during his lifetime.

Pallbearers were Marshall Clark, E. Purtelle, E. Barker, H. Y. Cooper, Stanley Tripp and Herbert Leavitt.

THE LATE NANCY ALLAN HAILSTONE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Nancy Allan Hailstone was held Monday afternoon last, from her late residence on St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, where service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Marshall, a former pastor of the Church. Interment was made at Lakeview Cemetery, Madoc.

The bearers were Messrs. George West, W. J. Hill, George Wright, Harold Wright, W. McKenzie and Robert Wood.

LATE FRANK R. MAINES

Tweed (Special)—The funeral of the late Frank R. Maines, which took out away in Toronto, was held at the United Church on Tuesday afternoon, with a large attendance of Tweed Lodge No. 229, A. F. and A. M., of which deceased was a member. The funeral orgnize proceeded from the home, the lodge following the arrival of the train to the United Church, where Rev. Mr. Whyte conducted the service in charge of the service. During the service Mrs. Ernest Bonisteel sang with much feeling a duet "He Whips the Winds and Frees Eye." The minister brought a message of hope of a joyful reunion in the life beyond, to the bereaved relatives and friends. There were many beautiful floral tributes from friends of the deceased. The pallbearers, who acted in the ceremony at Bethel.

CENTENARY OF MORMONISM CELEBRATED

Revelation of "Word of Wisdom" on Feb. 27, 1833

FOODS NAMED

Church of Latter-Day Saints Stresses Strict Rules

This week there is being celebrated by the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, known throughout the world as "Mormons," the 100th anniversary of the adoption of a mode of health known as the "Word of Wisdom." Members of this Church believe that this Word of Wisdom, which is a set of rules governing eating and drinking, was given by revelation to Joseph Smith, the "Mormon" prophet, on February 27, 1833. Its announcement at that time aroused considerable opposition and by many it was denounced as being fanatical and unsound. Members of the Church, however, accepted it and for some years regarded it as counsel and advice. Later, it was adopted by the Church as a commandment and orthodox "Mormons" now consider its observance as a religious obligation.

The Word of Wisdom prescribes certain foods as being desirable in nourishment, health, endurance and wisdom. Other articles are either definitely prohibited or recommended to be used sparingly.

The recommended foods include wholesome herbs, grains, fruits, vegetables and "flesh of beasts and of fowls of the air," it is recommended, however, that meat be eaten sparingly and preferably only in "times of winter or of cold or famine." The meat of "wild animals" is recommended for use "only in times of famine and excess of hunger."

Alcoholic drinks, tobacco and hot drinks—specifically tea and coffee—are thought to be inhurious to health and detrimental to the body.

Latter-day Saints who follow the admonitions of the Word of Wisdom are promised "wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures" and that they "shall run and not be weary and shall walk and not faint."

"Mormon" athletes place great faith in these promises, and members of the Church point to outstanding performances of adherents to that faith in vindication of their belief. Probably the strongest evidence of the benefits to be derived from following the teachings of the Word of Wisdom if the fact that the death rate among "Mormons" the world over is slightly more than half that of the 25 leading nations. Statistics showing health, conditions, the birth rate, and other items strongly favor the "Mormon" viewpoint.

During the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the "Word of Wisdom," members of the Church who are found in every State of the Union, and most civilized countries, will stress the benefits and blessings to be gained by strict observance of what they believe to be their divinely inspired code of health.

CONKLIN SHOWS FOR THE FAIR

One of The Best Midways Now Travelling in Province

Secretary R. H. Ketcheson of the Belleville Fair Board announced today the signing of the Conklin Shows for the Fair Week this fall in making the announcement stating that it was one of the best shows that will travel the Dominion this year. The contract was signed, when R. M. Mitchell and Mr. Ketcheson attended the Ontario Fairs Association in Toronto recently as delegates for the Fair Board. The delegates were accompanied by other directors of the Board and after thoroughly investigating the standing of the company had no hesitancy to affix their signatures to the contract.

The Conklin Shows toured Western Canada last year coming east to fill a number of limited engagements, Peterboro and Lindsay being two of the fairs visited in this district. A partial contract had been made for the shows to be seen here but difficulties arose and the shows had to pass the engagement up. Both Peterboro and Lindsay fair boards were more than satisfied with the calibre of the shows and rides and will have them again this year. The shows wintered in Hamilton this year and will conduct a small tour in this Province before moving west for fair dates. It is understood it requires 15 railway cars to transport their equipment and they guarantee the local board, there would be placed on the midway here sixteen shows and rides exclusive of the concessions. The concessions are all clean and the personnel of the staff is highly recommended. The Fair Board is fortunate in securing such an excellent attraction, a midway of high calibre being the only thing needed to put the Belleville Fair over the top.

125 Billions in Junk Heap and in Ruins in Last 25 Years

Mr. W. C. Mikel Speaks on Post War Debts to R. A. Masons

Ex-Comp W. C. Mikel delivered in the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple before the members of Quinte Preceptory, Knights Templar, Arch Masons, Tuesday night an address on "Things We Ought to Know."

125 Billion Loss

He said—"The junk heaps of America and Europe contain the remains of rebuilding and replacing an expenditure, directly and indirectly, of 75 billions of dollars. The late European war represents a waste of 50 billions of dollars. These make a total of 125 billions of dollars lost in the last twenty-five years.

"Figuring the world with products of 500 millions of people, Asia at slave prices has retarded the world in recovering from the effects of the above mentioned loss of 125 billions of dollars.

"The United States made the Treaty of Paris by which they agreed to allow the European Allied Loyalists to recover their lands and collect their debts but the different States enacted legislation preventing the Loyalists getting their lands or collecting their debts, thus repudiating obligations amounting to many millions of dollars.

France Won War of Revolution

"Those individuals repudiation of debts and urge that repudiation is the method that has always been adopted by countries when in serious difficulties. France, United States, Russia, Ireland, the southern States that withdrew from the war army with repudiation of arms and ammunition to assist the Thirteen Colonies in their revolt from the Empire, and refused sending arms and ammunition to Washington, also 25 millions to pay for Washington's soldiers, and although France really won the Revolutionary War, the United States refused to repay this 25 million dollars.

"Washington's soldiers in addition made loans to the different Southern States to assist them to pay their Civil War and these States repudiated the debt.

"In the early days of Great Britain the Kings negotiated the loans to a large extent, and it is still sometimes repaid these loans in Stock at 40 cents on Miles of nobility. King John undertook to pay back the Barons the loans he had borrowed to protect against European interference and also local troubles. This was never, later repudiated by the country. In the Wars of the Roses between Lancaster and York, Lancaster repudiated each other's obligations as did Cromwell and the Stuarts.

"It looks as of the European countries will repudiate their debts to the United States in respect of the War loans.

"On the 6th of March next Belleville will have completed 99 years as an incorporated municipality and has always paid its debts. Conditions in Belleville have been far worse during that period than they are now.

"In 1934 Belleville will celebrate its some dignified and suitable manner the Centennial of its existence as an incorporated municipality. Many of the citizens throughout the city have already signified approval of the Centennial and have undertaken to participate in the celebration.

HARRY SWEET NOT GUILTY

Jury Out Only an Hour Returning With Above Verdict

Harry Sweet, Marmora, was found not guilty of theft of money, etc., while armed when, after deliberating all over one hour, Judge Kellock presiding at the present sitting of Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court at the local Court House, before His Lordship, Mr. Justice Garrow, came from the jury room at 6.12 p.m. last evening and acquitted the accused following about all day trial.

Sweet was on trial facing a charge of armed robbery when—he was charged with robbing Albert Bonisteel his employee, of the sum of $30.00 on the night of December 2nd last on the 7th concession of Marmora. The most of the evidence in the case was heard on Tuesday morning with corroborating evidence on behalf of the accused being submitted as the afternoon session, when Hoy and Ray Sheriff, neighbors of the accused, Marshall Sweet, the accused man's wife, Alvena and Gerald Heath, Thurlow Fleming and Andrew Thompson all gave evidence which contradicted and to prove the accused man's innocence. His wife was first to be testified, that Sweet had not left his home, after 7 p.m., the night of the alleged robbery.

Mr. Chas. A. Payne, K.C., appearing for the accused man, addressed the jury at length pointing out, that the Crown must prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, the man's guilt before a verdict of guilty can be arrived at. In closing Mr. Payne firmly brought to light the fact, that never during the trial did Stone pointedly accuse Sweet of committing the offence.

Mr. Norman MacDonnell, K.C., appearing for the prosecution, assured the jury, in summing up his address, that he was not here to add convictions to his laurels but merely to bring before the jury the evidence submitted, and on this evidence that Mr. MacDonnell felt sure the jury would find in bringing the jury was convinced that nothing went for fair dates. It is understood it requires 15 railway cars to transport their equipment and they guaranteed the local board, there would be placed on the midway here sixteen shows and rides exclusive of the concessions. The concessions are all clean and the personnel of the staff is highly recommended. The Fair Board is fortunate in securing such an excellent attraction, a midway of high calibre being the only thing needed to put the Belleville Fair over the top.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

To the Hon. Chief Justice Garrow:
Your Lordship—We, the Grand Jury for the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery of the County of Hastings, beg leave to report as follows:

We desire to thank your Lordship for the able and clear instructions in the Law in reference to the consideration of the Criminal cases which came before us and also in our other duties.

We desire to thank Mr. Norman S. Macdonnell, K.C., Crown Prosecutor and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, together with Sheriff Stokes, Gaoler G. H. French and his assistant, R. D. Copeland and A. Winters for their attention during our services as Grand Jurors.

We visited the County Gaol and found therein twelve male prisoners and one female. The interior of the gaol is in a neat and orderly condition.

We then visited the County Home for the Aged where we were kindly met Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock that in charge. We found that these two people were doing a wonderful work in this department. We interviewed eighty-six inmates who seemed happy and contented. We should like to suggest that a radio be supplied for the amusement of the people in the institution.

We also visited the Children's Shelter. This is another institution that is doing a splendid work. There are forty-one children in the Home at present, receiving the best training to the welfare of three hundred and fifty children provided for after by Miss Harris and her staff. We would suggest that some form of educational amusement be supplied to the Matron for the use of the children during school age.

In our tour we were accompanied by Sheriff George Stokes and Gaoler G. H. French and wish to thank the gentlemen for the courteous and painstaking way in which they assisted us and also for the kind their cars together with Mr. Collins.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. HOUSE,
Foreman.

Dated February 28th, A.D. 1933.

MEDICAL TALK BY DR. CRONK

Addresses Kiwanis Club on The Progress of Medicine

"The Progress of Medicine" was the subject of an interesting address given on Tuesday by Dr. G. E. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health, for this city and a member of the Kiwanis Club to his fellow members at their weekly luncheon. The introduction having the honor to speak to the club on the subject in which they are interested adds considerable to the interest and also gives the members a higher grade of fellowship upon which all service clubs should be formed. Dr. Cronk handled the subject in an able manner, was not lengthy and covered the development of medicine from the time it was shrouded in mystery until the present efficiency was reached. Dr. Cronk was presided with Past President George Ellis filling the chair, when the President unavoidably had to be absent. At the meeting the meeting was concluded. Ewie Finkle lead the members in song with Albert Wannamaker at the piano.

"In early days said Dr. Cronk, "we attribute all diseases to demons and the people believed plagues were sent from heaven. Some of the Gods were angry and the curing of these plagues was nothing more than charms and witchery, which to some extent is even carried on in this enlightening age. In 1346 sanitary certain rules were developed for the curing of disease and by the middle of the 17th century certain hospitals were established. These hospitals at that time were not more than pest houses. Because sick people and the conditions were appalling with the death rate very high. In 1845 Pasteur discovered that organisms in a wound could be isolated and Lord Lister applied his principle and antiseptic surgery came into being. Since that time steady progress has been made in surgery, Dr. Cronk told of the discovery of chloroform and other for general anaesthetic to be followed by the local anaesthetic and how safe there were to use." The above address called the public health address and the public health service in Belleville was established in 1850. He told of the origin of vaccination for smallpox and means of prevention of diphtheria. In closing he made reference to the wonderful work that the city nurse it was one of the finest things the city owned.

ART'S INFLUENCE ON HOME IS W. I. TOPIC OF ADDRESS

Madoc, March 1—A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Chris. Henderson on Thursday, when the members of Madoc Women's Institute about thirty four of the members and friends met for the transaction of business, the receiving of reports and the election of officers which served of the standing committee were re-elected. Mrs. D. A. Wyllock presided. Relief report was presented by Mrs. A. G. Mc Mee. Mrs. George Huffman gave a splendid report on current events of the month. Mrs. Healey lead a very concise and well prepared address on health and Child Welfare, while the topic for the evening, "Art and its influence on the Home" was well taken by Miss M. Uhrich of the high school staff.

Reports were received of the Handicraft Class held early in February, and also of the demonstration of waterless cooking held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Wynrock earlier in the week.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the speakers for their interesting and educational addresses and after the business was finished a social time was spent and a dainty lunch served by the hostess and her assistants.

THREE MORE CONVICTED

Convict Asks Pointed Question of One Guard

Kingston, Ont., Mar. 1.—(CP)—Three convicts, last of the alleged ringleaders of the riots in Portsmouth Penitentiary last October, appeared before Magistrate J. M. Farrell for preliminary hearing yesterday.

Convict Joseph Malcovitz was first to appear. Malcovitz, 21 has been in the penitentiary since 1931, having been sentenced at Toronto ten years for armed robbery.

Instructor Edward Dunford, who was on duty in the Blacksmith shop at the time of the disturbance in the shop and Malcovitz was armed with a hammer when the riot started. Malcovitz swings with the hammer as he said, into the shop door and later came back and got clear water.

"Did you see me with a hammer?" asked Malcovitz.

"Yes, I did," replied Instructor Dumford.

"Will a convict's word be as good at the trial as a guard's?" asked Malcovitz.

"That depends on what credence the presiding judge puts in your story."

Malcovitz was then committed for trial.

Convict Ernest Snell was then charged with rioting. Snell was sentenced at Oven Sound in January, 1931, to eight years for armed robbery.

Acting Keeper George Nolan said he saw Snell carrying mail bags to barricade the shop dome doors.

"I was only moving bags away from the mail department door where a fire started," said Snell.

"There was no fire," said Nolan.

Snell was then committed for trial.

CONCILIATION LIKELY

Asuncion, Paraguay, Mar. 1 (AP)—It was learned unofficially today that Paraguay had accepted with minor modifications a conciliation proposal drawn up by Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru looking toward a settlement of the conflict over the Gran Chaco territory between Bolivia and Paraguay.

TAX PREPAYMENTS

Taxpayers are to be given an opportunity to prepay taxes and earn at the rate of five per cent. per annum in 1933. The scheme was given a tryout last year and a considerable amount of money was paid in by that method.

The discount of five per cent. will not cost the city anything while the labor in handling the prepayments while the taxpayer will earn a little on the money he has ready for tax payment in advance.

It will be interesting to see how the citizens take hold of the plan this year.

RELIEF METHODS

Those who face the relief proposition in Belleville were interested in the story told to the Belleville Rotary Club by Alderman Johnson of Brockville, who related the plan at work in that town, whereby the citizens, who are able, contribute, while those who go on relief do some sort of work as equivalent for the assistance they receive from the municipality.

Relief methods are, of course, in no settled state and it may be that if relief has to continue for a longer or shorter period, some uniformity of method will be evolved for the Province and the Dominion. Present methods are so various, some of them wasteful and creative of an undesirable spirit, that a more suitable method as well as having a very heavy burden on those who have to pay the taxes.

The future of relief methods is one thing which will bear a great deal of close attention.

CHANGE AND NO CHANGE

Those who see changes and those who, in the stress of the modern day, see the need of changes do not forget that life principles do not change. Even Einstein has not changed the multiplication table, said a New York minister on Sunday, discussing the "Things Which Cannot be Changed."

Outward forms and social forms are changed from age to age but these are not vital principles. Man knows more of the stars and the laws of nature than his forefathers did, but the law of gravity is the same as it ever was.

At this present moment the world is "economic conscious" as it cosmic rays had not existed since the world began and did not obey the laws of life. It is the same in the human heart. Those who think they can flout in this day such institutions as a day's rest in seven, or who think they can run counter to what they term "old-fashioned" views as to morality will find in the long run that they are shutting the gates on themselves, just as people of another age found it. One must be said that the way of the sinner is a foolish one, particularly as no man has invented in many thousands of years a new sin. It is the same old sin which has been practised ever since the dawn of human consciousness. Companionate marriage, which makes the modern upstart the inventor of something which he is original and a world-beater, is as old as the ancient Persians and Spartans. Youth has always been lyrical and it is well that it is so revolutionary for the attitude changes through the years and one believes that progress is desirable). But the laws for all that in practice remain unchanged—they are in the nature of things. They are not like human laws. A century or a little more ago a man was hanged for stealing sheep. About two generations ago there were public executions and yet they have been eliminated. The human law changes, but not natural and divine law.

Under all the outward changes, divine law rules as it did from the beginning before what we call time began.

LENT

Lent has been ushered in, bringing a season of reflection and spiritual activity for meditation on the things which do not perish.

There is a difference of opinion as to the restraints to be placed upon one's self but the fact remains that the meditation and the restraint do serve a vital purpose in life.

Lent is a testing time. It takes strength of will and character to accept restrictions voluntarily.

Here is a set of eight rules for self-improvement during Lent: "Don't push out or be on the make. Don't play the braggart. Don't be conceited. Don't have bad manners. Don't be on the look-out for number one. Don't lose your temper. Don't be resentful of slights. Don't get malicious satisfaction out of the sins of others."

Lent is one of other restraints which one imposes upon himself tend to strengthen character and the will, particularly as they are accepted in the purpose of self-denial for the good of one's self and of others. These "Don't's" actually mean that they have to be lived out in life—one of the most difficult things to accomplish and yet this is more and more easy to accomplish as each success lends encouragement.

THE ARTIST'S SWEETHEART

I know that you have made me live
Upon the canvas there;
Although, perforce, your brush must give
More beauty than my share;
But in your eyes—ah! well I know
You saw me full of grace,
And that is why you limned me so.
Fair form and ardent face.

Another artist might have said:
"She lacks this hue, that line,
With too much pride she lifts her head,
Her hands are far from fine."

But you have glimpsed within the clay
What others cannot see,
A spirit shining as the day,
The inner self of me;
And you have painted what I seem
To love by candlelight:
Not just a woman, but a dream
Of all things pure and bright!

DOWN IN BROCKVILLE the relief question has been so handled that this fall all the money required has been supplied through voluntary contribution, and a surplus from last year was brought over to augment the fund. At least that is Community Chest drive in the Island City was a well planned affair with the leading citizens backing it to the hilt and putting a lot of personal work into it. Alderman Elmer Johnston, of Brockville, told Belleville Rotarians Monday that not one cent of relief money had as yet been levied or charged against taxes, a notable record indeed. He also said that all relief fuel given out, except in cases where there was a doctor's order, was wood, cut in the surrounding country by men on relief who worked two days a week in the bush for the town wood depot, the civic trucks bringing the wood in from the farms. The farmers got the money for the wood, and the money was immediately put into local circulation, while the work added to the self respect of the unemployed. Relief payments on rental called for three days' work a week in the wood depot.

MARCH MAY COME IN like a lion or like a lamb but nothing can alter the fact that the winter is licked. There may be a few sporadic demonstrations of Old Man Winter's power in the first days of February finished, with the days getting longer and the sun getting higher and hotter, and hope springs eternal in the human breast and all the world folks beginning to take a deeper and more personal interest in the new automobiles — confidence springs anew and folks start buying more freely, even loosening up their saving bank deposits, put away for a rainy day, and here's the rainy day, but it's not raining for everybody. There's plenty of money in the country, but it's a mite congested just at present, all that is necessary is to get it in circulation. There is a will to work and the more money set to work the better it will be for everybody. As Roger Babson says "what is needed is some genuine new fangled remedy but just a loosening up of enterprise, a revival of confidence, and more advertising." He advises the United States government to spend three million dollars a month for a time with the newspapers and magazines, placing the facts squarely before the people and so restore that confidence and renewed enterprise, lack of which has stagnated the business of the nation.

RENO, THE DIVORCE MILL, long famed as the parting of the ways, the place where the more or less galling chains of matrimony are severed and replaced by the smooth robes of alimony, is not flourishing as of yore. In fact business is positively bad at Reno where the divorce mill is perforce on short time. Business conditions in those great United States have made it so tough that many matrons have learned to like their own husbands, and husbands have, for economy sake, learned to spend their evenings at home getting acquainted with their families, rather than running around the night clubs and squandering money on the painted idols of the night who toil not, neither do they spin, but who sure can dig enough gold to keep arrayed in the finest. Reno's glory is dimmed, its once roaring gambling houses are deserted and the lawyers and judges are getting enough fees barely to keep the well known wolf from the door. Now that the men and women of high society in the United States have less money to run around nights on they are finding satisfaction in home life that they never knew, existed and they are getting acquainted with each other and finding each other not at all hard to live with.

WHY NOT EVERY ONE EAT SAME AMOUNT FOOD?

2500 Calories of Heat on Average Required For Individual

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Although we consider that a man doing heavy, laborious, muscular work requires more fuel in the shape of food to revitalize his body than does, for example, a woman of one hundred and twenty pounds who merely amuses herself about the house all day, we seldom think of such differences in a scientific way; nor do we act upon them accordingly.

Overeating is as bad, however, if not worse, than under-eating, and the big man may be shutting himself too much, despite his energy requirements, for we often think more of food merely in terms of amount. It is more important to think of food in terms of its calorie content.

A calorie, strictly speaking, is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one gramme of water through one degree on a Centigrade thermometer. In other words, if a given amount of any food has a calorie value of 100, let us say, it means that the energy of the body, when oxidized or burned, enough heat energy to raise one gramme of water 100 degrees Centigrade, or 100 grammes of water one degree Centigrade.

To give an idea of the relative values of different foods, it may be added that an ounce of pure starch or sugar) food will yield 113 calories, while an ounce of fat will yield as much as 253.

The average man or woman, at rest, and with little exercise, requires for health about 2500 calories each day. This is the amount of energy, approximately, that is thus lost and this loss must be made up in what he eats and drinks. Even the more leading a sedentary life requires 2,000 calories. Laborer may require 3,500 to 4,000.

A most interesting research in this connection was conducted by Dr. G. Lusk. He made the following determinations, according to several occupations for men, the figures given being the extra calories required per hour:

Tailor 14; Bookbinder 81; Shoemaker 90; Metal Worker 141; Furniture Painter 145; Furniture Carpenter 166; Stonecutter 300; Blacksmith 300; Man sawing wood 378.

The extra calories needed per hour for women in different occupations are as follows:

Seamstress (needle work) 6; Typist (50 words per minute) 34; Seamstress (using sewing machine) 42; Bookbinder 63; Housemaid (modern style work) 81; Housemaid (moderate work) 124; Housemaid (hard work) 167; Laundress (hard work) 167.

When an ex-Kaiser selected sawing wood for exercise he did well, according to the above figures, as he was looking to keep the body machinery going. It is also interesting to note how much energy various household duties for women consume.

The thing to do, of course, is make a rough estimate of one's own requirements and then fit the amount of food and its kind according to calorie value, to these needs. The degree of hunger, inci-

I'm going to run away from home, that's all, Sam said.

Being we was always saying and on fellows always thinking he was kidding us, I said, "Ha, ha, what's a matter, what happened, Sam?

What's you going to run away for, why, Sam, what happened," Patsy said, and Sam said, What happened? I'll tell you what happened. I'm sick of living in a apartment with my mother and I'm not going to stay there another day, that by anybody, bleeve me, he said, I'm going to run away from home and started now, he said.

Why, Sam, what was the anywhere, Glasses Magee said, and Sam said, Pish, I hate fish and I ain't going to eat fish, anywhere, and I smelt it cooking in our kitchen and I hate fish and I'm fed up with my mother, and she'll never see me again, Sam said.

O, Sam, where you going? I said, and he said, I dont know and I don't care, I'm going to run away and make their fortunes and I can make mine, Sam said.

Well gosh, aren't you even taking any money with you, Glasses said, you're my friend, and Glasses said, you better go back and get some money, Sam, you'll need money, Sam, and Sam said, Dont tarry to me about money, I'll get along, I'll do the thing out of that house for all the fortunes in the world, and I'll through and when I'm through I'm through, he said, and I'll write you a postcard every once in a while from the place where I happen to be at, be it in the wilds of Borneo, Patsy Simkins, Esquire, Fifth Avenue, New York City, U.S.A.

Sam started down the wagon from Snider's ice cream store stopped in front of his house and the man got out with a kid in his arms and was saying, G. Sam, you're going to miss your supper, Sam, that's going to be a bad day.

Sam said, I didn't know that. Sam said, O well, maybe I'll pospone it a bit, Sam said, and he started back in his house looking as if he hisself there was no place like home. Little Benny Bronfman.

SHALL BICYCLES BE PUT UNDER LICENSE?

Local bicycle shop owners find themselves divided on the question of whether or not bicycle owners in this district should be taxed and licensed such as Toronto cycle owners and those of London, Ontario, where the by-law has just been passed.

An emphatic negative to the question was registered by Mr. Steve Licence of this city. Pointing to the difficulty of setting up the necessary machinery to enforce the regulation, Mr. Licence declared the cost to the individual would be an excessive one.

"All at the least," he declared, "it would cost the kid with the bike somewhere in the neighborhood of one dollar. Chances are it would be higher than that. Then you have the difficulty of enforcing the regulation. How, for example, would you legislate those who live outside the city but who go to school or work here travelling to and fro with bicycles? How would those interested in enforcing the law of licenses know whether or not the tagless bike was a Belleville one or not? Then would those living outside of the city, for their own protection, have to take out the license?"

Mr. Licence referred to the discussion on the same subject which had been brought up at the convention of the Bicycle Retailers' and Sporting Goods' Association, held in Toronto last week, which he attended. During the discussion it was revealed that theft of bicycles had by no means been reduced, but rather increased the same time the previous years when no tax was collected and no license necessary.

"A community like Belleville is in my opinion, really too small to have such a tax. Of course it has never been tried here, and we don't really know until about it. I am basing my views on the experiments that have been made in other sections." He explained that he was interestedly watching the outcome in London and Toronto in the hope that the licensing of bicycles has just been passed.

The difficulty of setting up a bureau where applicants for licenses could conveniently pay the fee, and the work of keeping track of those individuals who would refuse to get a license would be enormous, in his opinion, and too costly an experiment to try in such a small city as Belleville. He was inclined to believe that the measure should be a provincial one wherein bicycle owners throughout the province would be forced into the system, which would relieve the smaller municipalities of the cost.

The same views are not shared by Mr. W. Cooke, another dealer in the city. In Mr. Cooke's opinion the passing of such a regulation would greatly benefit the individual owner, and would not tax them too greatly. It would be no deterrent on sales of the machines.

"Something will have to be done pretty soon to protect those in this city who own bicycles," declared Mr. Cooke. "Almost every day some kid that has worked hard to get himself a bicycle reports the loss of the machine. With many of them their living depends on their bike, and when that is stolen, they are up against it. Stolen bicycles are always hard to recover, owing to the fact that if other wheels are added, and a cost of paint put on the machine, its appearance is altered greatly." He declared that with the tax and a record kept of the various machines theft would be greatly reduced.

How one youth left a brand new bicycle outside of the building at the Collegiate Institute not long ago, and returned in the afternoon to find nothing and only the framework left, was told by Mr. Cooke. "That boy had saved for almost two years to get himself that bicycle, and he depended on it to get to and from his home in the country to the school. He was seriously handicapped by its loss."

Another boy employed as "call boy" on the Canadian National Railways, left his machine that he had bought through the diligent saving of two years, outside the station while he went in one day to his young brother. The brother took the bike downtown, parked it on Camp hell Street, the machine was stolen and he returned it had disappeared. It hasn't been seen since. That was only a short time ago. The license system would end all this stealing, said Mr. Cooke.

Difficulty of setting up a bureau to handle the applicants and licenses would not be so great, says Mr. Cooke, as it would be willing to take the matter over the job of issuing permits. Under the system advocated by Mr. Cooke, every applicant who wished a license would be obliged to take the machine to the bureau where its number would be carefully checked with the list of those fully checked with the list of those fully checked with the list of those f

Canadiens Back in Race for Playoff Berth, Showing Plenty of Speed to Down Leafs 2-1

Only One Game Behind Asserks For Third Place In Group

MAROONS WIN

Tiny Thompson Scores 10th Shutout Against Ottawa

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—By one means or another, Canadiens had hoisted a red banner of speed today that forecast the National Hockey League's March play-off session for the old Stanley Cup would not have to struggle along without the Frenchmen.

There was nothing certain about this—and there won't be as long as New York American comes to furnish amazing pranks on the stretch run—but Canadiens established last night they carry the explosive powder to dislodge almost any obstacle in their path.

While Americans sat tight with a four-point margin in third position in the Canadian division, Canadiens shocked 8,000 Toronto fans by upsetting the Maple Leafs 3-1 and thereby reduced the New York margin to a single game.

Canadiens won in spite of everything—in spite of the fact they were outplayed for one thing. Phi Lepine climaxed a brilliant French rally in the third period with a goal that tied the score, then kept the puck from mid-ice that bounced off goalie Lorne Chabot's stick into the cage for the winner.

Through Lepine, Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat played sparkling hockey, Morenz outfooting the field as of old. Canadiens were outshot in every period. George Hainsworth got every shot but the one from close-in by Red Horner in the second period.

Maroons Win

Maroons, with extremely dim hopes of being able to overtake first place Leafs, passed up no chances by walloping Detroit Red Wings 3 to 2 at Montreal. They are seven points behind Toronto.

Red Wings, second every point going to hold an advantage in the U. S. section over Americans, made a rousing battle of it but they started on the wrong foot and finished weak. In between they annoyed the Maroons plenty.

After Lorne Chabot and Earl Robinson had scored for Montreal in the first period and Lorne Duguid added a third early in the middle session, Detroit opened up with a stinging drive. Frank Carson and Larry Aurie banged in two before the close of the period and Aurie tied the score within a minute of the third period start.

That was all, however, for the Birds. Sandy Northcott, in the first season big gun, scored from close range on a Hooley Smith pass and Robinson and Paul Haynes added tallies to make the verdict a sure thing.

Scoreless Tie

If young Bill Beveridge had been anything but spectacular, Ottawa Senators would have laboring under another defeat today. But the rookie puck-stopper turned back every one of the 40 shots Boston Bruins fired at him and Senators escaped from a scoreless tie with a scoreless tie.

It was a comparatively easy night for Tiny Thompson in the Bruin nets as he chalked up his goalie record his 10th shutout of the season.

TECS NOW ALONE IN SECOND PLACE

Cleveland Indians Beating While Buffalo Takes Syracuse

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Five games hi nine days proved a little too much for the stamina of the Syracuse Stars with the result that today they lagged behind London Tecumseths in their month-old struggle for second place in the International Hockey League.

Even at that, the Tecs had to have assistance from Buffalo to get away from their arch-enemy. Playing at Port Erie last night, Syracuse scored the first two goals of the game but faded, and Hilcost answered with a wouldn't-be-denied rally to take a 5-3 decision.

A similar occurrence was witnessed at London, where Tecs staged a comeback to down the stubborn, all-aiders, Cleveland Indians, 5-3.

At Windsor, the Bulldogs mauled Detroit nightly off color after a ten-day layoff and slapped on a 4-1 defeat to win their first game in six.

MADOC WINS DOUBLE BILL

Bancroft Defeated by Seniors And Juniors Win From All Stars

Madoc—(Special)— At Madoc Arena on Friday evening the hockey fans of Madoc were treated to a double-header event, when Bancroft boys arrived to play the return game with the town team, and immediately following the Madoc Junior O.H.A. team played a picked team of All-Star Players chosen from the best of the teams of Bancroft, Eldorado and Queensborough.

The Bancroft boys showed a fine aggregation of players, who were fully able to give a good account of themselves in the game, but experience should with their general speed and good ability be able to defeat Madoc at any district.

Following their long drive and on the strange Arena they certainly made it extremely doubtful, which team would be victorious, but Chas. Phillips of Madoc was referee and kept the game well in hand right from the beginning though very few penalties were called. Madoc at the first period Bancroft set the pace by scoring the first goal and added another in the second period for Madoc on a speedy shot from the blue line, and Bancroft were on another on a pass from Blue pulling Madoc goalie out of his net, drew a penalty for tripping, which was the only one in the period.

In the second period, Watson was penalized, and Akey also took a trip to the box for the same as Akey reappeared on the ice, Madoc boys got their first goal from Fred Whytock to Bob Whytock. Bancroft's only goal was scored from Barnes first at him and Seniors escaped from a scoreless to a score less tie.

It was a comparatively easy night for Tiny Thompson in the Bruin nets as he chalked up his goalie record his 10th shutout of the season.

JUNIORS WIN

Line-up. All-Stars — Goal, O. Wright of Cooper; Defence, Bailey and Ken Rollins of Cooper; Centre Hayton (Cooper); Wings, Sine and McAdams (Eldorado); Reserves, Parks, (Cooper); Thompson, (Queensboro); Keith Rollins, (Queensboro) and Love (Queensboro).

Juniors—(Madoc)—Goal, Scots; Defence West and Ashley; Centre, Akey; Wings, Ross and Armstrong; Alternates, R. Whytock, E. Alexander and C. Redburn.

In the first period, the ice being much better condition, the play was fast right from the first. Akey scored on a pass from Armstrong. Akey and Wex drew penalties. Then twice both Madoc and All-Star opponents were thumbed off for scrapping. Score 1-0 for Madoc.

In the second period, Ashley earned two penalties and All-Stars one. In this frame Alexander scored for Madoc. Score 2-0 for Madoc.

In the first few seconds of the third period, the All-Stars scored their first counter, and since at the strike of the gong, Armstrong scored for Madoc which was not counted, the score being 3-1 for Madoc.

VOLLEYBALL BASKETBALL

The lowly Beavers rejuvenated their form, win the Y.M.C.A. volleyball league at the expense of the Invincibles, former league leaders. The Beavers won the opening game by the score of 15-8 and appeared likely to repeat successively easy win. Running into a slump, however in the second game the Invincibles could do nothing right throughout either the second or final game the Beavers taking the midway encounter 15-8 and the third and final game 15-7.

Trojans were rather too good for the Air Force in the second of the evening's engagements winning in two straight games by the scores of 15-8 and 15-3. The R.C.A.F. boys were not clicking on their plays whereas the Trojans were right up to form.

Mugwumps came very close to giving the league leading Aces a setback when they won the second and tying game after having started out strong in the third and deciding game they appeared to be a sure-win. Sensing the possibility of a defeat the Aces tightened up, fought back with all they had and in a short time had their opponents leaf whilted off and were well in front. Mugwumps pulled up within hitting distance on several occasions but the Aces had just enough left in the tank to keep them before the Wumps. The scores of the three games were 15-12, 11-15, and 15-10.

St. Michael's Midgets Lose Game With St. Andrews But Win Midget League

St. Michael's Midget basketball team absorbed one of the worst beatings of any team in the Church League Series in their game with the St. Andrew's Quint at the Y Gymn last night. The final score was 52-19 and that is only a thirty minutes game. In the majority of games played between these two teams the Scotch have shown to advantage but through a violation of the league rules the St. Andrews team have been compelled to relinquish the championship, the latter going to the St. Michael's team. This unsatisfactory result was all due to the thoughtless action of one of the St. Andrew's team, Jack Kidd who signed a certificate to play with his church team knowing he was over age. As a result both games in which he participated were thrown out forfeiting a protest lodging filed by the St. Michael's management. Previous to his entry in the line up of the St. Andrews team the latter had better than even chance of winning the league honors but the loss of the two games in which he played was too much to overcome.

This will doubtless be a lesson to all members of teams in the future who must realize that the signing of one's name to a players declaration is not merely a matter of form where anything goes but that they are expected to state the truth and play the game fairly from beginning to end. Right here we want to commend the remainder of the St. Andrews team who completed the schedule knowing full well they had no chance of winning but chose to play through to the end rather than default.

St. Andrews — McCreary, Gold, Peck, Muir, Peoples.

St. Michael's—Mallp, Matthews, Forster, F. Langton, Belair, Hogan.

ST. COLUMBAS IN NEXT ROUND

First Game in Series Goals to Count Billed For Friday

After a layoff of a week the Doherty Athletic Club hockey team will again hit the trail, that may eventually lead to the International championship of the O.H.A. Official confirmation was received in the city on Tuesday from the O.H.A. that St. Columbas, the lone Toronto entry in the intermediate series, would be the opponents of the Dohertys, the first game to be played in this city on Friday night. Where the second game will be played has not been determined. The St. Columbas, a band-picked team from the Mercantile League, having no available ice in Toronto on which to play their home games and it is just possible the second game will be played here on Monday night, if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the management of the rink.

Conjecture will be rampant from now until the game, Friday next as to the possibilities of the Dohertys to take this hand-picked aggregation from Toronto. One thing is sure, the Oldmen will battle the St. Columbas to the last bell and there is an even chance of them advancing to the next round. Although the team from Toronto is one of organized stars, yet a band-picked team sometimes is not as effective as a bunch of good hockey players who co-operate and play for the team. Elwood Dudley, the energetic manager of the Dohertys, will have a bunch of boys that don't figure on any word quit and playing before a home crowd will try every minute to have a substantial lead for the second game. True the O.H.A. should not allow the pick-ing of more than every team in the Mercantile League to form into a club to seek championship, but it is allowed, so why worry. The cast-iway way to get over the hurdle is to beat them.

St. Columbas have a smart goalie in Holmeshaw, He is not flashy, but steady, and has considerable experience. Slip Hannigan, who played baseball in this city with Bell Telephone on more than one occasion, will be one of the defence men, along with Fred Herbert. The first front line will consist of Herbie Gibb at the pivot position, flanked by Good and Gallagher, with Hannigan and Morgan trio, and it will be a grand battle line at that. The first three named are the leading scorers for their respective teams in the Mercantile League, but that should cause no anxiety as they do not play any better than they did when the Oldmen have been giving the last all-star team, Bert Forrester, Reynolds and Scott and possibly Freddie Hambly, another band-picked team from which the rem of the team will be chosen.

The Dohertys have a strong cast at a most opportune time and although they have been handicapped many injuries, they started to prepare for the O.H.A. series when Manager Bill Smith, the trainer, has his boys on edge. Frank Carroll, the Springfield boy, has been added to the coaching staff in an advisory capacity and he will be with the boys plenty in the few practices that will be held in the next week, but he knows his hockey and the boys are giving their all to make the new combination and the fans will see a different team than they have been witnessing in the schedule tilts. The game on Friday night should be the outstanding battle of the season and the fans should turn out in full force to witness the game as the team is deserving of support and one that will be hard to take in any man's league.

FIVE TEAMS LEFT IN WEST

Fort William Likely to be Senior Finalists For Dominion

Winnipeg, March 7 (CP)—The Thunderbird Hotel of Fort William, Allan Cup finalists twice without success, and Winnipeg Safeway champions of Canada, today as fairly certain to be one of the five playoff challengers for the 1933 senior title.

It may be Frank Boucher's Winnipeg Monarchs in Manitoba, Saskatoon Quakers in Saskatchewan, Edmonton Eskimos in Alberta or even the Smoke Eaters of Trail in British Columbia, but none of these are as close to the interprovincial playdowns as Fort William.

The Bombers scored a convincing 3-0 triumph last night over Port Arthur Bluebirds of a three game series for the Thunder Bay title. As a result, they have been given the Ports pretty much all season the Bombers meet Monarchs in the first Allan Cup round.

Next to getting a date after touring Europe, Edmonton Superiors would like to meet Allan Cup champions in the first Allan Cup round.

Mother, Daughter Banquet Held at Holloway St. Church

Activities of Year Are Outlined at Enjoyable Affair

Last night the mothers were the guests of the C.G.I.T. girls at Holloway Street Church. The room was artistically decorated with blue and white, the C.G.I.T. colors. The tables were decorated in the same colours with blue candles and pretty centres of flowers. The attractive banquet was much enjoyed by all. Queenie Livesay grace the address of welcome. The six-course which followed was led by Mrs. Hobbs. Miss Jean Moorman was toastmistress. The toasts to the King and to Our Country were responded to by singing the National Anthem and O Canada, respectively.

Evelyn Brereton proposed the toast to the church which was responded to by Mrs. H. B. Neal. Peter Camelio's toast to "Our Mothers" was proposed by Thelma Langabeer and the response was made by Mrs. Bert Moorman, after which the girls sang "Mother." Dorothy Brown gave an outline of the C.G.I.T. movement since its beginning in 1918 and the progress. The present registration in Ontario is 11,263 Companies 1,000 in Training and one thousand and eighty C.G.I.T. Leaders.

Miss Moorman outlined the activities of the groups for the present year. Some of these are the investigation of gems of poetry, distribution of Christmas cards, giving a play at the annual Christmas Sunday School concert and the study of music, consisting of a talk on foundation principles of musical composition and appreciation, a study on sonata and symphony and the best way to listen to them.

Those taking part in the musical part of the program were Virginia Grills, Neta Bush and Miss Betty Dupras. A humorous story entitled "The King with the Terrible Temper" was told with the girls taking part.

Evelyn Armstrong described the C.G.I.T. uniform, also the benefit of such a uniform for C.G.I.T. girls. Miss Betty Dupras, leader of the junior group, outlined the organization and work of her group.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. H. B. Neal who spoke on the purpose underlying all C.G.I.T. programs and activities being that of helping the girls to apply the principles of living which are exemplified by the group in their study in the Sunday session.

The C.G.I.T. program aims to help each girl to live her life at its highest level in the realization that of Jesus in her various relationships in the home, school, church and community. Mrs. Neal was then asked to take an active interest in the girls' interest, for she is the confidence of the other. Woman's place and influence in the home and community was dealt with. The address was closed by a reference to the high place a mother holds in the life of her child, the singing of the song of Gospel hymn brought a very interesting evening to a close.

GUILD MEMBERS HAVE MEETING

The Guild of John St. United Church was entertained at the home of Mrs. Thomas Albert St., on Monday evening. Mrs. Williams, President, presided over the business session. The Rev. Mr. Gordon led the Worship Services, using Hymns 412 and 414 and reading of Gospel Luke 4, and Matthew 5. The theme was challenging message, "I Am The Way," a challenge to half hearted Christianity to seek the paths of spiritual advancement, followed by a splendid editorial from "The Horizon."

Mrs. Bews introduced the topic of the evening, "The Way Out." Comes the question, Is it possible to find the way out of our present economic difficulties. The answer is very dear to the Heart of God our Father. His guidance is found in Sermon on the Mount, which is still the Jesus way of Christian living. Three short papers were given, "Christian Social Justice," by Mrs. Goodfellow Ours; Mrs. Bryant; "Unemployment Situation in Belleville," Miss Hill; "Local Industries," Mrs. Hill.

Interesting discussion led by Mrs. Bews followed and meeting closed with social half hour.

ST. ANDREW'S CLUB HAS MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's Club was held in the Church parlours on February 28th at eight o'clock with a large attendance. The gift of one hundred dollars for the first of March was over-subscribed. As the collection of the business Mrs. Wallbridge's group acting as hostesses provided a contest, followed by refreshments.

Weddings

BYRNES—SHANNON

MARMORA, (Special)— A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora on Tuesday morning February 28th when Marion Anna Shannon, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shannon, became bride of Thomas Oliver (M.D.) son of Mr. and Mrs. Byrnes of Toronto, with Rev. J. J. Keeley officiating. The bridesmaid Miss Madeleine Bertrand and groomsman Mr. J. L. Shannon brother of the bride, very ably supported the bride and groom.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly attired in black dress with Persian Lamb coat and small hat.

During the Mass, Miss Eva Shannon sang "O Salutaris" very sweetly and "Ave Maria" and "O This Day O Beautiful Mother," while Miss Jean O'Neill at the organ.

A very dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which the happy couple left for Toronto.

The groom has accepted a position at Great Bear Lake, where, for a year he practice as a medical doctor.

The bride will join him at a later date. Their many friends wish them a happy wedded life.

THE DRAMA

Albert College Players Give Fine Performance of "Clarence"

With a reputation of producing the finest type of entertainment, The Albert College Players added another to their list of popular successes in their presentation in the Collegiate Auditorium of the highly amusing "Clarence" by Booth Tarkington last night. The audience filled the auditorium to capacity and were sincerely appreciative of the outstanding performance.

The play is a splendid example of Booth Tarkington's quiet humour and much of the success of the presentation lies in the performance of the title role. Any departure from the easy drawl, the unhurried gesture of the character would have destroyed the whole conception of the play. To the player of this role go most of the laurels for Mr. Jack MacDonald gives a splendid interpretation of the inimitable Clarence sustaining the characterization of the irresponsible, lazy and giving full value to his clever lines on which depend the humour of the play.

"Clarence" is a study of ex-American family life. Incidents of control of their parents, and of the re-action of members of the family to the introduction into the home of a mysterious soldier who claims to have met Mrs. Wheeler's cousin in the father's office that the head of the house thinks it wise to include him in the household.

The first scene is the most amusing as the harassed father tried to cope with the various indiscretions of his family and especially when he has turned soldier looking for a position had his wife at the mercy of the financier and round him edified the full life of Clarence's unconscious efforts. He is made the reluctant confidante of daughter, son and mother and finally, to bring home where he becomes the idol of Dorothy Jemison and member of the household. When it is learned that he is a famous entomologist temporarily out of a position and not the nondescript and rather undesirable person in charge of being, there is great excitement but Clarence and his two admirers after having smoothed the path of the Wheelers for them, escape together from the turmoil.

Zest To Parts

Joan Marshall in the captivating little daughter and Lewis Day as her rather Bohemian father, put in their parts that made them thoroughly enjoyable. Miss Marshall's moods of an average brother and sister at the impressionable age and more than one occasion showed a capable pair whose constant wrangling could not change one iota that at heart they were a thoroughly good sort.

Miss Jean Dickens was seen to advantage in the role of the calm, resourceful mother with a long list of obligations seriously and whose social admiration of Clarence developed into affection. Her grace and charm and interesting personality were real and interesting personality.

Miss Helen Sulman and Mr. Earward Carr as Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler were well chosen for their parts although Mr. Carr's work in his opening scene particularly, were a little difficult to hear in the gallery. The subsequent jealous of the devotion of her step-children to their governess and supervision of Mrs. Wheeler was well portrayed.

Parts Well Played

Miss Bernice Arbuckle was very good in the part of the self effected and tactful secretary, her voice being especially charming.

Making his debut of a minor role, Miss Catherine Smith was a realistic Della, the mischievous girl threatened the young son with a breach of promise and succeeded in closing the business Mrs. Wallbridge's group acting as hostesses provided a contest, followed by refreshments.

Watch Yo ur Knife

Stop, look, and listen to this rule—and remember it, even if you forget almost everything else about manners!

The rule is this, Once you have begun to use your knife in a course, do not let it touch the table cloth.

When you "rest" the knife, place it on the plate—but not on it. Don't let the handle rest on the table-cloth! For that, you may be put hors with one extra jewel.

"Well!" exclaimed mother. "What's what's the "what's what" in table-manners.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Correct Form of Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am experiencing difficulty, in signing my name correctly since my marriage. I recently sent out invitations for a party signing my name Dorothy Aimes Burrows, and I have since learned that this signature is used exclusively by divorcees, and so forth. I have been given to understand that the correct form would be Dorothy Burrows. Kindly advise me which is correct?

2. When writing business letters, which is correct?

3. Is my signature to this letter correct?

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. William Burrows, Jr.

1. I can't imagine why anyone told you that you were not told about the signature that you signed to these notes of invitations. If your maiden name was Dorothy Aimes and your married surname Burrows, your correct informal signature is:

Very sincerely yours,

Dorothy Aimes Burrows

You may, if you wish, drop the surname of your maiden name, and sign your name Dorothy Burrows, but most women are proud of the surname of the maiden name and wish to keep it in their signature.

As a matter of fact.....so that your definiteness about this thing that you were told may be lifted, the informal signature of a divorcee or of a widow would be Dorothy Aimes Burrows, where formal names must be registered.

2. This is the correct signature of a married woman to a business or professional letter, or to any other kind of letter where she uses her full name:

Very truly yours,

Dorothy Aimes Burrows

(Mrs. William Burrows)

The signature of a widow would be precisely the same as this signature of a married woman.

The signature of a divorced woman would be:

Very truly yours,

Dorothy Aimes Burrows

(Mrs. Aimes Burrows)

3. This is the best form of name for a divorced woman to adopt, although some insist on keeping their former names.

3. No, your signature in your letter to me is your formal name, and in the direct signature to a letter we must never use a title, never use the formal name. Your signature to a letter to me should be:

Very sincerely yours,

Dorothy Aimes Burrows

(Mrs. William Burrows, Jr.).

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column you advocated the writing of personal notes as invitations to an informal wedding and as a matter of fact I am keeping with the rest of the arrangements. I am going to have a small wedding, just the immediate families and I would like to send out wedding announcements. It will be an informal wedding. Will you kindly send me engraved wedding announcements should be used, or just what is correct under these circumstances?

A perfect plan for your wedding, as you outline it, would be quite in order. Informality in the invitation to those who are to be present, and engraved notes only to send formal, engraved announcements to your circle of friends. Under circumstances as you know, are all ready so that they can be mailed directly after the ceremony has been performed. Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

A PROBLEM OF PILFERING

How One Child Was "Cured" of This Bad Habit

By Constance Cameron

It was a sort of family ritual that Betty Lee should go to the drug store and buy a cake of ice cream every Sunday evening for the family's light supper.

Twice now, her mother had given her a fifty-cent piece, and discovered hours later that only a dime lay on her dresser. That didn't fit in, considering the fact that ice cream in that community sold for thirty-five cents. But the mother said nothing, and thought things over.

The next Sunday Betty Lee was given fifty cents again, and returned only ten.

"Has ice cream gone up?" inquired the mother, but Betty Lee guessed it hadn't.

Mother Trest

"Buy anything else?" No, the child said she had not.

Well, then," declared the mother slipping into her coat, "I'm going to tell that nice clerk at the store just what I think of him for shortchanging little girls. He is the third time he has done it."

Mother left the house. She walked slowly, and soon a little figure flew past her, and when Betty Lee tearfully confessed that she had three times bought chocolate bars with the extra nickel.

"Well!" exclaimed mother. "What a nice fool you are even to get me into! Going over and telling a man he's dishonest, and you were the one who took the extra five cents.

Mother "Cure"

Silently, they returned home. Finally: "Are you going to tell me, mother?" The mother said she was not, adding: "Someone will have to go after the ice cream hereafter is all. Someone else can be trusted with money," she added.

That was all. No scolding. No further reminding the child, except the weekly shame at having mother or father or even grandfather go after the ice cream. That was punishment enough. Then months later, the mother finally said: very impersonally and nonchalantly: may go after the ice cream today, Betty Lee, and when a shining face, the child went, and her offence has never been repeated.

ENTERS UPON 90TH YEAR OF HER LIFE

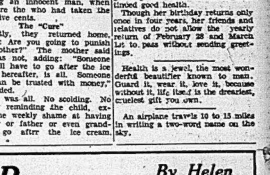
Mrs. Eurotia Watson, Born on 29th, 1844, Passes Another Birthday

With only twenty-two birthdays to her long life, Mrs. Eurotia Watson today entered upon her ninetieth year. She was born February 29th, 1844, on Big Island the farm child of William Thompson and Nancy Thompson. There were twelve children in the family of which three brothers and three sisters are living, William Thompson of Buffalo, Ira of Calgary and Samuel of Vancouver. Mrs. Eurotia Watson, Belleville is the address of this sketch, Mrs. E. R. Harris of Belleville and Mrs. Mary Caverly of Kingston.

Mrs. Watson was twice married first to William B. Woodley, contractor, by whom she had one son, William A. Woodley, a prominent alderman of the city of the present time municipal council, and for the second time to William W. Watson by whom she had a son Arthur Watson who at present resides in Belleville.

Despite her great years, Mrs. Watson is still bright, her eyesight is excellent and she takes an interest in the events of the day and a special interest in the happenings of her family.

Well and widely known and the return of her birthday is always the occasion of many messages of congratulations and cards and continued good health.



Mrs. Watson today returns only once in four years, her friends and relatives will not allow the yearly return of February 28 and March 1st to pass without sending greetings.

Health is a jewel, the most wonderful beautifier known to man. Guard it. Cause it love it, because without it, life itself is the dreariest, cruelest gift you own.

Beauty . . .

Making Up in Public

"I don't mend," remarked an observing male creature, "at least I should not be applied until the old coating has been thoroughly removed in a private room. Then the face washed with soap and water, a dash of cold to put them in form, and then! When she gets out a complete set of beauty preps, puts powder-puffies flushes her cheeks, moistens her finger with her tongue and begins to apply lipstick with much for my code of feminine conduct."

Said the next one: little lumbe do repairing in public is bad enough but when it comes to the application to their special brand of pulchritude, it's of no importance one way or another. I don't consider it a vulgarity, especially if the girl is using the word prayer. Mrs. Harry McCreary was chosen as delegate to Presbyterial at Trenton, May 29 & 30.

STOCKS ARE STATIONARY

Market Flattens After Rally in New York Subsides

Toronto, Mar. 1.—(CP)— Stock moved within a narrow groove on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and at the close of the day's short range was just about at yesterday's closing level. Early transactions showed an upward tendency but when the rally in the street flattened out adjustments followed locally. Trading was fairly quiet.

Interlisted shares were unusually low in the trading and Brazilian, whose monthly statement was issued yesterday showing lower net earnings, did not appear at all. C.P.R. at 10 3-8 and Nickel at 3 7-8 were both unchanged while Consolidated Smelters slipped a fraction to 38 1-8 and Ford "A" held steady at 8 3-8.

In the oil section British American gained 1-4 and Imperial lost a similar amount and Pete remained stationary. Dominion Stores, however, was up 1-8 points all down and finished its recovery, touching 13 3-4 this afternoon, a gain of 1-2.

PRICE CHANGE ON UPSIDE

Teck Hughes Holds 10 Points Gain of Morning

Toronto, Mar. 1.—(CP)—Quotations on the mining section of the Standard were steady today with most of the price changes appearing on the upside. At mid-afternoon Teck Hughes was still holding its early gain of 10. Wright Hargreaves was about half way up between the day's low and high and the other big golds were holding most of their gains.

Trading was very much more quiet in the Base Metal section where Falconbridge was the feature with a gain of 20 to $2.55, Nickel was unchanged at $3.40 and Noranda clinging to a 15 cents gain at $28.16. The rest of the list were inclined to move forward.

In the big gold group Lake Shore was heavier, holding above $34. At mid-afternoon it was trading at $34.13 for a 31 cent gain. Dome climbed 35 to $15.50, Hollinger 10 to $21, McIntyre about 25 to $24.20 and Sheer 5 to 86.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was moderate today with prices generally about steady with yesterday's close, veal calves were a shade stronger and small supply. Cattle trade was slow; calves moderate; sheep unsettled; sheep and lambs steady.

Receipts were—Cattle 490; calves 467; hogs 1,800; sheep and lambs 90.

Cattle—1ot-overs from yesterday totalled 300 head. Choice steers ranged from 3.00 to 3.75 with a few lots at 4.00. Good heifers and cattle brought 3.50 to 3.60 with common downward to 2.50. Even grades of cows and bulls sold generally at a top of 2.50. Fed calves sold slowly at 7.00 to 8.00 per cwt., according to quality.

Veal calves opened at 7.00 to 7.50 for tops with medium to good quality at 5.00 to 6.00.

No early hog sales were made with salesmen holding for 3.60 f.o.b. for selects, 3.50 fed and watered and 4.10 off cars.

A few native lambs sold from 3.50 to 4.00 per cwt. according to quality. Sheep sold at 3.00 to 3.50 for best light ewes.

N.Y. MARKETS LITTLE LOWER

Show Trace of Firmness in The Early Trading

(By Canada Press Leased Wire Service From Financial Editor)

New York, March 1.—The stock market drifted a little lower in an extremely quiet session today, after showing traces of firmness during the early dealings.

There were few slight setbacks, however, much of the gains of the previous session were retained. The dollar again acted well in the foreign exchange markets, actually advancing a little against some of the European gold currencies and bonds held up fairly well.

Among shares losing major fractions to more than a point were American Can, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of N.J., Corn Products, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific. General Electric edged ½ point as did Standard Oil of New Jersey.

on their books, he said, they were unable to realize the cost of threshing. Formerly, he said, they got $4 an hour but the price was now reduced to $3 although the cost of the machinery had not decreased more than one-quarter.

Discussion Is Brief

The committee could not see the argument, however, and discussion opened fast. J. A. Sangster, Lib., Glengarry, asked when about the men who supplied the seed to the farmer. Others asked for a hair cut, and so all," he said emphatically. Other members declared the matter was outside the jurisdiction of the committee, and should be placed before the House.

Sub Committees

The sub committees are: Fruit and Vegetables, W. J. Bragg, Lib., Durham; Dairy, J. A. Sangster, Conn., Glengarry; Livestock, Howard Fraleigh, Conn., East Lambton; Field crops, J. J. Hill, Conn., East Hastings, and Colonization under Hon. Paul Poisson, North Essex, Minister without portfolio.

Hon. H. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, declared special study should be given the dairy industry, with particular attention to the grading of butter in pound lots, to prevent grading on a local market situation, which had assumed dangerous proportions in the province.

PRISONERS NOT INTIMIDATED

According to Instructions One Prisoner is Removed

Sudbury, Ont., March 1—(CP)— None of the 17 prisoners transferred from Burwash Industrial Farm following the inquiry into alleged cruelties, was intimidated, it was learned today. Their transfer expressed surprise at a report which stated they had been "picked on" by the Don Jail at Toronto.

"According to instructions we received from Toronto, they were to go to Guelph," he stated, "and they were taken there to keep her fee them. They were never threatened in this institution. That is entirely false."

Asked if the transfer of the prisoners was to avoid trouble, Mr. Oliver replied: "It has no special significance. Prisoners are transferred from one institution to the other as they are ordered by instructions from the Department. I know of one prisoner who has been transferred to Guelph so that he could be nearer his home and his wife could visit him more often."

embargo should be limited to the aggressor waging war on China.

No conclusion

Neutrality

Every other nation to prohibit the export of arms to China and Japan, according to reports on the part of that nation, and it is not in consonance with the Commission of the League Assembly's report, which is to prevent an aggressor carrying on hostilities with impunity.

"What is of more effect is that such an embargo would not prevent China and Japan will weaken the resistance of China, which finances only a small quantity of defensive weapons, and will not affect Japan, which has an early realization of the aggressor's ambition."

The general opinion among foreign residents was expressed in an editorial in the China Evening Post today.

"As a practical measure to hasten the end of hostilities in the far east the British should stop the export of coal, and as a moral gesture—it is grotesque, the newspaper said, that Britain should try to deprive the defender as well as the offender of it. This would be the policy Sir Simon described as dictated by conscience friendliness for China. Sanctions is to effect an unfriendly act to China an unfriendly act to Japan a most damaging blow to the British aircraft industry in this part of the world.

"It is a colossal blunder and it will have absolutely no effect on the present hostilities."

station, alleged to be broadcasting seditious material originating in Moscow.

The recent grant of a license to La Patrie, Montreal, French newspaper, was legal and justifiable.

Mr. Bennett's report on the Mackenzie Valley will be laid before the House in a few days.

The minister feels Canadian stations should handle only such programs actually manufactured in Canada.

Abolition of the present rebating set-up on power rates is one of the chief suggestions offered. Hon. James Malcolm, former Minister of Trade and Commerce, urged the substitution of a tax on radio tubes which would be collected from the dealers.

The Minister promised to consider the proposal which, Mr. Malcolm believed, would simplify matters, reduce the cost of collection, and be a more equitable levy in that owners of large sets would pay more than owners of small sets.

The government created a dangerous precedent in granting the Montreal Home to Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Humphrey Mitchell (Labor, Hamilton East), said.

When the Minister placed the matter on his display he was merely using his responsibility of parliament. The issue of who ought to control the broadcast of political matter in Canada was involved and should be decided by parliament as a whole.

In Mr. Mitchell's opinion the principles of the British Broadcasting Corporation should be followed. Its Great Britain all political parties had an equal opportunity to get their views before the people by means of radio.

Canadian stations should adopt the only goods which are actually manufactured in Canada, in the opinion of Mr. Duranleau.

powered by law to appoint only certain days as days of thanksgiving."

In Detroit

Detroit, March 1.—(AP)—Unraveling of Detroit's banking affairs today apparently awaited the issuance of orders from officials of the Canadian-born Senator James Cousens and directors of the First, National Bank and Trust Company. Senator Cousen's proposed trip to Lansing in an effort to push through State legislation which would open the institution received additional legislation effective in Michigan.

Well defined opposition to the plan of Henry and Edsel Ford to take over liquid assets of the First National Bank and Guardian National Bank of Commerce in the formation of two Ford controlled institutions had taken shape here last night. Wilson Gerrard Brown admitted that apparently insurmountable obstacles might be placed in the path of the Ford plan. Some Michigan banks went on a "holiday" schedule two weeks ago. Senator Cousens has maintained that the two last of the Detroit banking units should retain their identity and continue in business. He was responsible for the passage of a measure by the last session of the legislative machinery, and secure passage of withdrawing restrictions laws, reorganization of the two Detroit banks would follow, probably with assistance from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

In Grand Rapids the volume of business men met last night and announced plans for a Michigan campaign "protest march" on the capitol at Lansing. Leaders behind the legislation designed to relieve the situation is pressed by them.

THREATENED MASSACRE

however, the German government was ready to accept responsibilities with regard to the security of British persons in the country.

No Need of Apology

A London newspaper report that Captain Ernst Roehm was the author of a National-Socialist plot in Germany to "massacre Leftist leaders" brought from the German Nazi government a declaration it was unfounded and spread reports of a "malignant" source.

Sir John Simon felt there was no reasons for making representations to the German government.

"Will you not ask the British ambassador for a statement as to these rumors which have been published so widely in the press today," pressed George Lansbury, Labor leader. "There are many people who have relations in Berlin who should be reassured," he continued.

Before John Simon was able to reply several back bench members interposed with a series of supplementaries.

"Should not the Germans be allowed to manage their own affairs" asked one member.

Jack Maclaren, fiery left wing Labor member, retorted with the query: "Are men bearing arms in Germany in addition to peace creatures?"

The incident was finally ended when Sir John calmly replied: "It is of course partly my duty and partly the ambassador's duty to keep in constant communication and I shall not fail in that regard."

An Atmospheric Affair

by Starr Daily

From his table in Luigi Goldoni's joint, he had watching the girl, curiously, for more than an hour. An authentic blonde, a natural cometo mistress, she attracted to the best Goldoni fashion. And yes during all that time she had sat there alone.... with her cigarette and an occasional drink. With so many big and little shots drifting in and out, he wondered why she hadn't had company. The thing intrigued his nose for mystery.

Could it be that she was different under the skin? And for this reason were well-to-do Goldoni-type advances discouraged in their infancy? But a more penetrating glance seemed to nullify that notion. Perhaps she was just a little fish in strange waters, who aroused suspicion in her finny brethren even while she teased their appetites.

He rose and slithered over to her table, observing the customary formality of the underworld. He slipped into a chair opposite her without comment.

"What's up? have another 'n' on me, sister." This by way of introduction.

"Don't care if I do, brother." She drained her glass and pushed her cigarette case toward him. "Help yourself" She thrumbed the lighter for him.

"Say," he droned, his head tilted back, exhaling slowly, "you're a keen cutie to be parked all alone in a spot—alone."

"Maybe you've got more guts than brains," she came back crypticcally.

That's twenty-two carat Hindoo to me, sister."

"Four little words will make it plain, brother I'm—Joe—Parro's—Moll. Know 'em?"

For just an instant his face sobered. He did know the Goldoni hoodlum-boss. Then:

"Now 'm I say that mug'd walk fifty blocks out of his way to get around me. I'm tony Costella. Ever hear of me?" She studied his face intently as she gave the answer.

"Hear of ya! Listen, that's a huge joke. I know ya like a book, Tony. I made ya smack off 'n' girlfriend when ya first blew in. Toss that acid in your pan if ya take another shot on me."

With Goldoni's cut skit nobbing at their restraint, the conversation swerved gracefully into a confidential channel.

The girl spoke critically of Joe Parro, in the manner of one eager to unload a grudge.

She unleashed a microscopic description of the gangster's little known character. He lacked child-like superstition about death and evil spirits. To him the power of a knife was a thing of constant dread. Every time he put a nug on the spot he'd make him self and mutter a prayer on the departed soul. Other little peculiarities of this she concluded: "You're the only guy I've seen that didn't shake his teeth out at his mention of my name."

"Tony Costella shake! Ha—ha! Tony—be of fifty rackets. The big gent man on the North Side, Ha—ha! Get an ear full o' this, sister."

He began to tell something about his own life. He had been a big shot in the underworld. His old man had been knocked off during a bank job when he (Tony) was only a punk kid. The first joy he had ever played with was his old man's rod. When he was ten his mother sent him out on the street to panhandle nickels and dimes. By the time he was twelve he had taught him the art of boosting small articles from the counters of stores.

From this he had fallen naturally into reform school, where he learned many new and fruitful trades. He came out a first-class dip (pickpocket), later he became a house prowler, and still later a peterman, (safe-blower). And then old man Volstead came along and gave him his big chance of his life. He was still talking when the girl, who had been listening with a sort of rapt attention, cut him off.

"I guess I'd better scram," she said. "You'd take me for a long, long ride if he happened to hoove in here and put the lamps on me bounin' my head off the floor. Costella of the North Side."

She leaned toward her. "Has Joe ever said anything about me?" he whispered hoarsely.

"Take this tip, bud," came the reply, "you're name is in big, inch letters at the head of Joe's list."

He suddenly laid both his hands on hers. "Say, I'm on the level. You're the swellest lil' Hat in Chicago—and I'm going to croak you till take you home."

"What do you mean, nuts?" A startled look came into her eyes.

"My car's outside," he repeated with a meaningful smile. "I'll accept no protest. It might attract attention."

He drove by her directions. They were given tersely, and between them, oddly enough, the note in almost stony silence. Oddly enough, too, he showed no inclination to beguile her tongue. Nor did he seem to be surprised when she ordered him to a modest dwelling in Branson Place, one of the most ultra-respectable residential streets in the city.

"You've been very nice," she said as they pulled up to the curb, her underworld lingo now completely gone. "The decent thing for me to do is tell you the truth."

"You needn't bother," he interrupted. "I know you didn't belong back there."

"How did you know?"

"I knew it when you said you knew me, Tony Costella." He laughed. "But I could certainly know a heap more about you," he prompted.

"Well, you see, I'm writing a book—a set of study of underworld people and conditions. I've got a great deal of atmosphere and material at Goldoni's place. But this was my hardest day. I've squeezed at least two chapters out of your story. It's a human document in itself."

"If you could use it," he inquired teasingly.

"But surely you wouldn't mind."

"Not a bit—if.... Well, you see, the Big Boss, Tony Costella, happens to be my character."

"You mean you're a writer, too?" Grinning at her surprise, he covered one of her hands with the palm of his. "Say, I like you, Sister. Can't we collaborate? Here's a pen-ny! The best of your book with the best of mine will make one whole book surpassing fine. Speak quick, sister."

"We might, buddy," She laughed. "What'll we call it?"

"That's easy.—TONY COSTEL-LA'S MOLL."

"Yeah!"

POLICE GUARD WHILE BAILIFF ENTERS HOME

Crowd Hostile to Actions of Officers

Hamilton, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Police stood guard today while a bailiff descended upon the home of Joseph Peorog on Stapleton Avenue and a large crowd utter threats and at times seemed about to become out of hand.

Last Thursday Dames Peairs, sheriff's officer, was given a writ of possession to execute for arrears in rent. He was told Peorog would vacate on Monday, but yesterday it was learned citizens on the street had gathered to prevent eviction.

Today Peairs was guarded by police, and a throng of angry neighbors was on the spot.

Crockery was broken by some active sympathizers, and finally Inspector May appeared with about 30 constables. The crowd was dispersed and the eviction carried out.

MAN CHEATS ON RELIEF BANK ROLL DIMINISHES

Increase of $26.66 is Endorsed Considerably by Fine

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP)—Sam Technochuk, East Windsor, was convicted in police court today of having secured by $20 while on the relief roll. Now he has reduced his $500 balance by a fine of $100 plus $15.50 costs for cheating, plus $42.25 for goods given him by the Welfare Board.

Magistrate Smith today declared future "cheaters" need not expect such "lenient" treatment.

Rundown, Nervous

MANY women in Canada are troubled with monthly hearing—down pains, beckoning dizzy, backache or sidache and nervousness. They should takE Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read what Mrs. Ethel of 244 Dorre St., Stratford, Ont., says: "I was all run down, had hardly any strength. I felt nervous and irritable. Your medicine built me up, made me feel healthy and well again, a heavy ache across my kidneys, my sick headache and other troubles left me." Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it tablets or sugar coated pellets, are now in new edition and give us strength and energy.*

The Visitor in The Night

The trapper's creed will not admit Humannnes has a place in it.

Old Mother Nature.

The trapper isn't a sportsman. He doesn't believe in giving his woodsbrother a sporting chance. He has no thought but to catch and kill. The hunter, following a Fox to his home, feels that the Fox has won safety and leaves him undisturbed. The trapper, finding that home, does not hesitate to set a trap in the very entrance, so that in the very place where the Fox should have the right to feel safe he is in greatest danger.

Having been outwitted twice by Mrs. Reddy, the smart trapper became more determined than ever that he would catch that Fox living under the old, partly ruined barn on the deserted farm. Reddy was touched. Yes, sir, his pride was touched.

"I'll catch that Fox if it is the only thing I do for the rest of the winter," he declared.

He went back to the old barn and carefully studied the situation. One of the hole in the floor and of all the approaches led to the only entrance to the barn. "That Fox is at home through the day and hunts at night," the trapper decided. "What I want to do is to get a trap down through that hole in the floor, so that when that Fox returns he or she will step in it. That means that I will have set it after the Fox has gone out, for to set it now with the Fox at home would be to give the secret away. I'm sure that when that Fox goes out there is nothing suspicious about, nothing will be suspected on the return."

So guess he found the trap

So late that night the trapper returned to the old barn and managed to set a trap under the hole in the floor so placed that a Fox dropping down through the opening in the floor could not fail to step in the trap and get caught.

"Now, we will see, who is smarter!" he exclaimed as he headed for home.

The next morning he was back at the old barn bright and early. He fully expected to find a Fox caught in that trap. There was, of course, the chance that the Fox might not have returned. But if it had returned, it would be caught in a minute.

Perhaps you can guess how changrined he felt, and how very foolish, when he discovered that trap

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE—No. 71

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

As the mob in the Via Principalis surged forward, the weight of sheer numbers finally forced the great gates to give way and shrieking citizens poured into the palace grounds. But the Praetorian legionaries, forced back, made a new stand at the entrance to the palace.

Once more they checked the undisciplined rabble. Guardsmen dragged an onanger to the palace steps and began discharging stones into the midst of the crowd, which continued to rush forward to fall upon the palce of the palace defenders. In the distance trumpets sounded.

The trumpets announced the coming of Caesar's people re-enforcements. These fresh troops, sternly disciplined, dissolved the mob in screaming flight. Individuals, seeking safety after they might find, were pursued by the legionaries with flaming torches and bloody swords.

Back into the little room from which they had come fell Tarzan and his followers. The doorway was small and it was not difficult for a few men to hold it. But now retreat was cut off in the palace grounds. Tarzan's band was trapped, with Caesar's soldiers on all sides.

SON OF THE GODS

CHAPTER FOUR

During the time preceding the close of the spring term Alice spent several nights in Sam's apartments. She reveled in her boldness. She acknowledged her self-pity. At the same time she was watchful, suspicious of him. When he treated her with the same unfaltering courtesy that he displayed on their astonishing honeymoon she was at a loss to understand whatever of the situation she had created. Her distrust disappeared, she abandoned herself to a tyrannical enjoyment of her exploit and assumed a sort of gay proprietorship over him and Moy and the place itself. Sam's quarters were filled with objects of Oriental art, anything she admired he gave to her. That was his Eastern way and a very pretty practice she considered it. He was ever obliging when she wished to talk; he talked when she was blue he made her laugh with antics and absurdities. He could do many surprising bright things with a man and she called him a wicked magician; she was constantly to learn also that he was a musician of sorts and could play a number of instruments passably well. He could even improvise songs, like a medieval minstrel, and sometimes he put on his Chinese robes and sang Chinese songs, gentle, but his voice making, to the accompaniment of a long-necked Chinese banjo.

That which delighted her above all, however, was Sam's habit of perform on a slim little silver pipe, or flageolet, which gave forth thin flutelike tones.

As the spring semester drew to a close Alice realized that her problem for the future were uncertain and as was customary with her in a fateful quandary. Her parents expected her to return home, but she knew very well what that would mean—the end of her career. On the other hand she could not remain in the East unless she found employment for herself and positions were rare. She was greatly depressed.

Sam spoke again of a loan but she would not hear of it. Nevertheless it was unthinkable: she still retained some self-respect. After all, what would next year in the art school profit her without a finishing course?

The worst of it was she and Sam would soon be separated for ever. No more rides, no more chats, no more overnight visits like this. . . . It was all very well to talk about sacrifice, the story must be told, but what could she sacrifice? What more had she to give? . . . "Freedom!" It gales a fact that to fight the road to Paris. . . . Poor Chin Ting! How she had fought to escape from her prison.

"You can see the Feast of Lanterns if you wish," Sam told her gravely.

"How?"

"By stopping over in New York for a few days. I'll take you and show you about."

"New York is too expensive for a Bartonville art student.

"I would consider it a privilege to entertain you as my guest."

Alice eyed the speaker in startled interrogation.

"You could go to some hotel—the Ritz, for instance—and I would know that you're my guest. I'll help myself in the kitchen and I'll come to the shows and the shops. . . ."

"It would be lovely!"

Sam said perhaps you would enjoy meeting my father; I want him to know you, a man, not a philosopher, a person of importance. Now, Alice, I am interested in the way of securing a position for the summer."

"Oh, Sam! Would you——? I've always wanted to see the New York shops. I've been looking for . . . Sam, dear!"

The speaker clasped her hands and strained to his breast. She wept prettily. "I'll never, never be a misfit. Don't let me go back to Bartonville and——and to my old life. . . . Please!"

That day of Sam Lee's exciting quite as much admiration on Fifth Avenue as it had excited on the old college campus: wherever it stopped people gathered to look at it. Alice Hart felt something stir inside of her when she and Sam came out of a department store and stepped into it, she did her best to look right through it, to ignore it, while she envied her companion's complete oblivion to the stares he evoked. It was an experience to be shared, it, to be sure, she enjoyed with a young man as perfectly groomed and as important as Sam Lee. Nobody seemed to take him for—for a Mongol.

Sam, she learned, had a subtle, unobtrusive way of commanding attention in the store thereabouts, he was recognized as a somebody and made much of.

They had spent the morning sightseeing, in really wonderful weeping, for that was Alice's wish. Sam had shown her through Chinatown, silversmiths' antique shops at first, for his taste ran to exquisite things like women, jewels, incense and such but she did not begin to enjoy herself thoroughly until they entered the stores given over to fashionable women's shops. Thereafter she was in raptures.

They lunched together: for ten they visited a place she had always longed to see and they lingered over food and Rich rugs and hangings. Crystal and silver and Chinese and gilt. . . . Sam can't they don't look like a Chinaman. He looked more like a Spaniard or an Italian. Or a Sumatran, a Greek, a Russian—anything: one thing he was about like another to Alice. How exotic he was! . . . He was the dearest creature, really, and the nicest thing about him was his formality. He had never even tried to kiss her.

How nice it was to be in a place like this, how wonderful to afford to come here often. If she were an artist she could afford it. This was living. Yes, and then had seats at the popular show in town for that evening.

When she returned to her room she received the astonishing information of that gala day. On her bed was a number of packages from the shops she had visited and when, trembling fingers, she opened them she found they contained all, or practically all, of the lovely things that she had admired ostentatiously admired on their sight-seeing tour. There was a dinner dress, there an evening wrap, yonder a sport costume, a beaded bag, a hat——credible. Alice sloated over them like a miser, her heart beats choked her. This was the life. . . . She be everything regally. What extravagance!

For once Alice was eager to be home again, therefore she and Sam went to a night club after the theatre. It was a mistake; although the entertainment was wild, the dancing was feverish, she had never seen anything like it before and it intoxicated her. She was drunk, too, on her escort's devotion, over and over again he murmured how glad he was that she was the most ravishing: the loveliest creature in the place and the best dressed.

They danced until they were tired. Sam did not kiss her at the door, but went back to the hotel although she fully expected him to do so.

Alice was in a daze of happiness and of revelry followed: a third and fourth day they spent together, spent most or their waking hours in shopping. Sam, as Alice soon discovered, had a passion for buying constantly in each other's thoughts. Then came an evening to which Alice had looked forward with dread: Sam took her to see his father.

Thus far she had beheld only the gay, the lighter side of Sam's character, dad, she had seen nothing of the dark side. Now, as the taxicab drove away from the calcium glare of the Rialto and drove south with her companion silent and grave and comparatively discreted, oil between them and the world, she began to feel blind wisdom. Elevated trains rore overhead, lights gleamed in narrow streets with the clangor of huge metallic dragons' jaws, and perfumes, strange, exotic, furtively they passed from shadow to shadow. Here and there a Chinese face, pale, with sounds and smells of a life all but unknown to Alice.

She shuddered, drew closer the silken shawl that she had thrown over her and shrank against his side. Here was everything she loathed and feared, the sky of the alien, here the air was fetid, there it was thick with lurking shadows that could never return to this. Who was this man who was with her? He offered escape, he held her freedom in his hands and he was about to use it—at least he touch. . . . She must act as a part, she must be nice to his father for the sake of the happy night of her life.

Sam's father was a wholly different and distinctive quarter, the quarter which Alice was entering, Sam claimed it to be Italian. The small, naked, iron-fenced park which Sam skirted, was certainly Italian.

"This is Mulberry Bend Park," Sam said. "It's where I was born when I was a child."

"How strange to think of you coming from a place like this," Alice murmured, in a stifled voice.

He nodded toward a tenement. "Down there a little ways is where the greatest of all my friends lived."

A block or two between bleak, narrow walls and Sam turned into a dim Sam swung his car into a narrow court, brightly illuminated than the others and with unusual neatness the environment changed. Old iron railings were painted and puncent and spicy, came to the girl's nostrils. Sam was speaking. "Here ed her cry).

The signs and the store fronts carried hieroglyphics. Oriental men crowded the sidewalks; they were yellow, flat-nosed hairless cheek-bones, tinted, and they wore ill-fitting incongruous American clothes. Alice heard outlandish cries and words without meaning. The street ran back full of pedestrians but the stream divided to let Sam's car through.

He was saying something about Chinatown: it was nothing like it was pictured in books. Its people it was a gigantic fake but Alice heard him indistinctly. These over which a rotoros victoria clambered. Midway of the path was a pool, the goldfish in which were gazing at her. And why not? It was a white girl with one or their own people! A white girl in an evening wrap. Of a sudden she felt frightened, half naked. She had never anticipated anything like this.

Sam stopped his car in front of a building whose sorry appearance above its neighbors and helped his companion out. They were facing a fine store, a bazaar, now dimly lighted, and trembling fingers, she opened them she found they contained all, or practically all, of the lovely things that she had ostentatiously admired on their sight-seeing tour. RUTH CHATTERTON'S GREATEST ROLE IN "FRISCO JENNY"

One of the most dramatic court scenes ever filmed in the screen world takes place in "Frisco Jenny," to be presented on the screen this new feature program to be presented at the Belle, commencing tomorrow (Thursday) matinee daily.

Here it is that Ruth Chatterton as "Frisco Jenny" is gathered to the stand by her own son, who is ignorant of the fact that she is his mother. She sits silent as he accuses her of being the evil genius of the Barbary Coast notorious for its evil dives. Who does she open her lips to tell that she is his mother and sentenced to be hanged, paragon of evil that she is, mother love withholds her from making known the facts she knows to her son.

Ruth Chatterton's role in "Frisco Jenny" is one of the most emotional one she has had since "Madame X," in which she displayed her a rare opportunity to display that great, intrinsic ability which has placed her to her present high estate.

This is a stirring tale of San Francisco's water front along the Embarcadero in the days when temples of pleasure and gambling dens flourished unmolested in all their gilded evil, and covers the period of the great earthquake and fire which destroyed the city with thrills including the quake itself and the fire that followed.

Miss Chatterton is supported by a strong cast which includes Donald Cook, James Murray, Linda Carlisle, Hallam Cooley, Ruth Walley and Helen Jerome Eddy.

"Million Dollar Scandal"

"The Million Dollar Scandal," a new melodrama that saves of Trespot Dome, dealing with a nation wide swindle, is the second feature on the same program.

Robert Armstrong heads the cast in the role of Fingers Farton, who, from a humble masseur, suddenly finds himself at the top of the tour and the "saviour of 130 millions" when he tells, through the columns of a newspaper, of the great Canadian swindle, the plotting of which he has had in his gym class for business men.

The story picks up Fingers in the penitentiary, where he and his two pals, Relay, James Gleason, a pickpocket and Sam Hardy, a forger, are serving time. Fingers, thinking he is too dumb to amount to much, is released. He picks up their tips and plays the market with the money of his fellow-men. His principal object, however, is to set his younger brother, Frank Richardson, through college and he can be "best people." But Babe, the brother rails in love with Constance Cummings, and angered at the turn of affairs, leaves home. Fingers, in order to get rid of Babe. At the invitation of Girswold, Irving Pichel, Fingers becomes a millionaire himself.

ing in "The Lodger" commenced his stage career at Margate in 1896 as a dumb negro in "The Octoroon". He subsequently appeared in a variety of plays, including "Mrs. Dane's Defence," "Leah Kleschna," "Alibi" "In the Fire," "Sally," "Bishop" and "Peter Pan" in which he has played over 1,000 times. He has recently been appearing in musical comedy and revue, and has made great successes in "London Calling," "Mr. Cinders," "Mercenary Mary" and "Merry Merry". He is also famous as a game in pantomime in "Lodger" is and "Mrs. Lodger."

IMPOSING LINEUP OF ENGLISH STARS IN "THE LODGER"

Barbara Everest, who plays Mrs. Hunting in the screen version of the new picture emergency stage actress. She started her career in the provinces, and her first London engagement was with Granville Barker, in "The Voysey Inheritance" at the Old Vic, and played a great part in "Hindle Wakes," which scored notable personal successes in "The Good Companions" and "The Kingdom of God".

Barbara Everest has had considerable experience on the legitimate screen and, in fact, made her debut at the Twickenham Studio (then known as the Alliance) in "The Hypocrites". She has since played talkies her most recent roles being "Constantine" and "When Knights Sleepe."

Ivor Novello, star of "The Lodger" can well claim to be England's most popular stage and screen artiste. Among his stage successes have been "The Yellow Jacket," "Old Dutch," "Old Chelsea," "Downhill" and "The Rat," which he was the author. He also wrote and appeared in "Symphony in Two Flats", "The Truth Game" and "Lived With You."

His early screen successes include "The Rat," "The Triumph of Evan," "The Bohemian Girl," "The Rat," "The Vortex," "Sailors Don't Care," "White Rose" and "The Constant Nymph." He starred in "The Constant Nymph" in Two Flats" and he has only recently returned from Hollywood where he acted with Ruth Chatterton and wrote the dialogue for many films, including "Tarnar".

He is also a famous composer, some of his more notable song compositions being "Keep the Home Fires Burning" "Glamorous Night" "Rose of Mandalay" and "The Little Dec-laration". He has also composed the music for many films.

Remarkable Record of Wm. Watt Credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills

Railwayman Retires At 69 29 Years' Service, 12 Days Off

Winnipeg, Man.—(Special)—

Twenty-nine years of continuous service, less than two weeks off through illness. That is the remarkable record of William Alfred Watt, of Norwood, Manitoba, retired on pension by the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Watt attributes his continuous good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills. In a letter about them he says: "Mr. Watt was bedridden with kidney trouble. I was told that almost every part of my body became affected. My back was so bad that I could not get up." Hope of quick recovery had almost been abandoned when he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. In a very short time he was at work again. "Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life in 1904 and I have used them without fail since being ready in the home ever since," says Mr. Watt. "They are a good advice for any man approaching 69 years of age, as I am now." Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as the best treatment for Backache, Rheumatism and all ailments arising from faulty kidneys.

DIES BEFORE AID

Senate Adjourns For Day in Respect to Late Member

Rocky Mount, N.C., Mar. 2 (AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana died suddenly of a heart attack aboard an Atlantic Coast Line train near Wilson today while en route to Washington with his bride whom he married Saturday in Havana.

The Senator, who was named to be Attorney-General in the cabinet of United States President-elect Roosevelt only a few days ago, was stricken and died within a few minutes as he lay face downward in a berth in his drawing room.

He was 74 years old.

Senator Walsh died at 7:10 a.m., as Conductor Herbert Weatherspee, operating on the train between Laurens, S.C., and Rocky Mount, held his pulse.

Only the conductor, Mrs. Walsh and her Cuban maid, and a porter were present.

Mrs. Walsh Hysterical.

Mrs. Walsh was described as hysterical by conductor Weatherspee who said he reached the Senator's side by 7:20.

"The Senator died while I held his hand," Weatherspee said. "Mrs. Walsh was hysterical. A Dr. Costello was located on the train but he arrived after the Senator died."

As the train rolled into Wilson, Dr. M. A. Pittman was called aboard. Mrs. Walsh, who was in a highly nervous state, Dr. Pittman said the Senator died about 7:10 this morning and that, in his opinion, he had died of a sudden heart attack.

When the train reached here, the body was embalmed, preparatory to sending it on to Washington on the next train.

Washington Stunned

Washington, Mar. 2 (AP) — The capital heard with stunned surprise today of the death of Senator Walsh of Montana on the eve of his elevation to the cabinet as Attorney-General in the new United States administration.

Through the remainder of the campaign, he was a frequent visitor to Albany and often accompanied

HYDRO RATES INCREASED

Asks Users to Use Heaters And Other Appliances

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP) — An increase in rates for residents of Belleville, East Windsor, Riverside, Tecumseh and St. Clair Beach has been approved by Hydro Commissioners of the five municipalities.

The inclusive charge formula is abolished and for the first 60 kilowatt hours is set at 4.5 cents per HW., compared with the old rate of 2.5. The change makes little difference in the charge for the first 60 hours but consumption over that mark is now charged at 1.3 cents compared with the 1 cent charge made previously.

The Commissioners decided at a meeting to join in an effort to have customers use electric heaters and other appliances to provide a market for surplus power.

UNBREAKABLE MILK BOTTLE IS DISCOVERED

Housewives Can Have Any Color to Suit Taste

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 3 (CP)—Mellon Institute researchers today had announced discovery of a way to make unbreakable milk bottles colored, to suit the housewife's taste.

Specialists from a Buffalo, N.Y., concern (R. N. Burr Company, Ltd.) collaborated with Marc Darrin, a research student, in developing a process for impregnating cellulose with a wax-like substance and applying it into the familiar milk bottle form.

Its inventors claim the new product will not break if thrown on a concrete floor.

The War Zone

LINGYUAN, Jehol, China, March 2.—(AP)—Major General Tadashi Kawahara commanding the 16th Japanese Infantry, swept through this city this morning on the heels of the retreating Chinese and marched on toward Chinchow. The 43.09 pan, he occupied the town of Shanling and two hours later his troops passed through Peking, 25 miles northeast of Pingchuan and less than 70 miles from the Jehol capital.

Tokyo, Mar. 2 (AP) — A Reago (Japanese) army spokesman today from Chinchow, Manchuria, said today that two Japanese aeroplanes had dropped an ultimatum to the Chinese garrison in Chinchow urging the withdrawal of Chinese troops established at Jehol city, the capital of the northern Chinese Province of Jehol, by Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, North China military leader.

One of the planes was said to have returned safely to Chinchow while the other made a forced landing near Lingyuan. The crew of the latter plane was unhurt.

THREE RIBS FRACTURED

Result of Alleged Altercation in North Park St. Home

Allegedly falling from the grasp of those who were carrying him downstairs to a waiting car, Thomas Donaldson late last evening, Alex Kerr, North Park street, fell a short distance and sustained three fractured ribs.

He was rushed to the Belleville Hospital and was attended by Dr. J. J. Robertson. Provincial police were called to the scene and later investigated the occurrence but as yet no charges have been laid.

It is stated by the provincial police that Kerr was in the alleged intoxicated condition and entering the home of Mrs. S. J. Mason, North Park street, when he started brandishing a revolver, pointed the gun at Mrs. Mason, shooting being the story told them. A son-in-law of Mrs. Mason, Maurice Mason, and a son, Lawrence Mason, were in the home at the time and following Kerr upstairs persuaded him to give over the gun. After the gun was secured, the two men attempted to carry Kerr downstairs and in doing so, he slipped from their grasp and sustained three fractured ribs in the fall. The police to-day visited the hospital and the accused is reported to be resting. Injured man and also visited the Mason home, ascertaining their version of the altercation.

BACHELORS TO ADD THEIR BIT TO HELP GOV'T

Wellington, New Zealand, Mar. 2 (CP)—Bachelors will have to do their share in keeping New Zealand's financial balance on the right side of the ledger.

What is the equivalent to a bachelor tax, estimated to produce £250,000, is provided for in the annual budget bill introduced in the New Zealand parliament to-day.

It is now being learned the government is taking to improve the financial condition of the country.

SHAW GIVES JAPAN ADVICE

Reporters Told Japan Should Adopt Birth Control

Kobe, Japan, Mar. 2 (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, famous author and playwright, referring to the Japanese campaign in Jehol province told a group of Japanese reporters here today that "the European war was imperfialism." It led to the disappearance of three Empires."

Mr. Shaw declared a world tour, continued: "Have you in Japan ever thought that in your imperialistic aims you may end as a republic and that is not at all what your rulers want? European imperialists, or what is left, would give their eyes for the return of 1914."

Praising Soviet Russia, he said: "Stalin does not rule because the sun is in heaven but because he is the best man for the job."

He urged Japan to adopt birth control to solve population problems, seen."

PICK-UP AND DELIVERY OF FREIGHT PLAN

Belleville Railway Officials Watch Closely New Development

EXPECTED HERE

Change Begins on March Sixth From Toronto to Border Cities

An important new development in freight services of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways announced yesterday by officials of both lines in this district, who believe that a new system which will provide door-to-door pick-up and delivery of freight shipments without charge to either shipper or consignee, soon to be introduced. It will not be placed directly to points west of Toronto, but will also be extended to the Belleville district when operation becomes effective.

Here, however, no official notice has been received by officials of either the Canadian National or the Canadian Pacific lines, it was learned on Thursday, in an interview with both offices.

"We have no idea as to what we have read in the morning papers", declared an official of the Canadian National Railway when questioned in Fierce Here Soon

It is probable that the new system will become effective in this district, it was learned.

"We expect it will be. However, we are now waiting to go by except what has already been learned through the press," he stated.

Among the officials who were interviewed from officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, no comment was proclaimed.

The headlines in the morning papers is about all the information that we have received," they added, "we expect the system to become a local affair. It is being considered with caution for some time, and it comes to us as something to most railway men."

The question of whether increased shipments will result from the new move remains an open one. The Slashed Rates

The new move by both lines was announced jointly on March 1st, by George Stephen, Vice-President

C. BOETTCHER RETURNS HOME

Has Been Held Captive For Ransom For 17 Days

Denver, March 2 (AP) — After being held for 17 days in a cellar, newspapers, Charles Boettcher, 2nd, bebt to a fortune was returned safe to his family here today.

There were conflicting reports on what ransom had been paid, but $10,000 ransom demanded in a note which two men left with the young wife of the 31-year old wealthy broker when they kidnaped him from his home in Golden shortly at 11.50 p.m. February 12.

Charles Boettcher, banker chief of police, said he was "uncertain about the matter of payment.

Harry A. Haley, brother-in-law of Young Boettcher's mother, announced in Kansas City, his wife, who was in Denver, had telephoned him the ransom had been met.

Haley also said his wife informed him that the young Boettcher son of the pioneer Colorado family had held up well under the strain.

Boettcher, who said he was blindfolded during the entire 404 hours of his captivity, complained and telephoned his home from a drugstore.

Police made simple reports of the breach with the family were being kept informed of progress in the case. The couple reported that within a few minutes had engaged in a running gun battle with a car believed to contain the kidnappers, Mr. Silas said.

Boettcher was taken to the home of a friend, where Chief Clark questioned him. Then he was taken home to bed.

The elder Boettcher early today talked guardedly of the case.

"This is the beginning, not the end of this case," he declared. "I might say, that this is the end of the case as far as Charles and I are concerned."

He urged Japan to adopt birth

Surplus Determining Factor in Milk Prices, Probers are Informed

Ottawa, Mar. 2 (CP)—The determining factor in the final prices received for milk is the surplus, P. D. MacArthur of Howick, Quebec, president of the Quebec Milk Producers Association, told the House of Commons agricultural committee here today. Mr. MacArthur was the first of the outside witnesses to appear before the committee.

He explained the scope of his organization, informing the committee that it embraced the territory contiguous to the eastern metropolis and extended into Ontario.

"We are a bargaining association, without power," he said. By that I mean, no matter what the price agreed on may be, there arises into it the question of surplus.

So far as affects Montreal it means that in the final returns for our milk we have to submit to a surplus, which is the determining factor in the final price we receive for our product."

Three years ago the association formed a "surplus committee" which conferred with the distributing companies actually carried a ten per cent. surplus to protect themselves against eventualities. It was carried for the full price, but of late years the producers themselves had carried it. A proposal advanced last fall by the association that could be established was not favorably received by the distributors.

Sir Malcolm Not Satisfied With Mere 272 Miles an Hour Record

New York, March 2 (AP)— Sir Malcolm Campbell who has travelled over the ground faster than any other human being, is bound home from his record speed trials in Florida, but by no means satisfied man.

CONTEMPT OF COURT COSTLY

Judge Doubles Fine When Witness Twice Comments

Hamilton, March 3 (CP)— Jack Masson was seeking reduction in alimony to be paid his wife when he was charged with contempt of court for exhibition of sleepiness of justice when he left the witness stand.

O. E. Readen, in cross examination, asked Mrs. Masson where his license permit. The latter tried to refuse, muttering something about the law and Readen told her there's no much.

Then dollars or ten days for contempt, of court," cut in Judge Carpenter.

"I'll go and get justice elsewhere," retorted Mrs. Masson.

"Very well. Twenty dollars or 30 days," repiled the bench.

Masson paid the $20.

SCARCITY OF MILK FEARED

London, Ont., Mar. 3—(CP) Prediction that the London district can see that the product of dairy cows in this district would be seriously decreased, perhaps to the point where a milk famine would eventually occur because of milk prices resulting from a dealers' war, were expressed by producers received. In agricultural representatives today.

LATE WIRE BRIEFS

Kitchener, Ont., Mar. 2 (CP)—Finishing touches on a pretty picture calendars the office of W. D. "Pete" Brill, motor license issuer, used to draw compliments from customers. Since the jig-saw puzzle craze started Mr. Brill has had to refuse requests for outstanding pieces of his "art" gallery and he is just keeping one long watch lest someone sneak a couple.

Wharton, Ont., Mar. 2 (CP)— People of this district are enlisted with interest as a good-sized deer walked ready about the streets here and some dogs began to bother it and it ran off. It evidently came from the Bruce game preserve and no one was expressed for its visit here was left in case any one knew.

Chicago, Mar. 2 (AP)—The prize tropical fish of Roy Van Heck were hungry so he went fishing in a drainage canal and in the process of water flea of which his fish are fond. Instead he caught a pair which he drew in his net and found $9,000 in gilt-edged bonds, as well as a number of keys. The fish got the fleas. Detectives got the bonds. They want to know how they got into the canal, and why.

Milwaukee, Wis., Mar. 2 (AP)— Even Dan Cupid may soon be transacting his business on a basis and scrip. A jewelry store has inaugurated a "Honeymoon Layaway" and Commodity Exchange that it would take the organization's scrip for wedding rings.

CHAIN SALES AT COST PRICE

Milk Producers Officer Complains of Method in Selling

OTTAWA, March 3 — (CP)— Chain store competition and the policy of one of these chains in selling milk at cost price were featured the milk business in Montreal, W. A. Gilmour, secretary-treasurer of the Montreal Milk Producers Association, told the House of Commons Committee on Agriculture here today Mr. Moore and F. D. Tolmie, Montreal members of the association, were two witnesses who also appeared before the committee.

Mr. Gilmour said one of these chain stores "featured" milk, selling it as low as five cents a quart. This was done in order to attract customers in the hope that they would make other purchases in addition to milk, said Mr. Moore. For some consumers, he added, milk was a particular store had sold milk at a five cents cents under that of the other stores.

Below Cost

The average price agreed upon between the producers and the distributors for the year 1932 was $1.477 per 100 pounds. The cost of production was estimated by the concert., Mr. MacArthur said so this chain store was doing down to milk with the surplus the average price was $1.10 per 100.

"We know that milk was brought into Montreal at prices as low as that the price was below cost," said Mr. Arthur. This was far below cost of production.

"When the producers and distributors were determined to sell you take minutes?" questioned Mr. O. Senn (Soo., Saskatoon). "Are they not entitled to a profit?"

"Yes, but they have been fixed at these meetings are these prices incorporated in the minutes?"

SIX-YEAR-OLD MEETS DEATH

Wanting to Keep Sick Mother She is Fatally Burned

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—A brown-haired father told a coroner's jury today how his little girl of six years, while holding a lighted bread, hold duties of her mother who was ill in bed, caught fire and died. That on Tuesday his wife fell sick and after putting the baby to sleep on a couch. His daughter Rejean- ette was a willing helper about the house despite her few years, thought she would clear the table and wash the dishes and no surprise her mother on awakening instead of putting the garbage in the can she opened the stove which back fired and set her clothing afire. She died of burns in hospital last night. A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest today.

EXCEPTIONAL MEASURES IN 1932 COSTLY

Army Reductions Last Year Costly to Efficiency

ANNUAL TRAINING

Rejections of Recruits Increase 35 Per Thousand

London, March 2—(CP)—An increase of £1,462,000 in the army estimates for the British army for the coming year released today, but in an accompanying statement Lord Hailsham, the Minister of War points out that the total for 1933 is still below the 1931 estimates—by £900,000.

The increase in the estimates over those of last year are in accordance with the policy of bringing war stores and buildings.

Some of the reductions effected last year were only temporary to meet the economic situation arising from the financial crisis, the Minister for War explained, and count especially the increase of nearly a million and a half pounds in the total for annual training.

Territorials in Train

Last year's experimental measure "involved a loss of efficiency which could not be repeated without serious consequences," the Minister declared, referring to an increase of £116,000 in the account for Territorials he said it was particularly necessary to give the latter part of the forces an opportunity of resuming annual training. Last year's remarkable cuts had forced abandonment of the Territorials camps.

The strength of the regular army including British troops stationed in India, however, would be kept below the gisted establishment, where it stands 14,884, exclusive of 19,000 this decrease, the report explained, was due to the policy of cancellations of annual trainings.

CERMAK IMPROVES HOPES ARE BRIGHTER

Mayor Reels Quietly in Oxygen Tent at Miami

Miami, Fla., March 2.—(AP)— Marked improvement in the condition of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago continued to build up hope for his recovery today.

The complications that set in after he was wounded by a bullet Giuseppe Zangara fired at United States President-elect Roosevelt were slackening their hold and the Mayor rested quietly in a specially constructed oxygen tent on the sun porch of a hospital wing.

GERMAN GROUP PLAN TO HOLD ON TO POWER

Victim on Defeat at Polls May Not Make Differ-ence

"CONTINUE ON"

Berlin, Mar. 2—(AP)—No matter how German voters may cast their ballots in the election Sunday, the group now in control of the government will continue in power at-the helm, while Hitler, Hugenberg, Von Papen and Seldte will peacefully run with a heavily reactionary majority, failure in this also will not mean their retirement.

They have made this plain in their speeches. Meanwhile 60,000 of Hitler's brown-skirted storm troops and Franz Seldte's steel helmets are to be duly inducted into the Prussian police force as auxiliaries and action has been taken to assure support of the army.

Hitler's Forearm

Chancellor Hitler formulated this determination with the statement:

"We prefer to satisfy God and our conscience we have once more turned to the German people and themselves are to decide. If they should come to the conclusion they may heaven forgive us: we shall continue on the path that is best, even if on that Germany may not go under."

Berlin, Mar. 1.—(AP)— A promise by Chancellor Adolf Hitler that he would do away with the necessity of Germany than they could expect. Count Communism was before the electorate Sunday.

Addressing National Socialist workmen this night, he said he planned to mortise the pillar of labor in the structure of state so labor would not be a separate entity. In one of the few specific declarations he has made upon his four year plan for workers, the Chancellor said he contemplated a programme would wipe out "class antagonisms" with "ennobling material labor" for all.

TRAVELLER IS CRASH VICTIM

W. P. Thomson of Thorndale in Car Carried 300 Yards by Engine

INGERSOLL, Ont., March 2.— (CP)—W. P. Thomson, 61, Thorndale, traveller for the International Fertiliser Ltd. was killed at the Pemberton street crossing of the Canadian National Railways here today.

Coming to the office of the company, Thomson's car was struck apparently by an engine, in charge of Robert Heard of London.

The car was demolished and carried more than 300 yards eastward by the engine. Thomson's body was badly mutilated., An inquest will be held.

Thomson had been associated with the company for five years. He is the father of Dr. Murray Thomson, London.

ARRESTED TODAY GETS THREE YEARS

NORTH BAY, Ont. March 2.— (CP)—James P. Tompkins, married 37-year-old Toronto Railway mail clerk, was sentenced to three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary today by Magistrate S. Weegar on a plea of guilty to theft of part of the contents of two pogs letters. He was charged with the theft from his arrival here on Canadian National Train No. 46 from Toronto today.

HUNT MONEY SUBSTITUTE, MAY BE SCRIP

Bankers in Ohio Speak of Issuing Bank-Scrip

REDUCTIONS

Situation Generally 'Eases off' And Restriction May be Lifted

Arizona, Nevada, California, Oklahoma, Colorado and Mississippi today joined the States in which there are limitations on withdrawals of deposits from United States banks, making a total of 16 requiring this protection from public hysteria.

A four-day legal holiday was proclaimed today by Gov. Fred B. Balzar to give Nevada "breathing spell", while Gov. R. D. Moeur declared a three day bank holiday in Arizona.

Columbus, Ohio, Mar. 2 (AP)—A hunt for a money substitute was on in Ohio to-day.

With more than five hundred of the state's eight hundred banks limiting the withdrawal of deposits, the state's governor considered the advisability of resorting to the issuance of clearing house certificates or some type of scrip.

Meanwhile, some banks reported difficulty in obtaining cash in their vaults for the huge stacks of United States currency in small denomination that had been deposited under the rule requiring the banks to segregate them during the period of the opening of new accounts.

The general situation, said state banking department commissioner Zangeman, has "eased off" to such an extent that some bankers felt sufficiently satisfied in their vaults for the huge stacks of United States currency in small denomination that had been deposited under the rule requiring the banks to segregate them during the period of the opening of new accounts.

The general situation, said state banking department commissioner Zangeman, has "eased off" to such an extent that some bankers felt sufficiently satisfied in retaining the restriction on withdrawals that they would reduce it to per-cent.

450 LBS. BUTTER TAKEN BY THIEVES

The Trent Valley Creamery Company's premises were entered and robbed some time during the night and morning, the wrongdoers taking 16 cases of butter each containing 30 lbs. of prints. No clue or information was forwarded to Inspector Lougheed of the Provincial Police, but detectives are consulted here to investigate the break in and theft. No other information has been given of the affair to the police. It is believed the thieves gained entrance through a rear window to the warehouse.

LITTLE DOGS ARE BEATEN UP

A cocky little fox terrier, who had evidently got up a good bit bellicose scrap with a dog larger than himself and incidentally received a bad beating, is now at the dog pound undergoing treatment for his injuries. Thorne Sexsmith found the dog and started to take him home with him. He is owned by a resident of William Street. During the morning Thursday a small Pomeranian owned by a resident of Benjamin Street was almost killed when it was attacked by a large police dog owned by a West Bridge boy. Considerable blood ed on the little animal and almost broke its back in the fight. The matter is being investigated by Mr. Thorne.

CAMPAIGN OF EVANGELISM

Opening of the special evangelistic services in the Alexandra Tabernacle, Moira Street by the Rev. Gordon Wishart and Mrs. Wishart, who have been greatly used in evangelism in the United States and Canada, took place on Sunday last before a very large congregation. Mr. Wishart gave a most interesting message to Christians from the Book of Proverbs. The meetings will continue every night.

Rev. Mr. Willoughby, pastor, presided at the meeting.

MISS McCRODAN BREAKS HER ARM

Miss McCrodan, who is a guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. P. Bailey, Second Street, Campbellcroft, had her left forearm broken one day morning when she fell on the verandah. Mrs. Bailey and Miss McCrodan were about to leave the house to attend church when the latter fell on the steps of the verandah, breaking the bone of the upper arm near the shoulder. Medical aid was summoned and the patient is doing as well as can be expected.

21ST BATTALION CLUB ARE HOSTS

Wednesday evening the 21st. Battalion Club of Belleville, was host to the Sergeants of the Argyll Light Infantry in the Sergeants' Mess Rooms, Drill Hall, Belleville. Sixty members of the club and sergeants were present. Maj. Hutchison and his 21st. Orchestra in attendance and it added greatly to the enjoyment of the night. Sergt.-Major Jamie Clark sang a couple of solos and also rendered a number of Scotch and wailing instrument.

Sergt. O'Neil, physical training instructor at the Air Port, gave a most interesting hour's talk on his experiences in the Murmansk expedition in Russia. His remarks were appreciably enjoyed by all.

During the evening, the president of the club, P. E. Wills presented Sergt.-Major Clark, Sergeants' Mess, a framed life-sized portrait of the late R. B. Weir, O.B.E. Tim Jordan was the regimental sergeant major of the 21st. Battalion (C.E.F.) and held that important office in the Argyll Light Infantry for a long time until death last summer. R.S.M. Geo. Lancaster accepted the gift on behalf of the sergeants and appreciation was expressed by C.S.M. Sam Johnson.

In all it was one of the most enjoyable evenings of many spent-ored by the 21st. Battalion Club of this city.

NO FLOOD IS EXPECTED HERE

Large ice cakes washed down the shallow currents of the Moira River from the upper reaches, where the formerly frozen surface of the river has been undergoing a general break-up since the soft weather of the past week-end, but the danger from the open channels further down the river, just above the car bridge at the park. No flood is expected this year, however, owing to the fact that the river is hardly above the height of summer time levels. Large quantities of water from the Crookston dyke flow now across to the waters of the Moira, and little damming of the current is evident.

HEIFER IS NOT KILLED

Delmar Sligh, Cannifton, reported to the district office of the Highway Traffic Police last night of an accident which occurred about two miles north of Belleville on the Cannifton Road when a car driven by him, struck a heifer. Mr. Sligh alleges that the heifer was wandering about the highway at large and had stepped directly in the path of his car. Slight damage was reported to the car but the animal escaped injury.

WILD DUCKS SEEN HEADING NORTH

More wild ducks have been seen in the Bay of Quinte, presumably stopping over for a rest up their northward flight. Circling in V formation over the Bay Bridge late on Wednesday afternoon, the ducks finally alighted in the water and swam around in the water until before nightfall, when they rose again took wing and headed north. Although a number of ducks were said to be wintering in this district, this particular flock is believed to be composed of the first contingent of the northbound flocks.

CYCLIST PEDALS THROUGH SNOW

Changing conditions have been reached even the ranks of the bona fide gypsy. Further evidence of the increasing modernity of wandering nomads was observed on Front Street late Wednesday afternoon when a huge car, a brand new one of the most expensive makes, pulled to the curb in the lower down town section and hailed for a time, while the gaily dressed occupants indulged in a late dinner in a nearby cafe. Although the tents and the cupants were dressed in the latest man's fashions, the women still clung to the vivid colored dress of the old time gypsy, replete with bangles and shiny metal trimmings. A number of small children accompanied the travellers who were presumably on their way to Toronto.

CLUB MEN COOK FOOD

Banquet at St. George, Trenton a Unique One

Trenton, March 2 (Special) —St. George's Men's Club of St. George's Anglican Church held a delightful banquet in the parish hall on Monday night.

All the cooking, serving and decorations were the work of the men of the club.

Mr. J. North, the president, acted as chairman for the evening and after a sumptuous repast, Rev. Canon Bishop Lyons and Rev. F. A. Smith, M.A., addressed the gathering.

After the banquet, bridges and euchre were played and Mrs. Harry Waldorf carried off the bridge prize donated by Mrs. A. North and Mr. W. Hendrickson won the euchre prize donated by Mr. J. Kinney.

The Hall Committee had established music for dancing and a wonderful social time was enjoyed and the men are receiving praise for their fine work.

Card Party

The last card party and dance before the Lenten season was held Monday evening at St. Peter's Hall. These parties have been well held weekly and many have enjoyed the delightful games of cards.

Monday night's event was in charge of Mrs. Geo. Shoniker, convener, and assisted by Mrs. T. Quinn, Mrs. J. Holmes and Mrs. Pfeifer. Mrs. K. Long won the ladies' bridge prize and Mr. O'Neill won the gentlemen's. For euchre Mrs. F. Dellisle was high and Mr. Ed. Dunn, low, carried off the gentleman's honors.

The grand total for the season was won by Mr. C. W. Fitzpatrick for bridge and Mr. Pat Cole for euchre. The evening came to a close with dancing, the music being furnished by local talent.

Transport Leaves Road

A large moving van, owned by Hill, the Mover, left the road about four miles west of Trenton and turned over in the ditch. Little damage was done to the truck or contents, but it was nearly an all-day job getting the large truck back on its four wheels. The crane from Fitzgibbon and Clegg's garage finally righted the van and the load of furniture was taken on to Montreal after an eleven hour delay. The truck was in charge of Mr. B. Jay of Toronto.

Reader Station Moved

The Trenton relief station was moved to the vacant store owned by Mr. W. Johnson, Front Street. Smith, of Trenton, has leased the premises formerly used as the welfare depot, where he is redecorating before opening an up-to-date lunch room.

Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Hill and daughter, Jean of Brantford, formerly of Trenton, were week-end visitors in Trenton, guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Kennedy.

Miss Aretha Dafoe returned home after visiting in Oshawa.

Mayor Honor Judge Deroche of Belleville, presided over Division Court here Monday.

WILLIAM GUNNING

Taken with a heart attack about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, William Gunning of Hoard's Station, passed suddenly away. He had been in ill health for a number of years and confined to his bed for some time. The deceased was in his 70th year. For many years he was proprietor of the hotel and at Hoard's Station and was widely and favorably known throughout the countryside. He was a member of the United Church and took an active man and took a keen interest in all the activities of that Order until the time of his illness. The deceased left to mourn his loss is extended the sympathy of their large circle of friends.

Surviving immediately are the widow; three daughters, (Blythe) Mrs. Creighton Johnson of Campbellford and Misses Velma and Vera at home; three sons, Lorne at Mount Pleasant, Carman at Hoard's and Harold at home. Two small sons of the last named are the only grandchildren of the late home of the deceased, and there is a large family connection throughout Hawdon township.

MAJOR HARRY STEVENS

Cobourg, March 2 (Special) — Major Harry Stevens, D.S.O., of Miami, Florida, after undergoing a serious operation for an internal trouble passed away here. He is survived by his widow, Lillian Lenore Stanley, and one son, Harry. Mayor Stevens was born at Long Sutton, Lincolnshire, England. He came to Canada many years ago and was well known at Grafton and Cobourg. He served overseas during the time of the Great War and served with distinction in France with the 44th Battalion, having been awarded the Military Cross. After the return from the war he and his family went to Miami where they have lived for the past ten years. He was a member of St. John Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Cobourg, and of the Northumberland Regiment.

LATE ELMER E. DeVAULT

The funeral of the late Elmer E. DeVault, Bridge Street, took place this afternoon from his late residence, West Bridge Street. The Rev. C. O. Wright, minister of Christ Church, conducted the service at the home and also at the grave in the cemetery in Riverside Cemetery, Napanee. Many friends and relatives were in attendance and the beautiful floral offerings bore testimony to the popularity of the deceased during his lifetime.

The bearers were Messrs Russell Chadwick, William Clarke, Alex. La Rose, F. J. Neil, Ralph Wells and Frank Meagher.

SAMUEL ALLEN

Deseronto—Death came to a pioneer resident of Deseronto when Mr. Samuel Allen passed away on Saturday, months ago he fell on the ice and was severely injured. While he never fully recovered, and considered the injury sustained by his demise at the age of 93 years.

Mr. Allen was born in Deseronto and when a young man was apprenticed to Messrs. Weller Brothers, a noted firm of carriage makers in his native town. After the business changed hands Mr. Allen went to Pittsburg, Pa., where he worked at his trade for some years and then returned to Napanee, in which address he was for many years in Annsleburg, which was run for some years by Mr. Allen and Mr. Hatch he built a carriage factory

BRIDGE STREET ANNUAL MEETING

Healthy Condition of Activities Shown by Reports Last Evening

Bridge Street United Church, whose congregation dates back one hundred and eighteen years, held its annual meeting last night in the church parlors. In the absence of the minister, Rev. Dr. R. H. Bell, Principal C. W. Bishop of Albert College presided.

Mission givings of the church amounted to $1,272.71, the entire church givings amounting to approximately $5,000.

The W.M.S. with junior organizations also raised over $700 in the cause of missions.

One of the active bodies of the church is the Women's Association who raised $722.74.

The healthy condition of the church and Sunday School was indicated in various reports.

Reports presented: The Sunday School by Mr. J. H. Sherry, superintendent: the Women's Association by Mrs. Stoneberg, secretary; the Women's Missionary Society by Mrs. C. W. Bishop, president; the Christian Circle by Miss Maude Sine; the Pew Steward by Mr. Fred B. Wenlin; Missionary and Maintenance Fund by Mr. G. F. Stewart, treasurer; general report on the finances by Mr. R. W. Adamman, general treasurer.

A resolution of appreciation of the work of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bell was graciously moved by Mr. G. F. Stewart and seconded by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn.

A resolution of appreciation of the work of the choir and leaders, Mr. Hunt and Mr. H. M. Anglis was moved by Mr. W. B. Deacon and seconded by Mr. O. Cole.

The reports were interspersed by delightful vocal numbers by Mrs. C. Ellis, Mr. Fred W. Sprague and Mr. Shortt, and a reading by Mr. C. M. Reid of one of Dr. Drummond's delightful poems, as only Mr. Reid can recite.

The following society representatives were elected to the coming official board—F. R. Wotten, Mrs. James Chaloway, John Hoxton, Howard J. Clarke, Fred W. Sprague, Ralph Morden, Ernest W. Dickens, M. P. Duff, Geo. E. Hall, Clifford Ellis and W. H. Finkle.

After the above programme was carried through the ladies provided refreshments during a social hour.

Mr. Shortt said in his address: "The Sunday School reports a year of progress and improvement. While the school is far from the ideal and from satisfying the ambitions of the officers and teachers, the situation at present is decidedly better than at any time during the past several years. The school enrollment is 464, officers and teachers 43, Cradle Roll Dept. 79, Home Dept. 23. Receipts for the year: General collection $1,161.74, raised for Missions $101, a total of $418.00.

Regular Teachers' Instruction is given under the direction of a Committee in charge of Mrs. Baker.

Missionary Education:

Through the use of illustrated talks, studies, visits of missionaries and other aids under the direction of the Missionary Committee of which Mr. Elmer Dixon is chairman, the missionary enterprise is kept before our scholars.

Very general use is made of the splendid library available. Duplicates of the choice books being exchanged each Sunday in addition to the card exchanged during the week.

Organization

At no time has there been better co-operation of officers, teachers and scholars than at the present and during the year a considerable improvement has been made through the addition of new leaders and the distribution of responsibility, we refer to the addition of the Orchestra under Mr. Pannabecker, the Lantern Slide Service under Mr. Holmes, the Projection Service under Mr. Sparling and special emphasis to be placed on Publicity, made a committee to be headed by Mr. Percy McGuire. The executive officers and heads of departments remain as heretofore.

Support

During the year the school has contributed support to the Board of Christian Education of the United Church of Canada to the work of the Canadian Religious Education Council to the Child Welfare Council and we had one of our members, Bobs Bell, represent the constituency at the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament.

With all these activities the school presses steadily towards its objective of Bible study, the development of Christian character and the enlistment of youth in Christian Service.

As a staff, we are grateful to the Women's Association for the draw curtains which add so much to the appearance and acoustics of the school. This gift by the women is greatly appreciated."

MUST TURN IN PERMITS

Windsor, Ont., March 2, (CP)—War veterans receiving relief allowances from the Dominion Government are being asked to turn in their liquor permits to the relief office of the Department of Pensions or give up their relief, members of the Canadian Pensioners' Association were told at a meeting here.

SHOWS SURPLUS

Port Colborne, Ont., March 2 (CP)—Surplus of $9,453.38 for the town of Port Colborne is revealed in the annual report of the auditors presented here after allowance for 1932 depreciation charges. The report will be presented to council at its regular meeting Monday night.

ASH WEDNESDAY AT ST. MICHAELS

Monsignor Nicholson V.G. Speaks at Distribution of Ashes

Ash Wednesday ceremonies at St. Michael's Church concluded last evening with a sermon, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, and distribution of the ashes. Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., in his sermon referred to the large congregations present at the early morning masses and also to the splendid congregation present at evening devotions. He pointed that the congregations was beginning the Lenten season with full realization of its spiritual meaning. Lent was a time of penance, also a time of preparation first, for the festival of the glorious resurrection of our Saviour, and, secondly, preparation for the feast which, with God's blessing, we hope to have with us forever on air and hell.

The Church desires us to keep in mind, that the most solemn consecrating rite's eternal destiny and eternal present and future happiness of the world, the weakness of the flesh and the temptations of the devil by heartbreaking man from the narrow path that led to the glories of Heaven. The world presses its thousand interests on our attention, the weakness of human nature may threaten to tear down the weary heart, temptations may seek to alienate from the allegiance owed the Creator but graces to help us are at hand, especially in the Holy season of Lent, which was the source of so many blessings.

On Ash Wednesday the church placed ash children before the altar and sprinkled the sanctified ashes on their foreheads as a token that the brain without and the lung heart and the hands that toil will all one day be dust. God's words "Remember man, that thou art dust, and unto dust thou shalt return" suggested the thoughts that accompany this shadow of death. Men busy themselves with many aims in life and press on eagerly in their pursuits. Many a gap is left in the ranks of friends and neighbors who sink into the grave hidden from the face of their fondest until all should meet again in the light that shines from the judgment seat of Christ. Few there are who strive to realize that the lot of death which has fallen on others shall one day fall upon themselves. The Church reminds us of this on Ash Wednesday.

WORDS BY MANY THOUSANDS

There is a war raging at the present moment as to the population of the dictionary or the number of words in the English language. Prof. R. L. Ramsay of Missouri, gives 250,000 as the total, which is about three times the size of the vocabulary of other tongues. He cites the new Oxford Dictionary with 240,165 main words, of which 52,464 are obsolete, 9,731 alien words leaving just 177,970 words in current use.

Dr. Wyckely contends there are over a million words in the language, the literary vocabulary of 430,000 as shown by the new Oxford Dictionary, the scientific vocabulary of 630,000 words, and many words in slang and vernacular, the slang and idioms of these present and the past which bring it to 1,200,000 more words.

Harold Wentworth, former associate editor of Webster's New International Dictionary estimates from two to three million words in English.

Prof. Ramsay claims that the total of 414,825 in the New Oxford Dictionary is a total of words and combinations. The grand total is defined as main words 240,165, subordinate words 67,105; special combinations, 47,800, and obvious combinations, 59,755.

Other languages have fewer words, totals of words, says Prof. Ramsay. "A careful and conservative estimate of the largest published dictionaries of foreign languages gives approximately 71,750 for German without counting compounds, or 184,704 with reasonable compounds; 93,032 for French, 70,683 for Spanish, 69,642 for Italian; 51,686 for ancient Latin, 96,438 for ancient Greek, and 41,142 for Anglo-Saxon.

"English should be roughly three times as wealthy in words as other languages, for its curious history has made its vocabulary to no small degree an amalgamation of three wealthy languages, Anglo-Saxon, French and Latin. But there is no occasion for exaggerating our advantages to the point of absurdity."

With this multitude of words, it is said some people use no more than six hundred while other users handle thousands, many knowing fifteen to twenty thousand words, though the ability to use the words is marked by a very much smaller total.

THE RADIO BOGYMAN

The bogyman who has been hiding in the radio sets has been "called down" by the mothers of Scarsdale New York, who claim he is making nurasthenics out of their children by the prevalence of bed stories and harrowing scenes on the radio stage. The complaint is the first of the kind heard of in New York. Radio officials welcome, of course, any criticism which is given in a helpful spirit, because every effort is made to provide programs to the satisfaction of the greatest number of people possible. At one office it was explained that most programs are sponsored for commercial purposes and that the sponsors are quick to react to any resentment against their programs, though they are not in the habit of revamping a program because of criticisms by an isolated group. Conditions often tend automatically to right themselves.

Educators across the country are keenly aroused by the complaint of the women particularly owing to the vast audience which listens in on the child programs.

The fact has been noted by parents again and again of the rapt attention children pay to these thrillers on the radio, with the result that the youngsters' nerves are overwrought with consequent interruption to study.

FURTHER JIG-SAWING

A Belleville schoolboy, who worked on jig-saw puzzles while they were yet in their infancy and had not reached the rage period, used his skill to study geography and could place the provinces, states, shires, counties of various countries in position in rapid order. Toronto Mail and Empire, speaking on this use of the jig-saw puzzle idea, goes a step further and would start the geography study with the Chinese and Japanese maps. The local boy who can put a map together as he has done has learned something from the jig-saw puzzle. His study with geography in the form of a puzzle has made him so adept in fitting the pieces together that he can do half a dozen while the amateur is completing his first.

Why cannot the use of the jig-saw be applied to the reading of books? Novels would have to be shorter but that would do no harm and fast readers would be held up for a time until they got their new large pieces in order.

One might also use a jig-saw idea in assembling the thoughts of a poem. Then the replacement of the pieces might leave a few of the lines blotted upon the memory so that they could not be effaced.

Motorists are warned not to drive, when spring opens up, as if they were traversing a jig-saw puzzle-board instead of The King's Highway No. 2.

THE VACANT HOUSE

The little vacant house must be
So lonely now, and cold.
With only memories to go,
Light-footed, laughing, to and fro,
Where all was life of old.

The little vacant house must shrink
At every stranger's tread,
And hope each day will bring a friend
To dwell within, and put an end
To hours of gloom and dread.

For then the little house will grow
As joyous as before,
And soon each blithe and smiling room
Into new graciousness will bloom,
When love comes in once more.
—Aline Michaelis.

A BIBEE, THREE HUNDRED YEARS OLD, will be used in the presidential inaugural ceremonies at Washington on Saturday. This Bible is in the possession of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has announced that he will take the oath of office on this old Dutch Bible which has been in the possession of his family for nearly three hundred years, and that he had selected the thirteen chapter of the First Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians as the place at which the book will be open and on which he will lay his hands.

This chapter according to the King James version, reads:

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

"And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

"And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

"Charity suffereth long, and is kind, charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up.

"Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

"Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth:

"Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

"Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

"For we know in part, and we prophesy in part:

"But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

"When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man I put away childish things.

"For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

"And now abideth faith, hope, and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Mr. Roosevelt has used the old Bible twice before in taking the oath as Governor of New York State. The book was brought over from Holland by the original Roosevelts in 1646. The Bible is bound in leather and is about twenty inches high, twelve inches wide and four inches thick. The text, of course, is in Dutch.

Short speeches will be the rule at the inauguration, according to the program mapped out, and the new president has declared that eight minutes will be sufficient for all he has to say. Of all the words that will be spoken the Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians as recorded above, will be the most important—words that have lived for centuries and are still alive and full of power, while last year's public speeches have been forgotten—and the more of the spirit of Paul the Apostle and his rules for right living enter into the life and letters of the United States the better it will be for the future progress and prosperity of that country.

The Lawn and the Garden

ROSES

There is probably no more beautiful or popular flower than the Rose. The advent of the Hybrid Tea varieties, which bloom almost continually from June to summer, has made it a desirable addition to every garden.

Successful Rose growing depends chiefly upon a few simple rules.

First be sure to obtain good stock, this is very important. You buy a box of roses or snapdragons and you find the variety unsatisfactory, your disappointment lasts one season; you can buy a different variety next summer. When you buy a rose bush you are buying something which you expect will last for years, if it proves disappointed in your purchase then your chagrin will probably last as long as the rosebush lives. There is just the same amount of labour entailed and space used with a poor bush as with a good one. In common knowledge stand the finest roses in the world are grown in England; Canada and the U.S. advertise English grown stock in preference to those grown elsewhere. Bushes should be two or three years old to give satisfaction, and if it is not convenient to plant when bought, they should be kept in a cool place (above freezing, not at freeze) and the moss around the roots moistened occasionally to prevent them drying out.

The second rule is to plant correctly; this, too, is very important, for no matter how good the bush may be, it will not attain perfection unless planted properly.

Choose a sunny position away from walls, trees, or hedges. If possible grow in beds of not less than 3 Roses are not particular about soil, but prefer a clay-loam, black soil contains too much humus, and a soil sandy mix some clay with it for the roots to cling to.

Plant Hybrid Teas 18 inches, and Hybrid Perpetuals 24 inches apart. Dig a hole large enough so that the roots can be spread out in all directions. Place some good rotted manure (preferably cow manure) in the bottom of the hole, and some good soil. Take the rose bush and place in position, spreading the roots out well. Place the remainder of the soil in a little at a time firming it well around the roots. Soak well with water. It is advisable to prune hard at time of planting. Care should be taken that the bushes are planted at the right depth. If you examine them you will be able to detect the union or the stock, this should be placed two inches below the level of the soil.

During the growing season if weather is hot and dry, watering is necessary. This should always be done in the evening, so that the roots given a good soaking. Never water in the evening, this helps to cause mildew. A mulch of rotted manure or peat moss will keep the moisture in the ground from evaporating and is preferable to much watering. If you already have a rose bed, the addition of nitrate of soda or blood bone may be applied in the early spring, using one ounce to a square yard.

Insect pests such as Green Aphis, Rose Thrip and Red Spider can be kept down by spraying with the garden hose, or Black Leaf 40 may be used in a garden syringe.

The two worst diseases are Mildew and Black Spot. These may be overcome by Use of Bordeaux Mixture. Experiments conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College indicate the spraying with liquid lime sulphur, using commercial lime-sulphur and one measure to ten parts of water. This should be done early in spring when trees are dormant, a second spraying should be given when buds are nearly out, one part to fifty of water.

Rose bushes should have some protection during the winter. Bank them in with about nine inches of soil, removing this gradually in the spring. Do not remove too much or a sharp frost will kill the tender shoots which have been protected by the soil.

There are several kinds of Rose trees. The best known are the Hybrid Tea, Hybrid Perpetuals, Climbing and Dwarf Polyantus.

The Hybrid Teas are the most popular, they bloom almost continually from early June until cut down by frost. For those who desire varieties for cutting but cut blooms for the table the following are recommended:

Barbara Robinson (cream); Betty (orange shaded pink); General McArthur (carmine); Hadley (crimson); J. B. Clarke (scarlet); Lady Alice Stanley (deep rose and flesh); Lieut. Chaure (crimson red); Mrs. Henry Morse (dirtgin rose); Rev. F. Page Roberts (yellow); Ville de Paris (yellow yellow).

These are all strong growers. Of course there are many other varieties, these are just a few of the most popular. There do not seem to be any good white varieties in the Hybrid Teas. Tran Karl Druschki is a beautiful white perpetual, its only fault being that it is not scented. On some future occasion I will deal with some of the other varieties.

FINISH CUTTING ICE AT PLAINFIELD

PLAINFIELD — Owing to the stormy weather on Sunday, church and Sunday School were not as well attended as usual.

DIAGNOSIS IN EARLY STAGES TUBERCULOSIS
Many Have "T. B." And Are Unaware of Their Condition

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Tremendous advance has been made within recent years in the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis, no matter what its stage of progress may be. Nevertheless, still remains an undisputed fact that the discovery of tuberculosis in its first stages is essential if any complete cure is to be hoped for.

"Incipient" tuberculosis is the way doctors designate the earliest beginnings of the disease; and almost everybody is exposed to tuberculosis more or less, especially in crowded city areas, no individual should ever feel that he is immune, or that he is so healthy he could not possibly contract the disease.

Many persons—men, women and children—already have tuberculosis and do not know it. The symptoms may not be manifested; they may not feel sick; yet tubercle bacilli—the cause of this disease—may be present in the sputum, and therefore these tuberculous cells may spread the disease without realizing the damage they are doing.

The bacilli of tuberculosis may gain entrance into the body in various ways. Most commonly they enter by the nose and mouth during the act of breathing. Next in frequency is the digestive tract.

Diseased tonsils or unhealthy conditions in the throat or nasal passages may offer a favorable soil for the spread of the disease. The bacilli may also be swallowed, as in the case of contaminated milk. Or, the germs may be absorbed into the lymph nodes through the walls of the intestines. Cases where the lymph nodes at the sides of the neck are chronically enlarged—"glands" is the term the layman uses—may prove to be of tuberculous origin, such early signs, in fact, being not infrequent in children.

Children are really more susceptible to infection than adults. Some scientists hold that tuberculosis

Advice to the Lovelorn

TOO YOUNG FOR THIS TYPE OF PARTY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a daughter thirteen years old, and during the Christmas holidays some young boys and girls about her age were invited to one another's homes. They have continued since the holidays these parties of dancing and kissing games, of which I disapprove.

Perplexed.

I agree with you thoroughly that thirteen is entirely too young for this type of party. Another mother, confronted with your problem, arranged that the crowd should go no hikes Saturdays or Sundays, and quite unobtrusively some of the older people went along. Lunch was taken and coffee made at out-of-doors. The youngsters had a thoroughly good time. This seems a better solution than packing a girl off to a strict boarding school—generally in Canada, where the Victorian ideal prevails in places. Better to discuss with your daughter and tell her you'd hate to resort to this alternative, if girls begin kissing at thirteen, they're apt to be blasé at twenty.

"HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a senior in high school and have fallen in love with a boy who has just received an appointment in the Army. He comes from a fine cultured family and is my senior by six years. I know he loves me, too, but he believes I am too young. I am experienced for my age and realize that this is true love.

He is supposed to marry a girl from his home town who is my mother's choice. My family approves of him and I know his family would like me. As I do not smoke, drink, or indulge in anything degrading, whatsoever. He has a picture and we correspond. I cannot forget him for I miss him dearly. What shall I do?

Lovelorn.

Well, my dear, I'm afraid you have to possess your soul in patience, and remember the proverb: "All things came round to him who will but wait." Chicks are not permitted to marry, so you see there will be four years for circumstances to adjust themselves. Meantime, eat as much education as you can, like up French or Spanish, if you haven't already done so, and learn how to play a good game of bridge. All army people are fiends over bridge.

SHE STOOD BY HIM IN TROUBLE.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a young man, of whom I have become very fond. He got into a little trouble, during which I stood by him till it was over. Now, before this his folks never cared for me; but they always tried to down me; but after this difficulty, it seemed to draw us together, especially his brother, for whom I don't care a all. He keeps hanging around my house all the time.

Now the one I like has changed. He goes three times a week to a married woman's house, my friend. I ask him, have you been to see——he says "No". But other people see him going there.

What would you do in a case like this? I'm disgusted. Do you think I should forget him and his family?

Disgusted.

Goodness, my dear, haven't you had enough trouble people? You sound awful to me. Young men in some sort of wrong are always in what it was) his family insulting you, and now here's this married woman complication. Break off, if you're not looking for trouble, a big crop of it.

A NEPHEW'S PROBLEM

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am seventeen years of age, and Ruth is sixteen and until two weeks ago, we were very much in love. I became acquainted with her through my uncle, who is visiting. They went together for a year, and then I started to go with her. She would tell me continually how much she hated my uncle, and I would always try to stop them. Eventually they went fine, and we were even planning to get married, but lack of funds and our ages stopped us.

One day she said she was tired of going steady with me, and would go to be free, and last week I found out she was going with my uncle again. My uncle is very poor and while I realize money does not mean a thing when you're in love, I could afford a little more than he could, and I am still very much in love with her and I would do anything to get her back, if it's in my power.

Pepper Jones.

This young lady seems to fill the poet's description of "uncertain, coy, and hard to please." She also has quit your uncle for you before, and who knows but what it's every reason to believe that she will drift back to you again. But, my dear Pepper, don't get too involved. You don't consider marriage at your time of life.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Smoking Habits

How about your smoking habits? Are they offensive, or untidy? Watch them, for careless smoking habits are easily recognized. Recognize that you have them, and very quickly you can make them disappear.

First of all, use an ash tray. If not provided with one, ask for it. Cover the most disagreeable and unpleasant of personal habits is using the saucer of the dinner plate as an ash-tray. No frill-manbered person does this.

When you have finished your cigarette, see that it is really out. Don't leave it smouldering.

Watch for that terrible habit of ejecting from the mouth little particles of tobacco loosened from the cigarette. Remove these with the thumb and first finger, and place them on the ash tray.

5.—Would it be all right after that to serve wine with the dinner?

O.

3.—If we have bouillon cups they are appropriate to use with bouillon cups. But if we haven't ....and I'd never weep about not having bouillon spoons, for to me they are the most inconvenient of silverpieces, and I don't blame men for desiring them.... we may just as conveniently use teaspoons, probably more conveniently. Teaspoons would be of more appropriate size than soup spoons, with these small bouillon cups. With the larger size soup cups, the cream soup cups, the cream soup spoons are the perfect spoons, or, if we haven't these, we may next conveniently use dessert spoons.

2—The best way is to use the spoon to take the first few sips, to test the heat of the bouillon, then to drink the bouillon slowly, as up would tea.

3.—No. Never use both handles of the bouillon cup. Take up the cup by only one handle as you would a tea cup. As a matter of fact, it has two handles only to differentiate it from a tea cup. And it certainly looks awkward to see anyone take the cup in the hand with both hands.

4.—Yes.

5.—Yes.

FORM OF ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For about a year now I have been corresponding with a young man. All along he has been addressing his envelopes just Kate Hilworth. The other evening I told him that he has been addressing the envelopes incorrectly, and he claims that the only time you use Miss, Mrs. or Mr. is when you write a business letter, and that the title should not be used on a social letter. Of course I have been addressing him as Mr. all along.

Please advise what is the proper way.

I.

You are right. The form of the name that you write on a social letter should be as formal as the name that appears on our visiting card. It's a curious point of view indeed, that your friend has the difference between the way a business letter and a social letter is addressed. To omit the title from a social letter is to commit a serious social error, for it suggests that the person addressed feel that a lack of respect is the social form, has been shown.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

CANNIPTON Y.P.S.

The Y.P.S. of the Cannifton Church held their regular meeting last Friday night, with the President, Mr. Merrick, in the chair. After the devotional exercises were conducted by the President, the Life Library Vice-President Miss Marguerite Mills took charge of the following programme. After singing "Glory to God for His Sunshine is Free", Rev. Mr. Merrick read the Scripture lesson Second Ephesians and then gave a short talk on the lesson. Members were favored with a duet by Mrs. Twiddy and Gordon Mills. The topic being on "The Bible", Mrs. Black gave a very interesting item on the Bible's development. Mrs. Merrick gave a talk on "Dorcas". After singing "Blest Be the Tie" the meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction. About thirty members were present.

Corn Recipes

Corn and Oyster Scallop
1 can corn (No. 2)
2 cupfuls of medium white sauce
1 pint of oysters
1 teaspoonful of salt
1-8 teaspoonful of pepper
1-2 teaspoonful of paprika
1 cupful of bread crumbs
3 tablespoonfuls of butter
Add the corn to the white sauce and cook until slightly thickened. Add the oysters and the seasonings and cook for 2 or 3 minutes or until the edges of the oysters just begin to curl. Turn one-half of the mixture into a buttered baking dish, cover with half of the crumbs and dot with butter. Add the remainder of the corn and oyster mixture, sprinkle with the rest of the crumbs and dot generously with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350F.) for about 1-2 hour.

Baked Corn With Cheese
1 cupful of canned corn
2 egg yolks
1-2 medium green pepper
1 tablespoonful of finely chopped onion
1 tablespoonfuls of butter
1 teaspoonful of salt
1-4 teaspoonful of paprika
1 cupful of cooked rice
1-2 cupful of grated cheese.
Beat the egg yolks well and add to the corn. Add the chopped green pepper and onion, the butter and cook until the onion is lightly browned. Combine with the corn mixture and add the seasonings. Fold in lightly the cupful of cooked rice and turn one-half of the mixture into a greased casserole. Over this sprinkle half of the grated cheese, add the rest of the corn mixture and sprinkle with the remainder of the cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (375F.) for 15 to 20 minutes.

CONSECON Y. P. S. ENTERTAINS

Consecon, March 2The Young People's Society of Melville Bare's and Bowerman's known as the M. L. B. Comrades, were delightfully entertained on Friday evening, Feb. 17th in the United Church, Consecon, on Friday evening.

Warren Chase, president of Consecon Y.P.S. presided at the meeting opening with singing followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. McRae of Melville. Scripture reading by Mr. Bowerman being read and adopted. Mr. Claude Mason, vice-president of the M.L.B. Comrades, took the chair, and conducted a programme of musical and literary numbers.

The Bible lesson "The Story of the Talents," was read by Norman Morden. "The Story up to Date," was given by Mrs. Bowerman after which "The Story set to Music" was given by selections. Consecon consisted of an instrumental duet, piano solo vocal by Margaret and Floyd Huffman; a mouth organ selection by Norma Swain; and an accordeon selection and encore by Frederick Regensburg Readings were given by W. Leonard and Clare McFaul and Miss MacKinnon was heard in a delightful reading "Sunflowers Time" by Jean Hewett. Mr. McRae gave an interesting talk and the meeting closed with singing and prayer by Clayton French. Refreshments were served by the Consecon Young People and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. (Rev) McRae Melville, was removed to Belleville hospital Monday night for a critical operation. Her many friends are very anxious for her recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McFaul, Hillier, spent the week end in Ottawa.

The residence at Mr. and Mrs. Cerrow near the village of Hillier was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning

Splendid Organ Recital by Reginald G. Geen in Oshawa

The Oshawa Times says of an organ recital given by Mr. Reginald Geen, on Saturday:

"Mr. R. G. Geen gave a most enjoyable organ recital in Simcoe Street United Church on Saturday afternoon. These recitals are growing in popularity, many availing themselves of the privilege of listening to the hour of fine music provided.

"Always wise in his choice of numbers, Mr. Geen's program on this occasion proved no exception. It included numbers of a varied nature, giving scope for his already established ability as organist and musician. His second group was particularly interesting, including as it did one brilliant composition of Hollins and two of Bach's; the first a choral prelude, deeply religious in character, interpreted with devout feeling and a Choral Wedding Festitude of bright and triumphant strain. His artistic Moment Musicals" of Schubert and dignified rendition of Gounod's Military March brought the enjoyable hour to a close.

Mrs. J. P. Mangan, soprano, the visiting artist, sang five songs. This gifted singer has not been heard in Oshawa in solo work for some time and her appearance was keenly anticipated by her many admirers, nor were they disappointed. Her voice possesses that unusual sweetness and warmth of tone so pleasing to listen to, while the artistic finish displayed in her work is most satisfying. Her numbers included "O Sleep Why Dost Thou Leave Me", Handel; "Ave Maria", Gounod; "The Swan" and, "Radiant Night" by Grieg and Schubert's "Serenade". Mr. Geen's organ accompaniment to the vocalist was delightfully effective. His next recital is announced for March 25th."

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was held on Wednesday afternoon, in the lecture room of the church, with a good attendance. Mrs. Seymour, the President, was in the chair. Mrs. Kidd's group had charge of the meeting.

Mrs. C. E. Argue was appointed a delegate to the Provincial meeting in Stratford.

Arrangements were made for an afternoon tea and food sale to be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Perry to augment the expense fund.

The Rev. Mr. Mofford of Stirling; is to be the guest speaker at the April meeting. Mr. Mofford is to speak on Manchuria, where he spent four years recently, in mission work.

BOLSTERED BY FRESH BUYING

N. Y. Market Gave Away However in Firat Hour

New York, March 3—The stock market was bolstered by fresh buying, after giving away rather abruptly in the first hour today.

Trading was quiet, and selling did not at any time reach large proportions, but dividend cuts and lowered or passing restrictions resulted in momentary weakness. After prices had sagged 1 to more than two points in several instances, however, there were recoveries of from fractions to a point.

American Telephone, American Tobacco B, and J. I. Case each lost about 2½ points, then came back roughly a point. In the rails Delaware and Hudson reacted 3¾, before recovering partially. Two-point losses in Dupont and Allied Chemical developed in the finishes.

Moderate trickles of selling, brokers reported, made an appearance where banking activities are restricted.

GENERAL TONE JUST STEADY

Prices Held to Yesterdays Level in Light Trading

TORONTO, March 2.—(CP)—A few mining issues managed to wiggle a little higher on the Standard Exchange today but the general tone was merely steady with prices holding close to yesterday's level. Sisco and Wright Hargreaves, two issues which have called upon to absorb heavy offerings earlier in the week, made some recovery today. Sisco getting up to $1.44 for a gain of 9 points and Wright Hargreaves top to $4.10 for a gain of 15

In the big Gold Group Lake Shore advanced 25 to 223.50, Hollinger lost 20 to 324, Pioneer lost 5 to 86 and Teck Hughes gained 5, enough for points. Dome was not traded up till mid-afternoon.

In the Base Metal Group, lifteen recessions were registered, Nickel dropping 3¢, Mond 2¢ and Falconbridge was off about 10.

Tea and coffee refreshments are served people who inspect breweries in Australia.

TRADE DRAGS PRICES LOWER

Bearish Trend at New York is Damper on Toronto Mart

Toronto, Mar. 3.—(CP)—Trading dragged today on the Toronto Stock Exchange with volume of a keen order and prices somewhat down from yesterday's close. The bearish trend in Wall Street was a damper on the local market, and traders took to the sidelines.

Brazilian was late in making its appearance and came out a quarter point down at 7 5-8. Nickel also lost a quarter, but Ford A moved against the trend, tacking on a fraction. Offerings of Smelters were substantial and the price fell 2 points to 57 1-2.

Despite the general weakness the oil shares held firm and Imperial rallied a fraction. B. A. was steady at 8 1-8 and International Petroleum at 11 1-4.

In the food stocks the trend was generally towards lower levels.

AVVENTITZEMENTOS

74 YEAR OLD SENATOR DIES

Mr. Roosevelt on his campaign trips.

Immediately after word was received there in the White House, Senate Democrats prepared to move as soon as possible from the Senate chamber as a token of respect.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Senator Wheeler of Montana, Walsh's colleague, planned to ask the senate to lay aside its work today in tribute to the veteran Montanan.

Outstanding Democrat.

Robinson, informed of the death at his home this morning, was shocked at the news. He said he could not believe it and then said:

"Senator Walsh's death comes as a great surprise. He was an outstanding leader in the Democratic party and a man of undoubted integrity and notable ability."

Senator Walsh's career is a familiar figure in the capital for twenty years, ever since he left the practice of law in Helena to come to the senate.

He probably gained his greatest prominence as the prosecutor in the Teapot Dome oil scandals of 1923-24.

But to Democrats all over the nation Walsh's name became known as chairman of the temporary committee on Democratic convention of 1924 which fought for days on the floor between Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo for the nomination. The deadlock was finally broken by John W. Davis and John W. Davis as the standard bearer.

Presided in 1932.

Again in 1932, the Montanan was chosen to preside over a national conclave of the party, this time at Chicago where after three ballots Franklin D. Roosevelt was named.

Senator Walsh took an active part in the campaign. Throughout the long western trip of Mr. Roosevelt, which took him into every far western state, Senator Walsh was always conferred frequently with the nominee and appeared often on the rear platform.

Grievous Loss.

New York, Mar. 2 (AP)—President elect Roosevelt spoke of the death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, his attorney General, today as a "grievous loss to the administration."

"The death of Senator Walsh," Roosevelt said, "is a grievous loss to the country and to the incoming administration. He was a leader in the party so prominent and important a part, and to deep measure to me personally.

"He was one of my oldest and most trusted friends and one on whose calm judgment I could always rely.

"While properly to fill his place in the senate will be difficult, to fill his place in the circle of my friends will be impossible."

Senate Adjourns.

Washington, Mar. 2 (AP)—Shock and sorrow was the reaction of the capital today at word of the death of United States Senator Thomas J. Montana in the midst of preparations for a brilliant inaugural that was to have brought him into the Attorney Generalship.

The Senate immediately adopted resolutions of regret and adjourned until tomorrow out of respect to Mr. Walsh. A ten o'clock meeting had been called to expedite important legislation that will occupy the senate.

Senator Walsh had long championed the St. Lawrence project and before his appointment to the cabinet had been a member of the Democratic conference in Chicago which ended in all night session.

It was a bitter fight between the forces backing Franklin D. Roosevelt for the nomination and those opposed. Throughout the weary, daily hours the seventy-one year old man on the platform adroitly brought into play every parliamentary turn for the victory of the leader, and the end was a victory for the Roosevelteans, a fact which Senator Walsh hardly won had it not been for the amazing performance of the gentleman from Montana.

Weeds indicate the character of the soil in which they grow. Sheep sorrel grows in wet ground, the wild carrot in poor soil, and mons indicates a need of drainage.

in charge of traffic of the Canadian Pacific railway, and Alistair Fraser, K.C., acting Vice-President in charge of traffic of the Canadian National Railways, in a Canadian Press despatch dated Montreal March 1.

The two railways, the announcement stated, have completed contracts with approximately forty-five cartage services located at industries served by their lines in Western Ontario, between Toronto and Windsor and Toronto and Sarnia whereby pick-up and delivery service will be provided for shippers at no extra cost. New tariffs embracing this feature will become effective on Monday next, March 6. The railways, it was emphasized, are not entering the trucking business. As some of the points affected by the new tariffs, they already have contracts with cartage firms for pick-up and delivery of freight. Under the present plan, however, this service is arranged by arrangement with local trucking contractors, no points where pick-up and delivery service did not previously exist.

The new door-to-door consignment system will improve the service offered at such points, and will make use, under contract, of existing cartage services instead of involving the organization of new facilities for that purpose.

Boxing Card Sponsored by Labor Association Pleased Large Crowd in City Hall

Boxers Engaged Failed to Put in an Appearance

MAIN BOUT GOOD

Local Boxers Win And Lose in Lively Tilts

Rapid, savage action, with some flowing freely, featured the card-filling of the bouts of the boxing match held by the Belleville Labor Association in the city hall last evening.

With no quarter asked for or given, and with upwards of five hundred rooting fans some standing in the aisles when the going got rough, as it did often, the bouts which were as evenly matched as it was possible to be on the short notice, at times turned from mere boxing to a free-for-all when the science of the game even in the rougher moments was far from ignored.

Conservatively estimated in the neighborhood of five hundred attendance the count was swelled by a large contingent of Campbellford fans who journeyed to the city to support their own boxers while upwards of a hundred men from the airport on the Trent Road came along to see that their display was given their quota of leather pushers.

Opinions differed as to the outstanding bout of the evening. If the winding between George Demark, local boxer, and the rough and rugged Vancouver Kid, who proved him in the squared circle, is accepted. Standing out prominently for ever, was the performance given by the two Reid brothers, Warren and Mac of Campbellford, and the almost professional performance of McColl of the Airport, who was also of the Airport. Only one bout, however, did not measure up to the high standard of the evening, the first one offered between Smith of Campbellford and Milligan of the Airport.

Main Beef Good

In the main event of the evening, with George Demark of Quinte matched against Andy Cusack (Vancouver Kid) of the Airport, fans got another one in a bout that judges found difficult to pick the winner. The nod, however, was finally given to the "Vancouver Kid," at the end of the three minutes rounds of rugged fighting carried through with speed, that was the widening marker like by savage fighting, that had fans out of their seats. In Cusack, Demark found one of the toughest fights he has ever fought, but will appreciate fans of his ability to take punishment as well as his last local appearance and with a new attack, which, as displayed, Demark carried the fight to his worthy opponent in a fast, furious and bloody rounds, during which time the fans cheered freely from the nostrils of Cusack, from the opening round, the nod was given to Demark by the referee, Sam Spectators of the local contingent called it a draw. A few who had followed the fight closely were willing to give Demark the little points that he had been piled up earlier in the fracas. They accepted the decision, however with good grace. In Cusack fans saw a rough and ready fighter with a willingness to mix it hard and as aggressive, that carried Demark from his own style of in fighting. He was repeatedly warned by Referee Wells for his use of the knee and the not hit in the clinches. It was a good fight with both boys giving and taking with approval.

Smith and Milligan in the opener fought through just two and one half rounds of lackadaisical fighting that left the fans doubtful of being either scientific or rough. The bout was called before the end of the third round by the referee.

Little Brother Act

Bob, billed as merely an exhibition bout, the fight between the Reid Brothers of Campbellford, showed little of brotherly love. From the first round it was a rough and tumble by Warren Reid that had his brother Maine covered with blood from the end of the first round. From then on it was a hard fought fight, that showed some aplenty. Science as well as mere punching aided Maine, to hold his aggressive brother to a draw. It was the most enjoyed bout of the evening.

Jimmy Stephens of Belleville passed a difficult opponent in the person of Wilson of Campbellford, but managed to gain the only Belleville win of the evening after a scientific flurry that was marked by considerable aggressiveness by Shepherd. Aided by a longer reach Stephens was able to carried the fight to his stocky opponent, who showed gameness and a desire to carry the fight into Shepherd's corner. One knockdown was gained by Shepherd in the last round.

Outpointed hopelessly by McColl of the Airport, Burnett, also of the camp took a beating lesson from the former's boxing ability. Unable to hold this own and make a good showing every time anticipated, Burnett from the sidelines, bore the earmarks of a professional. With a shifty attack, a redheaded in one occasion offered, Bud always a jump ahead of the other fellow's next move. Burnett's style was the best boxing exhibition of the evening. Burnett, well known locally, lost on prestige through his match with McColl. The bout was called in the latter half of the second round when Burnett failed to rally from a solar plexus punch that doubled him up as he stood in a neutral corner.

"Ted" Harrigan the crowd pleaser showed since his last local appearance, in his match with Art James of the Airport. Assuming the proportions of a slugfest at times, the bout which was a fairly clean one, was well "received. It was awarded to Art James on points.

Kids Please Crowd.

Two more Campbellford boxers, Bonnino and Kidd also put on a clean fairly even bout, with the edge going to Bunnino who decided Knott, up on the canvas with another solar plexus punch in the latter half of the second round. Both boys showed keen training and good physical condition.

The semi final of the evening brought together Jimmy Stephens of Belleford and McPherson of Campbellford. The fourth round was rough, the whole three rounds. Speed, aggressiveness and a willingness to mix it was a part of both boxers made a lively tilt, that was awarded to Stephens. The former's slight superiority over his opponent and the landing judgment of the referee was given to him at the end of the third round. Both boys showed forced McPherson to be a count of eight in the first.

The semi-windup saw Tommy Simons of Campbellford who claimed Kid Kingdom of Belleville, accept the challenge any one in the house 80 pound limit. The Kid Knox, 80 pounds of city by the play off game ended in a tie with Glen Ross Campbellford. The first period Second period no goals and last period 2 goals for Ross. Campbellford gladiators put up a well received battle.

HAND PICKED TEAM COMING

St. Columbas, Opponents of Doherirys Classy Outfit

Belleville Doherrys has finished their training and now await the referee's ball for the first game of the playoff between themselves and the St. Columbas of Toronto, stars of the Mercantile league and winners of the Duke of York league senior title. A heavy workout was staged at the Belleville Arena on Wednesday night with Frank Carlisle and Lou Blake driving their players for a full hour. Rigby was an absentee but will likely be included in the lineup, when the team takes the ice and Covert made his first appearance after suffering from a heavy cold the last couple of days. The team is in good shape and can see nothing but a win on Friday night against the hand picked aggregation.

One reading over the lineup of the St. Columbas would indicate the team was picked from the League of Nations by the last number we of Toronto giving the round around to towns supposedly one in the Ukrain. What right a team picked from a dozen teams has competing in the O.H.A. is beyond apprehension down this way but still the O. H. A. may be right and therefore the decision must be abided by. Noimeshaw, who guards the inner for the Leafs with the Royal York, while Thompson and Roberts, the defence are members of the Bell Telephone, Herbie Gibbs a star centre with the Toronto Maple Balls from the Cities Service team and it will be interesting to watch the Ukrainians in action. They are fellow employees of Gibbs, give him the once over before the game. Captain Irvine Hydro and Freddie Heinizman a is a member of the Hydro Toronto and these two boys With Gibbs comprise the first line. Ralph Thompson, centre, "Chuck" Good from British Consols "Smuh" Scott and Stanley Roberts, from Bell Telephone and "Smib" Johnson and Tom Reynolds from the Toronto Hydro Entertainers and it has not been decided which of the two will be the starting Saturday of Hydros is subgoals and Herb Morara is the manager of the team.

How Les Shiels will start his team off will not be decided until game time but the boys are ready and hope to emerge victorious from the opening and continue their way to the championship. They have been well coached during the past week and the fans will see a considerable difference.

PLAYOFF ENDS IN A 2-2 TIE

Mount Pleasant And Glen Ross Contesting Teams

Bayridon, March. 2 (Special)—On Sunday afternoon, Mar. 3rd., Mount Pleasant and Glen Ross fighting out a 2-2 tie in the second game in a total 2-2. Previous to this Mt. Pleasant had defeated Glen Ross at Stonybrook with score 5 to 0 and Glen Ross Bayridon 4-2. Bethel defeated Mt. Pleasant with a score of 5 to 3 and Glen Ross tied with them 2 to 2 making up for the play off game ended in a tie with Glen Ross Mount Pleasant. The first period Second period no goals and last period 2 goals for Ross. Campbellford gladiators put up a well received battle.

STRATFORD MIDGETS PRACTICALLY IN

First Time In Junior Finals in a Dozen Years.

Kitchener, Ont., Mar. 2 (CP)—For the first time in a dozen years, the Stratford midgets will participate in a full-fledged meteor—Stratford Midgets are in the O.H.A. junior finals today.

Technically the Midgets are separated from the final by a 60-minute contest with Preston Rivulets but the barrier is purely technical for the first of a two-game, total-goal series here last night, Stratford turned up a seven-goal lead with an 8-1 victory.

The Midgets play the second game at home Friday night with scarcely a worry in the world. When they face either Toronto Nationals or Owenmarks in the final next week it will be the first time Stratford has reached this peak since 1921 when the Normals led the Midgets to the O.H.A. junior title.

GENERAL THAW FELT AS MERCURY MOUNTS

Still content to display its lamb-like qualities throughout day of March, brought new high registrations of nearly 30 degrees above on the U.S. Weather Bureau thermometer.

Early morning registrations were also comparatively high, with several degrees above freezing. A general thaw which prevailed over the district turned city streets into slushy thoroughfares, while section roads and highways made going heavy.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Considerable controversy is being heard about town relative to the strength of the highly touted St. Columbas of Toronto, but we'd like to mention a little matter of the strength of the Belleville Dohertys.

It cannot be denied, that the Dudley-managed outfit is a team of packsters to be reckoned with although they are facing the pick of the Toronto Mercantile loop, we expect them to come down on top. Why? Well they have been playing together all season while the visitors from the Queen City are some-what of strangers to each other. Upon close scrutiny, we find that no three players on the Herb Mercan-manager outfit are of the same club in the Town League in Toronto, it may take them some-time to get acquainted with each other and while doing so the Dohertys should be in front.

Gordie McKeekin returned to town yesterday and is rarin' to go. Gordie says that the "orange and white" have beaten just as good teams as the St. Columbas and don't see reason to be worrying about the result of Friday night's tilt. Coach Carroll has most of the Dohertys out last night to a short work-out, while the entire roster will take to the ice again tonight for the final practice before the big game. Harry Gilbert will replace Mase Rigby, who is still confined to his bed through illness, while Jack Slingside of Alex Weir on Friday night, we were informed.

It just seems—that the hockey championship of Ameliasburg Township cannot be definitely decided after each club winning a game, Ameliasburgh and Victoria tied into it, over at the Arena yesterday afternoon, a large crowd witnessing a real old time shinny the game ended in a tie with the score of 2 all, said, that the two clubs will have to meet once more to decide just who's name is the title holder. How the fans from across the bay following their respective clubs is just nobody's business, Fully 200 fans and Ameliasburgh township roared and howled during the game for their pets.

On Friday night the Belleville Ki-Y-Y will journey to Bowmanville to Gananoque, where they battle the Island Town Club in the Ontario Lacrosse League tilt. To date the locals are tied with the Hurricane Jurrenites having a win and two ties to their credit. Friday night's game is considerable of a draw as the Joe Sherit-managed outfit as a win will shove them into first place.

Right out of the bag we wish to apologize to our readers for the information handed out yesterday last night's boxing bout at which we had stated that the Reid brothers were of the Campbellford camp. Early morning registrations were also comparatively high, with several degrees above freezing. A general thaw which prevailed over the district turned city streets into slushy thoroughfares, while section roads and highways made going heavy.

We cannot pass without mentioning the fact, that Geo. Semark surprised even his most ardent supporters with his performance when he gave last night. We feel that Semark deserved, at the least, a draw with this Vancouver Kid. Also it is quite obvious in our opinion that whether "The Kid" can up the scales an hoe at 160 pounds, as was given out as his weight, Demark looked to out-weigh Semark by fully 15 pounds. Semark sent-himself the "Air Port Wonder" throughout the best two decisions by fairly fast fatight him to match as the "Kid" carried to much weight for him. Our pick of the boxers to appear on the card was McColl who literally carried Geo. Barnett the ring around and a half before he let loose with a Bob Fitzsimmon's solar plexus.

It is doubtful whether so much blood was ever shed in a local ring as was in evidence last night. Nearly ever bout staged saw the claret flowing freely from the nose of one or both of the participants. Belleville unearthed a new referee last night in Sherit Wells, who Wells handled himself in the accepted circle would have done credit to a veteran. We hope to see him back in the job at the next local boxing show. Just a word about Freddie Parry, who was to have fought "The Vancouver Kid" in the final bout. Parry informed us yesterday afternoon, that he had been suffering from a bad cold of late and did not feel that he could do himself, and the fans, justice against such a highly touted opponent. The bouts were well awarded throughout and other show in the near future would be "rush" to see Campbellford and Air Port boxers in action. Sorry, though, we did not have been for these boys last night's fight card might not have been as short. But as I now recall the Lobor Association can duplicate last night's show most anytime.

Belleville evidently has another hockey team very much in the running. Following the Belleville C. I. team's win by the score of 5 to 2 at Tweed last night it is quite evident that Coach Shiels has been playing possums up around the local and Ameliasburgh. Nothing has been brought to light relative to this year's hockey possibilities around the Belleville Collegiate be the latest news of their activities is some of the boys are training and looking towards something along the line of basketball. The C.I. boys will also be playing their initial game of the season at Madoc tonight, with the same team that won their recent champs from Marmora, Both tonight's games will be staged at the Belleville Arena next week. Incidentally the Queen Victoria "Greats" hop over the boards at the Arena this afternoon to do battle with the O.A.C. boilers in the local K-Y-Y League.

Surpassing even the Colleaum in historical importance is the Quinte-Senate house, where Cicero orated and the affairs of the then known world were decided, has been unearthed and will soon be completely restored to the view of the world.

THREE GOAL LEAD FOR JRS.

B.C.I. Kids Defeat Tweed in First Playoff Game 5 to 2

Notching three quick counters in the middle frame, the Belleville C.I. junior interscholastic hockey team romped home easy winners over the town of Tweed H.S. squad by the score of 5 to 2 in the northern village last night, thus winning the first game of the three game series. Hockey play-downs and now enjoy a three game lead in the series, which will be played in Belleville next week. The work-of-the-day from the local seat of knowledge, led by Coach Les Shiels, displayed altogether too much speed and ability for the home club and following Hanna's first counter, early in the initial frame, the issue was never in doubt. Coach Shiels introduced a new goalie in the person of McKinney and the newcomer made a creditable debut as he was ably seconded by Blaker and Kokesh. The front line of Bennett Hanna and Pringle and Hoover accounted for the majority of the goals scored by the visiting club team from B.C.I. while McCreary, Hoffman, Ellis and Liddle played exceptionally good hockey while on the ice, with Kidd and McIlrath looking like "Stars."

For the home team Leal brothers, Harry and Bill, Tweed's ace and d-d Spackman and Laffman while Stanley and Gordon Pringle had little of the alternate) used.

Play opened with both the Belleville contingent carrying the rubber and after some minutes of play were rewarded for their efforts when Hanna rapped the puck home for counter number one with Leal tallied the equalizer a little later, while Pringle put the Kids in the lead just before the end of the stanza. Hanna added another in the early stanza and Liddle from Belleville when he beat Reeves, who incidentally was playing his first game in many minutes later Bennet made it four for the Kids, Belleville's charge while Laffman scored the second and last counter for the visitors from Tweed. Spackman in the net put up a very fair game and deserved better fate.

BASKETBALL

Take Juvenile Championship

With both teams playing sensational basketball, last night's church league game between the Bible and Bridge Street was undoubtedly the best game of the entire Juvenile series during the current season. The Bridge Street team and fast they start to finish and although the score was close, the entire three periods were handed out for illegal play. With both teams deadlocked at the end of the regulation time, and this was the deciding game for the title, the referee handed out a result of Bridge St winning this game by the score of 13 to 12 and taking Juvenile Church League Championship honors. Bridge Street will now meet the Bible in the first half, for the winners are to be congratulated on their splendid showing throughout the league which brought to them the 1932-1933 title. The runners up, the John St. team we also offer our congratulations for the splendid fight they put up. On this occasion the Bridge St. team showed the best while showing to just as good advantage as the regulars.

Bridge St.—Hervey 4, Martin 2, Cole 7, Ostrom 4, Countryman 2, Hall, Thompson, Ostrom.

John St.—Faulkner, "Zebe" Tobe 7, Miller, Hall, Jones 2, Gardiner, Andrews.—Total 14.

Referee—R. B. Morden.

Albert Aces got off to a flying start against their opponents from the western town netting three baskets before the Grads were able to chalk up a point. The latter did some better around the end of the period and when the College showed signs of slackening the Grads started in to run up a few nice baskets for themselves. The first half finished with the Albert quint in front 10 to 6 and an 18-13 count.
Not satisfied with the state of affairs theretofore the Albert quint came into it in the second half to find the inside of the hoop on no less than eleven occasions. Only the same perfect Grads were able to register on only two occasions. The visitors were made to look a third straight to the credit of the Albert quint and from all indications they will be the team to beat in this league.

EUCHRE AND DANCE AT SHANNONVILLE WELL PATRONIZED

Shannonville, March 2—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reurton were at home to a number of their friends on Wednesday evening and all report a good time.

The congregation of Trinity Church held a successful euchre and dance in the Orange Hall on Friday night and the function was largely attended. The guests were loud in their praise of the new hardwood floor, which was recently laid and the new floor added greatly to the dancing. The winners of the euchre were ladies' first, Miss E. Thompson of Belleville; second, Mrs. Ted Broadman, third, Mrs. Walter Thompson and consolation to Sadie Fitzgerld. Gents, first, Jackie Reid, second, Billie Mundrick; third, Gerald Soper and consolation was won by C. C. Stratton.

After the euchre refreshments were served following which dancing took place until the wee sma' hours. Excellent music was furnished by the Homesteaders orchestra of Belleville.

The Perfect FOOD-DRINK for growing children

The nourishment of milk, plus the strengthening, body-building value of purest cocoa make Fry's the finest food-drink for children you can possibly provide. Children drink milk with zest when it is combined with Fry's.

Give each child at least one big cup of Fry's Cocoa a day. See how your child reacts to this perfect food stimulus—see how the young face glows with health!

To Make One Cup of Cocoa with Fry's

Mix one half of a teaspoonful of Fry's Cocoa with sugar to taste, add three teaspoonfuls of cold milk and mix into a smooth paste. Pour on boiling water or water and milk brought to the boil. Stir briskly while pouring.

To Make "Diet Chocolate" with Fry's

Take one heaped teaspoonful of Fry's Cocoa with an equal quantity of sugar to each cup. Mix into a paste with 3 teaspoonfuls of milk. Pour on hot milk stirring all the time. Put mixture thus obtained into a pan and bring to boiling point.

Love's Secret Investment

by Josephine Duke

It was fully nine o'clock; yet Walter McFarland, the customary lovelight beneath the portrait of the firm, Hascomb, Mason, and McFarland, was not dead. In a deep, thoughtful attitude, deep furrows seaming his high creased brow, a few unopened letters cluttered the mahogany slab in front of him, but he had no attention for them. His appearance gave the impression of a man whose mind was completely detached from its regular course of duty.

This morning his thoughts revolved about his youthful wife, Diane—so beautiful, cultured, exquisite, charming. She was the one force in his life to which Walter had never been able to say, "No." Not that he had ever wanted to deny her anything. But—

Suppose he should be forced to such a denial? Suppose the issue—that was what bothered him. Well, the financial affairs of Hascomb, Mason, and McFarland what it was today, it looked as if every body concerned therein would have to learn to shave expenses to the extremities devised by so-called "efficiency men".

For himself, Walter did not mind, but for Diane—there was the rub! She was like a delicate orchid which bloomed beneath careful tending. He could visualize nothing but trouble ensuing for the latter if he—her, "You must do without this, we can't afford it."

And so it seemed to him that catastrophe hinged on whether or not He might conduct himself as a veritable Hitler or Insull among men, but was solid and executive courage profit him if he lacked the "nerve" to face the situation squarely with his wife? She had but to look at him, to smile, and all of his hard boiled resolutions vanished.

Now there was the matter of the fifty dollars she had asked him for some six or eight weeks ago. . . It was not a disturbing sum, but her manner of asking—as if there were no alternative for him except to grant her request—had alarmed him. She had not even told him why she wanted it, and afterwards, when he referred to it, she merely laughed and completely evaded the issue.

Diane could evade to perfection. No; that he gave a hang about the fifty dollar check. It was the principle of the thing. Suppose some day he should not be able to grant her whimsical desires. What then?

"She's no child. She must be made to face responsibility," he decided, but he had made the same decision many times before, and it always came to nothing.

"What does it mean?" he finally demanded of himself. "What if she'd take a notion to rush me on a big scale? Next time the mail might be five hundred or five thousand instead of fifty."

McFarland's body shifted uncomfortably in his chair, and his thoughts seemed to shift also. Diane was so steen tempered, so lovely, so likable. Always she had been accustomed to having her own way. Always she had been given to have what she wanted to spend. She did not realize that to be extravagant. She simply did not understand economy. He was not sorry that he had married her.

In the midst of his meditations, Walter was startled by the quiet little head of Miss Wilson, file clerk, come through the aperture.

"Mr. McFarland, are you ready to interview stenographers?" asked Miss.

Walter started, became suddenly aware of the outer office with its pall full of applicants, waiting in anxiety to the advertisement which he had inserted in the local press.

"I'll take them in order," he said crisply to Miss Wilson. "Show the first one into my office."

The file clerk's head disappeared. Walter squared his shoulders, lifted his chin, straightened his tie, and began to examine his mail.

The first applicant came in, the door reopen. He kept his eyes fixed on the letter he held and gauged by the sound of the steps that he cant to cross to his desk. He was aware of a feminine presence, the sound of shoes tapping the floor. He cannily thought Walter might be young, lively and cognizable. In a strictly tailored frock, stood before him.

With great effort, he summoned his self control and helped himself which had roots in a vague suspicion that he was about to be accosted for more money. "My darling, this is indeed an unexpected pleasure."

Diane replied softly, yet with a strange firmness in her voice that he had never before suspected her of possessing. "You advertised for a stenographer, I wish to apply for the job."

Walter began to laugh. He leaned back in his swivel chair and roared. After all, Diane did possess a rare sense of humor, and this was such a good joke. "Ha! Ha! Ha!" Everything so utterly ridiculous. Then gradually the lines in his face straightened.

Diane was not joking in his mirth. She repeated him seriously a hurt expression creeping into her eyes. "I'm not joking," she said. "Perhaps you have forgotten the fifty dollars I asked you for some time back. Well, I want it for my tuition. I have been taking a business course and I'd like to have a chance at this position."

Later Nina Wilson opened the door again, but closed it softly and immediately. To a neighboring file clerk, who leered in expectant glance on Nina's strange actions, Nina whispered: "Thank God! 'I' never know what a man will do next, not the best of them! Mr. McFarland's in there playing post office with his new stenographer!"

Mrs. Reddy Becomes Indignant

A blow may be in kindness struck
And prove for you a bit of luck.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox quite agreed with Mrs. Reddy that the sooner they moved from the old barn under which they had had such a sunny retreat the better. It was as safe as ever and once in it they were safe as ever, but getting in and out was another matter. That was no longer safe. You see, a trapper had found where they were living and he had been doing his best to trap them. Reddy stretched Mr. Reddy in which he had been wounded by shot from a terrible gun. It still was stiff, but no longer ached as at first. He could travel if necessary.

"Of course," said he, "we can sleep out for awhile. It isn't necessary for us to go under ground. Goodness knows we have in the past slept out of doors often enough."

"The best thing we can do, the wisest thing, is to leave this part of the country and go back to our old home in the Old Pasture of Farmer Brown's farm," retorted Mrs. Reddy. "I fear we have once done a good thing around here. We have eaten too many hens. We have been hunted once and we are likely to be hunted again by dogs and men with terrible guns. And now a trapper is doing his best to catch us. I tell you I don't like around here."

"It is a long journey back to the Old Pasture," said Reddy. "Anyway, it is a long journey to make on three legs. I tell you what, my dear, we will move out of the old barn back to some sheltered place in the hills where that trapper won't find us. That will give me a chance to use this leg some and get the stiffness out of it. Then we'll go back to our old home in the Old Pasture."

So it was agreed and the old barn was deserted that very night. The trapper didn't discover this for several days. When at last he became sure that that home under the floor of the barn had been deserted he began to lay other plans. For he was a smart trapper and who in the ways of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. By this time he had discovered by footprints that there had been two Foxes in that den under the barn and this explained in part why he had been unsuccessful with his traps. "It was two against one," said he as he thought it over. "Probably there always was one at home while it was setting my traps with such care, and so it was a waste of time. Those Foxes have become worried and have left here. The thing for me to do now is to try to trap them on their hunting grounds. They are a smart pair and I will have to use all the skill I possess."

It was the scent of rabbit

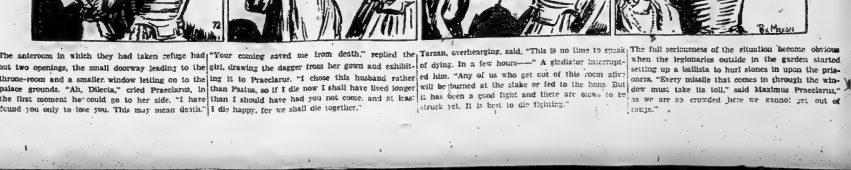
First he spent a couple of days tramping the whole woods and pastures all around that section, noting every sign that would indicate the presence of Foxes and every place that looked like a good place to set a trap. Then he took a number of traps in a clean basket and handled them only with clean gloves on. This was so as to leave none of the man smell on them. With these he set out.



Now it was the very next night that Reddy and Mrs. Reddy, trotting along together were suddenly halted by a scent that at once brought water to their mouths. It was the scent of Rabbit. Almost at once they saw that Rabbit lying on the snow. It was dead. There was no question about that. It was dead and it lay, in a little clear space. Both Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were instantly suspicious. Why should that Rabbit be lying there? True, they had more than once found folk who had died or been killed and left and had thus obtained easy meals. But this time they were suspicious. They had not forgotten the trapper and his traps. They circled around at a safe distance.

Several feet from that Rabbit was an old stump the top of which was about two feet above the snow. It was the only point around higher than the surroundings. It was just the place from which to look the surroundings over carefully. Mrs. Reddy started to leap up there. At the same time Reddy leaped against her and sent her sprawling. Right then and there Mrs. Reddy lost her temper.

(Metropolitan New spaaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

The anteroom in which they had taken refuge had but two openings, the small doorway leading to the throne-room and a smaller window looking into the palace grounds. "Ah, Dilecta," cried Praeclarus, in the first moment he could go to her side. "I have found you only to lose you. This may mean death

"Your coming saved me from death," replied the girl, drawing the dagger from her gown and exhibiting it to Praeclarus. "I chose this husband rather than Pasius, so if I die now I shall have lived longer than I should have had you not come, and at least I die happy, for we shall die together."

Tarzan, overhearing, said, "This is no time to speak of dying. In a few hours——" A gladiator interrupted him. "Any of us who get out of this room alive will be burned at the stake or fed to the lions But I have been a good fight and there are some to be struck yet. It is best to die fighting."

The full seriousness of the situation become obvious when the legionaries outside in the garden started setting up a ballista to hurl stones in upon the prisoners. "Every missile that comes in through the window must take its toll," said Maximus Praeclarus, "as we are so crowded here we cannot get out of range."

Community Club met at Centre Church on Wednesday night with a good attendance. President Roy Brickman had charge and a splendid evening's program was given. Rev. Mr. Mullin gave a fine address on "The Byways of Life". D. R. Redner editor of "The Times" gave a very illuminating paper on up-to-date news and views.

AWARDS MADE IN BARLEY CONTEST

Placing of the final awards for the 1932 Barley Improvement Competition for 1932, sponsored by the Brewers' Warehousing Co. of Toronto, was made Tuesday afternoon in the office of Mr. Leonard Johnston, district seed inspector, Front street. Twenty-one inspected seeds made entries, with thirteen finalists entering grain for judging yesterday. Mr. Johnston of the Dominion Department of Agriculture was in attendance and the awards were made after the most minute scrutiny and inspection.

In order of merit the following were given prizes: D. A. Thrasher, Roscoe Vanderwater, Thos. Watt and Son, Clem Ketchenon, A. Coulter and W. J. Anderson.

"Where It Pays to Shop"

SHE WAS THE TOAST OF "BARBARY COAST" WAS "FRISCO JENNY"

Ruth Chatterton comes to the Belle Theatre today in "Frisco Jenny", the role that has a typical "Diamond Lil" role.

The polished and dignified actress turns entirely away from her recent society roles in her latest starring vehicle and reverts to a character part similar to those in which she made some of her earlier and outstanding successes, such as "Madame X".

In "Frisco Jenny" she appears as Queen of the Demi-monde, with rules as her kingdom with an iron hand, a woman hard and unscrupulous, yet with an underlying tenderness and so unbelievable a love for her only son, that she took to the gallows with sealed lips rather than betray his father, with the mother's shame.

"Frisco Jenny" is a stirring and picturesque tale of the old Barbary Coast of San Francisco, with its temples of pleasure, its gilded dives and gambling dens which formed the background for the wild orgies of the young bloods of the city a quarter of a century ago.

Miss Chatterton is supported by an exceptionally strong cast which includes Donald Cook, James Murray, Louis Calhern, Hallam Cooley, Pat O'Malley, Robert Warwick, Helen Ware, Edgar Kelly, Robert Emmets O'Connor.

The picture which covers the period of the great earthquake and the years following is filled with thrills, including the quake itself and the fire that followed, a dramatic court scene in which Miss Chatterton is branded by her own son and other scenes in the gay divers.

"The Million Dollar Scandal"

Robert Armstrong, in what is reported to be his best role of his career heads the cast of "The Million Dollar Scandal", second picture of Teapot Dome, a gigantic swindle, and the second feature offered on the same program.

Armstrong portrays Fingers Partow, who, between massage by way of the pitter-ring, went to prison for the same minor offence and came out to be masseur and gym teacher for a wealthy banker's wife, Constance and his associates.

Playing back into he overbears in his grim class. Fingers makes a fortune, and then.

With revenge as his motive, Fingers listens to the confidences of a powerful newspaper editor that he tells the editor about a gigantic oil a nation-wide swindle he overheard Masterson, and with his dictaphone he makes him the man of the hour, saviour of a people and the undoing of Masterson and his millionaire crook associates.

In addition to Robert Armstrong, the cast includes Frank Morgan as Masterson; Constance Cummings as Masterson's daughter, James Gleason as Ralph Pal of Fingers, Warren Hymer, as the kid, another pal, Olga Baclanova as Anna, Fingers girl, and Lee Phelel as the newspaper editor.

"FLAG LIEUTENANT"

Not many films carry such a convincing story as that told in "The Flag Lieutenant", England's challenge to Hollywood, coming to the Belle Saturday and Monday. In all its aspects it is so real that it might be playing one of the many parts. It is a melodramatic tale, perhaps it is because of that the picture proved such a success in the "Old Country".

The heavyweight Boxing Contest between Prince Chegwidden and Otto Schaff is a special extra attraction on the same programme. The bout promises to reveal clearly the fatal punch, that closed the career of a promising boxer.

"THE LODGER" IS REMINISCENT OF JACK THE RIPPER

Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, used the notorious case of "Jack the Ripper," notorious all over England, as a basis for her book "The Lodger."

A series of bonifide murders as a terrifying fact London public and as the victims are women of certain class, the police have difficulty in finding clues to connect with the maniac at large.

Here the filmiest material to work on and that is a heavy description of the unsolved murders, a foreign looking, slim and dark, and carrying himself supposed to be a music case.

In Mrs. Bunting's boarding house a young mysterious musician has a furnished room. He is "Mr. Lodger" and is suspected upon as a "let queer." He attracts suspicion by his obvious dislike for fair-haired girls and a tendency to sneak out at night.

There then commences the most intriguing and baffling story it is possible for any author to unfold.

"The Lodger" with the distinguished cast, heads the list for role, and Ivor Novello and Elliott Alan playing opposite. Dr. Ogden Pleeth has composed a three-day engagement.

"The Lodger" is a British film a film that will cause a great deal of comment by those who see it.

On the same programme, Episode 7 of the Hal Roach comedy and the Canadian News will be shown.

Commencing Monday, March 6th, the Capitol Theatre will celebrate the Second Anniversary Week of the present owners' operation and management of this popular down town theatre.

Miss Ann Penn the actress, has dreamed several nights in succession that Jerry BLIND has stolen the prize in the text Irish sweepstake. She is trying to buy the tickets.

SON OF THE GODS

By Rex Beach

CHAPTER SIX

Alice chattered ceaselessly on the way uptown, failing utterly to notice Sam Lee's silence. Over and over in a hundred ways she voiced her boundless interest in the new bungalowish saint and his son as her good angel...Such rapture, such satisfaction as hers would defy words to figured the plainest girl, it worked a miracle with her.

"My father's wisdom is as great as his benevolence," the young man said finally. "I bow to his judgment in all things. But he can be cruel and implacable. To-night he plerced, me with a speech—"

"Oh, Sam! You said you wanted him to help me!" Alice observed for the first time the fixed, white look upon her companion's face, and she changed her tone. "It's going to be hard to say good-by, but I'm glad you found time to see either. You're a darling, Sam, and I'll miss you terribly."

"Miss Hart," said the young man, "I have addressed her as anything but that. I—I—" and she was startled. An odd flatness in his voice challenged her attention as he went on. "You must realize how much I care for you."

Good Lord! It was coming. He was going to spoil everything, thought the girl.

"You'll be sailing at once. Will you permit me before you go?"

Alice recoiled. She uttered an exclamation and jerked her hand from his sleeve. Many—! She had never dreamed he'd ask that. The other was bad enough. Many wives—Chinamen! The fellow was insane.

The moment that followed was abysmally for both of them.

Sam turned his head; he walked; the girl's blood turned to ice. She clumped consequences that appalled her. In a panic she gasped:

"Oh, not that! I couldn't. You should have known. I'm white. I'm not one bit like you. Why, I'm not even Christian! What will people say? I'm crowding much on your generosity when I asked you to be my guide, not my mistress. Let's be honest, for a change. I'll be frank with you, please be the same with me."

"All right!" stormed the girl. "I'll say any price to go to Paris. If you must know, but I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth. Live in Chinatown! Among those creepies! Oh, my God! I'd cut my throat first. Now what have you got to say?"

Only this: there may be Chinamen who would have you, but I wouldn't."

Alice was shaking, her breast was heaving convulsively. Sam stood as if bent forward, covered her face with her hands and began to sob convulsively. "I suppose this—ends everything," she gasped. "I could—kill myself."

"It ends nothing except a fantasy, a misunderstanding. I—I do not concern yourself in the least with your unworthiness. I announced the word blindly. "My father's wishes—I'm a veteran man but not 'yellow' enough to interfere. For that matter he wouldn't listen to me if I did. I've fallen pretty low but not low enough for that."

"I don't see that—caring for me as you say—that something to be—ashamed of!" Alice wondered if Sam could be sincere. It was incredible, but his next words contemptuous as they were, somewhat reassured her. He couldn't believe how primitive was he discovered we Chinese had discovered the truth about women. But what can be made of a man who will not profit by the wisdom of his elders?"

Another silence came between them which lasted until the car stopped at Alice's hotel. She had recovered meanwhile and said quietly, "Don't let's quarrel. I didn't mean all I said."

"Then—you'll be assured her coldly. "You'll go to Paris."

He left her in the car after a few moments of vain conversation. The next few days were an eternity for Alice Hart. She suffered tortures. Sam did not communicate with her in any way neither did I see Ying, and as the hours passed along she called herself a fool for making an enemy of the son. She had been a hypocrite to believe his protestations of magnanimity. No man could be as generous as that; not after the hurt she had dealt him. Why had she? Why could she have managed somehow to avoid committing herself? Why not played for stakes like hers could have managed to compromise. Promises are made to break. But she had no experience, and the thought of marriage was so shocking. It had come so unexpectedly. Oh, he was furious! She should have told her father how—a common Chinaman could, with a curl of his lip, have said. Instead she had let her feel like a whining mendicant. And that's practically what she was.

Yellow men are vengeful. Sam, of course, had told his father what she had scorned him—Pooh! Idiot, that she was!

Let Sam had promised, to be sure, and high-class Chinese are rigid in their code of honor—a standard of honor but—This uncertainty was maddening. How different the situation now to a few days ago. Life was still going on around her but she had no place in it and she feared to leave her room lest a message should arrive. Nevertheless she couldn't sit here like this and wait. She had a letter to be writing up. She hadn't the remotest idea what to write, and she was in a panic. If she didn't hear from Lee Ying, who would pay the bill? How much longer would she be permitted to stay? . . . Yes, and what would people think? Servants! Here she was broke down and cried for Sam.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Dorcia was peaceful on the Sons of Han. Sam Lee returned to Eastern University that autumn and resumed his college life where he had left it off. His friends welcomed him and they made much of his vous of his place. If—he was not quite the same to them as formerly. If he was a little less defferent and if there was a spice of social flavor to his jests they failed to observe it.

The cow-like social status had been firmly established and not even Sam's record in his studies effort to better it. To Sam however, it was an ever-present humiliation, an incurable canker the which his experience with Alice Hart had merely made more painful. He could not resign himself to his situation. There were times when he rebelled against all things Oriental and paused at the Chinese flavor; times when a voice in him fairly shrieked that he was a white man in disguise.

There was ample cause for him to wonder what ailed him and to speculate as to the reason for his restlessness. Actual both the white and the yellow race; it was not as if he were living in the days of two civilizations, setting in opposite directions, and clashing head in him, for that is about what was happening. Instead the conflict not of two human races but of two human forces, heredity and environment.

Inasmuch as his story has to do with the working of those antagonistic influences it will be necessary to go back to the time when he set out on a night in San Francisco and to a street in Chinatown!

Pan Yi, a Chinese woman whose little feet were like two golden lilies," and to Officer Dumne whose feet were unlike anything in the botanical kingdom. We shall have to translate the meaning of the latter's profanity when the child-less Pan Yi pasted on the stone floor of the public library, after the acquaintance of a sedimental patrolman whose heart was bigger than his feet.

There has been feasting in the house of Lee Ying and now there was mourning. The cause of which caused a crowd to gather outside of his store.

Lee Ying, proprietor of the Palace of Imperial Bounty, largest and most prosperous of the great San Francisco bazaars, was a rich man and he lived in the luxury befitting a noble.

It was known to all that Lee Ying was a generous man and this being a notable occasion in his life it was considered likely that he would distribute gifts among those who were too lowly actually to sit at his table but who, nevertheless, did him the courtesy to smack their hungry lips outside his door and to express a desire for long life and to forecast a thousand distinguished honors for Lee Infinite Joy, as this hope the crowd wailed.

Pile Sufferers

Your itching, bleeding, or protruding piles will go and fast—no matter how you suffer—when you use the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel—and in just a few minutes before. Salves or suppositories can't do more. Strong statement? Maybe so, but HEM-ROID prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out the thick impure blood, tones and revitalizes the small dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a powerful record of success in every home in the world—more than 3,000,000 boxes sold. Get HEM-ROID today. Don't be another sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today. They must end your pile agony or money back.

England has no hard labor for prisoners any more, and Judge Whiteley in the Old Bailey Court of Appeal, in a recent decision, ordered ordinary imprisonment being for the first two years. Hard labor sleeps on a plank instead of a mattress.

Canadian Trade with United Kingdom Advances from Twelfth to Fourth Place

CANADA FILLS FOURTH PLACE IN U.K. TRADE

Rapid Advance Encourages Minister of Trade And Commerce

NEW TRADE WAYS

British Imports From Canada Increase 31 P. C. in Value

Ottawa, March 3 (CP)—Canada the nations with her products in 1932 occupied fourth place among the British market. In 1931 this Dominion was in twelfth place.

Commenting upon this spectacular progress which Canada has made in selling her commodities in the greatest market of the world, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce said: "When the present government came into office some two and a half years ago we found that some of our greatest markets had been closed against us. Our task was to find new avenues of trade for the disposal of our products. We have found them, and we are consolidating and building up our new trade routes.

Advance Encouraging.

"The rapid advance we have made in the British market is most encouraging. It is a market for which there is assurance of continuity, a possibility of steady expansion.

"In one year the British imports from Canada have increased over 31 percent in the value and much more in volume. No other country of the world has so rapidly increased a showing in that direction. Many other countries have suffered heavy declines in the British import trade. Amongst the principal trading nations only Australia and Canada recorded increased imports by Great Britain, that of Canada being the greatest increase of all.

"In 1931 the order was: United States, Germany, Argentina, Denmark, Australia, France, New Zealand, British India, Irish Free State, Netherlands, Belgium, Canada. In 1932 the order was: United States, Argentine, Australia, Canada, Denmark, New Zealand, British India, Germany, Irish Free State, Netherlands, France, Belgium."

DIPHTHERIA BREAKS OUT

Doctors Make Perilous Crossing to Island to Aid

Grindstone Island, N.Y., March 3 (AP)—Diphtheria has broken out on this island in the mouth of the river bound St. Lawrence River, causing the death of one child and the illness of about 18 persons.

Stumbling across the broken ice floes, sometimes rescued by their companions from watery holes, a party of mail runners and fishermen yesterday escorted a physician with a chest of anti-toxin serum from the mainland two and one-half miles away.

"I have found about 15 cases," said Dr. J. F. Fawcett, who was summoned from the mainland village of Clayton by wireless. "I have immunized about 20 others who had been exposed."

Yesterday Mrs. Edward Bird, of Gananoque, Ont., reported he had discovered five cases of diphtheria on the island. The Canadian doctor was first to bring relief by crossing the St. Lawrence four miles in an ice boat and then travelling five miles in a sleigh.

Tomorrow Dr. Fawkes will return across the ice to see whether the outbreak has been checked. It may be necessary for this trip to drag along a flat-bottomed boat for emergency use, if the ice continues to soften.

TEACHERS' SALARIES CUT

Toronto, March 3—(CP)— A five per cent cut in school teachers' salaries was reached by the Board of Education at its session last night it was learned today. It is expected a saving of $400,000 will be made in the board's estimates after the tax rate will approximate [illegible] year's school tax of 162.3 mills.

In city hall quarters it is said the board's decision is in favor of a cut for city employees generally.

MAYOR OF BOSTON TO ACCEPT POST

Will Become Ambassador from the United States to Italy

Boston, March 3 (AP)—The Boston Globe says it has learned that Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, has decided to accept the office of United States Ambassador to Italy "informally offered him by President-elect Roosevelt."

The paper says formal tender of the post will be made shortly after the new administration is in office and that the mayor will give immediate acceptance.

About five years ago Mayor Curley was made a Commandatore of the Order of Crown of Italy by King Victor Emmanuel.

NATION BOWS IN TRIBUTE

Undecided Whether State Funeral Will be Held

Washington, March 3—(AP)—Official Washington today bowed in tribute to Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, and to his widow-sharing of last week—Senora Nieves Peres Chaumont Walsh of Cuba.

While high and low of the city and National called to express condolences to Mrs. Walsh, members of the family were undecided whether there should be a State funeral from the Senate Chamber in which he served upward of 20 years.

Mrs. Walsh, under a physician's care, wrought with her grief in the apartment the Senator occupied for so many years in the Capitol

CANADA MAY HAVE COURSE

Would Like to Try For Speed Record in Dominion

Toronto, Mar. 3 (CP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, world speed king, has his eye on Canada for the next assault upon the land speed record, Sir Malcolm makes it plain he will run again if a suitable course can be found, and has in mind particularly the prairie section of western Canada. In a wire received in New York to Captain C. D. Browne of this city, Sir Malcolm declares:

"I do wish you would endeavor to ascertain whether it would be possible to run a car over the course where in Canada where an attempt on the world's speed record could be made. The course should be level and the track should be absolutely smooth, and the distance required would be 12 miles.

"I have run on sand many times, and on hard-baked mud in South Africa, but I am anxious to see if possible to find a course somewhere in the prairie which could be made suitable at a comparatively small cost."

POPE PIUS CALLS ALL TO OBSERVE HOLY HOUR

Vatican City, Mar. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius today called upon the world to observe a holy hour April 6 of expiatory prayer on the 1900th anniversary of Christ's agony in the garden of Gethsemane "so all souls may be lifted in union toward God, thus inducing a reunion of the peoples and alleviation of the evils created by the crisis."

The Pope himself will descend to St. Peter's to venerate the sacrament of the hour.

The Pontiff expressed the desire that "everywhere today there should be, for example, not only in Rome but in all countries.

1238 DEAD IN EARTHQUAKES TIDAL WAVES

Konshu Island of Japan Smitten by Quakes Waves

VILLAGES FLAT

Epicentre of Quake 190 Miles From City of Tokyo

Tokyo, Mar. 3 (AP)—More than 1,200 persons are known to have been killed in the earthquake, tidal wave and fire which devastated a section of the northeastern seaboard of Honshu Island, largest of the Japanese Archipelago, early this morning.

The full extent of the casualties had not been determined at eleven o'clock today, but the prefecture of the province of Iwate, which suffered most heavily, reported that 1,238 lives had been lost in Iwate alone, mostly north of Miyako, a seacoast city of 40,000 population, and the Three Tidal Waves.

In addition Kyodo, Japanese news agency reports from Hakodate said that a tidal wave swept the southern coast of the northern island of Hokkaido and it was feared that more than 100 persons had perished.

Unconfirmed reports from distant villages in Iwate prefecture said that 300 more persons had perished.

Some regions were still unreported.

Tokyo, Mar. 3 (AP)—Nature's most terrible onslaught of earth, fire and water devastated simple pastoral communities along 300 miles of beautiful coastline in Japan when huge tidal wave followed an earthquake early today, and fanned by gales, fire swept.

Scores of villages and hamlets were entirely levelled. The greater portions of the thriving ports of Kamaishi, with a population of 27,000; of Miyako, with 16,000; and Yamato and Omika were annihilated.

Although the destruction was confined virtually to Iwate, Miyagi and Aomori Prefectures, all the eastern section of Honshu or Honshu island was ravaged. Miyagi and Iwate prefectures felt exchange the neighborhood said 10,000 lives were lost.

The liner Heian Maru, from Seattle with 400 miles off Yokohama, shivered because of a submarine disturbance.

Destruction was expected to total millions of dollars. More than 1200 persons were injured and thousands and thousands of fisher folk lost their boats and nets—their means of livelihood.

It is reported more than 4,000 persons were killed by the tidal wave causing fires or the wall of water.

The earthquake drove terrorized populations of 100 thousand souls to the chill streets in the dark when electric current failed.

The army sent an engineer battalion, cavalry regiment, troops of medical supplies and blankets to the stricken districts.

The few schools and temples still standing in Kamaishi were converted into hospitals and evacuation committees were formed.

Four Threes in Row on Letters Next Quadruplicate in 2010 A.D.

Toronto, Mar. 3 (CP)—For the first time in more than eleven years, folks who date their communications exclusively with numerals were introduced to the last figure right down the line. Many who marked down "3-3-33" for today's date went into a huddle and found Feb. 22, time such a perfect date rolls around. It will be on Oct. 10, 2010—when one number could do all the work in dating.

The situation carried the memories of the sentimental "number-daters" back to the thrilling morning of November, 1911, when they discovered three 11's told the story. Few could hope to be on hand for the next perfect date rolls around.

Oil Burner Manufactory Locates Here, Will Supply Export Trade Whole Empire

Subsidiary of Big A Oil Burner Company of Chicago Formed — Complete Manufacturing Will be Carried out in Belleville According to Announcement of Chaem ber of Commerce

The Big A Oil Burner Company of Chicago has decided upon Belleville as the home for its Canadian branch factory, according to announcement made by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Belleville's export business for the entire British Empire will be handled here.

Letters of incorporation have already been issued for the new subsidiary which will be known as the Big A Company of Canada, Limited.

The Big A Company was organized at Chicago, Ills., six years ago. Its products include a complete line of burners for furnaces, ranges, cook-stoves, Quebec heaters, fireplaces, clothes pressing machines and tailors' pressers, as well as portable lamps and lanterns similar to the well known Coleman products.

Manufacture Locally

The manufacturing processes will be carried on entirely in Belleville factories, with the exception of the oil-tanks which will be produced at Welland or some convenient point in the district where the essential factory equipment can be had.

The company has rented quarters for the present in the premises on Pinnacle street, formerly occupied by Belleville Motory Ltd. Here the Big A products will be assembled. Belleville factories, will be assembled and then shipped to foreign destinations.

Mr. Garner, Raymond, who has been for the past couple of years manager of the local sales office of the Stewart-Warner Company here, will be president and general manager of the Big A Company of Canada. Mr. Meyers Harris, until recently associated with the Canadian Departures here, will be sales manager for the new organization. Mr. Jack Eastwood, well known salesman and manufacturer, will be territorial representative for Central Ontario, outside of Belleville. Mr. J. M. Nadeau has taken over sales rights for Montreal, Levy and Westcott will be sales agents for the Toronto district.

Immediate Operation

The work of manufacture here will be entered upon forthwith. It is expected that the first units will be placed on the market in less than a month. Already a telegraph order for 500 units a week.

The Big A burners are popular because they represent a number of new elements in construction and operation. They can be installed in any standard heating mechanism or experience. Once installed they are automatically controlled and operate practically fool-proof. Ordinary fuel-oil, kerosene or kerosene are equally serviceable as fuels. A kettle-of water can be heated in from four to five minutes. The cost on fuel is said to be lower than for gas or coal, ninety-four per cent of the fuel is secured from air combination.

Market Possibilities

The possibilities for marketing these burners are enormous. The parent company has shipped great quantities of its equipment simultaneously to Australia and to other parts of the British Empire and it is understood that now be transferred to Belleville.

The Big A Company is the third American manufacturing corporation to establish in Belleville since the beginning of the present year. The other two, announced in these columns about a month ago, were the Lime and Hydrates Plastics Company of Port Hope, with a representative here in Belleville, and Jean Weil Works of Aurora, Ills.

50 GAS BOMBS ROUT CROWD OF PICKETEERS

Pickets Claim Workers Hurl Stones from Windows

Detroit, March 3 (AP)—A squad of Detroit patrolmen, called to quell an uprising of picketers, said by officials to number more than 150, at the Mack Avenue plant of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, today threw 50 tear gas bombs before they reported the crowd finally was subdued.

Reports to police headquarters said one patrolman and several pickets were slightly injured.

Robert Barrow, one of the captains in the picket lines said the crowd was trying to break into the plant to reach workmen who were throwing stones at them from the upper windows of the plant. He said the men were trying to scale a fence surrounding the plant when police reserves arrived.

SECOND CUT IN SALARIES

Ontario Civil Service Salaries Twice Cut

Toronto, Mar. 3 (CP)—A second reduction in Ontario civil servants' salaries has been approved by the legislature committee and will come into force as of Mar. 1, it was learned from reliable sources today. No official confirmation of the cut was obtainable. Attorney-General W. H. Price, acting premier, declining to comment.

The new scale of reduction, according to the report, is as follows:

Five per cent on the first $1,000; 10 per cent. on $2,000; 15 per cent. on $3,000; 20 per cent. on $4,000; and 25 per cent. on $5,000 and over. The first reduction ran from two per cent. up to and including $1,000 at 20 per cent. over $10,000. The government, it is said, made a saving of about $80,000 on the cut that came into force in January. The new scale is estimated the saving will be probably $200,000.

Liquor Depression Cause.

Liquor sales, according to Mr. Rodd, "have been an important contributing factor to the depression." Ontario's liquor revenue in British last year had been $174,000,000, he said, while $19,000,000 had been spent within Canada on liquor, according to the report.

"Today we are facing an economic emergency more distressing and disastrous than the World's fearful during the war.

"Having regard to that emergency, we have the right to ask our people to subordinate their personal tastes and to endeavor to form habits and restrict themselves for the good of the state as a whole."

The Weather

SALE OF BEER AND WINE BY-GLASS FOUGHT

Prohibitionists Bring 105,300 Signatures to Government

BOOZE, DEPRESSION

Would Halt Liquor Sales Till End of Period of Depression

Toronto, Mar. 3 (CP)—Led by R. S. Rodd, Windsor, president of the Ontario Prohibition Union, 500 prohibitionists today presented to the Ontario government a petition protesting any move against sale of beer and wine by the glass.

The petition bore 105,300 signatures.

Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, and acting Premier in the absence of Hon. George S. Henry heard speeches by Mr. Rodd and by Rev. A. J. Irwin, secretary of the Union, and promised to convey the petition and the representations to Mr. Henry.

The delegation urged all liquor sales be halted until the depression is ended, and that a non-partisan board be set up to determine if the government control system should be retained in Ontario.

Col. Price Greets Delegates.

With Col. Price was Hon. George Challies, Provincial Secretary; Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Institutions, and Hon. G. Monteith, Minister of Public Works.

"I sympathize with the government knew, he said, the union was very much in earnest and sincerely interested in curtailing the effects of intemperance. The government stands with you in advocating every step that can be adopted always to curtail these evil effects.

"I am sure," he said, "in the absence of the Premier, my wonder at the number of signatures more than we are interested in the problem before the minister and the government are thinking of them all the time.

FRONT ROAD U. C. LADIES AID MEET

The Ladies' Aid of Front Road United Church was entertained at the home of Mrs. P. Ferry on Thursday afternoon, March 2nd, with a splendid attendance.

A fine, large quilt was the top of which had been pieced and donated to the Aid by Mrs. J. Bonnell, and quilted.

The meeting was then called to order by the president, Mrs. S. Sellery and was opened by singing "Field Not to Temptation" with Mrs. C. R. Leavens at the piano in the absence of the pianist, Mrs. B. Brown. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Doris Reid, who also reported on the proceeds from the evening entertainment recently held in the Ladies' Aid, when Rev. H. J. Reid of Belleville, very kindly showed lantern slides of the Holy Land and the continent explaining each picture which proved very interesting and entertaining but educational as well.

Rev. Mr. Keough read the Scripture lesson, Psalm 42, followed by roll call which was well responded to by a verse of scripture from both members and visitors.

A number of names were added to the membership, a unique feature being the adding to the list of the first gentleman member—Mr. Geo. Greatrix.

Mrs. Leavens thanked the aid for an appropriate card sent her while ill. Thanks were also extended by the president to Mrs. D. E. Orser, who had so wholeheartedly assisted in preparing the quilts which the Aid had previously sent to the needy.

Mrs. Garbutt invited the Aid to her home for the April meeting and the singing of "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus" and the Mizpah benediction brought the meeting to a close after which the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Calder and Mrs. H. Greatrix served a very bounteous lunch.

HERD COMPETITION FOR FACTORY PATRONS

Central Ontario Cheesemakers Have Competition Arranged for 1933

For the fourth consecutive year the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association are holding during 1933 their Herd Competition open to the cheese factory patrons in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Peterborough, Victoria, Durham, Ontario and Prontenac. The competition has yearly been creating more and more interest and has already had owners of the district and the present years entries already being made, promises to show an increased number of participants in it.

Some 20 prizes will be offered this year amounting to approximately $500. Aside from these cash awards a number of donations of pure bred bulls from the best dairy herds in the district have been promised; all dairy breeds are represented among these. Those formulating the competition state they have been greatly encouraged by the ready response given to their request for bulls.

The competition as in former years will begin on May 1st and continue to October 31st, and awards made on the basis of the butter fat produced per acre in the various classes. Prize lists and entry forms are available and may be had from J. L. Irwin of this city, district representative, and also from the secretaries of the various cheese factories of the district.

The many prizes will be divided in classes, as last year, with a number of new classes recently added. At the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, checks for the amount of the prizes will be handed to the successful competitors.

ICE HARVEST IS CERTAINTY

Dealers Have No Doubt Fall Crop Will be Stored Away

Considerable misinformation exists in the matter of the cutting of the Bay of Quinte, most of which has been cleared up by Mr. Maurice Callaghan, commercial dealer of this city, who was questioned Friday by the writer.

In the first place dealers of the city are not a bit afraid that "next winter" will pass without giving them the opportunity of cutting out their crop for their needs. Mr. Callaghan points to the fact that last year work did not begin on the ice harvest until the 10th day of March, on that date the ice in the bay was only 8 inches thick, but before they were through cutting recurrent freezings nightly a thickness of 14 inches had been secured, "a good 2 feet of cold weather, sir," he promises.

He says that the ice at present in the bay averages only six or seven inches in not true. In the spot where ice is being cut just at present dealers are getting from 12 to 13 inches thick, and of the best quality. ures at a moment's notice to be ready to consider important but unexpected legislation.

Washington, March 3 (AP) — To meet the banking situation, Senator Dill, Republican, Washington, introduced in the Senate today legislation authorizing the government's postal savings system to carry checking accounts.

Washington, March 3 (AP) — Sweeping powers for the incoming United States President and the Comptroller of the Currently to take steps deemed necessary to secure bank deposits were called for today in a Bill by Senator Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma.

New York, March 3 (AP) — The extent to which the Federal Central Banking System of the United States had taken the emergency created by spread of banking difficulties in the past week became known today when the Federal Reserve statements disclosed that a record increase had occurred in reserve credit—$585,000,000—had been poured into money markets.

With currency circulation up $732,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday—also an unprecedented total —and the system's gold reserves reduced $236,310,000 by foreign exchange marking, hoarding and other factors, the 13 reserve banks took aggressive measures to fill the country's credit reservoir, especially the huge accumulation of liquid funds in New York City.

Redeposit Asked

Directors of the local Reserve Bank, after increasing the rediscount rate to 3½ per cent yesterday, extended their weekly meeting late into last evening and were joined by other bankers who are not members of the board. What subjects were discussed or what action was advocated remained undisclosed and no announcement was made when the meeting finally adjourned.

The British pound sterling, which had jumped several cents yesterday to the highest mark since, fell back slightly today, cables opening at 4.84 1-4, off about a cent, in the early dealings. The Canadian dollar also was fractionally off to 84 cents. European gold currencies were irregular.

Earmarking of Gold

Earmarking of gold for foreign accounts notably British have been proceeding for several weeks, though comparatively little metal has been exported.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, after conferring with Mr. Roosevelt at the head of a delegation of Democratic Senators, said last night "A definite statement on the banking situation and other matters will be forthcoming in the morning."

Twenty-three States have now taken proclamations or other acts or another in regard to banks and their operations.

Action ranged from holidays, mandatory or optional, to legislation giving banks power to limit withdrawals if they deemed it necessary.

It was estimated the epicentre of the earthquake was 125 miles southwest of Kinkwasan Island, which would place it at a spot in the sea about 100 miles east of Honshu.

Reports from the provinces most seriously affected said that 7,920 homes had been destroyed by the earthquake and the tidal wave and fire which followed. The tidal wave carried to sea or destroyed 1,570 small boats.

MRS. E. BAKER GIVEN $1,500

Jury Found Defendant Guilty of Negligence in Civil Suit

MRS. E. Baker, Tweed, was awarded the sum of $1,500.00 and all costs following a damage suit heard before His Lordship, Mr. Justice Garrow in the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court yesterday. The jury was out on the case, in which Mrs. Baker had sued for $15,000 for damages sustained when a car driven by Hupek's Hotel and broke both her ankles last May. She was out on one-half hours before arriving at a definite agreement.

Mrs. Baker, the plaintiff in the case, was suing Merle Courtney, proprietor of the Hupek Hotel in Tweed for damages for negligence, on his part, resulting in the accident. It was alleged that Mrs. Baker, while an employee of the hotel, had fallen from a platform on the rear of the establishment, when it collapsed beneath her and broke both her ankles—the breaks both being compound fractures.

Dr. Lockie of Tweed and Dr. Stobie of Belleville, were expert witnesses' testimony relative to the nature of the fractures. Dr. Stobie told the court that although Mrs. Baker's right ankle be repaired, she will never be of any use to her again and it might be necessary to amputate.

Various witnesses were called by the defence stating that Mrs. Baker had been forbidden to use the platform as the rear of the hotel owing to its dilapidated condition. Mr. and Mrs. Hupek, hotel proprietors, testified that the platform was always used during their stay and was in good repair.

Much Contradictory Evidence

Following the addresses to the jury by B. C. Donnan, counsel for the plaintiff and Chester S. Pringle, K.C., appearing for the defendant, His Lordship spoke at length explaining that there had been considerable contradictory evidence submitted and it was for the jury to say whether they would have no easy task in coming to a decision. The jury finally gave the jury thirteen questions which they had to answer before returning with a verdict. The questions and answers were:

1—Was the plaintiff's injuries sustained by the negligence of the defendant?

Answer—Yes.

2—If so, in what did such negligence consist? Answer—The platforms were in poor repair.

3—Was the plaintiff engaged in her own affairs at the time of the accident? Answer—No.

4—Was she engaged upon a portion of what was her employment? Answer—Yes.

5—Was the plaintiff warned of the risk danger? Answer—No.

6—Was the plaintiff regularly used by the employers? Answer—Yes.

7—Did the plaintiff know of the defective condition of the platform? Answer No.

8—If so, did she appreciate the danger? Answer—No.

9—Was the plaintiff guilty of any negligence which contributed to her accident? Answer—No.

10—If so: in what respect? Answer—None.

11—What is the entire amount of damages, if any, sustained by her due to her actions? Answer—$1,500 and, the costs to date.

Owing to the fact that the jury answered question nine in the negative, questions 12 and 13 were not needed as they referred to the degree of negligence to be borne by each.

Carl Harry, Oscar Pigden, J. S. Jones, Clarence Runnals, Wm. Cochrane, Stafford Byrne, Earl Bush, Elijah Series, Bruce Martin, Sidney Murphy, Albert Nickle, Elijah Reid were the jury.

3 NON-JURY CASES CLOSED

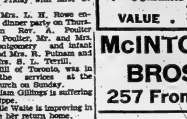
Damages Awarded to Plaintiffs by Consent Judgment

THREE non-jury cases concluded the docket of the local sittings of the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario which closed late last night and were presided over by His Lordship, Mr. Justice Garrow.

In the non jury case of Mrs. Davy vs. Alexander Davy both of Belleville, the plaintiff was awarded 40 per cent of her husband's earnings and the costs of the court. An action arose on a suit for alimony entered by the plaintiff, Mrs. Davy against her husband, Alexander Davy. Mrs Davy has not lived with her husband since last August when she alleges Mr Davy abused her. His Lordship upheld Mrs Davy's action and awarded the decision in her favor.

B. C. Donnan, for the plaintiff, while W Nickle of Kingston appeared for the defendant in the action.

In the Ryman Kwarzay vs. The Mary Ash estate action the plaintiff was awarded $9,000.00 damages by consent judgment. The action arose out of a motor car accident, which happened two miles east of Marysville last July, when Mrs. Mary Ash of Detroit, while driver her own car westward careened into the church building herself and seriously injuring Kwarzay a transient, whom she had given a ride. The plaintiff in the action was confined to the Belleville General Hospital for several weeks as a result of the accident.



B. C. Donnan acted as counsel for the plaintiff, while the firm of Cassidy, Cassidy and Cassidy conducted proceedings for the Ash estate of Detroit.

In the Mrs. W. J. Tyers, Belleville vs. Murphy and Barrington case judgment is given in favor of the plaintiff for $1,000.00 when consent judgment by both parties was certified. The action arose out of a motor car accident which happened 16 months ago when Mrs. Tyers sustained a broken leg. Proceedings was stirring the Murphy car.

B. C. Donnan appeared for the plaintiff while C. F. Tuer acted as counsel for the defendants.

They seem to be able to make technical improvements upon every device except the political machine. Governor.

86 Years Ago Today, Bell, Inventor of Telephone, Born

Blue And White Ensign Over All Bell Buildings

Eighty-six years ago today, March 3rd, 1847, Alexander Graham Bell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. Twenty-nine years later at Tutela Heights, Brantford, he invented the telephone.

The blue and white ensign of The Bell Telephone Company is flying from the flag-staffs of telephone buildings throughout the Province of Quebec to-day in commemoration of this notable anniversary.

Dr. Bell was a successful teacher of the deaf. His studies in this realm led him to the conception of its electrical impulses, produced from sound waves, being made to flow along copper wires. The inventor left behind him, when he turned his attention to other things, little more than a crude telephone instrument. But the principle underlying his telephone was fundamental and has been adhered to ever since. It is believed that of other inventors who had more far-reaching influence on the human race.

Today the vision of a world on speaking terms is rapidly becoming a reality through the Telephone service, in collaboration with radio, cable and other methods of talking channels 'round the globe. The effect of such wide communication by word-of-mouth is an everyday reality.

Toronto Oxford Members Visiting Here at Weekend

Sixteen members or more of the Toronto Oxford Group who have been speaking during the visit to Toronto of the Oxford Groupers a number of weeks ago under the inspiration of that body, will on Saturday arrive in Belleville to address a meeting under the auspices of the Belleville Ministerial Association on Saturday evening in Bridge Street United Church Sunday School room. This meeting is not under the auspices of any church but of the Ministerial Association in bringing these groupers to the city in order to give the Belleville and district people an opportunity to meet those who have come into personal contact with the Oxford Group Movement. Accordingly members of all churches are welcome to attend this meeting.

In Churches Sunday

On Sunday many of the groupers will take part in the morning services of a number of the churches of the city and some will remain for the evening services. If it is felt necessary in view of interest shown here, it may even be that some of the visitors will stay over until Monday in order that every one opportunity to come into contact with the Oxford movement.

Some part of which about nine will be men and seven women will arrive in Belleville Saturday afternoon via C.N.R. at four forty o'clock. They will be met here by Alvan Eldridge by motorcars and will be served lunch at five o'clock tea and then dinner. The men members of the party will remain overnight at the College as the guests of the institution but, as the college has no accommodation for women, the lady members will be accommodated in the city.

Saturday's Meeting

In the absence of the Rev. Harold S. Neal, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association which has been instrumental in bringing the groupers to this city, Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, who has been assisting in the arrangements, stated today that the visitors to the city from Toronto are all people who have been touched by the visit of the English group to Toronto, and that will be a number of ministers. Mr. Wright made it clear when speaking to the press that the meeting on Saturday evening is not a meeting of the Oxford Group but a meeting of the Ministerial Association, which has been instrumental in bringing the groupers to this city. COSTUMES AT FETES

Indians dressed up in feathers to represent eagles and wearing their aboriginal dress are the usual women dressed with ostrich plumes and decollete gowns at functions at Rideau Hall, says the complaint of Allan W. Neill, Independent of British Columbia, in attacking the bill to forbid the Indians a right to wear aboriginal dress without the governor-general's permission. Neill was defending the right of Indians to wear their aboriginal costumes, against the attitude of Hon. Dr. G. Murphy, who said that Indians neglected their crops to attend tribal festivities.

Whatever is to be said of the Indians, Mr. Neil knows that Hon. Mr. Murphy and no one else will ever put a ban on functions at Ottawa where the ostrich feathers dangle. Even while he was attacking the women who thus, as he might say, war-paint themselves, Mr. Neill was thinking of "Yo the Poor Indian."

But if the people of Canada want to dress as they do, where is the fault, except for Doukhobors? Of course there is a difference between a masquerade and the Ottawa functions where propriety is quite necessary and those rules are held to, but let no one dare refuse, but what of that! The masquerade is taken as a joke and the social functions are not.

But can the dance and the fete! Man will always want to wear another dress for ceremonial than he does about his daily occupation and so with women and so with Indians.

But the Indians will have to speak for themselves. The women of society are able to do that.

DOOR-TO-DOOR FREIGHT PICKING

Door-to-door collection and delivery of freight, about to be undertaken by the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways in the cities of Western Ontario, is a development of the railway situation which has been rendered particularly acute through the years of slackening trade. The approach to the truck service on the highways is something to be noted because through the years of slackening trade, the lines to circumvent have forced the lines to adopt this policy.

There is evidence that the principle is to be tried out in the larger centres. If a success, the plan will be adopted, there is not the slightest doubt, throughout the systems wherever feasible.

Belleville as a railway centre is keenly interested in this latest development. Anything which assists the railways, particularly the Canadian National, will do likewise for the handling of the earnings of much towards adding to the economy of the railways with the consequent adding to employment.

It has been held against the railways that they were slow to adopt the use of the trucking companies—to call at the door for freight and there is no doubt that this method of the truckers has contributed a good amount to the loss of freight to the railways. But though criticism has been levelled at the railways in this respect, there is no doubt that the railways are to enter the trucking business by using the highways. There are likely good reasons for this, in the first place. The highways are a provincial control and the railways under federal, that the freight business at this time is at low ebb and that the highways and the cost of launching upon this scheme would be quite heavy. The Provinces would, of course, have something to say in regard to the coming of the railways upon the highways as the costs of highways have to be met in part by the freight haulage which has developed from nothing to a large volume, through licences and through the tax on gasoline.

But what is in the future remains to be seen. He would be a wise man who could state into what channels freight movements are to be turned as a result of business conditions. Meanwhile the success of the pickup and delivery of freight by railway trucks is an interesting to watch.

DISTRESSING INCIDENTS

Tragedies see mto be attached to the coming of the Democratic party into office, attention has been diverted by several incidental events, the attempt on the life of the President-elect at Miami, the detection of a missile in a parcel addressed to Mr. Roosevelt and yesterday the lamentable death of Senator Walsh, the man whom he had chosen to be his attorney general. In looking called upon to face the loss of the Senator through death, Mr. Roosevelt finds the additional task facing him of choosing a man to take the Senator's place.

The death of Senator Walsh leaves a large gap in the party, one of whose stalwarts he has been for many years. Mr. Roosevelt will miss him as friend and counsellor. And the world will, perhaps, never know what it has lost in his death.

It is to be hops that no more surprises of this kind will trouble the new president, who has had enough tasks ahead without such incidents as a murderous attempt on life and the sudden death of a member of the cabinet-to-be.

AN UNFORGOTTEN SETTING

It was so long ago. I am not sure
Of being the same self I was that day;
How strange such evanescence should endure!
For still I see the wind-tossed cloud and spray,
And still I hear the rustle of the palms
That sentinelled that low and level land.
The swift air breathes, as then, its soothing balms
And golden sunlight lies on golden sands.

To being the same self I cannot swear,
Or, rather, I can swear that I am not:
But I still feel those gusts of salt-sweet air
Blow fresh and cool from Neptune's loveliest grot.
How strange! Though I forget the day, the year,
The moment's mood, the very words we said,
The mists of time have left this setting clear—
For golden sunlight on your golden head!

—Aline Michaelis.

OSHAWA has been considering a scrip system, and the Retail Merchants' Association has passed on to the City Council a plan by which the council would issue $250,000 in scrip which would be used to pay civic salaries. Such scrip would be honored at the City Tax Collector's office at its full face value when proffered in payment of taxes, and also in the local stores, buying the scrip, or its equivalent in money, in local circulation. By adopting this scrip system, it is said, money would not have to be borrowed from the banks to meet current civic expenses, and a large saving made in interest. As a test of the scrip system the plan might be tried out for a year, but if the system is good why confine it to civic employees? One thing present business conditions has established is that scrip, of such scrip would ing, an exercise good in itself, even though many of the plans for improving conditions die aborning.

TWELVE MINUTES to change four wheels, and inspect the engine, that's the time limit of the automobile speed king, Sir Malcolm Campbell, who addressed the Empire Club, Toronto, at noon Tuesday, and incidentally the world in general through the "mike." Sir Malcolm's record of better than 272 miles an hour on the beach at Miami will likely stand for some time, although the Yanks hate to have the Britishers come over and mess up their records. His record in changing wheels is not so important as it probably means that he has plenty of mechanical help. Sir Malcolm stated that he would be glad to come to Canada as soon as a good straightaway track is available, and try for some records here.

PETER MAKAROFF VEREGIN, prophet of the Doukhobors, threatens to lead his misguided materialist disciples out of Canada into some other country. We would suggest to Prophet Peter that he lead his disciples to a good hot shower bath at the City Hall where they can shed their clothes without shocking anybody or catching cold. There's Miami back, for instance, but the one-piece bathing suit trust might object to the Doux ides of less than one-piece suits. Keep going south Peter and the equatorial heat will strike you pink, red, brown and black if you don't keep some kind of clothes on you. And it is said, one more in sorrow than in anger, by the Provincial Police of British Columbia that not one in the sixteen thousand nude paraders was a perfect thirty-six.

Two American women wandered round Oxford, Mississippi, timekeeper of many of whose colleges is badly weathered and some of which looks in a state of decay. These visitors pushed their way up a stair in a back quadrangle and opened a door. They saw a much-alive and contemporary-looking youth sprawled in a basket chair before a cheerful fire, perusing Aristotle's ethics. Nonplussed, the ladies apologized for their intrusion. "We are sorry, but we had no idea that the ruins were inhabited."

With a grinding of brakes the officer pulled up his motor car and shouted to a little boy playing in the field, "I say, sonny have you seen an aeroplane come down anwhere near here?"

"No, sir!" replied the boy, trying to hide his tiny catapult. "I've only been shooting at a bottle."

SERIOUSNESS OF WHOOPING COUGH SEEN

Three Stages Recognized in Disease by Doctors

BY LOUIS E. REICH, M.D.P.H., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Whooping cough is not the harmless disease it seems. And when it does, the harmless fun that every child who suffers from it is pitiable to behold. Nevertheless people behave such suffering soon passes; that it is only one of those childhood disorders every youngster must go through.

To be sure, whooping cough is common enough and most children actually get over it, for many of us die. Besides, hemorrhages in the ears, nose and mouth may occur; lung disorders particularly pneumonia may be complications; while the back strain and the chest strain put upon it through violent coughing, is often impaired.

Pertussis is what the doctors like to call whooping cough, but it gives its more familiar name from the characteristic explosive cough which is accompanied by a peculiar crowing sound, or whoop. Once it has been heard it is never forgotten.

The disease undoubtedly is caused by a germ, but the exact nature of this organism remains shrouded in mystery. The germ is carried travel from one individual to another through the air when sick people promiscuously. Simply entering a room where there is a pertussis patient may be sufficient to "catch" the disease.

Three distinct stages of whooping cough are recognized. First the catarrhal stage; next the paroxysmal stage in which the spasmodic cough already alluded to is the prominent feature; thirdly, the stage in which the disease gradually grows less and less severe, until the patient is cured.

Generally speaking, there is no whooping during the first or catarrhal stage; next, the period during which the spasmodic cough already alluded to is the prominent feature; thirdly, the stage in which the disease gradually grows less and less severe, until the patient is cured.

Generally speaking, there is no whooping during the first or catarrhal stage; next, the period during which the spasmodic cough already alluded to is the prominent feature; thirdly, the stage in which the disease gradually grows less and less severe, until the patient is cured.

Generally speaking, there is no whooping during the first or catarrhal stage. Some children, however, start coughing in this strange manner from the very beginning. Usually the symptoms are those of a very ordinary cold in the head, with running eyes, sore throat and perhaps a little temperature. If cough is present it is not at all typical in character and rather frequent. The beginning stage of pertussis lasts about ten days.

If the child is really not developing whooping cough and is not suffering from a common cold, the symptoms described above will grow less severe within a week, and probably will be gone entirely at the end of ten days. But if it's pertussis, the "cold" gets worse and the cough becomes more and more whooping sound and shows a tendency to occur in spells or paroxysms of coughing.

Later in the second stage is reached, the striking character of the cough becomes readily distinguishable. In fact, there is no mistaking it. The child coughs from five to fifteen times in succession and is scarcely able to catch its breath. The face becomes purple; the veins in the neck stand out prominently; the eyes, during the attack look as if they might pop out of their sockets. The patient actually has every appearance of choking to death. Even to witness such attacks is painful, and while the child himself often becomes utterly exhausted.

After the patient has coughed for a time he is able to loosen and expectorate a thick viscous mucus. Sometimes vomiting may also occur. But then the coughing spells may occur at frequent intervals for comparatively short paroxysm takes place.

The third stage of decline which occurs as a rule within a month after the whooping stage began. If the cough becomes less frequent and less severe. In about three weeks the coughing fits are gone and the patient, if he has had proper attention, is well again.

If complications have taken place the convalescent picture is of course, a different one. That is why proper attention is always advisable in pertussis.

Poet's Corner

THE UNVEILED PATH

I cannot see the path that leads afar
Into the future of the days to be
I only know that Thou with guiding star
Will lead me.

I cannot see the footsteps set so prone to stray,
I only know what trials there await,
If sorrow in my life shall find a place,
I only ask 'mid foe's relentless hate
That I may trust even when I cannot trace;
In joy or sorrow, sickness or in health,
Even while I bow beneath Thy chastening rod,
This only do I ask, dear Lord, of Thee
That I shall walk the closer to my God.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings . . .

THE NEW LANGUAGE—

College student No. 1 to College student No. 2:

"I've got to cram up a dark horse for a heavy."

No. 2: "That's a job. I'm off to polish the apple."

Mysterious words? Not if you're up on the latest slang direct from the college campus—and reference to every-day English the above conversation is clear.

Student No. 1 was merely informing his friend that the immediate task he had to do was to coach a slow mate with a football player she had not previously met. Student No. 2 was imparting the information that he was on his way to see his instructor, or undertake a little mission of lobbying for better marks.

These and other up-to-the-minute college idiom revealed by Omaha newspaper men with the aid of Nebraska college paper editors. No matter what the object is, this composition showed, the Greek letter boys in college fraternities have a name for it.

For example, a "date" "girl friend," "blonde" or "call girl," "ice wagon" or "squaw" is a co-ed, and the "prom trotter" is the proper social niche.

"Sheep" is a football player. And when the student rates the phrase "I'm no green pasture," you can take it to mean that he goes places and does things. A "joker" is a student who "cuts classes" and is that select aggregation of students who have been "campused."

When a collegian answers your question with "Schnozzy!" he calls it a day. It's not an insult, but an expression meaning extraordinary or amazing. When he says "Sure thing," you know that there is no sign of an athletic contest being played—he just wants to find out what you mean. If you hear a student say he must try to crack a book, he doesn't aim to slap him on the back. He means that he has the urge to do a spot of studying.

GINSENG—

Included in some of the lesser known lines of Canadian export trade somewhat adversely affected by present disturbed conditions following the collapse of world prices, is that of the ginseng export trade, which, you may be assured could—if necessary—be made a very profitable one in the sixteen thousand square miles of territory which is Ontario alone. One exporter in this city has been found looking for ginseng root, and no place to sell it except to a few of the Chinese stores and the larger Canadian cities where the Chinese live. Ginseng is the so-called "the root that grows like a man" Ginseng at one time was exported in large quantities by many local students who made a good living during the harvesting season for the sale of the root which grows in the deep, rich mould-covered soil of the woods.

Invariably, the sprawling root, looking very like a man, is said to take the shape of a man when growing, and is held in great veneration by the Chinese, who use it in medicines for its stimulating and tonic qualities.

THE RAT-KILLER—

One of the most ingenious rat-killers seen recently has been observed in a local garage where the population of formerly bothersome rodents is rapidly being decimated by its deadly and sure and automatic action. Current supplied by a storage battery is stepped up to a high voltage by a coil, and sent by the current through a few old coils of wire, which are placed in the cellar by popular small car, and flows thru' two large copper plates. Short circuiting the current simply by the rat's body. So far the cheese has never been eaten. Indeed the rats don't seem to be around, but when they are found with three inches of wire in the body, they are found to be dead. Rats are known to be very shy, and have been killed in a single evening. Another man reports great success with the same unit in keeping the midnight serenading and prowling cats away. The current is supplied by running two bare wires from the charged coils along the top of the fence where the prowling cats used to gather nights. With contact once established between the wires, and when they leap on the fence and touch both wires, they are instantly dead. They generally depart from the premises with more speed than grace.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing around the schoolhouse yesterday morning and Miss Winkle started to go past. Us fellows was trying to make the canary bird in it just sicking there peaceful as if it was used to freedom. Us fellows saying, look at the bird, look at the canary, what's the matter with the canary.

I just got him and I haven't named him yet, Miss Winkle says, said. I been thinking about a name, for him. I'll name him Spot, cause he's so many canary birds are called Pete, and yet I'd be some appropriate name for a birdyou know, like the boys know a good appropriate name for a dog, cause Spot is the most appropriate name for a dog, and I'll give a little prize for any name that I accept, she said.

Us fellows was getting real excited and Puds Simkins said, Why don't you call him Spot?

What about it? He hasn't a spot on his little body, is that appropriate, said Miss Winkle, and I'll tell you said, Yes, because it would mean that Spot would be appropriate because the only spot he'll ever have is on the bottom of his cage, he said.

Miss Winkle kind of shaking her head. Well how about Prince, Miss Winkle, after his little dog, cause he's not a dog down in his cage in the wind.

No, she said. I will not a dog and I wont listen to any more dog names, I'll call him Pet, Miss Winkle said.

And she kept on going us fellows not worrying much because even if she had gave a prize it wouldn't of been anything grate Judging by what she gives fellows for going errands.

The construction boom going on at the present time is unfortunately confined to the erection of taxi-traps.

THE MILKMAN, THE-MILK BOTTLE AND THE CITIZEN

Milk bottles loom ever large as the main item on the milkman's budget. Year by year the loss of bottles increases, and unthinkingly, there is nothing that can be done about it except follow the lead of other manufacturers of bottled products, and charge the usual fee. Bring the bottles back and get your money, perhaps you will be told in the not very far future.

It costs even the small dairyman who leaves 1,000 bottles on your doorstep every morning somewhere in the neighborhood of one thousand dollars a year for empty bottles, and the average dairy of the district average a much greater loss.

Bottles cost the milkman eight cents apiece. When he loses a bottle of his milk he is out money—unless he gets the bottle back. And more often than not he doesn't.

Thousands of them a year they never recover. Others they do get back are handed to them chipped, cracked, stained, unfit for further use.

The milk bottle has the shortest life of almost any product made. Six trips on the average, from dairy to home and it is all washed to bits. Then comes the junk heap.

Where they go seems to be a dark and deep mystery—until one gets the urge to poke about and explore a bit into the matter.

One lady on the west hill was found some time ago by a milkman who, armed with a flash light, was exploring under her cellar to have sixty of them, all in a neat row on the cellar shelves, filled to the top with ketchup. The top was paraffined neatly and covered with dust.

Previously the milkman, aroused—by the fact that he seldom received bottles back when he left them, had questioned her as regarding them. She had answered him sweetly enough, but persistently that there were no extra bottles.

"Then why have you stocked them up before you got here," she suggested. The milkman was skeptical. The lady got angry. She slammed the door and the milkman went to search warrant. He returned and flashed his authority. She led him to the cellar meekly enough and pointed out the bottles. "I told you I had them," she persisted: But, her goose was cooked. The name of the Belleville dairy was stamped right on them.

"She was lucky I didn't have her fined the usual fifty dollars," the driver remarked to a brother driver, later.

An amateur gardener in the city was found with three dozen of them, with the name name on the bottles all filled with various mixtures of paint, turpentine and shellac. Most of them were unfit for further use.

Nearly one hundred were found in the cellar of an empty house, all heaped in a dusty pile in the corner.

Another out of work man was found peddling the pint bottles filled with homemade horseradish. He actually called at the home of one of the milk drivers, selling the radish, when the bottles with the name of the dairy the driver worked for were discovered doing such ignominious duty.

A garage men, emulating the ideas of a large oil company, made tops and funnels of his own to attach them to the quart milk bottles, and cheerfully peddled oil to his customers from the same bottles the milkman was trustingly leaving him.

Another man found a way to make efficient insulators for electrical wire by cracking the tops off the bottles and using the circular neck for the wire supports. Patients of hospitals are also often used for containers to hold small parts.

Small boys line the bottles up on rocks and snipe at them with .22 rifles. The heavy glass crashes and crashes pleasingly when the small bullet hits them. And so on, ad infinitum.

These bottles that are found, however, are traced to their ultimate resting place, are only the minority of the lost. It takes a lot of finding to locate a million or two of them. Thousands of them right now lie buried under tons of garbage and rusty tin cans in the city dumps. Other thousands lie in shattered pieces in fence corners and on vacant lots. Others are tucked away in dusty back kitchens and basements, unwashed and forgotten. Nine out of ten answers to the milkman's query are to whether or not there are any extra milk bottles lying around would be answered with a cheery but emphatic denial. The more rounded store of an odd dog that had been suddenly and surprisingly kicked by his master. Yet, few are the homes in the city that cannot boast dozens of them one to a dozen extra containers.

Weird and remarkable and ingenious are the uses to which milk bottles have been put. The inventive genius has reached almost the limit when it comes to the matter of converting milk bottles to their various uses. Adaptable, handy, and of the right size, the versatile glass-ware provides a temptation for even the most conservative.

But, despite the vicissitudes of his calling, the milkman who crawls out of his warm bed long before the first streaks of dawn is the most cheerful of men. Who ever saw a grouchy milkman? His is the smile that greets the rain or the snow or the frost laden winds. His cheery clamping of the horse's heavy whistle, or stills the musical rattling and banging of the bottle carrier as he slams it around in the process of loading, or the horse enters into the same spirit as he clop clops heartily and solidly over the hard pavements, stopping at each customer's house without even a word of bidding. Off again without a word except a chirp of the driver. Cheerful as the milkman may be even now, however, under such handicaps his calling provides, how much cheerier would he be if it weren't for the bother of the interminable search for that lost bottle.

Lost, strayed or stolen—thousands of milk bottles per year.

STAGGERING INCREASE IN EXPENDITURES

Committee on Economy Issues Report on Finance

971% INCREASE

From five million dollars in 1904-5, and nearly eleven millions in 1918-19, to fifty-seven million dollars in 1930-31 is the almost unbelievable increase in the expenditures of the Province of Ontario, according to a report issued today by the Ontario Committee on Economy in Public Finance, on which thirty-one Ontario cities and towns are represented.

The Committee finds that from 1904-5 to 1931, the population of the Province increased from 2,269,000 to 3,431,683, or approximately 50 per cent, while provincial expenditures over 970 per cent., which is a per capita increase of 612 per cent. From 1904-5 the per capita was $2.34; in 1918, $2.09; in 1930-1, $16.20. Between 1915 and 1931 (December) the cost of living went up 70 per cent. These figures do not make pleasant reading for the taxpayers.

Debt Service

Debt service (interest, retirement, etc.) jumped from approximately $240,000 in 1904-5 to $11,461,861 in 1930-1—a staggering increase of 4675%. Highways, roads, etc., rose $234,305 in 1904-5, and $6,175,213 in 1930-1—a 2632% jump. On health, public welfare and social services $1,170,440 was spent in 1904-5, and $13,912,764 in 1930-1—an increase of 1003%. The following is a tabulation of expenditures by the Province, under main classifications for 1930-1 compared with 1904-5.

	1930-1931	1904-1905	% of Increase 1930-1 1904-5
Activities and Functions	$ 3,752,352	$1,196,431	213%
Overhead Activities
Protection of persons and property (including corrective institutions)	4,313,586	638,526	575%
Health, public welfare and social services	13,912,764	1,170,440	1003%
Education	13,726,753	1,573,992	871%

How Average Man is Affected

"The average citizen," the Committee points out, "may not think that Provincial expenditures make much difference to him. Perhaps the only Provincial tax he pays is the gasoline tax, which he pays in small amounts and often without realizing that he is paying a tax. All public expenditures for current purposes, however, means taxation, and even if paid in the first instance by corporations, the burden is so distributed that nearly everyone in the Province and everyone who is interested in any concern which does business in the Province is a real Provincial taxpayer."

In endeavouring to co-operate with the government of Ontario, with a view to a sensible curtailment of expenditures, so that substantial reductions in taxation will follow in due course, the Ontario Committee has made the following recommendation:

1. That the personnel establishments of every department of government be studied forthwith by competent persons, and that the number of employees be reduced to the lowest number consistent with efficiency.

2. That Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, and other citizens generally second the efforts of Government and Legislature in economizing, by refraining on their part from demanding increased expenditures out of proportion to the increase in the ability of individuals to pay.

3. That, unless absolutely unobtainable in money in Canada, money outside of Canada and Great Britain.

4. That in any refunding operations which may be necessary, the rate of interest paid be considered with extreme care in the light of the needs of private industry and with which the income of Ontario citizens is connected.

5. That Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, and citizens generally second the efforts of Government and Legislature in economizing, by refraining on their part from demanding increased expenditures out of proportion to the increase in the ability of individuals to pay.

6. That in any refunding operations which may be necessary, the rate of interest paid be considered with extreme care in the light of the needs of private industry and with which the income of Ontario citizens is connected.

Individualization of Student Program in Modern Schooling

Schools where there are no fixed classrooms equipped with rigid desks, no examination sessions, and where pupil follows a course planned especially for his or her guidance rather than a classroom routine were described by Dr. Charles Bishop, principal of Alma College, in his interesting and informative address on "New Developments in Education" delivered at an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club held in John Street Church Hall, yesterday afternoon.

"Education like all other departments of life is going through important changes," said Dr. Bishop. "Some of the most significant of these are still under the surface and not yet apparent in our educational system. They are, however, destined to influence the system in the near future, so it is important to be informed about them."

Growth of these new processes has been going on for a generation in isolated places in America and Europe. More recently it has acquired the proportions of a movement within the educational world and has become known as the "Progressive Educational Movement" in America and in Europe as the "New Educational Fellowship". As to the word "new", Mrs. Eisner, the gifted secretary of the movement in Europe reminds one that it is really old, old as Plato and the New Testament. It is interesting to note the large place being taken by women in this movement, it is pioneered by women and when it eventually comes to pass its leaders will probably be women.

Dr. Bishop's interest in the movement began during his sabbatic year spent in New York at the Teachers' College of Columbia University where the new methods are being taught. Since then he has followed the movement with close and ever increasing interest.

The new methods all gather around the effort to enlist the will of the pupil. The importance of the will in the process of education has not been seen in the past. The will of the child will make or break a three general attitudes which grade off in varying degrees. These are the attitude of active desire, of passive indifference, and of protest or dislike. This attitude greatly affects the learning process of the child as shown by psychology in the formation of "bonds" and it is found that the most favorable bonds are developed when learning becomes a "project" of the pupil. Before going to school the child has been on projects in his many hours of amusement and follows them out, acquiring a great amount of knowledge and developing as a result of this. Dr. Bishop quoted Professor Kilpatrick's provocative statement "the child is then taken to school and whereupon his education ceases", meaning that in most cases the will of the child, which eagerly concentrates on projects, is at variance with routine teaching.

The project principle carried into formal schooling is the new method of education. Here it becomes "directed" as compared with the "aimless pre-school activities." This involves leaving to the whim of the child but directing it to a plan. The teacher's skill is shown in stimulating them to the project that becomes their own while at the same time directing their minds toward an arranged programme. As an illustration of this a child learning geography in a certain class following this plan was shown books and pictures, charts containing clippings and pictures, orderly arranged under subject matter and the child was eager to follow this plan, taking up regularly to complete a book on India. This made the geography study something of business, personal interest to the student.

The group is emphasized in the education theory, four or five children working together constantly on a co-operative project. The efforts of each individual become group activity and the child so learns to co-operate, adjust himself to others and to fit in with an organized scheme of things. This develops social and moral attitudes without which education is of a limited and doubtful value. So the personal and social sciences come to the front.

The phase of the education system is the individualizing of studies, providing for varying speed for varying abilities. It does away with class competitions and comparisons so that the pupil works to his own program and comparisons are with himself and the progress predicted. A large place is given to the creative or impressional activities, art, music, handicrafts, etc. These are of large educational value and yet are now treated as extras or frills. They usually have to give place to the demands of matriculation.

The method of testing progress is in a state of flux at the new system, and these new methods reveal the weakness of our long established examination system. This tests one type of knowledge and within one type of mind, it fails in testing practical abilities and attitudes. New forms of testing are being devised and some favor the abolishment of written examinations.

In concluding, Dr. Bishop reminded his hearers that these are the trends which will gradually emerge into our state systems and he expressed the hope that the information he had given would lead to the appreciation of the significance of these changes as they come and perhaps enable some to take some small part in their coming.

An informal discussion of the subject followed and that his hearers had followed the words of the speaker with keen attention was shown by the searching questions asked about other phases of the new system.

Mrs. E. R. Logie expressed the appreciation of the club for the wonderful lecture, after which tea was served.

The Prince of Wales became a film editor and censor when he edited a film covering various phases of his own life and cut the film from 50,000 feet to 6,000.

Guest Tea Held by Group Four of Tabernacle W.A.

Gay yellow daffodils and tall yellow candles in silver candelabra graced the tea table at the guest tea held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of Tabernacle church by the members of group number four of the Women's Association. The long, grouped tables in the hall was centred with daffodils, the colour scheme of green and yellow giving the place a springtime atmosphere.

Guests were received by Mrs. A. E. McCutcheon and Mrs. Frances A. Nicholson, convener of group four. Tea was presided over by Mrs. Sunshine and Mrs. Frank Adams and those who assisted in the serving were Mrs. Jacobson, Mrs. Henley, Mrs. Hairgrain, Mrs. Hoy, Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Wardner, Mrs. Ventress, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Goodfellow. The popular home economics table was in charge of Mrs. Weaver, Miss Embory and Miss Struthers while Mrs. S. Chester and Mrs. Kelley acted as treasurers for the tea.

A delightful interlude was the introduction of a well-arranged program. The numbers included a pleasing piano solo by Mrs. Florence Davis, enjoyable numbers by the ladies' trio, Mrs. Jacobson, Mrs. Druff and Mrs. Nicholson. Miss Helen Sullivan was heard in an amusing reading. The feature of the afternoon was a group of songs by the talented young Stirling soloist, Miss Bessie Conley. Miss Conley showed an appealing variety for her program and she was called again and again, so enchanted were the guests with her wonderful voice. Mrs. M. P. Duff acted as accompanist for the singing.

300 Women Take Part in Day of Prayer Service

For the past six years the first Friday in Lent has been set aside by the women of all Christian denominations, of all races and colors, as a world day of prayer. On this day all differences are forgotten as the groups meet in all parts of the world in intercession, beginning with the dawn in New Zealand, the "day" goes forty hours later in Honolulu.

Today, three hundred women representing eight denominations in the city gathered at Bridge street Church this afternoon to join in a period of prayer. The program, the same which is being used in some form by Christian women throughout the world, was prepared by Mrs. C. C. Chen, chairman of the National Committee of the Y.W.C.A. of China and a member of the executive committee of the National Christian Council of China. Mrs. Chen is a graduate of the University of Shanghai.

The leader of the service this afternoon was Miss Gill, who led the delegates from each church took part in the service. Mrs. A. P. Luff was a soliist during the service.

MANNISH TROUSERS TERMED AS RIDICULOUS

Palm Beach, Fla., March 3 (AP) —Mannish trousers for women were characterized as "ridiculous" by Mrs. Nathan B. Spingarn, New York clubwoman and social leader, style expert.

"Trousers do not add to the feminine charm a woman possesses," said the former customer of stage and society in fashioning costumes, "due to the new bifurcated garments, that are being advanced.

She does not think for any drastic fashion changes in the economic conditions get better.

"You can begin to tell when good times are coming," she said, "by the manner in which women dress."

Weddings

RICHMOND—STEWART

Edmonton, Alta., Mar. 3.—Of interest in Mounted Police circles as well as to a large number of friends was the wedding at Edmonton, Alberta of Effie Doran Stewart, daughter of Mr. Samuel Stewart, Prince Edward, Pa., to Constable Edward Crabbe Richmond, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Sunter, 113 Jasper Ave. W. C. G. Blanc performed the ceremony at eight o'clock under a cluster of wedding bells in the living room. The bride was stately in her gown of pale blue crepe satin with smart touque to match, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and valley lilies. She was attended by Miss Catherine McKenzie, whom were dawn toned pink satin with a tiny hat to match, and carried pink carnations. Sergeant W. M. Lawson, as best man, and the bridegroom were both in uniform, as were many of the guests.

There were about thirty-five in attendance.

Mrs. Emily Muttart played Mendelssohn's Wedding March and Miss Mary Muttart sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Mrs. Sunter and Mrs. Mary Peters, cousin of the bride, received with the bride and bridegroom following the ceremony. A buffet supper was served from the dining room, where the table was covered with a lace wedding cake on a mirror base wreathed in pink and white tulle. Full-blown double pink and white tulips were used on the table and throughout the house. Mrs. Lowell and Mrs. McKenzie presided over the tea cups and Miss Stone and Mrs. Sunter cut the ices. Assisting in serving were Miss Mary Peters, Miss Lillian McKenzie, Miss Helen Brown, Miss Hazel Turnbull, Miss Bertha Poole and Jack Currie and Little Annie McKenzie ushered the guests to the dining room. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold bracelet. Among the many lovely gifts was a beautiful chime clock from the R.C.M.P., with which both the bride and bridegroom have been connected.

Mr. and Mrs. Richmond left later on a short honeymoon, and will take up their residence in 112 street.—Edmonton Bulletin.

The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alexander, 218 Dundas street, and while in Belleville was on the staff of the income tax office.

QT. OF NAILS ARE FOUND IN OX'S STOMACH

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., March 3.—A pair of scissors, 10 inches in length and a quart of small stones were found in the stomach of an ox weighing 1,900 pounds, slaughtered by Theo Miville, Nicholet, Dufrisne and G. Milville. The scissors must have been lodged in the stomach for at least three years. The animal is reported to have been in good physical condition.

G. Mirville had a somewhat similar experience when slaughtering a cow last week. He found about three pounds of nails, a number of safety pins and collar buttons in the animal's stomach.

Holloway St. W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, of Holloway Street Church was held in the lesser room of the church on Wednesday, March 1st, with Mrs. Linton presiding. The meeting opened with all repeating the 23rd. Psalm, followed by the Hymn, 414, "Breathe on Me Breath of God." A few minutes of silent prayer. A duet "Pilgrims and Strangers" a reading was given by Mrs. Cordes. "The Call to Fellowship" was by Mrs. G. Hall. Mrs. Reddick of Trenton, gave a very inspiring address on "Prayer." Mrs. McArthur served a vote of thanks to Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Reddick, seconded by Mrs. Ward. Mrs. Hobbs closed the meeting with prayer. A social time was spent, tea being served by members of Group 3.

JOHN ST. W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of John Street United Church met in the lecture room on Wednesday, March 1st. The president, Mrs. Moore, presided. The meeting was opened with the call to worship and Hymn 148, "Breathe on Me Breath of God" and Miss Davis offered prayer.

After reports given by the secretaries and treasurer, Mrs. Robert Hall gave a full and alluring synopsis of the program "The Pearl of the Nations" in which every society, club, and group of the church is participating, and which is to be given for the Easter Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society at an early date.

Mrs. Moore read a very interesting letter from Miss Clarke who is a missionary in Japan, and asked the members to send Easter cards to her.

Mrs. Ferguson read an editorial from the New Outlook urging the parents to be on guard against the attempts of the Television League to tempt the young people to drink. Group leader Mrs. Archibald then took charge of the meeting and in the absence of Mrs. Sullivan conducted the devotional exercises, which were based on the beautiful and useful life of Dorcas—Acts 9: 36-43.

The subject for study "The Making of Canada" was found in chapter 2 of the Study Book, "His Dominion of Canada," and interesting and carefully prepared papers were read by Mrs. Archibald, "The Conquest of The Wilderness" by Mrs. Pine, "Ideals and Principles that have Become Constructive in the Making of Canada" and by Miss G. Hill, "Builders of the Dominion."

The meeting was closed with Hymn 5, "Come Thou Almighty King" and a closing prayer.

The president, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Boulter were appointed as delegates to the W.M.S. Presbyterial which is to be held in Trenton on March 24th and 25th.

WELLMAN'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Wellman's W.M.S. was held at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sauer with a large number in attendance. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. W. Dracup and a splendid program was enjoyed by all. All joined in singing the first number "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart" and Miss Grace Dayman offered a gracious prayer. The roll call was answered by Bible passages followed by singing "In the Garden". The Scripture lesson, Ephesians, fourth chapter, first fifteen verses, was read by the president and a short business meeting was then conducted. Miss Dayman gave an interesting talk on the subject "Is the Profit Motive In Industry Christian" and she dealt with profiteering at the expense of others. The Misses Etta and Faye Andrews sang a duet, "Lea In the Arbour". Mr. John Cogsins sang "Have Your Money When You're Young", Mrs. Atwood Johnson read a leaflet pointing out "How To Be a Man", and Mr. David Bell read another, "How To Be a Woman". Miss Olive McConnell rendered a piano solo "The Wedding of the Painted Doll". Closing hymn "Joy Bells" and all enjoyed a "green" contest.

On Monday evening Mr. Harry Brown refereed the game between West Huntingdon and River Valley juniors. Mr. George Wallace was goalie for River Valley seniors in their game.

Yesterday's rally fell to 54 for a loss of 18. Wright Hargreaves slipped back about 10, Lake Shore, Hollinger about 50 each and Dome and Hollinger a point each.

The base metal group were irregular, Nickel advanced fractionally to $7.10 to $8.75 when the New York market rallied and then slumped back to $8.50 at 4, mid-afternoon Noranda showed a 50 point drop to $23.50.

In the medium priced gold shares losses of 1-8 to 1-4 were generally noted. The silver stocks were quiet.

Bulge Came Suddenly in Second Hour of Trading

By Claude A. Jagger Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, March 3—A spectacular upward bulge in speculative markets took Wall Street by surprise today, and the pulse came quickly to the second hour of trading in the share market, and was soon over for the major part of activities ranging from 1 to more than a point were retained. Bonds also recovered, and wheat shot up more than 2 cents. The movement was interpreted in several quarters as reflecting the belief that with the inauguration of a new administration tomorrow, quick action would be taken designed to restore confidence.

Allied Chemical rose more than 4 points and United States Steel preferred nearly 3. Miscellaneous issues up 2 to 3 or more at the best included American Telephone, American Can, Santa Fe, Union Pacific Case, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, American Tobacco B, Pupont, Westinghouse, Penney, and Montgomery Ward.

DOLLAR GOES UP TWO CENTS

Canadian Currency at Highest Point in Two Months

New York, March 3 (CP)— The Canadian dollar jumped more than 1 1-2 cents to above 85 cents in today's foreign exchange markets, reaching the best level in more than two months.

Canadian banking representatives attributed the rise to a flow of American funds to Canada, evidently reflecting confidence in the Canadian banking system, which has been singularly free from difficulties in the past generation.

The upward tilting was also strong moving up from its opening quotations of 83.45 to 85.46 1-8, fractionally below the previous closing price and high.

Ivor Novello, Noted British Actor Lends Peculiar Atmosphere to Great Mystery Play

Angle-loft ——— Ivor Novello
Daisy Bumpus ——— Jane Baxter
Mr. Bunting-o ——— A. W. Baskcomb
Mrs. Bunting ——— Mary Brough
Joe Martin ——— Jack Hawkins
Detective Sergt. Bell ——— Clifford Heatherley

His daughter ——— Iris Ashley

Perfect pipelining, something new in motion pictures, is the claim backed by the perfection of acting by that brilliant figure of the modern art world, Ivor Novello musician, composer and actor and photography which brings clearly the spectator the peculiar atmosphere of London, make "The Lodger" one of the greatest films ever shown in Belleville. Thursday afternoon and evening at the Capitol Theatre large audiences were kept in a thrill of suspense until the very close but all the time they were seeing and hearing one of the greatest love stories of modern screen fiction. It is the last word in art.

It is a mystery play and contains all the thrills of a mystery but it is not necessary to know about the mysteries are. The study of the London Northern is the place where attendance for every character is rounded out to the finest expression. All the men and women one meets up the street or in the homes of London, Piccadilly is the individual scenes are so closely linked together that the film seems to depend upon that there is no stair of artificiality about it. The only evidence feels that this is a real cross section taken out of life, not a scene staged for the camera.

The great central appeal of course is the mystery, a mystery of murderous personality who is swept into a fury of blood lust by a beautiful girl in spite of scenes of tragedy to the final marriage. Ivor Novelly has given the part all the skill he has and it is a pity that more of this brilliant actor's work is not put into the films for he possesses the personality and the gift of impersonating personality to the audience. Despite the suggestions of circumstance, he is the hero and he holds pathy of the audience and the mystery of his identity is finally solved by Scotland Yard fail to detract from the sympathy in the study for No Belleville movie habitue should miss the night of this brilliant young man in his second film. The atmosphere of mysticism he throws around him, his skill as a musician of rare gifts, and a composer and the suggestion of tragedy in his most lovely melodies and harmonies heard on a screen as he plays on the piano.

Besides the mystical atmosphere which he creates there is a touch of reality from the other players. Jane Baxter, the blonde English actress in the love scenes. A. W. Baskcomb as Mr. Bunting-o, Mary Brough as Evens; makes a capital mother who is worried, Jack Hawkins makes a good Joe Martin as the detective. Wills sets the court laughing as she tells Bunting-o that he has taught her she caught a glimpse of was of an "apocalyptic sandwich." The rest of the cast is of high class.

The film is just what one expects of a British production, a perfection of art, distinction and character.

THE BELLE PRESENTS "THE FLAG LIEUTENANT" AN ENGLISH PICTURE

"A classic of the English contemporary theatre," such is a fitting description of "The Flag Lieutenant," the play by Gilbert Frankau, Gerald and Major Leon Trevor, upon which the British production company starring Henry Edwards is based, and which will be presented at the Belle tone offering at the Belleville tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The play is largely drawn from Lieut.-Col. Gerald Trevor's experience in the Marine service, was first produced by Sir Gerald Du Maurier in 1908, twenty-six years ago and ran for nearly four hundred performances, with Cyril Maude in the party of Dicky Lascelles.

Eight years later, the "Flag Lieutenant" was revived at the Aldwych and Sir Theodore Cook's Gaiety Theatre in the leading role, and once again it was a great success, the play achieving nearly two hundred performances.

Twelve years later came the silent film which is now presented, serving as the happy-go-lucky Lieutenant, and supported by Lillian Oldham. It proved to be one of the most successful British pictures ever made, and was a great favorite in imitation at the Marble Arch Pavilion, with Madge Stuart and Guy Newall and Queen, Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles (now the Earl of Harewood.)

So successful, indeed, was this picture that Henry Edwards subsequently appeared in another, "The Further Adventures of the Flag Lieutenant," in which a later episode of the life of Lascelles, Edwards was set forth. This again was well received.

Now the dramatic patriotic play which became the subject of a talkie, with its popular star, Henry Edwards, once more filling his famous role, and with the added talkie it is made even more thrilling by the addition of sound—actual sound—of the battle scenes is heightened a hundred-fold. Indeed, it is hard to realize at that "The Flag Lieutenant" has just been transformed into its present form, so perfect is the synchronization of sound and the spoken word is wedded to the stories of the characters thus giving full scope to the subject of "The Flag Lieutenant."

Carnera-Scharf Boxing Films

Grover Whalen, head of the exclusive exhibition of the pictures of the Primo Carnera-Ernie Scharf boxing contest, has presented a very special extra attraction with "The Flag Lieutenant" at the Belleville theatre at the Arena tonight. The largest crowd of the year is on hand to see O.H.L.A. game in Belleville is expected to crowd into the local "Ice Palace" this evening.

Early evening afternoon Manager Joe Sheriff of the Belleville Kil-Y Juveniles was informed, that last night's juvenile game in Gananoque would have to be postponed owing to the lack of ice at the island town. Belleville has a team in the Eastern Ontario Juvenile League have three games yet to play. They meet Gananoque at home and home game series and have to go to Gananoque for a return tilt. In the local Kil-Y League the Belleville Collegiate team of the Holy Name Society team in a juvenile fixture at the Arena this afternoon. Secretary Sheriff is expecting one or more Kil-Y League games a night on Tuesday and Thursday of next week.

Albert "Toots" Holway of the London, Ontario Senior O.H.A. International Hockey League must have been laying on the hickory of late, judging by the effort he put in a game following his third major operation. Holway and the Tecumseh were without his services against the Cleveland club this week.

We forgot to mention a charitable act performed by Ernest LaPain local trucker. Following Wednesday night's basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Howard backed one of his large transports up to the door and had the boys load into the Air Force on a ride home. No mention need be made of the fact that the appreciation shown by the boys, as there were fully fifty of them present and the "lift" saved them a long walk, incidentally about $78.00 was realized at the basketball game that night.

While on the subject of leatherpushers we observe that the illustrated Sunday supplement is being shown at the Belle Theatre over the week end. The showing of these pictures will be of special interest currently about the city an opportunity to see the difference between by what did happen previous to, and during the talkie. Local School Board received the blow, which subsequently resulted in his untimely death.

Fight lovers all over town are all agog over the bouts at the City Hall the other night. First out of the ring they want to see a return bout between Geo. Seward and Frederick Vancouver and the fans also would like to see Mc-Coll, who made such an impressive debut in the ring, matched circle with some other good lad., Owing to the fact that Mr. Vancouver "Kid" outweighs Seward by nearly twenty pounds, it would be a heavier local militiaman placed in against him. If Scotty Kline could be induced to come out of retirement he should be able to give "The Kid" a real argument, while Art Angell would be another suitable opponent. Both matches would be a real draw well, matched against a clever boxer like Seward or be a clever clog master himself. At any rate it appears, that the fight lovers in Belleville are hungry for their line of sport just now.

Evidently last night's soccer intersch olastic game at Madoc, where the Marmora H. S. team defeated the Madoc aggregation by a score of 4 to 1 was no pink tea party. Four fistic encounters ensued while the ice was literally covered with water and more fit for water polo etc., than hockey. Coach Sheik is endeavoring to have the return game early next week.

Pricsts of Moscow are to be exempt from the present drive by the Soviet authorities to expel certain people from the overcrowded cities.

Marmora Students Obtain 3 Goal Lead Over B.C.I. Score 4-1

Game Played on Wretched Ice And Many Fights Occur

Madoc, March 3 (Special)—In a terrific interscholastic hockey contest which at times threatened to turn into a Donnybrook, Marmora High School defeated the B.C.I. aggregation in the first game of a two game series, goals to count, for group title at Madoc on Thursday night by a score of 4 to 1 and on the play was deserving of the win. The second game will be played in Belleville on the same ice next week, the winner of the two to enter the C.O.S.S.A. play-offs. The ice was in terrible condition, there being fully a half inch of water on the surface which turned into a heavy slush after being churned about and each player carrying was almost an impossibility. Frayed nerves were in evidence more than once as an outburst occurred between the players of the different teams, the referee being unable to cope with the situation. There were also attempts to postpone the game was fairly good in spots. Fifteen penalties were handed out during the pastime of which two were of five minutes, the result of a fight in the second period.

Stewart Opens Scoring

Stewart was the opening scorer for Marmora in the first two minutes of play. Marmora kept pressing this way through the entire team to the finishing whistle, Stewart with the fenceman practically clinched the pastime when he raced from end to end of the ice. Belleville seemed to find their one shot on the Marmora goal in this period, but this was the backchecking in this period being churned about and each player carrying was almost an impossibility. Knocks and Boosts

Right here and now we wish to again say and all rumors, that have been circulated around this city for the past forty eight hours relative to the non-appearance of the local Dalhertys during tonight's game are entirely unfounded. Mase Rigby, who was ordered to remain in bed until Monday at least, Bill Sherry, Ossie and Lovett have been nursing bad cases of influenza but will definitely be out of the ice tonight.

Many rumors of a rather unsavoureable nature have been spread around this city relative to the flat shiftiness of Bill Sherry and donning a uniform tonight. Well, this morning at 9, personally, visited Bill Sherry's residence and found he had still nursing a bad cold. Despite the fact that Bill is also alleged to be the best of coaches Bill assured me that he would be on the ice for the benefit of locals everything he had tonight. It is pretty safe to assume that there have been no prevalent of late are test sportsmen now or ever in this city community, that sponsors sport. It is beyond human conception that there have been such and sundry, circulate so fast in a town the size of Belleville in the short time as time. At any rate Manager Dalherty announced last night that his team would be intact and he predicted victory, on the round for his charges

From what information we could gather we find that the "Hog-Town" aggregation will bring up three or four outstanding players. Thompson carries the bulk of the burden on the defensive while MacPherson and Herbie Gibbs are by far the best of the forwards. Charlie Good, who incidentally played in Belleville, Peterboro and Cobs in an exhibition game two seasons ago with the Belleville Bees is reported to be the best of the alternates to be tossed over the boards by Manager Herb Mason. (We don't know whether he is of the team of Mineca and Apollo or not.) Hesshaw has the name of being a steady goalie up in the Toronto Mercantile loop.

At the present rate of distribution the reserve seat sections will hang until the S.R.O. sign long before game time, according to Manager Lowell Scott, good seats are left, however, and will be placed on sale at the Arena tonight. The largest crowd of the year is on hand to see O.H.L.A. game in Belleville is expected to crowd into the local "Ice Palace" this evening.

Canadiens Come from Behind to Beat Maple Leafs 4-3 and Tie Amerks for Third Place

Players Settle Feuds of Year in Last Meeting of Teams

HAWKS WIN

Red Wings Also Out Farther in Front by Victory

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Hockey's pepper-pots, its most flamboyant warriors and twice its champions in the last three years, Canadiens of Montreal scrambled into the semi-finals of National League play-off arena today for a main bout with the New York Americans.

Canadiens, just a graying shadow of the French forces of old a month ago, reached the feature bout clinching their berth with a sensational 4-3 triumph over the Maple Leafs in the second within three days. They raked the Leafs with deadly fire after Harvey Jackson had given the onto into a lead in the first period, scoring a goal in the second and two more in the third to earn the decision.

Tied with Amerks

The victory lifted Canadiens into a tie for third place in the Canadian group with Americans, who had fumbled a chance to keep ahead by losing to Chicago Black Hawks 3-2. And these events prepared the way for a duel between the two at Montreal Saturday night where the last play-off berth in the section will be at stake.

Ten thousand Montreal followers of the Dandurand Frenchmen watched as thrilling a struggle between Canadiens and Leafs as they are likely to come across in a season. They saw Jackson, the former kid-like sniper, who was the league's highest scorer last year, drive in two goals in the first period, that gave Toronto a commanding lead before Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat joined in a mad rush for counter goals.

Howie reduced the Leaf margin before the end of the first session and Je sided Joliat in scoring the tying goal late in the second. The boys spent a great deal of the middle period in fixing up personal business. The Leafs winning at this sideline by such a margin that Lorne Chabot was twice as busy in his cage as George Hainsworth at the other end.

King Clancy and Charlie Conacher drew major penalties in this period for fleetfooting with Leo Bourgeault and Sylvio Mantha. Bourgeault getting one too. Jackson and Pit Lepine were awarded five-minute sentences in the third frame for high sticking each other.

Wilder Larochelle and Joliat scored for Canadiens in the third period and Bob Gracie's goal on a pass from Jackson was the only comeback.

Black Hawks Win

Americans got the jump on Chicago when Johnny Sheppard scored in the first two minutes of play but for the rest of the ragged contest the Black Hawks held the upper hand. Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes pushed in a pair immediately after the Sheppard tally and Johnny Gottselig served it up in the third period. Rooney Martin got the second counter for Chicago.

Detroit Red Wings scored a victory that was important to themselves over Montreal Maroons 3-2. It came them a three-point lead over the New Yorkers and a chance for first place in the United States section.

After Larry Aurie and Ebbie Goodfellow had tallied in the first period, Senators made a fight of it. Bill Touhey reduced the margin with the only counter of the period and session but Herbie Lewis made it 3-1 in the third period and Syd Howe's belated goal served only to give Ottawa fandom a good fright.

TECUMSEHS TIED WITH BUFFALO FOR LEAD

Tie Olympics in Detroit and Stars in Cleveland

Toronto, March 3 (CP)—Londo Tecumsehs' total scoring record on Detroit ice has been troubled today but this achievement was productive of only one point in the league standings—sufficient, however, to enable them to tie Buffalo Bisons at the top of the International Hockey League.

Prior to last night's 2-2 tie with Olympics, Teq had been able to dent the nets in the huge Olympia only once in three games this season, two of which they lost, the other a 1-1 tie.

Syracuse took a turn at walloping the scoreless tie between the Cleveland Indians at Syracuse last night and picked up one of the two points they lost to Tecumsehs on Tuesday. Cleveland, as usual, was a tough morsel to down, forcing the Stars to come from behind on two occasions before acknowledging defeat, by a 5-3 score.

An ingenious political superstition that prevents sole ge is that buying her states prevent war.

STAGE IS SET FOR BIG GAME

Dohertys Optimistic of Defeating St. Columbas on Round

With the appointing of Joe Smith of Kingston as referee the stage is all set for tonight's (Friday) big Toronto St. Columbas at Belleville Arena. The game sees both clubs entering into the second round of the Intermediate O.H.A. play-downs both having disposed of previous group winners. The Queen City aggregation put the fast Aurora H.C. out of competition, while the local crew and white clad team beat the tough Peterboro H.C. in two hard fought games.

The visitors from Toronto will be at full strength while the Dudley-managed outfit will be minus the services of Mase Rigby, who incidentally will be replaced by Harry Olbert, who played two stellar games for the Doherty's in the recent Campbellford-Belleville series. The possible lineups for tonight's tilt will be found elsewhere.

Before taking to the ice Manager Dudley announced that the locals seemed quite optimistic over their possibilities of winning the series. The entire personnel of the club were given a short talk by Coach Carroll in the dressing room last night following a light workout, when but a few of the locals took to the ice.

"Chuck" Good, star centre player for the St. Columbs A.C. is the only player on the Toronto roster to ever have appeared in Belleville before. Good made his initial appearance as a pro-hiker as it being played at the Belleville Arena on Monday night and the members of Intermediate hockey in Toronto will announce tonight the time and place of the second meeting but in all probability it will be Belleville. The team winning this round will step into the semi-finals for the Intermediate championship of the O.H.A.

HAMILTON PATS WIN 1ST GAME

Oshawa Maroons Drop First Game in Three Game Series 3-1

Raied by their followers as on 2 par with the more powerful Tigers, the Patricias, Hamilton's senior "B" entry, have set sh example today for the "A" team, by getting the jump on Oshawa Maroons in the title series.

Whereas Tigers face a two-goal deficit in their second semi-final game with Port Colborne tonight, Patricias have a one-game lead in the best two-of-three-game series as a result of a 3-2 win over Maroons in the Motor City last night. A win for Pats Monday on their home ice will give them the title.

Tonight Peach Blows one-time intermediate champions, dropped from the ranks in 1931 and 1932 when they lost a 3-1 decision to Oakville Blues, meet last night. It was the third engagement between the two sextetes. The score on the round at the end of the second game being 3-3. The winners meet Port Dalhousie in next round.

"The Bushes" in Tie For Third Place For Scoring Honors in N.H.L.

(By the Canadian Press)

Harvey Jackson, Toronto Maple Leaf left winger, who led National hockey league scorers last season, was within striking distance of the leaders today as he rushed to the finish line with a succession of goals and assists.

Bill Cook, veteran New York Ranger wingman led pointmakers of both divisions with 39—only four more than the Leaf star, who was tied for third place with Baldy Northcott of Montreal Maroons. Paul Haynes was second with 37.

Queen Victoria Grads Last Year Champs Taken 1 to 0

George Bostmark's lone tally in the second period was the only combination play assisted by Mayette gave the O.S.D. Juniors their first win of the season in the local junior section of the O.H.A. League over the last years champions, Queen Victoria "Grads" led by Edgar Bateman in the game, 1 to 0.

The game was a typical one to nothing affair with both teams battling to the last ditch. Eddie Lays with his veteran team of last year to win the game the previous night, while Dickson and McShane looked the best of the alternates. Wonnacott and Meloche proved a stone-wall defence in front of Rudychuck with the ultimate result that the Grads' were recipient of the well known "white-wash brush" in the scoring column.

For the Bateman-managed crew of ex-Queen Victoria School pupils, Don Ridley was by far the best, as a matter of fact Ridley looked to be about the best performer on the ice. Time and again he raced in on Rudychuck only to have the O.S.D. goalie out-guess him. Art Stewart in the nets for the losers also turned in a stellar performance. Pepper and Carkeyy were the best of the alternates used. Manager Bateman was minus the services of Carl Morgan, Cy Berriage and Mase Rigby, who not only played with the team this year but were eligible to perform for the "Grads" had they not played O.H.A. hockey.

The line-ups:

O.S.D.—goal, Rudychuck; defence Wonick and Meloche; centre Bostnarl; wings Mayette and Burle; subs. Harrison, Dickson, McShane and Richardson.

Q. V. S. Grads—goal Stewart; defence Nunn and Muir; centre Ridley; wings O. Pepper and Carkeyy; subs McCrory, Hammet and W. Pepper.

A LIFT AND A LINE

by Ann Meredith

The last days of summer, mused Winthrop Hyde, crumbled away through the persistent, beating rain. What a farewell! Summer should have worn a more beautiful memory of a perfect day ideally spent. Instead, the weather was disgusting; his final quarrel with Julie, his sweetheart until this morning, was hardly a pleasant memory; and driving around with no destination in view because he just had to keep moving was, in his opinion, no way at all to spend a day.

Hyde was directly behind a street car when he saw a girl cross forward, with a transfer in her hand just in time to miss it. What a chance—in this weather! Hyde stopped his car.

"Hop in!" he asked.

The girl nodded negligently but pleasantly. "It'd rather pay."

"But it's raining too hard for you to walk. I promise I won't bite."

"I realize that," the girl conceded. What a nice girl she was, Hyde thought; just the opposite of Julie was: blonde and petite where Julie was brunette and statuesque; sweet and soft-classed—too bad, he thought, that she was pretty. Now, beautiful as Julie certainly was.

"If I may see your credentials," he urged with a hand moving to his inside jacket pocket.

The girl laughed, sweetly and softly to confirm Hyde's surmising her up. "I suppose you want to be sure they come."

"Then why not hop in?"

She hesitated for one more minute. "I'll ride," she decided and stepped in beside him.

"Where to?"

"I won't take you out of your way. How far are you going?"

"As far as you want me to. I'm just wandering about loose to pass some time away. I'm very glad for company."

"Well, you can take me to Wilson Avenue," she spoke she never, moved played with her transfer, folding and unfolding it.

"O.K." That would make a nice long drive; would give them enough time to get acquainted—or more. "Is that where you live?" he asked after a block or two.

"No," she smiled. "I'm bound for a friend's house—and I'm half an hour late so far."

"Have you many friends?"

"One never has too many, they say." She glanced at him sidewards with another smile. Queer, Hyde thought, no two of her smiles are alike; all of them are charming but not in quite the same way.

"Would it be too presuming to suggest a friendship between us so early in our acquaintance?"

"Rather." Frank of her, Hyde told himself, watching still another smile form. "Let's see: Monday—"

"Then let's get better acquainted—to make friendship between us perfectly natural."

"How?"

"Would you tell me your name, Miss Winthrop Hyde."

"I'm Henrietta Parker, and everyone calls me Jill."

"Where's the connection?"

She laughed. "One day my brother Jack fell and broke his crutch, only it was the ankle—and I stood tumbling after."

They laughed and immediately Hyde felt he knew her better.

"What's step number two?" she asked.

"Tell me a little about yourself and I'll tell you something about me," he suggested.

"I'm a poor working girl who tries to stay street clothes by the way. I've wasted seven perfectly good pennies: I rode only four blocks and expected to go the rest of the way on this"—holding up the folded transfer—"to get my money's worth."

"And?"

"There really isn't much to tell. I'm city born and city bred, middle-class, and I'm twenty-two years old."

"I'm a salesman," Hyde confided in exchange. "My girl just gave me the air five hours ago—I'm not responsible for that. I've cash to spare, no ambition—but I'm beginning not to be sorry."

"Would you call me sympathetic?"

"We're well enough acquainted not for you to tell me where and when I can see you again, aren't we?" Hyde asked after a pause.

Henrietta shook her head. That's out of the question.

"Why?" She was surprised. They had been getting along perfectly.

"I'm not free, you see."

"I know it. I think you'd make a perfect friend to me."

"Impossible!"

"Not at all!"

"It is. The moment I consent to seeing you, you'll think you're not the first one who 'picked' me up; you'll think it's a daily habit."

"But I know I am. I can see you're the respectable type who always meets men properly. You know as well as I that we can't say good-bye just like that. After all we did decide to become friends."

"But I thought you were kidding," she cried, distressed.

"I never was more in earnest."

"I don't know what to do now."

"Say you'll allow me to come."

Henrietta hesitated, deliberately. "All right," she said at last slowly. "When? Where?" he asked eagerly.

"You suggest when; I'll say where."

"Tomorrow?"

Henrietta laughed. "That's too soon."

"Day after tomorrow?" Hyde persisted.

"Well—all right."

"Where?"

"You can call for me at—Jackson boulevard—at about 8:00 P.M."

"That's your full address?" Hyde asked, repeating it.

"Of course not," she asked that been handing you a line, do you?" Henrietta half-laughed, looking into his eyes earnestly.

"Of course not! I asked that question without thinking."

All too soon they arrived at Wilson Avenue. Or they would need again within two days.

"At noon," she said, dropping the tattered transfer as she stepped out.

Winthrop Hyde watched her disappear from sight. Then he picked up the transfer—to keep as a sort of souvenir of The Beginning. He smoothed it out. His eyes fell on the date: September 16—three days ago!

"You don't think I've been handing you a line, do you?" he quoted Henrietta—or whatever her name really was—softly but grimly. "No, not much!" Then he crumbled the transfer up and threw it away.

Son of the Gods

by Rex Beach

Their patience was rewarded in due time. Even Officer Dunne, a seasoned member of the local police squad, detected in the character's generosity for Lee Ying sent a servant out on the streets in search of him. Then left his important quarters long enough to present the patrolman with a bottle of hutchinowa and to offer him, with a ceremony that engaged both hands, a bowl of boiled rice wine.

The policeman was loath to take the money, but he accepted the wine readily enough. "Here's health to your son," he said, lifting the cup high. "As fine a baby as ever I saw. May he never know bad health bad luck or bad company and grow up to be even half the man his father is."

The Chinaman bowed and beamed.

"My wife and I are thankful that Heaven sent him to us and we rejoice that the sorguies are favorable for his future. The signs and portents point to great riches and much luck."

"You're certainly giving him a grand start. Why, like Chin Ching New Year, all but the Firecrackers. Well, every diskinding ought to be a high-Rolls, to my way of thinking."

"Yes. He is our first born, our best, our only son. Our joy is overwhelming."

"Eh-sy!" The policeman stayed incredulously. "Ain't you going to adopt him? Why, I'm liable to get in trouble."

"We shall not adopt him, for he is ours. It would be an affront to the beneficent powers who laid him in our arms."

"Bich, man dear! Anybody can tell he's not a Chinese kid....I figgered it was a great break for him to be adopted by a rich man like you; a lot better than a foundlings home. Those kids never amount to anything. But—I'm supposed to report such things."

"You look at it through West-tern eyes, we through eyes of deeper understanding. He is a gooding, a boy from the azure sky, but his flesh has been made our flesh, his blood our blood.

"He may be a Chinese at that," Dunne admitted, after consideration. "Anyhow, he looks pretty much alike. But suppose he ain't. Suppose he grows up to be a bad egg?"

"It is of more importance to consider how he will think, how he will act, how he will live, in view of his celestial origin is it reasonable to expect him to look like other boys. No. He shall be reared like the superior being he is."

"That's all right, too." Dunne said unconvinced, and with misgivings. In his mind, "but you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

"Heredity! A myth of the Occident." Lee Ying dismissed the subject with a wave of his loose sikken sleeve. "We Chinese are old in wisdom. The perfection of a vase lies not in the potter's clay but in the craft of the artist who fashions it and in the skill of the glazier. A son from the clouds has come to us, my life shall be devoted to rearing him in the likeness of a princeling. I have meditated: I have no fear."

No doubt there were some reidents of San Francisco's Chinatown who considered it strange that a son had come to a couple so old as Lee Ying and his wife and who therefore exchanged gossip on the subject, but, if so, they were too polite or too politic to permit their words to reach the imperial ears.

For that matter sons are not secmly subject for talking among Lee Ying's people: lacking a boy of his own he would have been expected to adopt one out of regard for his family line. Ancestral worship and respect for the family as a social integer has induced the Chinese to carry adoption to extremes, so that any other people would consider extreme. Sons are adopted to act for their new parents as commercial agents. Children of poor parents are purchased for adoption and, upon occasion, kidnappers make a profit from the sale of stolen children.

So I was that his friends and well wishers entered heartily into the celebration, before described, when the baby received his "book name". Lee Sam, and its head was shaved. They expressed themselves as hopeful of joining in the ceremonies attendant upon the commencement of the boy's studies, when he would receive his "book name", and still later, at the time of his marriage, when he would be presented with his "great name". Soon it was forgotten that his arrival had been attended by circumstances in any wise unusual.

Little Sam was a pretty and a beguiling infant, he was plump and dimpled, his limbs were straight, his eyes were black and shiny, he laughed more often than he cried. He developed rapidly, too. Who ever heard of an ordinary mortal with a tooth at three months of age? Little Sam had two, as while as rice kernels.

Lee Ying became daily more attached to his son and to the heart-hungry Pan Yi, the years fell away from her and she bloomed into a girl again. She made frequent thank offerings to the various deities, delighting not even the temple priest, and she gave expensive presents to her friends, assuming a new importance not only in their eyes but also in the eyes of her own servants by reason of her motherhood.

How good that home was became more apparent as time went on. Only the finest foods were given to the child and they were prepared with the highest skill: his garments were of rich materials and they were embroidered with royal insignia, his toys were numerous and expensive, upon the left shoulder of his baby button of a Mandarin of the first rank.

When the time came for Sam to commence his studies he was not sent to school. a Chinese tutor was engaged for him and his education was begun in the time-honored, orthodox manner, which is to say that a book was put into his chubby hands—an impoding work the introductory statement in which read, "men at their birth are by nature radically good." This entire volume Sam was forced to memorize.

Hour after hour, day after day, week after week, he repeated, parrot-like, the sentences of his tutor until he could lisp them without an error. Page upon page of characters he listlessly traced in total ignorance of their meaning, book after book he learned by rote. He was taught the names of the thousands of arbitrary Chinese word signs, a few years later in itself, and in time their significance was made known to him. Not until then did his studies begin to hold interest.

Sam had his occasional holidays, of course: on the birthdays of the gods or during religious festivals his father took him by the hand and led him out upon the streets where he could stare owl-eyed at all the entrancing sights. New Year was the most glorious time of all for them. Sam among other things, Sam went with Lee Ying to pay his New Year's calls and to receive his presents from his friends.

He had no contact whatever with things American, his mind was trained in the Oriental school. He was thoroughly Chinese.

Pan Yi ascended the dragon when Sam was eleven years old and he mourned for her as sincerely as did his honorable father. The next year Lee Ying moved to New York.

This change was prompted partly by grief and partly in order that the importer might the better attend to his eastern store which was steadily growing in importance. So, at least, Lee Ying declared. In reality there was another reason for his going. Sam was growing to look more and more like a Son of the Gods, that is to say, he was growing to look less and less like a Chinese boy.

LOCAL BANKS QUOTE AT PAR U.S. CURRENCY

NO U. S. CHEQUES

U. S. Visitors in London, England, Almost "Broke"

With all banks in the city today refusing to cash United States cheques and quoting United States currency at par, little money was being sent from this district to the "other side". Local bankers gave as the reason for the refusal to cash cheques and refusal to pay premiums on American currency, the unsettled conditions of finance now present in the United States and the closing of Wall Street.

London, March 4 (AP)—Numerous United States visitors were thoroughly broke today because the banks were not dealing in American dollars.

Hotels, tourist agencies and some banks were accommodating those needing money, however. One west-end hotel was quoting a rate of 4.80 for pounds a per with the understanding that the hotel will return the balance if less than 4.80 is quoted again. By this device Americans are paying about 4.80 more for the pound than at yesterday's quotation.

Lloyds expressed confidence that the United States will not be forced off the gold standard. It offered the odds of about 5 to 1 that America will still be on gold at the end of January against abandonment of the gold standard from that date was quoted at 21 per cent.

SALARY CUT OF MINISTERS

Premier Henry's Salary Reduced $3,425 For 1 Year

Toronto, March 4—Official announcement of increased reductions in Civil Service salaries, effective from March 1, was made yesterday by Premier Henry, following a Cabinet Council at his residence, at which he was confined by illness.

A saving to the province of over $1,000,000 annually will result from the salary cuts, which, added to other reductions put into effect for a part of last year the government's current approximately $400,000 but the latest cuts are more drastic.

The new schedule replaces the scale of deductions which has been operative since January 1, 1932, and only will the Queen's Park staff be affected. The staff of the province of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, the Liquor Control Board and even the University of Toronto will, in turn, it is understood, come under its application, as follows:

Five per cent. up to and including $1,000; 10 per cent. on amounts over $1,000 and up to $2,000; 12½ per cent. on amounts over $2,000 and up to $3,000; 15 per cent. on amounts over $3,000 and up to $4,000; 20 per cent. on amounts over $4,000 and up to $5,000; 25 per cent. on amounts over $5,000 and up to $6,000; 35 per cent. on amounts over $6,000.

Under this graded pyramiding system, a salary of $4,000 a year or $2,000 will lose $50 on his first thousand dollars and $100 on his second thousand, for a total cut of $150.

The reduction in a Cabinet Minister's salary of $10,000 will amount to $3,425. The total saving in the initial cut is spread evenly over his 12 monthly pay cheques.

Premier Henry takes a cut of $5,000 on his salary of $14,000, and will in future receive $10,515 per annum. Hon. J. L. Cooke, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, who receives $18,000 under the old scale, will, under the lopped off his salary, making it $13,175.

National Leadership is Demand of Present Hour

Roosevelt Sworn in as President of United States

SCENE AT CHURCH

Streets Thronged as Chief Executive Drives to Capitol

By Byron Price
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, March 4 (AP) — Heartened by the cheers of many thousands and the resolute expectancy of millions far away, Franklin D. Roosevelt was ushered today to the office of the thirty-second of United States Presidents.

As he set out on his momentous travels; after a morning of conference on the eventful banking decisions he made his first stop at the little "Church of the Presidents" for an hour of prayer with the members of his family and his cabinet.

Pathway to Capitol

From that short service, his pathway led to the capitol where he calls of responsibility, with a brief intervening stop at the White House and a ride up Pennsylvania Avenue beside Herbert Hoover.

For the outgoing President it was goodbye to the White House and cheering thousands on the streets. He had encouraged to leave Washington directly from the capitol.

After the Inaugural ceremonies on the capitol plaza, an old-fashioned inaugural parade had the centre of the stage for a full afternoon.

Called To Power.

Washington, Mar. 4 (AP)—A new leader of the people, heir to responsibilities such as few other United States Presidents have known, was called to power to-day in an historical setting high in colorful pageantry and electrified by momentous expectations.

A realization of epochal change, of decisions soon to be made, ran everywhere through the throng which had come to welcome Franklin D. Roosevelt in the hour of his destiny, and give farewell greeting to Herbert Hoover as he passed from the scene of his defeat.

Surging Crowds.

Already occupied with those same problems, Mr. Roosevelt came to his inauguration day after hours of conference, including a long talk late yesterday with Mr. Hoover. Word had passed around that he planned in new steps to deal with the bank difficulties were in the making; that the new congress would be called together much sooner than expected, possibly at once.

To all of this stirring of expectancy

Highlights on U.S. Banking Crisis

New York, March 4 (AP)—Markets throughout the United States were closed today in an almost every State a bank holiday was declared or restrictions put in effect.

Illinois and Kansas city (Stock Exchanges remained closed, along with New York and the Chicago Board of Trade.

A Senator, close to the President's administration, said a 30 per cent guarantee of bank deposits has been seriously discussed today by President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt.

Western Union Telegraph Co. announced today that due to the emergency it is limiting all interstate messages to 100 words to the United States to $100."

WILL ARREST GOVERNOR

Pelping, March 4 (AP)— Marshal Chang Hsue-Liang issued an order today for the arrest of Tang Yu-Lin, Governor of Jehol province, on a charge of desertion.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Washington, Mar. 4 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's Inaugural address follows:

"I am certain that my fellow Americans expect that on my inauguration day I will address them with a candor and a decision, which the present situation of our nation impels.

"This is pre-eminently the time to speak the truth, the whole truth, frankly and boldly, nor need we shrink from honestly facing conditions in our country today. This great nation will endure as it has endured, will revive and will prosper. So first of all let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself—nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance.

EXPECTS SUPPORT.

"In every dark hour of our national life a leadership of frankness and vigor has met with that understanding and support of the people themselves, which is essential to victory. I am convinced that you will again give that support—to leadership in these critical days.

"In such a spirit on my part and on yours we face our common difficulties. They concern, thank God, only material things. Values have shrunken to fantastic levels, taxes have risen; our ability to pay has fallen; government of all kinds is faced by serious curtailment of income; the means of exchange are frozen in the currents of trade; the withered leaves of industrial enterprise lie on every side; farmers find no markets for their produce; the savings of many years in thousands of families are gone.

"More important, a host of unemployed citizens face the grim problem of existence, and an equally great number toil with little return. Only a foolish optimist can deny the dark realities of the moment.

"Our greatest primary task is to put people to work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. It can be solved in part by direct recruiting by the government itself, treating the task as we would treat the emergency of a war, but at the same time, through this employment, accomplishing greatly needed projects to stimulate and reorganize the use of our natural resources.

"Hand in hand with more direct action, we must frankly recognize the overwhelming importance of the practical use of the means of exchange. Trade cannot be revived without credit, the recognized agency of trade. I shall spare no effort to restore sound banking conditions as a basic need of our business life. Banks which are sound will be encouraged to resume their functions at once.

"There must be an immediate increase in the value of commodity dollar. The object sought will be determined by practical test. We must stop the destruction of the purchasing power of the country's users of goods.

"Closely related to this objective is the question of interest charges and debts. Some of these burdens must be lightened, others perhaps postponed, if we are to avoid the writing down of assets on a scale normally identified only with violent inflation.

"Our international trade relations though vastly important, are in point of time and necessity secondary. Reduction of international trade is a result, not a cause of our present position. Putting our own house in order is the first consideration, the basic step to recovery. I do not propose however that we shall neglect the interests of others. The good neighbor who resolutely respects himself and because he does so respects the rights of others—the good neighbor respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors.

MONEY-CHANGERS BLAMED.

"Primarily, this is because the rulers of the exchange of mankind's goods have failed through their own shortsightedness and their own incompetence, have admitted their failure and abdicated. Practices of the unscrupulous money changers stand indicted in the court of public opinion, rejected by the hearts and minds of men.

"True, they have tried, but their efforts have been directed to the patient use of accepted rules. Faced by failure of credit, they have proposed only the lending of more money. Stripped of the lure of profit by which to induce people to follow their false leadership, they have resorted to exhortations, pleading tearfully for restored confidence. They know only the rules of a generation of self-seekers. They have no vision, and when there is no vision the people perish.

"The money-changers have fled from their high seats in the temple of our civilization. We may now restore that temple to the ancient truths. The measure of the restoration lies in the extent to which we apply social values more noble than mere monetary profit.

Toronto, Mar. 4.—(CP)— Salary reductions for civic employees in Toronto were announced today by Mayor W. J. Stewart as follows:

Five per cent on all salaries and wages up to and including $5,000; seven and one-half per cent on more than $5,000 and up to $10,000; 10 per cent on more than $7,500.

National Emergency May Call For Dictatorial Powers

CALL CONGRESS

"There Must be Provision For Sound Currency", Says President

Washington, Mar. 4—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a momentous inaugural address immediately after taking his oath today, told the United States he would ask for wartime powers if necessary to meet the national emergency.

The newly inaugurated President said he would call the new Congress into special session to carry out his planned attack on the crisis, saying "we must act and act quickly," but he did not reveal, when the session would be called.

Among the policies he outlined was the "there must be provision for an adequate but sound currency.

MISS PERKINS RIDES WITH MRS. ROOSEVELT

Inauguration is no Longer a Man's Day

By Bess Furman

Washington, March 4 (AP) — Outstanding women in the big political parade, in turn of winter and spring attire, received the most close-massed multitudes today the drama of gallantry between women and loser.

They didn't do it in pre-suffrage times. Inauguration then was a man's day.

Foremost, Miss Frances Perkins, of the Talleur and Tricorn, who rode with Mrs. Roosevelt in the old job, was due to arrive in Capitol and Cabinet, and feminists history.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, smiling on each other yesterday, were again together today, riding the same car in the line-up from White House to Capitol.

Mrs. Dolly Gann and Mrs. John Garner were "hooked" side-by-side in the parade.

LATE WIRE BRIEFS

Albany, N.S., March 4 (AP)—George Rooney and William Jansen, both of Albany, were given days in jail to settle their argument with Rudy Vallee's birthplace. The argument began on a street corner.

"He's from Maine," Jansen insisted. "I ought to know, I'm from Maine myself."

"Well, I'm from Connecticut," Rooney declared. "And he's a Connecticut Yankee. What do you know about it?"

Then the fight started.

Carlisle, England, March 4— (AP)—Today, believed to be the only cat in the world who holds a railroad commutation ticket, died. He belonged to the railway refreshment room here. He had a weakness for train trips, and for years he has taken him to travel anywhere to and from Carlisle on the L.M.S. railway was attached to his collar.

Canadian Banks Can Meet Every Demand Says Minister

Ottawa, Mar. 4—(CP)—"The Canadian banks are in a very strong and exceptionally liquid position and wholly capable of meeting any demands made upon them," said Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance this morning.

"The situation in the United States has grown out of domestic conditions in that country, and any reflection upon our condition would result to our advantage."

The brief statement of the Minister was made in answer to questions prompted by the closing of banks both in the State of New York and in other Eastern States. The Minister declined to further amplify his remarks.

"Any reaction upon our position should result to our advantage," Canada's Finance Minister, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, from Ottawa today declared. Canada's financial institution arising from extension of the United States banking holiday to that country's leading money centre, New York, and consequent closing of Wall Street, Canada's chief markets, including Wall Street, for the present.

All Canadian markets remained open and generally trading was confined to an orderly basis, there being no sharp declines following the New York holiday that had been anticipated in some quarters. Wheat Higher

Wheat at Winnipeg rose more than a cent on the opening half hour but the market soon steadied. Canadian gold bullion continued to show a weaker trend that set in with yesterday's rise of the Canadian dollar above the United States dollar value.

No Canadian bank would handle exchange dealings with the United States and, as in Europe, there was no quotation on the United States dollar available. At Montreal it was stated the premium on United States funds was expected to weaken.

Conclusion of Trade

Some dislocation of the trade between Canada and the United States was inevitable with cessation of financial facilities across the

EDMUND HARLEY DIES IN TORONTO

Senior Registrar of Supreme Court of Ontario Passes

Toronto, Mar. 3 (CP) — Edmund Harley, senior registrar of the supreme court of Ontario, died to-day, after a prolonged illness, aged seventy-seven years.

Mr. Harley was born in Ancaster nearly seventy years ago. He was the son of the late Archibald Harley, who represented Forfar Township and Harley in Temiskaming in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Harley received his early education in Burford township and later attended Toronto University. He graduated from the law school at Osgoode Hall in 1884. He engaged in private practice at Brantford with the firm of Harley, Lount and Harley. In 1888 he was appointed clerk of writs and records. In 1923 Mr. Harley was made senior registrar.

The Ontario Civil Service will always remember Mr. Harley as the father of their superannuation system. The association a month ago presented him with an illuminated address and an easy chair. He is survived by his widow.

Movie Folk Joke Over Bent Nickels Studio Cafes Give Credit to Stars

Hollywood, Calif., Mar. 4 (AP)— It is a matter of pride to be able to rebate that one had a bent nickel on hand for the emergency.

Studio cafes extended credit to employees, from Irene Dunne, Mitzi Hopkins, Sylvia Sidney and Cary Grant signed restaurant cheques and Joel McCrea left a waitress an H.O.D. date.

Presidents Worse Than Kings Says Zangara from Miami Jail Cell

Miami, Fla., March. 4—(AP) —"How long hake him pet well" asked Giuseppe Zangara, the would be assassin, from his jail cell when told that Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, was critically ill from the bullets he fired at President-elect Roosevelt.

"I no intend to shoot him," said Zangara when visited Friday by Floyd P. Kenlay, son-in-law of Cermak.

Kenlay said the little Italian expressed no regret for his attempt at assassination.

"If you were not in this jail, what would you do?" Kenlay asked.

Zangara replied that he would go to another attempt to shoot the "Presidents worse than kings."

"I no like Presidents," he said. "I more than 13,000 and up to 15,000; 10 pe cent on more than 15,000.

STOLEN CAR AND GAT IN POSSESSION

Hamilton, March 4 (CP)—"Let's see your driver's permit," commanded Constable Barkwill when Detroit Martin, Port William, was halted for a minor traffic offence last night.

"Haven't got one," replied Martin.

"Where did you get the car?" asked the Constable.

"Stole it," laughed Martin. The officer responded heavily in kind.

"I suppose you're carrying a revolver too," Constable Barkwill hazarded good naturedly.

"Sure," responded Martin, and produced one from his hip pocket.

The joke ended there and then. Martin was taken into custody and in police court today pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a car and carrying concealed weapons. He was remanded till Friday for sentence.

SIR WILLIAM WANLESS DIES

Brougham, of Toronto, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Retail Merchants of Belleville Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. dinner to be served at 6.30, following which there will be a general discussion upon matters of interest to the merchants of Belleville. Mr. Brougham is executive secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.

LETTER OF THANKS IS RECEIVED

Mr. K. T. Austin, manager of the waterworks system of this city is in receipt of a letter from the chairman of the Port Hope Waterworks Commission thanking local officials for the courtesy extended to them during their trip through the local filtration plant on Friday.

The letter reads: "We arrived safely in Port Hope after a very pleasant trip. I wish to extend to you, the Mayor of your city, and city officials, our appreciation for the courtesy extended to us yesterday. Also, will you extend to Mr. Bennett, Chairman of the Water Works Committee, our regrets at not seeing him.

"Yours very truly,
G. W. Garnett, Chairman of Port Hope Waterworks Com."

RELIEF BUREAU WISHES CLOTHES

With demand exceeding the supply, officials of the Central Relief bureau find themselves unable to supply applicants with necessary clothing, shoes and other badly needed articles for which application is made daily by the needy of the city. Through the medium of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, applies is made by officials of the bureau to citizens making the donations of cast, off clothing, shoes, etc. Besides the clothing a need exists for two stoves of the description, which are still serviceable.

MUST HAVE NAMES ON SIDE OF TRUCK

Although numerous warnings have been issued through the highway department and the press it took more drastic measures to assure the operators of motor trucks and transports that it is necessary to have the owner's name of the vehicle displayed on the side of the truck or transport.

Three local truckers were arraigned in the local police court on Saturday morning and paid fines for ignoring this section of the traffic law. Despite the fact that they had been previously warned all of the truckers persisted in operating their motor vehicles without the necessary names displayed. His Worship, Magistrate Mikel, announced publicly in the court, that more drastic measures would be taken and heavier fines imposed for the infraction of this section of the highway traffic law in the future.

FIRE CONFINED TO STOVE PIPES

Soot which became ignited in the furnace pipes at 174 Dundas West Street store, late Friday afternoon was said by firemen to have been responsible for a run to that address shortly before five o'clock. No damage was done by fire either stor or fixtures, the fire being confined to the interior of the pipes and chimney.

OVERSIZED EGG SEEN AT PICTON

Mr. John Vesterfelt of Picton has in his possession a freak egg, eight inches long and five inches in circumference. The egg was laid by just a common Barred Rock pullet that had never before shown any tendency to develop such an unusual record.

NO HEAVY SNOW IN THE PROVINCE

For the week ending Saturday, March 4, the following information was issued from the Toronto weather bulletins over the week end is given by the Ontario Motor League, of Toronto:

Fresh northerly winds mostly cloudy and comparatively mild Friday and Saturday.

No heavy rainfalls forecast for Ontario for the week end.

All roads and highways in the Province are open. Side roads are becoming quite muddy with the frost coming out of the ground.

Stayner to Cremore—Open and in fair condition. Unimproved at Sunghampton — cars are getting through but road is reported soft.

PARENTS REQUESTED TO ATTEND MEETING

In the hope of forming an association composed of parents of children now attending the school, executives of the parent-teacher Albemarle School Association request the attendance of all parents in the auditorium of the school on Monday evening, Mar. 6, at 7.30 p.m., when new officers will be elected and plans formulated to carry on needed repairs and other privileges for children now in attendance. The movement is expected to spread to all schools in the city. Parents from other sections of the city are welcomed.

MARK STATIONARY THROUGHOUT DAY

A local precedent was struck on Friday when the weatherman at the city pump house for the first time on record could report at 9 per and "nigh" temperature for the day. During the early morning hours the mercury on Friday stood at 42 above zero throughout the day the same exact mark was registered. On Saturday, even though a bright sun shone throughout the day clouds a drop of ten points under the previous day had been marked with a high of 32 above at noon and a low in the morning of 27 above. A cold, clammy wind, which blew from the north during the day brought a chilly spell.

SPECIAL FEATURE AT SUNDAY BAND CONCERT

"Deep Harmony" Famous Hymn Tune to be Given

As a special feature on Sunday night the band will produce for the first time in the city, the famous hymn tune, "Deep Harmony", by Handel Parker, the Yorkshire organist and composer. This number has been arranged in a unique manner being scored for full band and several characters marked four cadenza, two horns and two euphoniums, two flutes and two saxophones, two trumpets and two trombones finishing with a grand finale by the full band.

OXFORD GROUP TEAM TONIGHT

Saturday And Sunday Night Meetings by Toronto Party

This afternoon the Toronto Oxford Group team of sixteen or eighteen in number will arrive in the city and be entertained at Albert College after arrival and for dinner this evening. In the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Bentley and Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Mackie and the other members will not be known until the arrival of the party.

Tonight a general meeting will be held in Bridge Street church parlors at which the Toronto team members will share their Christian experience as a result of their contact with the English group visitors.

Sunday morning teams of speakers will speak at the Tabernacle and John Street United Churches, Christ Church, Trinity, Emmanuel, Church, Anglican, Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal and Zion Bridge Street United Church although a special effort is to take the services there on Sunday under an arrangement made some time ago with Rev. Dr. Bell, minister. Opportunity however will be offered by Mr. Jim Brown of Kingston who is to be the preacher of the day in Zion and Victoria Oxford Groups to speak at the morning service.

In the evening of Sunday, Rev. H. B. Neal of Holloway Street church for Bethel will be possibly four members of the team conduct a meeting at 8 p.m. It is also likely that members of the team will visit the Dundas Street Mission for the evening service.

If there are other arrangements as to the filling of services on Sunday by the visiting "groupers" announcement will probably be made at the Saturday evening meeting.

PROFESSIONS NOT ON RELIEF

Mayor Tice and Officials Deny Professional Men Given Aid

Flat denial that men of the professional ranks in this city were at present, or had ever received aid on relief of any description was made by Mayor Geo. S. Tice this morning.

The statement by Mayor Tice was announced after a careful checking of the relief lists himself and officials of the central relief bureau, on the application of doctors, dentists, merchants and others of the professional vocations in the city, who claimed the damaging rumors that had been circulated throughout the city have a detriment to their various practices and professions.

Warning that such rumors are unfounded and untrue, Mayor Tice further declared that further allegations aimed at certain members of the professions would be taken to their origin, with possibility of action being taken against those responsible for the statements.

It is shown by the lists kept at the central relief bureau that the percentage of even those who had been employed at skilled trades, now receiving relief is comparatively low. The greater number of those now receiving city relief are made up from the ranks of unskilled workers, laborers and the building trades. White collar recipients of relief in the city constitute a very small percentage.

FEW REACTORS TO THE TUBERCULIN TEST

Tests in Prince Edward County are Nearly Completed

Under Dr. O. Reed, Dominion Veterinary Inspector of this city, fire veterinarians are busy in the fourth gubbercutin test in Prince Edward County during the past week. So far about one-third the cattle of the county have been tested. Out of a number so far of 7601 cows tested, only twenty-nine reactors to the test have been found. This is believed to be a record low percentage. Such cases that have been found so far have come from a relatively few herds of pure bred stricts. With the test completed Prince Edward County will be absolutely free of tuberculosis, and in turn is expected to stimulate dairy cattle buying throughout the county.

Automobile drivers are responsible for from 85 to 90 per cent of all automobile accidents, according to the National Safety Council.

HAPPINESS IN ACHIEVEMENT

"Happiness lies not in the mere possession of money; it lies in the joy of achievement, in the thrill of creative effort.

"Recognition of the fidelity of material wealth as the standard of success I would fain have you challenge and with the false belief, that public office and high political position are to be valued only by the standards of pride of place and personal profit, and there must be an end to a conception of politics as business, which too often has given to a sacred trust the likeness of callous and selfish wrongdoing. Small wonder that confidence languishes.

"Reduction of taxes, however, not the changes in ethics alone. This nation asks for action, and action now.

TIME TO FIND WORK FOR MEN

"Our greatest primary task is the finding of work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. It can be accomplished in part by direct recruiting by the government itself, treating the task as we would treat the emergency of a war, but on a far greater scale. Imagination and resourcefulness are needed projects to stimulate and reorganize the use of our natural resources.

"Hand in hand with this we must frankly recognize the overbalance or population in our industrial centres and, by engaging on a national scale in a redistribution, endeavour to provide a better use of the land for those best fitted for the land. The task can be helped by definite efforts to raise the values of agricultural products and with this the power to purchase the output of our cities. It can be helped by prevention, drastically the tragedy of the growing loss through foreclosure, of our small homes and our farms. It can be helped by insistence that the federal, state and local governments act forthwith on the demand that their cost be drastically reduced. It can be helped by the abandonment of relief methods which are often scattered, uneconomical and unequal. It can be helped by national planning for and supervision of all forms of transportation and of communication and other utilities which have a semi-public character. There are many ways in which it can be helped, but it can never be helped merely by talking about it. We must act and act quickly.

SPECULATION WITH OTHER'S MONEY

"Finally, in our progress toward a resumption of work we require two safeguards against a return of the evils of the old order. There must be a strict supervision of all banking and credits and investments. There must be an end to speculation with other people's money, and there must be provision for an adequate, but sound currency.

"These are the lines of attack. I shall presently urge upon a new Congress in special session detailed measures for their fulfillment, and I shall seek the immediate assistance of the several States."

"Through this program of action we address ourselves to putting our own national house in order and setting our feet on the path of national recovery. Our international trade relations though vastly important, are in point of time and necessity secondary to the establishment of a sound national economy. I favor as a practical policy the putting of first things first. I shall spare no effort to restore world trade by international economic readjustment, but this emergency at home can not wait on that accomplishment.

WAY TO RECOVERY.

"The basic thought that guides these specific means of national recovery is not narrowly nationalistic. It is designed to restore our own trade relations with the interdependence of the various elements in and parts of the United States. It is the way to recovery. It is the immediate way. It is the wisest assurance that the recovery will endure.

"In the field of world policy I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor—the neighbor who resolutely respects himself and because he does so, respects the rights of others—the neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors.

"I would say that the temper of our people over the new realize as we have never realized before our interdependence on each other; that we can not merely take but must give as well. Unless we realize and discharge our prosperous is made, no leadership becomes effective.

"It is to be hoped that the normal balance of executive and legislative authority may be wholly adequate to the unprecedented task before us. But it may be that an unprecedented demand and need of unprecedented action may call for temporary departure from that normal balance of public procedure.

"I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that a stricken nation in the midst of a stricken world may require. These measures, or such other measures as the congress may build out of its experience and wisdom, I will seek within my constitutional authority, to bring to speedy adoption.

"But in the event that the congress shall fail to take one of these two courses, and in the event that the national emergency is still critical, I shall not evade the clear course of duty that will then confront me. I shall ask the congress for the one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—broad executive power to wage a war against the emergency as great as the power that would be given me if we were in fact invaded by a foreign foe.

"We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct, vigorous action. They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have given me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it.

"In this dedication of a nation we humbly ask the blessing of God. May He protect each and every one of us. May He guide me in the days to come."

ancy, however, the actual outline of the day's ceremonies yielded little. Though the custom of change lay beautify on the assembled thousands, the program of events followed with only deviation from customs of the past.

Wide-sweeping Pennsylvania avenue, its curbs roped against the surging crowds and lined with new-built wooden bleachers, was the central beaten path of all the pageantry. Forty bands were marshalled to line the ramp of regulars, politicians and plain citizens. Thirty-three governors had places in the line, along with 300 Indians from the west and White Iddidan Senator Allen Smith—from Tammany Hall, and in the skies above the giant Virginian and Navy dirigibles ordered to act as flagship to a hundred roaring aeroplanes.

At the Capitol—strangely chosen by tradition, in place of the White House—custom held to the usual double ceremony.

The senate chamber, no bigger than a modest theatre, provided just elbow-room for the inauguration of the Vice-President; while on the plaza outside, crowds which stretched for blocks gathered to see the new President raise his hand and take his pledge of office.

Miami, Fla., Mar. 4—(AP)—Gaseous distension of the abdominal area caused Mayor Anton Cermak "a very restless night" and such his respiratory rate back to 36, his physician reported today.

Hothouse Vegetables Are Seen For First Time on Mart This Year

With regular spring-like weather prevailing the local Saturday market saw considerable business in trading throughout the morning session with no price changes.

Eggs were quite plentiful selling at from 18 to 20c. Onions with the former price prevailing throughout. The price of butter remained firm, when it sold for two pounds for 46c. The feature of the inside market was the abundance of fowl in evidence. Chickens sold from 50 to 51.00 each according to their size. Smaller chickens, which might have passed for broilers sold for 50c a pair. Plenty of home cooking was in evidence and sold at the usual prices. Honey was offered at 7c a comb.

The feature of the outside market was the re-appearance of hot house green vegetables. Green onions at 5c, lettuce at 5c, raddishes at 5c and hot house tomatoes at from 15c or two bunches for a quarter were all eagerly purchased by the thrifty house wives, during the early their weekly marketing. Beets, carrots, parsnips were also sold out for 20c a peck, while onions brought 30c. Potatoes sold for 70 and 75c, a bag with fine looking cabbage bringing be a head.

More than the usual display of apples was observed with Northern Spys at $1.25, Baldwins and Reds at $1.50; Russets $1.00; Talman Sweets $1.00 and fine looking cooking apples selling at 75c per bushel. Plenty of corg wood cut into stove length was offered to the purchasers on the south side of the market square with a few small parker pigs also being offered.

The meat market quotations were: Beef carcass weight 7 to 8 cents; beef steers 9 to 10 cents; beef, hind quarters 8 to 10 cents; beef, live swt. $2.50 to $4.50; hogs dressed, cwt. $8.50 to $7.50; veal 10 cents; lamb 9 to 11 cents; mutton 6 to 8 cents.

Hides—Vealers 3c lb.; Cow hides 2c lb.; horse hides 75c piece; sheep hides the piece.

FACTS FROM COMMITTEE

Report of Recent Probe Into Pension Act is Given

In the report of L. P. Sherwood, Member, concurred in by Brigadier General H. F. McDonald, C.M.G., D.S.O., of the committee appointed to investigate into the administration of the Pension Act, recently concluded, some interesting information has been given. The report stated:

"At the outset of any pension investigation it seems appropriate to consider the figures of the Canadian Expeditionary Force and the pensions in payment in respect to the personnel thereof.

General figures as to the Expeditionary Force are as follows:

Number of enlistments, 619,636. Served in Canada only, 185,947. Served in England, 80,000.

Served in Russia, Asia and in garrisons such as Bermuda and St. Lucia, 9,547.

Served in the Western theatre of war, 346,331.

"It will be observed," read the report, "that these figures do not balance, no doubt because some of the personnel shown as having served in one theatre of war may have served in another theatre or theatres."

The total number died on service is given as 59,544.

The following statement was made to the committee of investigation as representing the total of persons receiving pensions, additional to pensions, etc., under the Act, and their classification as at August 31, 1929:

Disability pensioners in receipt of pension, 77,671.

Number of wives for which additional pension is being paid, 57,088.

Number of children for which additional pension is being paid, 89,605.

Number of dependent parents for which additional pension is being paid, 1,941.

Number of widowers' allowance in lieu of wife, 203.

Number of widows, parents, foster parents, orphan children, brothers and sisters, 19,163.

Number of additional allowances being paid to widows for their children, 5,623.

Grand total of number of persons in receipt of benefits under the Pension Act, 260,203.

It will be observed that, at the present time, Canada is paying disability pensions to about 13.7 per cent. of total enlistments, deducting therefrom the number who died on service.

CAPITOL THEATRE CELEBRATES SECOND ANNIVERSARY

On March 4th, 1933, (two years ago) the Capitol Theatre re-opened under the present management.

Much water has flowed under the bridge since then, but like the water there has been no turning back in the activities of the Capitol.

This retreat of recreation has become established as one of Ontario's leading theatres, and has done much to establish the downtown district of Belleville. At all times the large clientele enjoyed by the Capitol has been catered to in a manner, the nature of which has resulted in a steady increase of patronage, even in these adverse times. The public is satisfied with this theatre's efforts to please, and to serve their discriminative taste for screen entertainment and it has become generally admitted that if one desires something different in movies one can always find it at the Capitol.

Clean Entertainment

In keeping with the increasing desire of the public for clean pictures, the management of the Capitol Theatre has at all times taken this desire as the primary factor when choosing pictures for exhibition to the public.

Again the effort is fruitful and the practice of keeping the screen clean materializes at the Box Office, the theatre's barometer!

Changes For the Better

During the two years operating in Belleville, the Capitol, in keeping with the times, has adopted new policies.

The first and foremost was the reduction of price which came into effect on the first of this year. Perhaps this was Sunday overhauled change that any theatre could make. The Capitol was a real pictorial one, and put the theatre within the reach of those whose finances were limited. That the public appreciated this reduction was apparent in the Box Office as admissions were doubled and satisfaction reigned supreme!

Hand-Picked Programmes

The policy of running two programmes each week instead of three was adopted, prompted by the realization that a good programme deserved three days, that it gave patrons a far more fair chance of seeing it and that it was better to have two good programmes rather than the danger of insertion of mediocre pictures.

Vaudeville has been booked for exhibition during the coming months but they have been hand-picked thus ensuring sterling entertainment quality. Quality, like gold sum, will never go out of business!

Helping the Unemployed

The Capitol under present the management and staff of the Capitol Theatre have done much more than is often realized to assist their unfortunate neighbours. Through the courtesy of the owners, the theatre has been used at all times for concerts of a high medium of raising money by means of Sunday evening concerts. Artists who have had the privilege at these concerts entail a lot of work and it is much to the credit of Manager Holmes and his excellent staff to know that they give up their one rest day a week to do their bit for the cause. Also John Bowerman, by the knowledge of the writer, there is not another theatre in the province doing as much, devoting as the Capitol has done, almost every Sunday this year, to holding these concerts. The crowds which turn out are exceptionally pleasing and large, the threatre on the last two occasions being packed from floor to ceiling. The artists, the Municipal Band and everyone who is in anyway responsible for these concerts most heartily deserve the public's thanks!

British Films

'Tis say that the Capitol's efforts to please before the public, the sterling qualities of the British Films have met with the approval of Belleville is put it mildly. Fervid appreciation of these pictures. Belleville has come into the limelight of being the "Best Showtown Between Toronto and Montreal" for British Films!

Amusing and Wise Programmes

On Monday the management of the Capitol Theatre has chosen "Oh, For a Man" featuring Carole Lombard for the first half of the Second Anniversary week celebration.

"No More Orchids" is a sparklingly modern comedy drama of a rich young heiress who is almost cured from an undesirable marriage by a stern old grandfather.

Lyda Roberti, the fat fiction is Paris Offerbourg and America, much of her comedy hinging on this theme.

Lyle Talbot plays the role of the poor young man who is much more desirable than Carole's choice partner, Prince Carlos (James Bell).

Louise Closser Hale (remembered in "Lady Lumber" when she stole the picture from Robert Montgomery) is cast for the second amusing character role the fare is scrumptious!!

TODAY presenting THE COMPLETELY MODERN CAR

with FISHER NO-DRAFT VENTILATION

A new page is turned in Oldsmobile history. Two manifestly new models are now presented for the first time . . . an 80-horsepower Six, and a 90-horsepower Straight Eight designed expressly for those whose opinion is undisputed in all things modern . . . The new Oldsmobiles, while they pioneer an altogether original trend in automobile make-up, come wholly within the dictates of good taste. Every line, gliding back from swank, V-type radiators, over sweeping, skirted fenders, to the radically new rear deck, gives definite promise of the cars' fleet, fearless performance. These, you must understand, are the greatest of all Oldsmobiles. These personify in completely modern automobiles Canadian motorists asked for in their replies to the General Motors Customer Research survey. You are invited—yes, urged to see them—for the few moments devoted to this experience, will convince you that there is something new under the sun . . . the Oldsmobiles for 1933!

TRADE INCREASE

Increase in Canadian trade particularly with the United Kingdom during the past few months is gratifying to those who have sponsored the preference and who seek in every way to increase the exchange of products between Canada and the United Kingdom. To step from twelfth place to fourth in a short space of time is something of which Canada is justly proud.

DR. J. D. COLLIP

The honor which has come to Dr. J. B. Collip, of Belleville, one of McGill University, in being recommended to membership in the Royal Society is one of which citizens of this district are proud. Dr. Collip went to school here and after his graduation from the University of Toronto became famous for his part in the discovery of insulin and the experimental work in connection with the discoveries. Since then Dr. Collip had been reported as making other epoch-making discoveries which put him in the front rank of medical scientists.

He enjoys a fine post at the present time and the new honor is one which he has merited by his devotion to the cause of humanity in his research work.

Dr. Collip is still a young man and has had a brilliant past and no doubt will have a brilliant future.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY

Addition of industries to the number which this city possesses is something about which people like to talk. In this year there have been several announcements to make of a very encouraging character so far as the industrial and labor situation in Belleville is concerned.

The reports of acquisitions of new industries so auspiciously begun this year, will, it is hoped, be repeated.

Belleville knows the value of the industries which it possesses and at no time was the city more prosperous than at the present moment. Local industries are peculiarly fitted to the city's situation and that the same type of industries may continue to locate here is the hope of the people.

RELIEF FRAUDS

Frauds in obtaining relief which have come to light seem to indicate a failure on the part of those who have committed it to realize that fraud is theft or stealing or whatever may best describe the act. To take from a relief fund what one is not entitled to is theft.

The alleviation of distress is a big enough problem as it is, without the authorities having to investigate cases and run down flagrant breaches of the law. There is little enough money to go around without those who are entitled to receive securing money by false pretences.

Magistrate Burbridge of Hamilton, has imposed some heavy sentences on offenders of this class—the sentences being more severe than they used to be. A sentence is intended to have force and effect and, while it is regrettable to those who would go and do likewise if they took the notion into to their heads. Constructed as society and mankind are, people are many persons doing a thing, the practice will spread like wildfire. Stern action will repress this tendency, there can be not the slightest doubt.

It must be pointed out that relief is based upon answers to questions submitted by the applicant and that investigation often has to follow some time later. The word of the applicant cannot be taken as it is given until the investigation is completed. Sometimes even this investigation runs into difficulties as it is often difficult to find out the true state of the affairs of a family.

Those who unjustly procure relief seem to be little interested in this—that relief monies are not unending, they have to be paid for by some who a little later may themselves have to seek relief. Indications are now that the sumtotal of relief has been reached for this season at least, for no one can tell exactly what the coming winter will produce. But the list in Belleville, for instance, has at present an expected tendency to decline.

Frauds in obtaining relief, of course, reach a weight that they become unbearable as they have in some cities which have asked the government to assume the entire cost of administration, but that is the last resort for it will be an ill day for any city when its citizens as one can pay have paid about all they can pay.

In recent Hamilton cases the court has imposed sentences mounting in severity from two to three months, but has now imposed a sentence of a year with an additional six months if restitution is not made. This probably will act as a deterrent to others following the same road.

Somehow it seems easy for man to think that as long as an individual is not paying the whole amount, but a corporation, it does not make any difference, but in the final analysis, fraud against the municipality or the province is fraud against the individual who has to dig down deep into his pocket to pay.

TO VENTURE

To venture; this is all of life.
To brave the conflict and the strife,
To go undaunted, though with fear
At heel forever, drawing near.
To test, to seek, though doubts are born
That all the quest must be forlorn.

To venture always, not to quail
Before the dread that means to fail;
To press ahead with lifted gaze,
That finds, beyond the moment's maze:
The golden hope which, like the sun,
Gives life to all it shines upon.

To venture into unknown seas,
To spurn the cautious, timid ease,
To thrill with purpose to explore
The deeps no ship has sailed before;
This, this is life, and this alone
Brings joys the greatest souls have known!

HANDY MEN ABOUT THE HOUSE are not always as handy as they would like to be. For instance, the Toronto Globe published story about a handyman in Vancouver who certainly turned the whole house upside down but did not clean it anywhere. This man bored a hole in a gas pipe in an effort to repair it in the basement of his home. He was gassed and a hastily summoned inhalator crew revived him after fifteen minutes' hard work. Meanwhile a neighbor who heard the gas hissing opened and again he was gassed and the inhalator crew had to work on him again. By this time the gas had reached the stairs and an emergency call was sent to the British Columbia Electric Railway Company. George Hall, trouble shooter, responded, and went into the basement. When he did not reappear search was instituted and he was taken out unconscious. The inhalator crew went to work again and made its third revival. The leak was finally found and stopped by a plumber. NORAH—Your letter was lawful pipes. Better call a plumber instead of the fire department and the doctor.

A GOOD OLD-FASHIONED BAR for $49.00—reads an advertisement in the Montreal Star. Below the words is a picture showing a picture of the bar with an old-fashioned bartender behind it, the conventional brass rail, with foot room to detache and illuminated nose, shaking up a cocktail. The contented, even pleased look on the bartender's face and expectation at the approaching demise of prohibition. The bars pictured are for private residences, and have brass rail attachments and are fitted with rubber-tired wheels so that "they can easily be rolled away, behind a door or into a closet." (see description) Made of solid walnut and mahogany bars have brass foot rails, colored bars have chromium rails." From the ad. it would appear that these private home bars are a staple article and are now being reduced in price on account of the anticipated amendment to the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which brought in prohibition. Just another illustration of the fickleness of human nature which does not suit them entertained by a certain section of 'high' society in those United States. No wonder Uncle Sam is puzzled with a long face and weeping whiskerette.

IN THE THROES OF A THREES canniption fit or somthe, a Toronto newspaper got some people to get up a four-thirty tea-circle on the third day of the third month of the year 1933 to listen to a broadcast about something or other which might have been and didn't. So bring the first of April the reason for the stunt was not quite apparent. However, in the old days of the bar three was a thirsty number. On a hot summer day, one glass of beer was good, two better, and three just capped the climax and extinguished the thirst.

BASEBALL FANS are sitting up and taking notice now that the big mitt and bat artists have flitted to the southland for practice. Perhaps Ruth has not signed his contract yet, but will, no doubt, do so when his annual hesitation act fails to make the front page. The baseball mags will bring back prosperity to the United States but it will bring back something to take the mind of the baseball fan from his very present or imaginary troubles and enable him to translate his plaints into terms of balls and strikes.

A TON OF HAY piled on a motor truck sailed majestically down Bridge St. Friday morning from the vast open spaces beyond Murney Hill. The truck was travelling at a good rate of speed but the driver was invisible under the overhanging hay. Contrasted with the leisurely movements of the old loaded hay wagon the principal feature of the truck's transition of the changes which have taken place since the age of speed was ushered in.

IGNORANCE AT ROOT OF MOST OF TROUBLES

One's Fortune Not so Much to Blame as One's Self

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Despite vicissitudes of fortune — what might be termed the forces in our environment over which we have no control—it is nevertheless undeniable that most of our troubles, as well as most of our unhappiness, are caused by ignorance.

If we understood ourselves thoroughly; if we could know how this or that mode of action would influence us afterwards; if we were expert in interpreting events and in probing by experience; if we could always understand the relationship that exists between cause and effect; if, in short, we possessed sufficient knowledge which we could bring to bear upon any particular problem, life would surely be easier to manage and easier to bear.

But usually we lack just such knowledge. Actually we are ignorant.

Ignorance, in the last analysis, is to blame when a woman marries the wrong man, or a man the wrong woman. If the sexes only tried to understand each other better, if they would take the time to compare their own love-life with that of others, the divorce courts would soon cease to be the busy centers they now are.

Likewise is it true that men and women do not sufficiently understand for the roles they assume when they become fathers and mothers. They accept the responsibility akin to their natures, capacities and aptitudes? If such person had first attained proficiency in knowledge and studied what special work they were particularly fitted for? Or, if they had not gone ignorantly ahead with little more to boast of than courage and ambition—most of them would undoubtedly have a different story to tell.

Take any problem you like, reduce it to its simplest terms, and you are bound to conclude that it is this lack of knowledge which helps to solve it successfully. With knowledge you can drive a car where only a soldier fully equipped for any emergency. Without knowledge your chances are as great to land in the same soldier would be if he tried to go over the top with neither gun nor ammunition.

Inasmuch as knowledge is so readily available, it is amazing that more do not avail themselves of it. Free schools and colleges are everywhere. Public libraries are to be found in the smallest communities. All daily newspapers carry educational articles, and magazines devote their pages to particular subjects and occupations.

And besides, there is knowledge, which we may call academic, is the knowledge which comes to us by ourselves, and continually.

Practicing observation, for instance, is one of the best ways of acquiring knowledge. It helps to compare the characters of people you know. Learn something from their achievements as well as from their disasters. In other words, watch the things you do and note the results.

It really easy to acquire a vast store of knowledge that can be made directly profitable to oneself. But one must constantly be on the alert. Finally, one must always think before one acts.

Substitute knowledge for ignorance, and your progress through life will be smoothed immensely.

MONEY FLOWS ACROSS LINE

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 3 — (CP)—Money today moved to flow across the Niagara River from Niagara Falls, N.Y., to banks in this city. Chief of Police Dart has not taken any special precautions regarding the influx, it is said no special protection has been asked.

Bank officials would give little information on the extent of deposits.

Local banks take money across the river when necessary in ordinary automobiles, but American institutions bring money here in armored cars heavily guarded by policemen with guns.

In some cases depositors coming across have been accompanied by guards, but generally the deposits are brought in by messenger.

One man is said to have brought $65,000 across the border in his own car to a local branch.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 4, 1913

Mr. Clayton Crook will leave on Sunday for Detroit, where he is engaged with the Stafford Printing Company.

Miss Fleming of this city, is the guest of Mrs. W. S. Martin, Stirling.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings . . .

A REVIVAL—

The old community spirit is coming back in this district with a vengeance, if reports of the local house parties can be taken as any criterion. Neighborliness seems to become merely a story book word, even in the rural districts, although once again the fashion. Perhaps the changing times had something to do with it, and maybe the fact that people now drive have helped, but the dinner from ordinary plain farm produce, and the games prepare for entertainment. Each visitor contributes five or ten cents to help defray the cost of the food that is eaten. That nickel assessment is the sole expenditure of the whole evening. Such a dance is much light-hearted laughter, and it is refreshing to know that the old time camaraderie— something that has been missing for a long time.

JIG SAW CHAMP—

When the open page of conversation lies at a standstill there is inevitable discourse of those who have the knack of doing the intricate jig-saw puzzles dancing before their eyes with the speed of lightning. We talk then turns to champions of the game, and as it can be called, it is interesting to know that at least one champion of champions lives in Belleville. Sinbad Snider of Pennsylvania, is the present champion of the world's marathon jig-saw puzzle championship. His record is that he put together 24 jig-saws, ranging from sets of 160 pieces to more complicated ones of more than 1,000 parts, during 80 working hours and 16 hours of sleep. The marathon was to have been continued a month in drug stores where the puzzle interlocking pieces got the better of the public. Which is interesting, for he says, "80 hours and 34 puzzles are a lot of work. And it's more likely to better than that they're welcome to try."

THE FOURTH ESTATE—

Since time immemorial the newspaper world has always been alluded to as the "Fourth Estate." To recall its origin is interesting. Edmund Burke, a writer, English statesman and man of letters, between 1729-97, in alluding to the three estates of the realm, the lords, clergy and commons constituting the British Parliament, termed the reporters in the Fourth Estate, by reason of the enormous influence which reporters gave over both imperial and domestic affairs.

INDIA PALE ALE—

An explanation new to the majority of those who have often wondered just where the name originated is given by a local old time brewer. "India Pale Ale" or "India Ale" or "India Pale Ale" should thus be called India Pale Ale, because of the fact it is known perfectly well that the ale is not, nor has ever been, made in India. It is made in Canada, in England. In the days of the East India Company, the officials and English merchantmen vied with each other in the matter of shipping the vessels were often ballasted with Pale Ale, brewed in India. The ale, however, was not meat for consumption by the crew during the voyage, but merely matured while serving as ballast, thereby saving the cost and trouble of the shipping of aging on the boat made the ale ripe. The consumption of beer on board ship was a privilege of officers only, that ale, seized the name as a trade mark that was readily identified for the sort of ale with that distinctive tang.

Letters to The Editor

Belleville, March. 1st.

Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir—

I would be greatly pleased if you would publish this letter in correction and Thursday's issue of the Ontario of a "distemper ridden dog on the streets of Belleville."

The dog did not escape from Mr. Thorne twice and it was not "savagely snapping at every one" that it met. Mr. Thorne did not have to be "finally cornered in that vicinity as stated in the item in Wednesday's issue of the Intelligencer" on Monday night. Mr. Thorne and Mrs. Thorne both called again. This time he put a chain on the dog and gave it to an assistant to lead out to his car. The dog pulled his head out of the noose and walked off. Mr. Thorne went home. Half an hour or so later the dog came back. His mistress again put him in the shed and left him there. Mr. Thorne did not come for him again. This time a friend arrived and the dog was secured. Incidentally this did not was the fact that they're so incon-come under Mr. Thorne's regular license as a dog collar for this was paid for his services and I don't think it was necessary to color the story of the despatching of a poor little seven-months-old dark pup.

Yours truly
Den Stewart.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma came in and they both stood with a new pair of shoes on, saying, These new ensembles are positively stunning. Wilbur, I haven't worn them yet so I can always return them if you should prefer me. So I want you to tell me just what you think of them. Willbur, Well, I think they're nice shoes. Are you sure? Ma asked, because I covered they're vice slippers, pop said, and I'm sure they're nice shoes, but my all things considered is that a secret cloak for a double game or for a hidden reservation of some obscure nature?

Well at all, perish the thaut, all I meant was, aren't they a little too red? pop said and ma said, Not conspicuously so, if that's what you're trying to get at in a roundabout way. Why my goodness only of the deciding factors that induced me to take these shoes was their color. Why, pop exclaimed, I'm not a dance club and a restaurant.

Well that takes a slite wait off my mind, but are you sure they dont seem a little small for you? pop said, and ma said, Why Wilbur now that just proves beyond fear of contradiction that you absolutely dont know what you're tawking about, because these shoes are a size if they're anything.

Then perhaps they're not anything I mean I'm delighted to know that the shoes are perfect in every conceivable particular, pop said. That vindicates my first impression that all things considered they are a nice shoes. I mean slippers, and it's been a great relief to me to have this conflicting experience to have my judgement excepted given its proper confidence and such an open mind. It's my conviction that the first half of the world would listen to the other half with an open mind and in unprejudiced confidence, the big fix of mankind would be cured overnite, because then there would be no fix if they're anything.

The world didn't try to tawk at once, he said.

O Wilbur, then you really think I aut to keep them? Because if you don't I want you to just say so, pop said, and pop said, They're nice slipper shoes ant it's a winnable swrid.

Modern business snows no boundaries! Kensington Abbey, near Frome, once the home of monks, is to be converted by a Bath syndicate into a dance club and restaurant.

PLANS HELP ARMS PARLEY

Premier MacDonald And Sir John Simon to go to Geneva

London, March 3 (AP)—In an effort to end the continued deadlock of the World Disarmament Conference and to prevent what is regarded in some British quarters as its threatened breakdown, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, decided today to go to Geneva as soon as possible.

The British government, it was said, believes the next few weeks will be a critical period for the conference. The MacDonald mission is intended to prevent possible failure of the whole proceedings which have been going on for more than a year.

Last night the cabinet committee on disarmament met at the House of Commons and this morning they assembled again at No 10 Downing Street. At this meeting they decided to send Sir John Simon and the Foreign Secretary to go to Geneva.

READY, AYE READY!
Everybody is ready for Spring, Gentle Spring, or otherwise. No more buying coal, no more shoveling snow, although the latter has been very light this winter. It hardly seems possible that the worst of the winter is over, but March is here, and is very welcome. Last year the worst storm of the season occurred in March, with roads blocked and general traffic demoralization, but the days are longer, the sun is higher and hotter, and hafore wo know it, almost, dust wil be blowing, and the boys will be playing baseball on the corner lots. And the inspiration of Spring calls for new clothes, new hats, new shoes—shedding the husks of winter and coming out in newer and gayer costumes, with glorious confidence in the future progress and prosperity of this city and district and the Greater Canada which is to be — let's put all pessimism behind and with splendid confidence and courage show the world that Canada can and will lead the way out of the financial doldrums which have slowed up business for some time back, the world over. A new Spring, a new Deal, a long pull, and a pull together, and over the top for complete victory.

CLARE'S FOURTH ANNIVERSARY
Four years ago "Clare, who cleans with care" purchased the dumpson of window cleaning business, and in that four years has developed a substantial and growing business which is reflected in brighter fronts all along Front and Bridge streets. The Clare window cleaning system provides a thorough and satisfactory service and caters to the resi dential as well as to the business sections. Window cleaning service by experts can be obtained at such reasonable figures that it does not pay amateurs to undertake this work. "Clare Cleans With Care, No Fuss, No Muss, That's Us," is the motto of the firm, and it is well lived up to.

THAT OLD SEA GOING HACK
"HACK, SIR! THIS WAY SIR! TWENTY-FIVE CENTS TO ANY PART OF THE CITY" — perhaps you remember hearing this and perhaps you don't, in any event having secured a passenger the hackman would crack his whip, calling 'Jerry GIDDAP' and off was whisked the passenger to his destination be it home or hotel.
This was years ago when Belleville was a great 'hack' town and many of the older residents will remember well some of the hackmen who drove for Lake and Jennings, who conducted the leading hack business in the city and whose offices and stables were situated on the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets upon the lot now occupied by the armouries.
On this corner there was a huge tree and beneath its shade in the summer time certain well-known citizens used to sit in old fashioned arm chairs for a time each day and settle the vexed questions of city and state. The scene of these friendly and comfortable debates the large old frame house and shaded from the hot sun by the old tree, was such as to recall the scene depicted by Washington Irving in his story of Rip Van Winkle, where he tells of the Village Inn and of the characters who congregated near it, sitting upon benches under a large tree. Here they would express their views on various subjects, but when no old newspaper left by some guests at the Inn fell into their hands and the news of the outside world was read to them by the schoolmaster, then it was that their discussions were long and animated.
News of the world was not learned from old newspapers by the Belleville citizens who sat in the shade near the old hack office — they had daily newspapers to read — the time being many years after the period of which Washington Irving wrote.
Now—gone for ever is the old hack office, the large old tree has disappeared, the hacks have long since gone to the junk heap and the hackman, who used to crack his whip and call 'GIDDAP' does so no more. Great changes have taken place — now the call is 'Taxi Sir!' — we still keep and fast moving motor cars convey passengers to any place they wish to go and at great speed.
In Belleville the taxi cabs owned and operated by Mr. R. W. Clare, 52 Baldwin Street are very popular and he enjoys a large patronage from persons who desire careful driving and prompt service. Three well appointed cabs and heated cars are operated by him and his charge for day or night service is 25 cents.
Mr. Clare was born in Toronto, but has resided in Belleville since boyhood. He is well known and popular with many friends.
The next time you wish to engage a taxi call Mr. Clare at phone 196 and you will be entirely satisfied and pleased with the service which he will give you.

FISH BITIN' OR BITIN' FISH
SOME PERSONS KNOW THE BEST FISHING SPOTS — they know just where to go to get fabulous apples, of course, to fishing with hook and line, but just now when you cannot fish except through a hole in the ice, the "BEST SPOT" to get fish is at Land's—Fish Shop, which recently moved from the upper part of Front Street to 189 Front Street, a few doors south of Bridge Street, in the Army and Navy Veteran's Buildings.
Here you can obtain fish of various kinds and of excellent quality to cook yourself or you may be served in the shop with perfectly cooked fish and chips. Free delivery is made and if desired, delicious fish and chips nicely boxed, will be delivered promptly to your home either hot and ready to serve. The prices charged are very reasonable.
Use your telephone line to get fish from Land's — their number is 1543.

POETRY

U. S. Woman In Cabinet

(By George A. Kingston)

Comes a newsflash over the wires
Roosevelt's Cabinet announcement.
Here 'tis now for all to read
For his Minister of Labor
Frances Perkins, New York City;
First time in the nation's history
That a woman is selected
For a Cabinet position.
And we haste to pay our tribute
Of respect and admiration,
And sincere congratulation.

Who is this distinguished lady,
Chosen now for such high office
Those on Boards of Compensation
In our every State and Province,
Who have come to know Frances Perkins—

Then will come to Frances Perkins
Such fine tributes of devotion
As have come to but few women.
Haughty men nor pride of power
Ever will make humiliation,
Gifted speaker, earnest thinker,
Well she understands the problems
Of the nation's working classes,
And will bring to her task in office
A sincere and human interest
In the welfare of the people.

Mr. Kingston, the writer of these lines is Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario. He has met Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor in the Roosevelt Administration in the past four years in the course of their common work. Mr. Kingston took a photograph of Miss Perkins at a Buffalo meeting in 1929.

4 Square Club Presents Play

Tabernacle Church Young People Seen in Comedy-drama

"In the Light of the Moon", the first dramatic presentation of the Four-Square Club of the Tabernacle United Church was a splendid success last night, the dramatic production being crowded with an enthusiastic audience. The play followed an interesting theme and the stage cast is to be commended for the excellent performance. The director of the play, T. K. Franklin, had a capable company for the finished style in which the play was given.

Before the curtains were drawn, Mr. J. E. Wallbridge in an interesting address, welcomed the visitors and spoke in high praise of the young actors who had given so much of their time in preparing the play. The entertainment was enhanced by the fortunes of the Hathaway family and the scene was laid in the living room of the Hathaway home the dining duty at the Hathaway Inn. Hope Hathaway and her brother have inherited this rambling old home and are trying to finance as a summer boarding house. Miss Mary Hathaway and Mr. Donald Bourne played these parts capably. Their summer boarders joined to see that their summer ended successfully, financially and romantically. The introduction of a mysterious young couple, Tom Hallam as Robert Barrett and Miss Ruth Newson as his sweet little wife added the element that the husband is publicly wanted to his wife. At the end explanations and steps are taken by the maid, Della and the hero Jack, and when they mistake Robert for a hold-up robber, lock him in the summer house and telephone the police. Their suspicions had been aroused by the fact that the couple did not care to mingle with the other guests and seemed to have secret. When in the final scenes, the secret is revealed that are on their honeymoon and Robert's attitude has been misunderstood, a simple there is much amusement. Rachel Fox was excellent as the maid and was supported by Ray Dafoe as Jake.

The main plot of the play centres around the desire of dashing Cynthia Rodney who with long-suffering tutor, is studying up for examinations and finding Rosser, a student "sometimes" to help the Hathaways. They write an alluring ad, to city papers casually mentioning the legend of buried treasure on the property and the instant re-action follows when treasure-hunters begin to arrive. Mrs. W. Dougherty as Cynthia who between studies,

MART BROKE AT OPENING

Within Half Hour, Prices Steadied And Moved Forward

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— The Standard Mining Market had its most unsettled moments at the opening this morning. Prices tumbled quite sharply at the start, yielded 50 to 75 cents off yesterday's quotations on such issues as Lake Shore, Hollinger and Noranda but within half an hour prices steadied and thereafter moved slowly but steadily forward.

There was an absence of selling pressure, a situation that belied expectations in some quarters as the gold shares were concerned. Selling from United States brokers was apparently absent. Lake Shore flicked up from a low of $22.00 to close at $22.75, Hollinger from its low of $21.50 to $22.00, Teck Hughes from a low of $3.10 to close at $3.25, unchanged, and Wright Hargreaves from a low of $3.75 to $4.10, where it was 9 up for the day. Hollinger and Dome were off less than 25 cents on the session.

In the base metal shares Nickel had a net gain for the day, closing at $9.50 while Noranda recovered from $30.50 to close at $31.25, up 75. Falconbridge receded a few points. Trading in Base Metals on a large scale and Nickel less active.

The secondary gold group all took substantial losses at the start but improved as the day progressed. Eldorado in the silver section continued its decline closing at $1.25.

Steady Market Despite Closing of S. Exchanges

Toronto, March 4 (CP)— Nothing changed from the Toronto Stock Exchange in today's short session to reflect the closing of the United States exchanges. The complete shut down of business in New York monthly prevented an attempt to connect securities from that market on the Canadian exchanges did not. The result was that trading with price changes if anything, a little firmer.

Interlisted shares varied not more than 1-8 to 1-4 on Friday's closing prices. Brazilian was off 1-8 Ford up 1-4, CPR was off 1-8, Consolidated Smelters moderately depressed than the others dropped 25 points to the Canada Trade was fair to Nickel and C.P.R. and quiet in the others. Oil stocks and remained tranquil, fluctuating not more than 1-8, and the gold shares closed unchanged in the Utilities prices were steady. Bell Telephone trading unchanged. Fair trading appeared in the food stocks and gains predominated. Bank investment came into the leverages.

BANKING CRISIS

treasury head under Wilson, and others. At the same time, conference early today he sent out word that there is nothing to can say."

See Return of Normalcy.

New York, Mar. 4 (AP)—With the aid of a bank holiday described as likely to be national in effect, leaders of this great metropolis, heart of the United States money region, faced the future coolly today, and expected quick return toward financial normalcy.

A high banking authority, soon after a two-day holiday had been proclaimed by Governor Herbert H. Lehman, quietly after four a.m. said that while the holiday was not technically national in scope, its effect was practically the same.

One important effect, the same authority pointed out, would be the stopping of gold withdrawals both local and to other countries since the federal reserve bank in New York was to be closed. Exactly $100,000,000 in gold had left the bank in recent days scheduled for foreign account, and an unestimated amount had been withdrawn by citizens.

Wall Street Closes.

A statement issued by the governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange says: "The governing committee decided that the exchange will cease to function after the morning in order to give full effect to the banking holiday declared by the governor of the State of New York directed:

"First, that the exchange be closed during such holiday.

"Second, that members and firms registered on the Exchange be prohibited from making any offer for the purchase or sale or the borrowing or lending of any securities, except that offers to purchase offers or facilities to be used for the purpose of making or carrying out such contract.

"Third, that all deliveries be suspended on all contracts except such contracts as may be cleared by the Stock Clearing Corporation and that in such cases delivery be made through the stock clearing corporation shall direct.

"Fourth, that are directed to give full effect to the legal holiday declared by the State of New York."

Governors of the New York Curb Exchange, the New York Produce Exchange, the National Metal Exchange, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the Rubber Exchange also voted to close, following the action of the stock exchange, at 10 a.m. The Bank Stock and Unlisted Security Dealers Association also took similar announcement.

The decision to put New York State on a bank holiday followed a day in which demands on local banks for currency reached the peak of gold amounted to $18,439,600, the largest withdrawal of any day the United States ever had to give up in a single day.

Financial Mystery

The position of the large Wall Street banks was described as unassailable by leading financiers of the city. Lehman in attributing the necessity for the holiday to the sweep of hysteria and the burden caused by the banking situation in other States, said: "Banks in other financial districts, in turn, leaders described banking conditions as due to the pressure from neighboring areas.

The governor's proclamation of restrictions imposed upon the banking facilities of the country through certain channels, which for days have at last placed upon the New York banks the burden of the run that it has finally rendered drastic action necessary, Governor Lehman's decision said in his proclamation.

The proclamation of governor was accompanied by a statement by the New York clearing house committee in which it was said no "unwarranting attempt" of the public to withdraw $40,000,000 in gold from its ex cause was "on its face impossible."

CANADA BANKS VERY STRONG

line. But it was pointed out that in another way the United States banks were helping to relieve the situation to the extent it stopped any likely influx of currency to Canada from there coming to Canadian banks, which already are under pressure as result money as they can profitably accommodate. All Canadian banks support today the edict of the New York Stock Exchange that prohibits anyone to buy or sell for selling of American stocks in Canada, and in Canadian financial centres there was no indication that United States issues could be exchanged.

Dealings Suspended

London, Mar. 4—(AP)—British banks suspended dealing in all foreign currencies for today owing to the New York banking holiday declared today.

This was necessary because European exchanges could not be kept open the United States dollar, for which there was no quotation.

Toronto, Mar. 4—(CP)—Canadian banks are not handling any exchange business today, even with New York or other United States points today, because of the uncertainty regarding the New York Price of the Canadian dollar. Before closing down of banks in the U. S. metropolis due to the virtual nation-wide moratoria declared by governors of

ELEPHANT IS KILLED OVER KEEPER'S BODY

Even Old Keeper Could Not Control Three-ton Animal

Honolulu, T.H., March 4—Daisy, three-ton African elephant, was executed as she stood over the body of George Conradt, whom she had trampled to death. Ironically, Conradt, her former keeper, had again taken charge of Daisy and gave her from execution.

Conradt was dismissed several months ago. The elephant became unruly. She was chained to a tree. Her lashing trunk kept all persons at a distance. Only he, it is proved to all her a storm of controversy broke out over the island. A newspaper campaign for funds to build a stockade for her.

Conradt declared Daisy would be remembered. Yesterday he returned to work. Eyewitnesses said he was attempting to lead her back to her old pen. She refused to go. Angrily she swung her black trunk at him. Conradt fell, stunned, blood flowing at the nose. He attempted to arise. Again she knocked him down. Then the beast trampled him to death.

An execution squad of twelve police hastily summoned, took aim with rifles above Daisy's eyes. She continued to waste, defiant, over the body of her former keeper. At a command the police fired. The elephant's huge bulk quivered, then she slumped slowly to the ground, dead.

Gold and silver were both made to a considerable extent in antiquity, but during the Middle Ages some of the mines were exhausted, and the output of precious metals dropped almost to nothing. The discovery of gold at the date of the discovery of America is estimated at no more than 75 million dollars' worth.

Sherry, Nicoll and Covert Get Out of Sick Bed to Play

Setting up a defensive system that the Belleville D.A.C. playing assembly could not solve, the Toronto St. Columbas capitalized to the fullest measure on their scoring possibilities to defeat the local intermediates in the first game of the second round of the O.H.A. playoffs at the Belleville Arena Friday night by the score of 4 to 2 and now enjoy a two goal lead to enter into the second game which is to be played at the local Arena on Monday night.

Scoring the first goal of the night before the fathers had hardly settled back in their seats the visitors overwhelmed like Sends and laid a five man defence in front of all and sundry attacks attempted by the locals. Bob Holmeshaw, playing manager of the Toronto team, stood head and shoulders above all participants of the game during the entire sixty minutes. Not only did he turn in a superb performance on the defence but also, did his team on many dangerous attacks. Roberts pulled down three of the five penalties that came each and every time the classy Toronto man took a rest in the "boose gone" did so after saving what appeared to be a sure goal from the sticks of the locals. Ken Holmeshaw, in the nets, for the visitors covered a thirty in the sides of the Belleville players all evening, robbing them of a good three on top of him. He was more than ably defended by Roberts and "Pilly" Thompson, who despite the fact they did not bounce and bodycheck the local forwards as much and as often as they have been accustomed to, steered them into the corners and relieved them of the puck and turn the play back.

Minus Two Regulars

Manager Holmes was minus two of his regular forwards and shifted his defence men in his place with Dave Horne at centre flanked by "Smith" Scott and Mel Forester. At this line Horne and Scott broke up the best and carried the puck to advantage. Forester was perhaps the more effective with his backchecking. Joe Sharrard, another son, who crashed into the Belleville end early in the second period and was carried from the ice, later to return, looked the best with Ted Pilsworth and Jack Beal bombarding the final chalker. Realizing that the Dohertys were a better team than they showed last night Manager Moran will strengthen his club with the acquisition of Herbie Gibb, classy centre man of the Tonight Cities service team, and "Chuck" Good or the British Consols Club for the return game on Monday night.

With the Dohertys playing below their usual form, the coaching mr. Shiels and Mr. Carroll, tried shifting their forwards and defence into many different combinations to relieve the pressure and endeavour to get the scoring punch of the club. Les Thoe was in no way responsible for his team losing as it might be said in his favour that owing to the poor ice conditions the locals along their defensive work as they took shots from any angle seemed to screen. Especially or note was MacPherson's goal in the final period when "Mac" was caught right in front of the net, unprotected, and fired a shot past Holmeshaw's forehand after Tice had been on the defence once again after an effort. Bill Sherry got out of a sick bed to play in uniform and naturally was not seen at his best while Alex Weir not only carried his share of the load on the defence but relieved on the "rid" front line during the second period.

Most of Says Dick

Of the starting combination of McMeekin, Morgan and MacDonald, the extra man on every boy with a little poke-check looked the best with MacDonald improving as the game progressed to play the best hockey in the final canto. Harry Nicoll and Ken Covert got out of bed and was assisted by Covert and Sir. Denis. It might also be said of the two former on this line that they got out of their beds to don the uniform. Nicoll and Covert were not seen at their best but carried the puck through to pass to be rewarded for their efforts by a nice goal in the second period. The coaches shifted McMeekin and Nicoll from their usual wing positions add interchanged them in the third period.

Although they face a two-goal deficit the Dohertys, strengthened by the addition of Mase Hall and Harry Morgan, who announced this morning that he would be in the line-up if at all possible on Monday night, should be seen at a much better advantage and expect to return winners on the round.

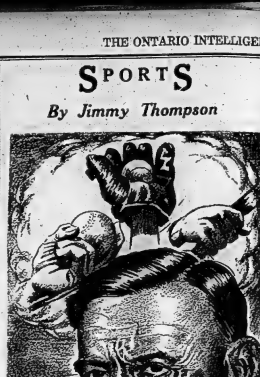
Right off the face-off Scott took a pass from Horne and sailed in to beat Tice. The visitors retaliated on the next play Horne batted the rubber past Tice, after the local net-minder had stopped Forester's shot. Horne grabbed the rebound before the locals realized the game was started. Herb Moran's charges were carrying the play at this point and the locals seemed completely disorganized. The Dohertys were bunching and getting into the way of each other due to the fact that they seemed somewhat disorganized and the Columbans were capitalizing to the fullest measure by bombarding Tice. McMeekin sailed in on what looked like a sure counter only to have Holmeshaw rise to the occasion and literally rob the local centre man on a nice save. Roberts dumped St. Denis when he was about to shoot and took a well deserved rest. While he was off "Pete" Morgan missed the open net by inches when MacDonald drew Holmeshaw to the side. Tice was testy by Horne and Roberts and on the return play McMeekin rushed the visitors only to have Roberts pull his feet from under him, thus saving a goal. Both nets took another trip to the "boose gone." Again McMeekin was thrown but Thompson duplicated Roberts' feat and Gordie was robbed of a goal but Thompson was penalized. The frame ended with the locals pressing and the score one to nothing for Toronto.

Shifted Defence.

Gilbert started on the defence with Sherry in the second period with Alex Weir playing left wing in place of St. Denis on the "kid line". Again the locals were denied an open net on a pass from Horne and after some little play Nicoll evened the score by beating Holmeshaw on Covert's well-timed pass inside the defence. A minute later Nicoll was waltzed through the entire D.A.C. team to score unassisted. Play was fast night and put the visitors one up again. The Moran-managed outfit then set up a perfect defence in defence for the remainder of the period which the locals could not penetrate.

To open the final chukker Weir went back on the defence with Sherry, while McMeekin was shifted to centre with the "kids" and Nicoll was used in the place position with the first line. Forester had the first shot on the net with Sherry intercepting. Thompson soloed, Tice beating his effort, but MacPherson, who was unprotected, sailed in to bat in the rebound and make the score 3 to 1 for the Saints. Following this the Dohertys looked their best as they not only carried the play deep but literally bombarded Holmeshaw but the Toronto goalie did everything in his power to keep the visitors from adding to their lead. Then a C. A. C. Cup Friday night. We lead the Ottawa City aggregation in the fullest measure and compliment on their clean cut victory but not before stating that the locals were no a certain degree, out-locked, out-played and out-fought last night. Post mortems of hockey games are always in order and usually go to stimulate interest in Canada's national game.

It is with this feeling that we suggest that—First the Dohertys were playing far below par; second they were a club that set up the most perfect line of defensive hockey, we have seen in these parts in some time; thirdly—Holmeshaw seem able to capitalize, to the fullest measure, on their scoring possibilities and lastly their defensive work was completely overawed by that of the visitors. That's the story in a few words.



So much for the bad news; now for something of a rather cheery nature. Harry Morgan's shoulder was bothering him considerably last night and he is taking to the ice this evening and if the "old boy is sore" responds. So the Doherty's "kid line" will once more be intact with Harry Morgan at centre, Ted Jones playing with Nicoll and Covert. We feel in conversation with Morgan last night and he informed us, that he was feeling fine and had been taking regularly so as to keep in condition. Then again "Mase" Rigby will undoubtedly be added to the roster of the green and white, which has not reported to be in such better health this morning and will add strength to the Weir-Sherry rear guard line.

Oo the other hand Sherry, Covert and Nicoll, all arose from a sick bed to play on Friday night and with a complete rest over the week end should be seen at a much better advantage on Monday. On the other hand either Herbie Gibb or Chuck Good will be added to the line-up of the Columbans, but Fred Heimbecker is out for the season suffering from a dislocated shoulder, according to manager Moran.

So much for Monday.

We can not just fathom why the local forwards were tryingto crash through the Toronto defence, single handed, during the first few minutes. Time and again the forwards tried to forge their way through Holmeshaw's defence, a solid stonewall defence. Once the Saints had established they they rounded the visitor's defence to an advantage, during the dying moments, however. To say the least this boy Holmeshaw in the nets for the Saints was either good or lucky. Perhaps a little of both would be doing him justice. He turned in a superb effort all evening, especially when he beat Pete Morgan, Harry Goodie McMeekin and later Covert, Nicoll and MacDonald in succession. Each and every one of these plays looked like sure counters for the Dohertys but none of them materialized and the green and white, now face a two goal deficit Monday.

It is our opinion, that Bill Roberts, classy left defenceman for the Columbans, was just ahead of the class of the players to appear on the ice. Some little squawking was set up relative to the goal poked passed Holmeshaw during a mix-up in the third period. It was quite evident that referee Joe Smith had sounded his last whistle before Nicoll poked the rubber past the provincials around the Toronto net, somewhat. Post mortems of hockey games are always in order and usually go to stimulate interest in Canada's national game.

Knocks and Boosts

Before we start this column today we wish to state that no words of praise can be given, in the smallest measure, detract any of the glory and honor accomplished by the Toronto St. Columbas last night by their 4 to 2 win over the local D. PORT SAILORS NIAGARA FALLS IN THE FINALS

Ports Hold Hamilton Tigers to 1-1 Tie And Win Round 3-1

CATARACTS WIN

Defeat Marlies 3-1 And Win Round 4-3 in Toronto

(By the Canadian Press)

Dispositions of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" title was confined today for the first time in many moons to the Niagara Peninsula.

Port Colborne and Niagara Falls, third and fourth place teams in the final standings of the circuit, last night eliminated their more highly-touted rivals, Hamilton and Toronto Marlboros and earned a place in the finals.

A two-goal advance from the first game in Port Colborne proved the deciding factor in the total-goals series, the game at Hamilton last night ending in a 1-1 deadlock, the Ports taking the round 3-1.

Cataracts won their game when they labelled Marlboros with a 3-1 defeat at Toronto to become a one-goal deficit from the initial encounter and win the round 4-2.

The intro-provincial series will fight it out for the title in a best two-of-three game affair, starting Tuesday night.

A trio of intermediate sextetes dropped into discard while their conquerors were engaged in that wearying trail to the title. Sutton eked out a 2-1 win over Fenelon Falls to take the round 5-2; Tilbury batted Ayr to Huntsville, a 7-1 tie giving them the decision, while Clinton fell by the wayside when Waterloo gleaned a 4-3 win on the game and 9-5 on sthe round.

Preston Juniors made an improved showing than that displayed in the second semi-final game with Streetsville Monday night, losing the first game they lost 8-1, while last night it was 7-3 to give the local gate the round 13-4.

The winner of today's Toronto National-Newmarket clash at Toronto will play the Midgets for the title.

B.C.I. CAGERS WIN 2 GAMES

Juniors Defeat Grads While Seniors Take R. C. A. F.

In two interesting basketball games at the Belleville Collegiate last night, B.C.I. Juniors were victorious over the Grads, defeating them by a score of 41-21, while the senior team won another game by the wide margin of 72-23 from the Royal Canadian Air Force team, Trenamouch as the Grad team, which played Junior basketball against former Y's men Intermediate playyers, the Juniors win was impressive, and the augers will for the league in the play-offs to be held in Toronto on March 17, 18 and 20.

The game opener with both teams on the floor throughout the night was that little scoring was done in the first period, five goals being the total, five points, but by half-time the Juniors had plucxily overcome this lead, the score standing 13-11 at the half mark.

Playing entirely too much agreed and endurance in the first few minutes of the game, the Grad team rapidly drew away from the Grads, on smart passes by Henry, and Hagerman, and the Collegiate Boys' defence was rapidly weakening as the Grads' lead grew to 21-11 and the B.C.I. kids' forwards found the range, scoring three in a safe load. The regulars for the Grads did not show their usual performance, while the relief work of Yeomans, Schneider and Tobe was greatly improved. For the Grads, Bob Hagerman was the star, while but their counters came from well out in the floor, they constituted a strong defensive system thrown at the B.C.I. forwards. Free throw shooting of the B.C.I. team was especially good, eleven out of eighteen finding their mark.

Senior Game.

In the senior game, quick scores by Ostrom, Burley and Scott gave the locals a lead which they never relinquished. The switching of George Ostrom from defence to forward in the third period of play did threat on which they capitalized fully, the 3-goal ended in favor for Belleville. In the final canto, Belleville Collegiate settled down entirely, and they showed in good condition, with Carter and Bonisteel as being the pick Towards the end the R.C.A.F. team gained slightly, but they were too far behind to overcome the substantial B.C.I. lead. Ostrom, Burley and Scott were best for the visitors scoring, the Davidson 5, Ridley 4; Marsales and Bryant 3

Other Roads Closed

by Glen F. Stillwell

Richard Turrell paced the floor of his lavishly furnished office—stopping suddenly at a window. Again he drew from his face and sank into his chair shielding his cheek.

A slim dark elderly man with the neatly trimmed beard and the air of a bachelor of a doctor, Richard Turrell might have been called handsome were it not for an ugly scar under his right eye and a certain haggardness of face.

The outer office door told the curious in gilded letters that the tenant was an importer and exporter but beyond that Mr. Turrell's business was a mystery except to a few insiders. These few knew that, under an alias, Mr. Turrell's real business had something to do with race horses that won unexpectedly at long odds.

As Turrell sat there at his desk, the inner office door opened to admit a seedy looking man who held his cap in his hand.

Turrell looked up impatiently. "You're late, Sleepy," he scolded. Then he said Turrell sharply, "I suppose you've been hitting the needle again."

Sleepy did not answer but his silence was a confession of the truth of this supposition.

Turrell's face darkened over his massive desk and regarded Sleepy with scornful eyes. "Well, I'll be game. "You can't leave that stuff alone, can you." It was a statement, rather than a question.

"I'm alright," said Sleepy, defensively, glancing at the floor uneasily.

Turrell appeared to meditate. "How good a shot are you?" he asked suddenly.

A look of surprise flickered in Sleepy's dull eyes, then he smiled crookedly. "I can hit a dime every time," he affirmed, "You want me to kill a horse?"

The other shook his head and lowered his voice. All the color had drained from his cheeks but his voice was steady. "No, I want you to kill a man."

"What!" Sleepy jerked himself erect, his eyes dilated. "No—no, I couldn't do that." He sank into a chair gripping the edge of the desk.

"I'll make it worth your while, Sleepy," Turrell went on, his voice mechanically calm. He reached in his desk drawer and produced an envelope and a key. "In this envelope," he explained, "is a railroad ticket to a place out in Maple Grove and a check made out to the fee for the charge. When you've cured that'll give you the balance of the money. It will be around five thousand dollars. Or if you don't want to try the cure, you will find that, if you do as I ask, that the key will unlock a box at the postoffice. The box will be in my name and in it there is an envelope containing five thousand dollars in cash which you can take and leave."

Turrell placed the envelope and key on his desk. "Now I'll tell you why I want this fellow out—out of the way."

Sleepy licked his lips but said nothing.

"Three years ago today," Turrell began, "a fool who lived happily in this city with his wife and little boy lost his position through his own greed and carelessness. That started him on the way out. He got into various scrapes, each one a little worse than the preceding one until at last, filled with remorse and a fugitive from the law, he decided the only thing left for him was the river. All other roads were closed. But he went at it in a round about way and he found that he hadn't the courage to take his own life. Instead he left part of his clothing on the river bank and disappeared, leading his wife and friends to believe that he had committed suicide.

Turrell paused to gaze aimlessly out the window, then he continued on: "After that, the fool, trying to forget, made much money in a shady sort of way but he was not happy. Then stolen of his wife and baby haunted him day and night until at last he resolved to risk everything and return to them; to take them away with him. But he found that he was too late. His wife, thinking him dead, had married an influential lawyer who had been a friend of the family."

Sleepy's eyes narrowed speculatively as Turrell again paused. "And you are that fool," Sleepy guessed.

"I am that fool," Turrell admitted. "I could force my wife to take me back but, as long as the husband is alive, I couldn't expect her to love me after the way I have cheated. But if he were dead—"

Sleepy sat as if in a trance, his half-closed eyes fixed on the key lying on the desk. There was a long interval and then Sleepy's fingers worked convulsively toward the little implement that would unlock a fortune for him.

Turrell arose, placed the envelope and the key in Sleepy's hand and slipped a pistol into the drug addict's coat pocket.

"Tonight at twelve," Turrell said, abandoning the pose, "I will stop in front of No. 1207 Palge avenue and a man wearing a light gray overcoat and a brown hat will get out of it. I've arranged for this to happen; does it look like it's enough for you to know that this is the man. The rest is up to you. It should be a comparatively simple task for the street is dark and will be deserted at this hour."

A few minutes later Sleepy walked out of the office like a dead man with enough ready cash to buy almost (it seemed) a ton of "hop." That night, Sleepy, armed pressed against a telephone pole close to 1207 Paige avenue. It was a moonless night, damp and foggy. Everything favored the crime which he was about to commit and Sleepy's hand shook and his heart pounded as he saw the lights of an approaching car. It was a taxi came to a stop with a squealing of brakes and a man alighted. A man wearing a light overcoat and a brown hat.

The taxi drove on and the man stood for a moment swaying unsteadily in the misty glow of the street lamp. Sleepy raised his gun but his hand trembled so that he could not aim it. With a groan he buried it from him but his finger, catching on the trigger, pressed the gun.

Sleepy blinked as the man pitched headlong on the sidewalk. His legs froze so he couldn't run. In a few minutes a small crowd had gathered. The taxi driver returned. "I thought I heard a shot," he said, "but I guess my ear buckfired."

A man, evidently a doctor, bending over the body on the sidewalk looked up. "Yes," he said, "it must have been your car. This fellow is the victim of a hit and run attack. Jim and Turrell is his name: a neighbor of mine. I warned him about his heart, the other day but told him that he might live for years. It's too bad."

As they heard the ambulance approaching, Sleepy, sick and badge the taxi driver, opened his mouth once or twice. At last he spoke gibberishly as a policeman and a small "Here's a-a-a key I-I found on the sidewalk. I-I guess you—you can take care of it. Musta been th-the-key to his a-a-apartment." And Sleepy, too, slumped to the walk.

The Unexpected Tenant

Possession, be it right or wrong,
Makes your position doubly strong.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Reddy and Mrs. Fox were in high spirits as they returned to their old home in the Old Pasture. They had left it some weeks before to seek new hunting grounds, for after the great storm starvation had stared them in the face. It had been a wise move, for they had managed to live well, a little too well perhaps, for of late they had been much hunted and Reddy still limped from wounds he had received from a terrible gun. Worse still, they had of late been obliged to constantly be on the watch for cunningly hidden steel traps. So they had turned toward the Old Pasture where Farmer Brown allowed neither hunting nor trapping.

They had traveled most of the night to get there and that fact that had been wounded bothered Reddy quite a bit, so that he was with a little sigh of thankfulness that just at break of day he followed Mrs. Reddy up a familiar path that led to their old home. Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had melted all the snow for some distance around their doorway, so there were no footprints to tell them if there had been any visitors during their absence.

Reddy threw himself down on the doorstep. "It is good to be home," said he with a sigh of contentment. "Yes, sir, it is good to be home. Our needs to go off and stay awhile and then return; that is the only way to learn what home really means. I am going to look inside the house and see if everything is all right. I'll join you in a few minutes. It certainly is good to be back home. I'll never leave it again."

Reddy prepared to enjoy his sun bath as soon as jolly, bright Mr. Sun should get high enough in the blue, blue sky. Meanwhile he would take a nap. He had just closed his eyes when Mrs. Reddy reappeared in something of a hurry and looked both angry and troubled.

"Of all things," she sputtered angrily, "to come home and find some one in your house is the limit! I ask you if it isn't!"

"A tenant," exclaimed Reddy, abruptly sitting up. "Do you mean that there is a tenant in our house?"

"There is a tenant in our house," declared Mrs. Reddy.

"But who would dare move into the home of Reddy Fox?" said he, flip. "Has a strange Fox come to the Old Pasture?"

Mrs. Reddy shook her head. "No. It isn't a Fox," she said.

"It is one of Old Man Coyote's family?" demanded Reddy. "I —I wouldn't like to have any trouble with Old Man Coyote."

"Again Mrs. Reddy shook her head. "It isn't a Coyote," said she. "It is that case we'll throw out whoever it is," declared Reddy. "Old Man Coyote is a trifle too big for me, but there is no one else in the Old Pasture of whom I am afraid. I don't know who this unexpected tenant is, but he is going to get out in short order. The impudence of him for even thinking of moving into our house! I am going to pull him out right this minute."

"I wish you would and I don't wish it," said Mrs. Reddy. "Anyway, I don't think you will."

"Why not?" demanded Reddy, swelling up so as to look brave and important.

Mrs. Reddy whispered in Reddy's ear. Reddy backed somewhat hastily from the door. Suddenly Reddy grinned. Reddy looked sheepish.

We suppose the idea that church and school is often a good excuse for offenders crops up naturally in the mind of a magistrate who enjoys his golf.

BENNETT TO WASHINGTON

Ottawa, Mar. 3.—(CP)— No official announcement could be secured on the London report that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett would go to Washington shortly on a mission that might have reference to the negotiation of a trade treaty with the United States.

Outside of the South, Ohio has a larger farming population than any other American state.

Taks can live eight months without water if the first rains without food, scientists report.

Now a shout went up from the legionaries in the garden. They had breached the wall and were advancing to enter through the hole. Tarzan unleashed the apes. "Stop them, Zutho! Kill, Goryo, Kimla! The apes sprang forward with bared fangs and growling hideously, threw themselves upon the soldiers.

Two apes went down, pierced by the Roman pilus, but before the beasty rage of the others Caesar's soldiers fell back. "After them!" cried Tarzan to Praeclarus. "Follow them into the garden. Capture the ballista and turn it upon the legionaries. We hold the throne-room door until we're needed."

Led by Maximus Praeclarus, Castus Hasta and Caecilius Metellus, gladiators, thieves and murderers dashed forth into the garden, profiting by the advantage the apes had gained for them. Side by side with the remaining gladiators, Tarzan fought to hold the legionaries from the little doorway.

Glancing back, he saw Mpingu leading Dilecta from the room to the rear of the escaped prisoners. Then he turned again to the defense of the doorway. Closing way step by step, he and his men fell back to the window and backed through the breach in the wall to the garden. Then came a shout of warning.

SON OF THE GODS

By Rex Beach

"To the father this was confirmation of his belief in the lad's celestial origin, not that confirmation of an implicit faith was necessary for he heard whisperings that disturbed him and one day Clarence Dunstan came to him in considerable distress of mind. The women engaged in Chinaboro's settlement work — the white women—were asking questions. They were meddlesome creatures that and to them the dignity, the repose of Lee Ying's declining years meant nothing.

Arrived in New York, Lee Ying set himself up in some Bowery style that formerly and the local Chinese welcomed him as if he were a person of national importance. To the Lees it was much the coming from the real China into a land of barbarians, for New York's Chinatown was but a pale counterfeit of one Chinese quarter in San Francisco. Nevertheless they adapted themselves to it, hid the curtains of the past fell together behind them, a new life began.

Lee Ying engaged an English tutor for Sam, a bespectacled Cantonese with a bulging, egg-shaped head. The fellow had graduated from Yale,[1] and in his hands Sam's education took a new turn. In a year he had learned to speak a stilted, pedantic and book-English and there were few tricks of pronunciation that bothered him. He had learned also to wear American clothes which he did whenever he and his myopic tutor went out into the streets. At fourteen he had grown into a sallow, spindling youth crammed to the point of indigestion with a learning far beyond his years.

One day Sam and his tutor were sitting in Mulberry Bend Park, that breathing place tucked in between Chinatown and the environs on the east and the crowded Italian neighborhood to the west of it. It was a favorite resting place of theirs, for here the tutor could read while Sam watched the white children at play. Their amusements were rough and meaningless to the boy, the yelling and the quarreling that went with every game struck him as senseless and undignified, nevertheless he felt a timid eagerness to take a hand.

This day he noticed on the bench next to him a little girl, somewhat younger than himself. She was bundled up in more clothes than the weather called for and from her voice it was plain that she was a child. She possessed an impudent nose and a pair of impertinent eyes for the which were contradicted by a wistful mouth. When her glance met Sam's she slyly averted it. This happened two or three times, when the little girl smiled. Sam's face paled. A moment later he was kindling at her side.

"Are you sick, too?" she inquired. Sam shook his head. "I been sick. Don't you feel sick?

"I am sorry," he managed to say. "Wasn't you ever sick?"

"No. I have been remarkably free from illness."

"Well, why don't you play with the other kids? . . . You're Chinese, ain't you? Only I didn't know you was a Chinaman. . . . I bet it's hard to talk Chinese. . . . We had three doctors at our house and my ma's baby brother turned gray in a single night . . . Why don't you play? It's play if I could, but I can't. Don't you like to play? I do. Only I hate it now."

"My father prefers to have me improve my mind. He says those who would win honors in their studies must learn denial dissipations."

"My father never went to school. He's a steamfitter and he goes to Albany and makes laws. Say, everybody knows through when he tells 'em to! . . . Gee, it must be funny to be a Chinaman! I'd rather be sick. . . ."

This young person's frankness and charm appealed to Sam irresistibly, for she was a friendly soul and her interest in him was unaffected. Her rudeness was unintentional and merely the result of an eager curiosity. Her name was Eileen Cassidy and that was her brother, Jim, yonder, Jim fetched her home every day. They lived down on Oliver street.

"My pa took me in your store one day, Gee! It's big. You live upstairs, don't you? I live in a cryalor house. . . . I like stores that smell good, like yours. Can you buy anything you want in there? . . . Pa says you're awful rich. . . ."

Sam's tutor and his tutor walked home Sam was outwardly sedate, but inwardly all he was in universal. Notions of children had entirely altered, there was a strange warm feeling in his breast. He had a friend.

Eileen's brother Jim was a healthy, barum-scarum boy and he resented playing the effeminate role of nursemaid, so in the days that followed he more than willingly surrendered the care of his sister to Sam Lee and proceeded to amuse himself. Daily Sam brought presents to his little friend and in consequence his status with the other children changed. They began to regard him with something akin to respect. Encouraged in him a source of possible revenue they assumed a demeanor wholly artificial—it was an experience, by the way, with which he was destined to become all too familiar as time went on.

Eileen Cassidy proved one day that she, at least, was a stout and loyal friend. On this occasion Sam had brought with him a new, not again, nor silk as usual, but his own most cherished possession, his fighting crickets. There were three of them, each housed in a gourd elaborately carved and colored to resemble a blooming flower and provided with a perforated ivory cover highly decorated.

These crickets, he explained, were not ordinary insects, they were the reincarnation of famous warriors long dead and they bore honorable Chinese names. The white Eileen did not undertake to repeat. At such times she assumed the role of attentions; they were fed and watered from tiny porcelain dishes and a little bed was provided for each. They were specially bred and trained champions with records of many victories. Eileen was told, yet they consisted of rice, cabbage, beans and chopped fish. To prove their firmness before a battle mosquitoes spurred with human blood were fed to them.

The other children were more excited by the bloodthirsty nature of the diminutive warriors than by Sam's recital of their virtues, and a crowd gathered. There was a rushing and shoving, and finally a scream from Eileen, as an unmannerly boy despoiled her of her treasure. Sam promptly fell upon the robber, in an instant they were out of the crickets, were at each other's throats.

It was Sam's first flight and he was astonished to discover that he took to it readily. But alas, other boys piled upon him. The cricket gourds were trampled underfoot, crushed, their warlike occupants met with their more ardent brethren they had ever wrought upon their vanquished adversaries. Sam, wild with hysterics, Sam was mastered by a terrible blood-lust; rage flooded up in him so fiercely that he was unconscious of blows that descended and pulled, kicked and struck; he was flung down and rose again. His nose was bleeding and one eye was beginning to be heard yells of,

"Knock the Chinaman!" "Wallop the dotty Chink!".. "Leave 'em alone, he!"

Eileen was in the very middle of the fray—a fray that finally recovered her strength —biting, scratching, kicking, shrieking.

"I'll kill you," she screamed. "You hurt him and I'll scratch your eyes out.... Let him alone, you big stiffs!"

Dan Cassidy was known and feared but gang-spirit was proof against these things. The more Eileen's anger. On a ribbon around her neck Eileen wore her father's old police whistle and this at last she blew with all her breath. Now in the neighborhood of Mulberry Bend police whistles are not sounded in idleness. Answering yells displeased of Sam, his assailants were becoming frightened at the importance of the havoc they had created, so they separated and scurried away, each his own direction. They left Eileen stamping her feet, shaking her fists and shrilling her unaffected defiance after them.

Sam was pale. He was skinned and bruised and bloody, his clothes ruined him terribly. It did not feel like a nose at all: it was much larger than its size and it throbbed. There was the taste of blood in his mouth. No doubt he would bleed to death in a very short time. That appalling prospect concerned him but little, however, amazing phenomena had occurred in the course of the fight. He had proved to be the dignity and the repose that is Chinese; he had been taught to fight like a white. He had been made to believe that peace is perfection and contentment. Now, suddenly, this strange and terrifying monster was loose in his breast, overwhelming him, soul and body It rocked and shook him, it filled him with madness. His hurts were pleasant and he was glad to have received them. And his mighty warriors, those honorable heroes of a hundred battles, lay in the gutter, trampled under the heels of barbarians! He remembered that Eileen had picked the shattered bits of gourd shell, and a sharpness pierced his heart for the three brave spirits that were gone.

Eileen was crying, too! she was plucking at him and talking stridly and tearfully and Sam felt a great tenderness for her.

Eileen was crying, too! she was plucking at him and talking stridly and tearfully and Sam felt a great tenderness for her.

But this was a house of understanding. Dan Cassidy and Sam Lee Cassidy neither condemned him nor punished him. Their attitude was that contrary she praised his spirit and voiced indignation at the outrage, and Mrs. Cassidy acted as a mother. Her name was Ellen Cassidy and that was her brother, Jim, yonder, Jim fetched her home every day. They lived down on Oliver street.

Banks Closed All Over United States by Proclamation

DOLLAR UNQUOTED

Gold Stocks Turn Easier in View of Financial Debacle in U.S.

(By Leo Angelakos from)

The United States banks holiday put a stop to United States dollar quotations abroad and markets around the world kept a close eye on New York and Washington, awaiting developments. London the pound sterling shifted to the gold backed French franc and there was an effort to peg the pound at 85 francs. The price of gold went to 119 shillings 7 pence per fine ounce. The Bank of England declined to comment on a report that it was offering to aid the Federal Reserve.

Paris—The dollar was not noted but other foreign exchanges were active. American tourists cashed their cheques at 48 francs to the dollar, a slight increase.

Berlin—The Reichsbank fixed the dollar rate at 2.49 marks, slightly up Bankers expressed the conviction that the American gold standard is in no danger.

(By the Canadian Press)

Rome—Foreign exchange markets were closed and the stock market was down. The unofficial dollar rate was 18.0 lire.

Tokyo—Foreign exchange transactions were suspended and the markets were closed, except for quotations on government bonds.

Havana—President Machado issued a decree closing all Cuban banks and exchanges.

Italian Mark's Closed

(By the Canadian Press)

Canadian financial exchanges and markets were working as usual today while banks and stock exchanges in the United States remained tied up by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's proclamation of a four-day National banking holiday and embargo on exports of gold.

The British pound advanced from $4.04 at London to $4.18 at the close in terms of the Canadian dollar. But absence of any quotation of the United States dollar in Canada or any other part of the world made it impossible to determine just where Canada's dollar stood in relation to the United States dollar.

Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges opened after directors had made clear that if any wave of selling from the United States made its appearance on Canadian stock exchanges, they would be closed. Secretary to those fronts was quiet and there was no sign of distress selling. With the exception of weakness in gold shares the day's news in the United States seemed to have no effect on Canadian stock market conditions.

Wheat Rounds Up

On the Winnipeg wheat market however grain bounced up again more than a cent a bushel on overnight buying orders from Chicago. Wheat, coarse grains and provisions rose a bushel level reaching Saturday for the first time since November. United States Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's proclamation placing a prohibition on sale of the country's grain products outside of Canada head offices of Canadian banks and instructions to bank drafts payable in other countries to be sent to the nearest United States currency was generally being accepted throughout the Dominion as a further ending of restriction of the exchange rate.

United States tourists here, as in Europe, found themselves in a puzzling plight as Canadian banks have declined to cash cheques or to grant any premium on United States currency.

WILL NOT VOLUNTARILY REDUCE ITS EXPORTS

Decision is Given by the Austral. Government

CANBERRA, Australia, March 6 —(CP Cable)—Australia will not voluntarily reduce its exports to the United Kingdom. This decision was the outcome of a cabinet meeting today which acted against proposals that dairy produce exports be reduced in order to lend a hand in the building up of a dairy market industry in the United Kingdom.

The cabinet decision follows recent declaration by the Australian Dairy Produce Board, that, reduction of exports would bring relief to the industry. The Board further declared the United States "also should reduce her foreign exports.

U. S. Banking Situation

(By the Associated Press)

A banking holiday for the entire United States was proclaimed today by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It extends from Monday to Thursday of this week, both days inclusive.

No bank may transact any banking business whatsoever during the holiday except by permission of the Secretary of the Treasury.

A special session of Congress has been called for noon Thursday to deal with the problem.

In postal savings banks, federal reserve banks and "all persons engaged in the business of receiving deposits, making loans" or transacting any banking business are affected by the proclamation.

The action was taken "to prevent the exporting, hoarding or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency." If related legislation is not completed Thursday, the bank holiday may be extended.

NOT OFF GOLD STANDARD

Secretary Woodin of the Treasury stated emphatically that the holiday does not mean the United States has gone off the gold standard.

Clearing house certificates may be issued during the holiday by banking houses with their assets as security.

The printing of clearing house certificates for use in New York has been started.

Arkansas was the first state to wire the Secretary of the Treasury for permission to open banks in that state on a restricted basis.

Herbert Hoover, former president, who found himself without a small amount of cash, had no comment to make from his New York hotel suite.

Millionaires Ask Butlers for Dime, $100.00 Bills Dodged

Idea of Scrip Races Across Nation Like Wildfire

U. S. INGENUITY

By Raymond Crowley

New York, Mar. 6—(AP)—Quips, grins and tall stories were on the lips of Americans today as they went to a vault they had not tapped since war days.

It was a spell of extra resourcefulness, of ingenuity; human life, in spite of the shortage of cash, was finding ways of carrying on—as it has a way of doing always.

Even before President Roosevelt clothing himself with the powers of war-time law, took quick steps preparing the way for scrip, the idea of scrip was racing through the country, and communities in many scattered sections were leveraging to have it printed.

Tales of millionaires beseeching butlers for a spare dime, of bills with $100 bills being snubbed by change-hungry clerks went 'round by the pounds.

From the top to the bottom of the social scale, people factor inconvenience grinned and bore it.

Former President Hoover, just a few hours out of the White House, found himself with only a small amount of cash—but was getting along. Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania had just 96 cents in his pocket, but was sure someone could in the supernatural motor to carry him back home from Washington.

A New York theatre manager, brief shorn of cash, sent a messenger to borrow from the gather contents of collection plates.

BEETON DRUGGIST FIRES ON BANDITS

Beeton, Ont., Mar. 6 (CP)—A. E. Pachine, druggist, opened fire on three bandits who attempted to rob his store today, and it is believed wounded one as they escaped, leaving an automobile behind.

Pachine heard the men in his store and suspected them. As he began firing, the three dashed out, leaving some merchandise they were loading in the car.

Police are searching the district.

ANTON CERMAK CHICAGO, DIES FROM WOUND

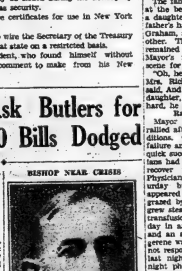
Death Follows Series of Complications And Gangrene

RALLIED 3 TIMES

Body to be Taken to Chicago by Special Train

Miami, Fla., March 6 (AP) — Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, the victim of a bullet Giuseppe Zangara fired February 15 in an attempt to assassinate President Roosevelt, died in Jackson Memorial Hospital today at 6.57 a.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Death followed a series of complications which the doctors said he had combatted valiantly time after time.



The family and close friends were at the bedside. Mrs. Floyd Kinzlay, a daughter, was holding one of her father's hands when he died. Vivian Graham, a granddaughter, held the other. The saddened little group remained in the sun parlor of the house next to the death scene for several minutes.

"Oh, he wanted to live so much, Mrs. Richey Graham, a daughter said. And Mrs. Frank Jirka, another daughter, added: "He fought so hard, he didn't want to die."

Rallied Three Times

Mayor Cermak had previously rallied after three crises in his conditions. Colitis, threatened heart failure and pneumonia been him to quick attention. Just as his physicians had begun to believe he would recover from the bullet wounds Physicians still were optimistic Saturday but that night gangrene appeared in the right lung, the organ pierced by Zangara's bullet, and he grew steadily worse. A blood plasma transfusion was performed yesterday in an attempt to save his life and an attempt to check the gangrene was made but the Mayor did not respond. He lapsed into a coma last night and shortly after midnight physicians said death was a matter of hours.

LONG VIGIL IS ENDED

Political Associates of Dead Mayor in Constant Communication

Chicago, March 6 (AP)—A haggard, sad-eyed group of Cermak's personal friends and political associates of Anton J. Cermak attended their incessant vigil at the mayor's office in the city hall today.

The hushed talk:

As news services flashed word of the mayor's death to the world Alderman Henry Sonnenschein, adviser and secretary, confidential secretary to Cermak, turned from the Little Mayor's private telephone with the words:

"Tony is dead."

Aldermen and others high in city affairs looked at one another, mumbled a few words and gradually filed out of the mayor's office. A few tears were manifest.

Almost constantly since Cermak was struck down by a bullet from the pistol of the assassin, Giuseppe Zangara, Sonnenschein and the others maintained a close watch. They kept in close contact with the Miami hospital by telephone. Today the vigil was over.

INDIANS TO PROTEST ACT

Deputation From Six Nations Wait on Government

Brantford, Ont., March 6 (CP)—Six Six Nations Indians departed today which will lodge a protest against the proposed enfranchisement of Indians by the Federal governments, was expected to make their plea to Dominion officials. They left here yesterday by motor.

The deputation is composed of Frank Miller, chief councillor; Wm. Hill, councillor; Jacob Thomas, councillor; H. Lickes and Frank Montour of the Six Nations Council. Councillors Powless and Montour, who are Great War veterans, will also press a resolution of protest from the reservation war veterans.

While the question of prohibition of the freedom of Indians' dress did not enter the discussion, a number of the leaders and others present showed the proposed proposal was considered "ridiculous."

MILITARY GOV'T NOW IN GREECE

Latest Election Results in Favor of Former Premier

Athens, Greece, March 6 (AP) — General Pastiras, who was head of the revolutionary governments of 1924-34, set up a military government in Greece today.

Yesterday's general election resulted in a slight majority for the Venizelist party, but Premier Demetrios Panayoi Tsaldaris, General Pastiras asserted that in his opinion this situation did not permit of the establishment of a stable government.

Thereupon, said the semi-official statement, the government felt it would "establish a military government to avoid the possibility of disorder."

In a proclamation to the people the premier announced that all meetings would be forbidden and that any gathering in violation of this order would be dispersed by force.

Two elections in five months, he said, had proved that the parliamentary regime is disadvantageous to Greece, having been unable to furnish a stable government in a period of threatening dangers of anarchy, financial and economic confusion and social consolidation.

KING GEORGE REMAINS INDOOR WITH COLD

Much Better Today But Still Confined to Palace

London, March. 6—(AP)—King George, who was suffering from a slight cold, was remaining indoors again today as a precautionary measure.

The King was better this morning but it was stated at Buckingham Palace he could not follow the normal course. It was considered unlikely that he would be well enough to occur at St. James' Palace tomorrow. The Prince of Wales will substitute for him.

HELD TO DRAW

London, March 6 (CP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers were held to a one-all tie on their own grounds by Newcastle United today in a match of the first division of the English Soccer League. Wex Man scored for Newcastle North End also batted to a one-all tie at West Ham in the Second Division.

Impact Upon Religious Life

"The coming of the Toronto team of the Oxford group to Belleville has made a great impact upon the religious life of the city and I believe the effect will be far-reaching in the lives of many people," said Rev. Harold B. Neal of Holloway Street United Church, president of the Ministerial Association at whose suggestion the team came to Belleville.

HYDRO ENTERS HEATER DRIVE TO USE POWER

Belleville Commissioners Feel Need of More Consumption

FAIR DELEGATION

Question of Power Costs by Dates in Two Months

Flat rate and booster heater contracts, at a meeting of the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission today, ordered signed with the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario with the purpose of using up the arrangement with the Ontario Commission is putting on a sale campaign to increase the consumption through the installation of heaters and offers to install free of cost to the consumer commission and to the consumer at flat rate heaters as well as to fix-ance booster heaters.

The Belleville commissioners felt that every encouragement ought to be given the campaign so that the surplus of power which is showing in every municipality may profitably be sold.

In undertaking this the local Hydro Commission is not unde-taking an obligation but is aiming to support the Ontario Commission in its efforts to increase the consumption of energy. The chairman and secretary were on motion of Commissioner Tice and seconded by Commissioner Reid authorized to sign the contract.

Bill is Paid

The payment of a debenture on the Hydro Plant purchase was found necessary. It was reported to the commission, and the commission accordingly had paid through its secretary the city treasurer who had paid to Ontario Commission the amount of the payment.

Mr. A. B. Collins was appointed counsel for the commission at

LATE WIRE BRIEFS

Saxonburg, Pa., March 6—(AP)—Harry Hoffman, grocer, doesn't have to tell customers to "watch their step" at his store fresh. The hens solved the problem for him.

One of the fowls walked into the store and laid an egg on the counter. For no apparent reason, others followed.

Now Hoffman has a line of nests in the store, and the flock is trained to lay there.

Duluth, Minn., March 6—(AP)—Fire prevention has been added to the curriculum of Central High School.

Fifty-five students are enrolled in a class under Fire Warden Jacklitsch and Accident fisherman, to learn the proper method of fighting fire.

"A good fisherman is a good citizen," he says.

Wuppertal, Germany, March 6—(AP)—This town's poor are election placards and smacked their lips. It was all due to a new idea in propaganda, that seemed to commend itself before recent elections. A troop of geese appeared in the main streets. Each fowl was painted with flaming red streaks to set off the Communist slogan: "Bread and work and skin". They were fed to the poor.

Philadelphia, March 6—(AP) —Difficulties of getting money from home long have troubled the college boy but Paul Levy, a senior at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, has a new one to tell. Ottawa Suspends All Money Order Business To and From Canada

Period of Suspension Not Definitely Set

NO PREMIUMS

Financial Developments Watched Frwon Day to Day

Ottawa, Mar. 6 (CP)—The post office department announced this afternoon that all money order business to and from Canada, with any part of the world, had been suspended. The order takes effect immediately. No period will be named in the order but financial developments will be watched from day to day. This order will not affect domestic money orders.

The post office department announced earlier that decision had been made to suspend issue of money orders for payees in the United States. The period of suspension has not been definitely decided upon. Action was taken in this direction, the department said, in view of the order of President Roosevelt closing banks in the United States until Friday.

Consideration is being given to the question as to whether or not further steps may be taken with regard to the acceptance of United States money orders payable in Canada. The department sent out orders from Ottawa on Saturday that no premiums were to be paid on United States money orders until further notice.

TWO BANDITS OBTAIN $100

One Enters Store to be Followed Later by Another

Hamilton, March 6 (CP)—Two bandits held up Powell's grocery store, Sanford Avenue and Gannon streets today and escaped with more than $100 in cash.

Mrs. J. L. McDonald was in the shop when a well-dressed man entered and asked for cigarettes. While she was getting them a car stopped in front and a tall man alighted and came into the shop. He drew a revolver and ordered Mrs. McDonald to hold up her hands. George Miller, an employee, walked from the rear of the store at this moment and was also intimidated by the gun. The bandit then ran behind the counter and emptied the till. The thieves drove away in the car.

Headache
A headache is an offending symptom common in many acute and chronic disorders. In fact, doctors everywhere regard headache of a certain type and location as indicative of some particular regards trouble. For example—headache located in the temple region indicates liver trouble, one at the lower and back part of the head—pelvic trouble, one at the top of the head indicates kidney trouble, and a general headache indicates stomach trouble.
By a careful spinal analysis a chiropractor can determine the cause of a headache and by specific spinal corrections the cause can be removed.

BANK HOLIDAY STIRS LITTLE

Public Sees Little Signs of Financial Crisis in United States

Little stir is felt locally over the fact, that a two day holiday has been declared by nearly all banks in the United States.

Seemingly, the city's chief ones, who are affected in this district by the holiday are those in search of funds, receiving gratuiti-s in the form of money orders or cheques from south of the border, and a few American tourists, who have been "caught short" in their travels.

The former have found it difficult, where cheques have been received at all, to accept their money at all, after having received as high a premium on their United States funds for as long, or the latter, where are very few passing through, it was learned at the Chamber of Commerce this week.

Activities Small

No particular activities have been felt at the money order department, the post office report that a slight drop in the number of money orders issued has been noted.

Telegraph and express offices reveal little activity one way or the other. All United States orders are being quoted at par.

Persons from them that have been tendered American currency, at par, quote par. In one instance a shop refused to accept the American currency, fearing a discount later, it was explained.

Hotels report no inconvenience, even though a few of their guests are from the other side. In nearly every case, it was explained at the Hotel Quinte, travellers from the United States change their money to Canadian funds at point of entry, to secure the exact premium. No stranded guests have been reported in any of the hotels. One exception however, is waiting at a local hotel for funds from his head office in New York.

When questioned, he admitted he did not know how long the wait would be.

CALENDAR SAVES CIVIC EMPLOYEE FROM LOSING

Of Course Banks Are Closed in U.S. On July 4th.

A fifty cent bet was saved in the city hall Saturday afternoon from the aid of a calendar.

With news that the financial center of the United States had been paralyzed when a two day holiday had been declared in order that bank, talk in the city hall late in the afternoon had to do with finances in the States.

"I'll bet you and I'll bet you fifty cents that four months from today, not a bank in the United States will be open," quoth Mr. William Harden to Jesse Harris, caretaker of the city hall.

With alacrity Mr. Harris dug into his pocket for the necessary fifty to take a "good" bet. But a thought struck him. A nearby calendar caught his eye. He slowly returned the coin to his pocket.

"No bet", he declared, pleased with his presence of mind.

Sitting on from Saturday would have made it the 4th of July.

MUSIC

Capitol Theatre Crowded at Charity Concert Sunday Night

To the audience who attended Sunday night's charity concert in the Capitol Theatre it was a program excellently arranged and played, but to members of the Belleville Municipal Band who had donated their services gratis for the evening, it was a constant strain to play the difficult selections in the face of the noise and disturbance that was created by a few of the less orderly.

Once during one of the opening numbers, Mr. Hinchey, leader of the band, found it necessary to stop the number and request perfect silence on behalf of those who viewed their evident enjoyment by the smooth way in which they interpreted their initial effort. Throughout the evening, however, a certain element of those in attendance made it impossible to enjoy the concert to the full.

Two innovations were presented Sunday evening, for the first time in this city a trombone quartette presented a number, which was made "Peaceful Shunters." It was rendered by Messrs. Bell and Wm. Lockie, Jr. and Wm. Lockie, Sr. and Albert Adams, with his piano accordion, at times, giving a novel strain following the playing of several popular numbers and one classical selection. The latter, a well known tenor, who has assisted in the Capitol programme during the past season, needs little introduction from us. His second number was "The Hymns of the Old Church Choir" in the chorus of which the audience generously joined.

In presenting the concert, Mayor Wills announced that the sum of only two or three more will be held, representing the total for the collections that have been made in the past to be turned over to helping the city's needy. Especial tribute was paid by him to the generosity of Old Chris Sandwich in the donation of the Capitol Theatre for the evening, to the members of the Band, and individual entertainers for their services.

Collections at the door were very liberal.

retainer of two hundred dollars for the year.

Messrs. R. M. Mitchell, W. Brooks, J. A. Ferguson and H. J. Finkle of the Belleville Agricultural Society appeared before the commission in connection with the proposed fall annual fair. There was fear expressed that the cost of power be increased by reason of the time of the fair extending one day into the evening. The matter of the board was satisfied with the rates proposed. Representative of Scanlon stated that they realized the local organization did not run for profit. Mr. Dafoe said there was some anxiety lest the cost of power increase, but expressed the fair might not go up in a depression years.

Exchange Costs

On motion of Commissioner Reid and Commissioner Tice, the secretary was instructed to write the secretary of the Toronto Hydro System to learn what Toronto is doing in regard to the so-called 25 per cent of the exchange account presented to the municipalities a considerable time ago.

Mr. O. H. Scott, secretary said that since the announcement of the rebate of 56 per cent of exchange charges, the city was billing the municipality with only 75 cents per horsepower instead of $1.75 as during last year.

Jenkinson; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Eagley; Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Wessels; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mallory and family; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith and family; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Adams, with his piano accordion, at times, giving a novel strain following the playing of several popular numbers and one classical selection. The latter, a well known tenor, who has assisted in the Capitol programme during the past season, needs little introduction from us. His second number was "The Hymns of the Old Church Choir" in the chorus of which the audience generously joined.

In presenting the concert, Mayor Wills announced that the sum of only two or three more will be held, representing the total for the collections that have been made in the past to be turned over to helping the city's needy. Especial tribute was paid by him to the generosity of Old Chris Sandwich in the donation of the Capitol Theatre for the evening, to the members of the Band, and individual entertainers for their services.

Collections at the door were very liberal.

Messrs. R. M. Mitchell, W. Brooks, J. A. Ferguson and H. J. Finkle of the Belleville Agricultural Society appeared before the commission in connection with the proposed fall annual fair. There was fear expressed that the cost of power be increased by reason of the time of the fair extending one day into the evening. The matter of the board was satisfied with the rates proposed. Representative of Scanlon stated that they realized the local organization did not run for profit. Mr. Dafoe said there was some anxiety lest the cost of power increase, but expressed the fair might not go up in a depression years.

Exchange Costs

On motion of Commissioner Reid and Commissioner Tice, the secretary was instructed to write the secretary of the Toronto Hydro System to learn what Toronto is doing in regard to the so-called 25 per cent of the exchange account presented to the municipalities a considerable time ago.

Mr. O. H. Scott, secretary said that since the announcement of the rebate of 56 per cent of exchange charges, the city was billing the municipality with only 75 cents per horsepower instead of $1.75 as during last year.

Thousands Hear Toronto Oxford Group Team and are Stirred with Messages

Reality of Experience of Visitors as "Shared" With People

MANY GATHERINGS

Visitors Feel They Have Gained More Than They Brought

Smiling, facing hundreds upon hundreds of people as they bore testimony to their changed lives through simple trust in God's guidance, the Toronto team of the Oxford Group Movement, on its out-of-town tour, thrilled thousands of Belleville and district people on Saturday evening and Sunday as they told the story of their lives. No such mission has ever before come to Belleville. Directed, as they said, by prayer, they had answered the invitation of the Belleville Ministerial Association to visit this city and bring before the people of this district the power of God's guidance through contact with the Oxford Group Movement.

Their "sharing" was plainly done —no coloring of incidents and also but the clear statement of fact—of prayer and quiet listening, and a new spirit which they feel, many of the sixteen who came here on Saturday afternoon, have lent them courage to speak and to tell. Their lives have been transformed and are revolving from a new centre—God-guided. Some have not even spoken before can speak without, fear. The reaction one feels to those who, something of the people of the first century must have felt in the days of Christ.

Story Is Not New.

Their method is new in that their appeal is not sensational or melodramatic as such at all as it is the old story of the God-filled life and simple confiding in Providence. However, it is a delightful novelty about the smiling team members and their meetings that they fell immediately on the arrival of this happy group from Toronto. At one their hosts, the Ministerial Association, felt ill, it was felt in Albert College where they were entertained and by eight o'clock it had permeated the city and the atmosphere by way of the meeting in the church.

Old-time revivals were so different except that there is the same interest in all parts of the city and district. Sunday's meeting, held in Bridge Street U. C. Sunday School rooms more than met the expectations of the association. At twenty-five minutes to eight o'clock the place was practically crowded. A hurried decision was made to split the meeting, because one section was in the informal quarters of the school rooms and the rest in the overflow meeting in the church auditorium. The downstairs meeting had about four hundred people and upstairs were about twice as many. Between eight-thirty and the past ten these informal missioners of a neighborly message had given one thousand to twelve hundred people by the reality of the sharing of their experience of "the new life."

Downstairs Mr. Eric Bentley took control after a few words introductory by Rev. H. B. Neal, president of the Ministerial Association, while in the church Rev. Mr. Cluff, Anglican Minister of Toronto, was in charge. Before the informal stories of the two held prayer for guidance.

Belleville is the first city to have a Toronto group visit in Ontario. The reception was gratifying in the extreme and the likelihood of a return of groupers to Belleville is not improbable.

Why They Came.

"We come to Belleville out of the love of Christ," said Eric Bentley, the leader, "that is the reason we come to you and have shared our experiences with and as we have of ourselves because we know Christ has tried every need and has given us joy and peace and a marvellous adventure ahead," he noted at the close of the meeting at Bridge Street Church S. S. rooms.

Sharing or relaying experience in "the new life" is no easy thing at any time. Some of the experiences related were startling in their elucidation of the vitality of the Christian experience. Much was of the quiet kind in its conquering of the sins which make so great have to private and public life but do not fall into the category of crimes. The sins of selfishness, self-consciousness, greed, self-will, were bared in the simple-hearted confessions of these men and men who came to tell not something the people did not know for they teach not so much new things and do not dispute on creeds, but have found themselves as a part of the power of the spirit to transform lives, trusted to take care of them.

God In Daily Life.

Mr. Eric Bentley, leader of the group which met in the Sunday school rooms said: "I have been in Belleville before but never on such a mission. Having a mission for Belleville—that may seem strange. But does not life start with the home? The people of Belleville people no different from the people of Toronto especially in one respect—they all have the same common problems. I was and am one of these common people but I was without power to keep up my courage. I felt there was nothing wrong but I knew it was not right. How did I know I should live."

Mr. Bentley spoke of being released from certain problems and ability to live a new life—which does not mean a new house or a new suit of clothes but a new life in the heart. That he found through the Oxford Group.

Speaking of this group which came from all parts of the world, Toronto and Montreal telling people that God had changed their lives, he said that to many people this seemed a remarkable thing. He had been a member of the church and always were in people in whom he expected them. But when this crowd struck town there were overflow meetings from the start to the finish and he was the old style of evangelism working to emotionalism. Then he said: "if we are living a life of absolute honesty, absolute purity, absolute unselfishness and absolute love under God's guidance, then that is the kind of life God wants us to live. Now the statement would have caused rebellion to me six months ago."

A Change.

Mr. Don Cameron testified: "I was not bad as far as the law but I on the other hand was not as good as I might have been from complete living. As the age of thirty-one I find myself in charge of a class of ninety boys—find myself in the unenviable position of teaching what I did not believe. I had had a definite change in life. I was not my own master. I was proud and did not realize it. I was proud of being tolerant, proud of not being shabby. The result was that I was in a way happy because I had so many reasons to be happy, but I was dissatisfied. The Oxford Group hit town. I went to two meetings and had an interview. Then I understood I was to surrender completely to God, not ninety per cent or one hundred per cent. I went to the class to whom up to that time I had been able to give only part of myself. Then I found the members came to me. I had acquired the mastery of myself. As I drove home on the arrival of this happy group from Toronto, at one their hosts, the Ministerial Association, felt ill, it was felt in Albert College where they were entertained and by eight o'clock it had permeated the city and the atmosphere by way of the meeting in the church.

Old-time revivals were so different except that there is the same interest in all parts of the city and district. Sunday's meeting, held in Bridge Street U. C. TORONTO OXFORD GROUP

Belleville has had a real experience with the visit of the Toronto team of the Oxford Group Movement, unusual in the amount of interest and enthusiasm of the people, but not unusual when the history of religious movements is studied. History has a number of movements which have left an abiding influence upon the history of the world. Many believe the Oxford Group Movement is one of this kind, especially one of the few originating in modern times. But even if it does not turn out to be so, countless lives have been changed for the better by adjustment of viewpoint of the verities and realities of life.

There may have been a certain amount of idle interest in the visit but that would be small as compared with the genuine interest in problems of living and there is a great deal more than idle interest there was, was turned into genuine interest before many of the groupers had "shared" their experiences, for these were pages taken from the life we live today, with the title or the big sins as it may be, which are the daily life's happiness and realization of its ideal.

The delightful informality of the visitors, the lack of formality in the ceremony, if any attempt to magnify shortcomings or to stampede by sensationalism, the use of the common language of the home and the street, the earnestness, the deep sincerity and the heroism of the "sharing," give the movement a powerful appeal.

The bringing of the 21,768 persons in Belleville is something for which the Ministerial Association must be given the credit.

THE HIGHWAY JUGGERNAUT

Reports of accidents have been collected by the Motor Vehicles Branch since September, 1930, and during the elapsed time there have been 21,768 serious accidents, in which 1,308 persons have been killed, 19,569 injured and many million dollars worth of damage to property done.

Contrary to the opinion held by too many motorists and pedestrians, motor vehicle accidents are not, in the majority of cases, due to the influence of liquor, or the result of high speeds, nor of deliberate reckless driving, but rather to slippery roadways. These are all important factors but the fundamental causes of most accidents are the lack of control almost entirely upon the drivers and the pedestrians. Poor judgment, inattention, and lack of knowledge as to the proper and safe methods of driving are talking are the causes of most motor vehicle accidents.

Fatalities resulting from motor vehicle accidents during the months of January numbered 14, the smallest total recorded since the inauguration of compulsory accident reporting in 1930, and 20 less than the number killed in January last year. There were 570 accidents in which 491 persons were injured and property damage amounted to 19,205. These totals represent decreases of 16 per cent. in the number of accidents; 19 per cent. in the number of persons injured, and 24.5 per cent. in property damage, from the corresponding month for January, 1932.

The ratio of total accidents to fatal accidents was 41 to 1 as compared with 23 to 1 for the same month of 1932.

Accident frequency was greatest between 6 and 7 p.m.; and higher on Sunday than on any other day of the week.

"Speed and driving too fast and traffic conditions" was the dangerous driving action which was most frequently reported.

Cars "skidding" was the factor most complicated in the mishaps were passenger cars. About 93 per cent. of the vehicles were stated as having been in good condition at the time of the accident.

STORY OF THE ANGLICAN CHURCH IN CANADA

The restoration Fund Committee of the Church of England in Canada, appointed to receive the replacement in full of the endowments of the Province of Saint Rupert's Land, has just issued a series of five historical booklets—"Our Church in Canada," "The Maritimes Welcome the Loyalist," by Canon Vernon, that on Quebec by Canon Kelley, that on Ontario by Professor A. H. Young, that on Rupert's Land by Canon Heeney, at one time rector of Christ Church, Belleville, that on British Columbia by Professor J. Friend Day.

In the belief that the study of history is the best tonic for present discouragements, these booklets are issued to supply material for Lenten lectures by the clergy on the history of the Anglican Church in Canada. It is hoped that they will be read by every thoughtful Anglican. They are admirably printed by the Toronto Saturday Night Press, well illustrated, and each has an attractive colored cover. The may be obtained at the office of the Restoration Fund, The Church House, 604 Jarvis Street, Toronto, ten cents each, forty-five cents for the set of five, or eight dollars a hundred. The proceeds are for the Restoration Fund.

BABE RUTH, playing golf at Miami

Thursday, became a member of that world army of super-select golf players when he made a hole in one. Babe said "the whole world will know about this before night" which shows that the Babe's ear is as ever tuned to the value of publicity.

THE WORLD

The world is a beautiful, splendid sphere
A place of untold delight;
But only that man can find it so
Who has vision to see aright.

The world is sin or the world is song,
It is all in the self that goes
In the mighty pageant which never ends,
Where each one sees the thing he knows.

The world is wrong or the world is wise,
For some strange enchantment gives
A whole, new world mode to meet the mind
Of each man who upon it lives.

The world is no bigger than you yourself
Though you wander from pole to pole;
You will see it all in the terms you use,
The terms of your secret soul!

WASHINGTON WAS GAY with flags, bunting, bands and many visitors Saturday on the occasion of the inauguration of a new administration. As the Democrats seldom get a chance to direct the affairs of the nation the celebration had added significance, for among the more than one-quarter of a million visitors present were many Democrats who had served the party faithfully and well through sunshine and shadow, mostly shadow, and now felt that a new day was dawning for them. It will be then—hence the visit to Washington to pick out the particular job desired. After they get it they will settle down for a while and left of their visible assets except the return half of their railway tickets they will be a little poorer in the way of kind of old political job, sight unseen, work no object, just so's it is connected ever so slightly with the national payroll. They will call but few will be chosen, and the lot of the office seekers will not be much worse than that of their representatives in Congress who have the fact-finding or reducing or repudiating the campaign promises so glibly made.

Reno's Loss, The Nation's Gain

Tight money in the East makes hard times in Reno.

Divorces have fallen off at a terrible rate, and lawyers are moping in their offices.

In the unhappy year of 1932 only 3,105 divorce decrees were granted in the Reno courts, as compared with 4,248 in unhappy 1931. The drop of 1,143 is laid to the depression.

Lawyers' fees dropped also, of course, for, according to a Reno dispatch to the New York Times, the lawyers were of no particular brand of solace in which the Nevada city deals wanted to pay less for it and also to get the actual voting done during the six-weeks' sojourn which the law requires of non-residents.

Of the 3,105 decrees we read, 1,087 went to men and 2,001 to women. Seventeen cases were annulments. During the year 3,534 actions of all kinds were filed, indicating that about 90 per cent. of them were divorce cases, some still pending when the dispatch was written. Children under the ages of five and the clemency of arrival relations numbered 1,832 in 1932, as compared with 2,153 in 1931.

Reno's loss is the nation's gain, a decrease; the total, up to noon of the last day of 1932 was 4,493, as compared with 5,231 in 1931, a drop of 14 per cent. of those who kept the license clerks busy came from California to avoid the five-day wait in that litigious State.

Now the cynic is entitled to assume that those couples who might have sought escape from hateful marital bonds are still living in fiction and mutual disfavor, irritated by the straitened circumstances which alone debar them from freedom and a fresh start. But the New York Herald Tribune prefers to agree with the romanticist who assumes that a majority of those who would have otherwise gone to Reno, but have not, are those whom prosperity would have divided, but whom adversity has brought into closer sympathy and saner understanding.

"And now, sir," pattered the conductor, "would it surprise you if your half-crown, which you have seen me dissolve in the air, were to be found in the other side of the theatre? You, boy, the third row back, will you stand up and feel in your right-hand pocket?

There ensued an awkward silence, but at length the boy spoke—

"There's only two and fourpence now, gunnor. You said you'd give me tuppence, and I've spent it already."

A woman walked into a certain store and asked for a package of limburger cheese. She was not satisfied to buy sight unseen so the grocer unwrapped it for her to sniff. "It doesn't smell as strong as the kind I used to get," she complained.

"Well, ma'am," drawled the proprietor. "It's hard to distinguish the odor nowadays with business so rotten!"

HOT WORDS EXCHANGED

Liberal Leader Asks How Money is to be Spent

Ottawa, Mar. 4 (CP)—Two great problems press upon the attention of parliament at its present session, which are intimately connected with the treasury as the heavy expenditures they entail at present are largely responsible for the difficulty in balancing the budget. The two are unemployment and railways.

Yesterday the House of Commons grappled with unemployment. It ranged it from nearly every conceivable angle but made no progress toward solving the problem of unemployment and farm relief for another year.

The railway problem will come next week, when the bill based on the recommendations of the Duff commission comes before the house. It has already passed the senate and the chances of its receiving quick approval in the lower house are still uncertain.

A few hot words exchanged between Premier R. B. Bennett and the opposition leader, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, launched the house on a stormy and bitter unemployment debate yesterday. Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, was asking the house to pass a resolution necessary to the re-enactment of the relief legislation under which the government has operated for the last three years, when Mr. King asked the Minister for an estimate of how the $20,000,000 would be spent.

Mr. Bennett at once retorted Mr. King's question indicated he was acting in a sense of responsibility as he knew no estimate could be made. He asked if Mr. King knew what he was talking about and Mr. King shouted back he would stand on his intelligence any day.

"They would think the government had ended the depression," Mr. King remarked after Mr. Bennett had spoken of the government's efforts to give relief and ensure financial stability in Canada.

GERMANY GOES AGAIN TO POLLS

Election on Sunday Sixth in The Past Year

Berlin, March 4 (AP)—Germany goes to the polls tomorrow for the sixth major election in a year with pro-Hitler appeals and demonstrations overpowering the campaign wind-up today. Iron decrees shut off disturbances by the Nazi and opposition parties, Socialists and Communists.

While Chancellor Hitler and his Nationalist colleagues in last minute promises that the Reichstead and Prussian Diet elections will mark final decisions, the Catholic Centrist Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, the Centrist leader, says Germany is being plunged into darkness.

Hitler's determination to retain control, whether he wins or loses in the balloting, apparently eliminates possibilities that the actual voting will determin Germany's future but both sides are daubt that the day may only serve to aggravate the internecine strife that of the past two months.

Shelby's Note Book

Ma and Glasses Magee and Shorty Shadick of Consecon were going passed the old animal store and Glasses said, "Look at that cockeyed dog in the window.

Standing a little while one with spots, me saying O, that's a swell puppy all rite if I had a dog that's the very kind of a dog I'd have, I said.

Now and I, me too, Glasses and Shorty said and I said, I bet he whistle he was my dog, too, O, look at him looking at me.

Two more of the kind for eis you cant me strate, he's looking at us, Glasses said, and Shorty Judge said, You both make a mistake, he's looking at me O, he pritty near winked at me, I'm going to ask my father if he'll buy him for me.

And that's just exactly what I'm going to ask my father, Glasses said.

Giving me the meer to ask mine, and after supper pop lit his cigar with a satisfied expression and I said, O, pop, supose a little dog lived in this house with us?

In that case I'd properly very seldom come home, pop said. His not thinking much of dogs in general on account of having been hit by a few fourtunate cars, and I said, Well, O, pop, I bet you wouldn't say that if it was the little dog I saw up at the bend and dog store today. He was the nicest little dog I ever saw, I said.

I've never seen a really nice dog yet pop said, and I said, Well gosh, pop you haven't even one like this one yet.

Then I'm luckier than I thawt, pop said. Not something quite encouraging, and I thawt, O maybe it better supose the kanal question because anyways there's still hope as long as he hasn't actually said no, unless Glasses's father or Shorty's fathere has said you already.

And I called them both up on the telefone and Glasses said his father said he'd rather have an elefant in the house, and Shorty said his father said he must be crazy.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings

JUST A WEDDING—

There is still something of the tribal rites about the marriage ceremony in these modern days that one cannot help but notice. The other day for example, shoppers the patrolled the downtown sections of the city were galvanized by the boom and blare of approaching motorcar horns. A screaming, siren-like noise in the rear of one machine roared out high above the rest of them. Limping in parts, spectators gazed apprehensively up the street, half expecting to see an ambulance or parking fire, filled with the wounded and dying from some major accident.

But no. It was merely a procession of some seven or eight cars gotten up in unfortunate bride and bridegroom en route probably to a railroad depot or their new home. Exhibits A and B who sat huddled in the leading car did not appear to be enjoying the fun half as much as the relatives in the following cars, who trailed closely with horns splitting the air as they went. To complete the picture from the rear of the car holding the newly weds, a long wire dragged, and from a fine assortment of rusty kitchen tinware was the usual number of very old boots.

OLD TOM—

His name is Jimmie. He looks a bit larger and gloomier, and better fed than the last version of him, but there is little else to show that he is anything more than a pampered house pet on a farm just west of the city. Yet he holds an unusual record in this district. He is the champion rabbit catcher of them all —so, certainly the best rabbit hound in the district. He is the champion rabbit catcher of them all —so, certainly the best rabbit hounds. As shadows lengthen over the farm in the evening, Jimmie stretches, yawns, stalks to the door and takes his accustomed place by one of the numerous rabbit runways back in the field, he sits patiently beside some small bush and merely waits until some unsuspecting bunny scampers past. It is his last scamper. With a pantherlike spring the rabbit is grabbed by the back of the neck, heels over and the neck broken, and Jimmie proceeds to have his only meal of the day. It is seldom that he will feel cat ever bills more than one rabbit, but he does not catch as many as a dozen in a short time. Only when some young and foolish rabbit jumps in front of the car as he makes his way home again does Jimmie have a feast. The owner of Jimmie, and the old farm dog who has been taken as a boarder of a rabbit left by the cat, never buts in to the feast, but sits in the distance watching the mighty kill.

OVERHEAD SIGNS—

A reader or the column reports the incident of a hanging sign on Front Street uptown which fell to the walk early one evening just as a small boy was passing the street. The sign, a large one, crashed to the walk just in front of the feet of the boy, who received a bad scare. Other signs on other buildings, he reminded, are hanging in similar instances, in a precarious state. Like the sword of Damocles, they are suspended literally by a hair, waiting for the first gust wind to overthrown loose and deposit them on the sidewalk or road.

ORDER OF PRECEDENCE—

To the observant in New York City, many changes have been noted recently especially in the matter of precedence on the private plates of the Empire State. President-elect Roosevelt, soon to be the first citizen of the land, no longer carries the distinction of New York and Nation bonds guaranteed by the province, a total of $2,076,015.30.

No. 3 displacing Al Smith, who has occupied the No. 4, No. 2 and respectively, are now Governor Lehman and Lieutenant-Governor Bray. The order of rank is easy to follow: First the governor and next the lieutenant-governor, and then the nearest ex-governor and after that, Al Smith.

65 MILLIONS IN RESERVES

Commissioner Hon. R. Cooke Tells of Hydro's Development

Toronto, Mar. 4.—The Ontario Hydro Commission has reserves totaling $63,731,717.44, Hon. J. R. Cooke, chairman of the commission, stated in the legislature yesterday, in replying to questions placed on the order paper by F. W. Elliott, Liberal financial critic. The Hydro questions were taken as a means of starting a renewed opposition attack to be made at a later stage.

The member for North Bruce was dissatisfied with the extent of the answers given by Mr. Cooke and demanded to know if the reserves figure included money which has been used to redeem Hydro bonds. The Hydro chairman explained that he was answering a question placed on the order paper some days ago, and that the Liberal member had placed other questions on the paper only that afternoon when these were answered they might include the reply to Mr. Elliott's question.

The Hydro reserve is made up as follows: Sinking fund, $24,626,050.50; renewals reserve, $22,563,643.57; obsolescence and contingencies, $14,-163,950.46; pooled assets, $2,356,-052; insurance, $933,040.04; Guelph radial railway, $159,240.23.

Mr. Elliott's second question as to the securities which make up the reserves was answered by Mr. Cooke with the statement that the $65,731,-718 includes as one of its credits the sum of $14,853,440.35 paid in cash into the provincial treasury, and $7,-220,574.60 paid out to retire commission bonds guaranteed by the province, a total of $22,074,015.30.

Ontario bonds take up $2,086,904.77 in the sinking fund. In the renewals obsolescence and contingencies, funds are invested as follows: Provincial bonds, $23,233,85; ?; and N. O. Railway bonds, $206,467.39 guaranteed by the province, $1,-mmion bonds, $3,741,065.42; Canadian National Railway bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion, $966,229.90; Ontario Hydro bonds, guaranteed by the province, $1,185,879; municipal bonds, received upon sale to municipalities of local distribution systems, $1,379,810.35.

The sum of $1,055,105.78 has been spent on radial railways but this is to be reimbursed to the commission. Mr. Cooke explained, in the insurance fund are invested $28,785.32 in provincial bonds; $841,242.13 in municipal bonds and $53,619.24 in Canadian National Railway bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion, $966,229.90; Ontario Hydro bonds, guaranteed by the province, $1,185,879; municipal bonds, received upon sale to municipalities of local distribution systems, $1,379,810.35.

The sum of $1,055,105.78 has been spent on radial railways but this is to be reimbursed to the commission. Mr. Cooke explained, in the insurance fund are invested $28,785.32 in provincial bonds; $841,242.13 in municipal bonds and $53,619.24 in Canadian National Railway bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion, and $53,253.56 in Dominion bonds.

Investment of the Guelph Radial reserves is as follows: Ontario bonds, $22,499.49; Dominion bonds,$74,750.72. A total of $73,500.41 was paid out in purchasing the railway.

All the securities listed are deposited in the commission vaults in the Toronto General Trust Company's building, Bay street, with the exception of $2,086,904.77 carried under the listing of "sinking funds investments" and which are deposited with the provincial treasurer.

WAIT FOR ELEVEN YEARS, MONTH, DAY

Readers Cannot Be Fooled by Wide Statement of Business Recovery

Even the hard boiled editors all over the province accepted the circumspection of "3-3-33", a ridiculous jumble of numbers, said not to be again celebrated by any such numbers until 2019 A.D., without question. Readers of the daily press throughout the country have arisen to point to mistakes made at the very beginning.

The same arrangements of numbers will be duplicated every period of 11 years, one month and one day from now, they claim. The first is April 4, 1944!

Investigation by the busy editors in a more skeptical mood, proves the assertion right.

TWINS ARRIVE JUST TWELVE HOURS LATER

Numerologists Have Something Else To Think About

Brantford, Ont., Mar. 4 (CP)—Numerologists who looked for things to happen at 3:33 a.m. yesterday were just 12 hours out of way, as far as the family of Gordon Lamond is concerned.

It was learned today that at exactly 3:33 o'clock yesterday afternoon—the century—the stork flapped his wings and carried to the Lamond household the first of twins, a boy and a girl, the second arriving soon afterward.

To add to the coincidence, Mrs. Lamond is in her 33 year, and the twins are the third set in three generations.

LOCAL OPTION FOR COUNTIES

Prohibition Union Would Divorce Question From Provincial Politics

Toronto, Mar. 4.— Local option over areas, removal of the liquor question from politics and its establishment on a strictly referendum basis, the assertion of principles that will constitutionally controls the civil right of licensing the manufacture of alcoholic beverages, and not amendment of the law to include Ontario offers the operation of a motor vehicle after drinking liquor instead of using time honored the ordinance, formed the legislative program with which the Ontario Prohibition Union presented its decided its 1933 convention in Toronto.

Consuming the entire afternoon in its discussion, the platform was framed to empower the executive of the union to seek life measures outlined from the provincial government if the latter did not comply with the wishes of the union, and that all liquor sale should be suspended during the duration of the present industrial crisis. The latter view had been presented earlier in the day to Acting Premier Price at the Legislature buildings by Rev. Canon Cody.

Considerable discussion arose during the morning session when Dr. Thomas Green, Kingston, chairman of the legislative committee, presented a report took the attitude that search for the measures demanded in the program detracted from the potency of the flat demand that liquor sale be discontinued and that the province be allowed the right to vote on liquor by referendum.

$00 MAKES EFFORT TO BALANCE BUDGET

Another Drastic Cut Promised by Premier Sandfield Macdonald

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 4 (CP)—In an effort to save all public services and balance the budget, drastic economies of $18,311 have been promises by spending bodies, executive of the province, it was by the council and Separate school board, possibly by other cuts and then by payroll cuts, if the council will accept the new budget. Schools may be closed in December through inability of schools to receive the tax of $12,500 and this was a question of $12,500 this year through lower assessment.

PROTECTION OF INSURANCE FIRMS

Quebec, March 4—Protection of insurance companies carrying on business in more than one Province of the Dominion in order that unnecessary duplication of deposits and so forth may be avoided, will be the object of legislation to be introduced by the Quebec government before the end of the present session.

Canadiens Reach Coveted Third Place Defeating the Amerks 2-0 in Montreal

Leafs Out of Slump to Win Games on Successive Nights

INCREASE LEAD

Detroit Now Five Points Ahead in Their Section

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—Unbeaten in their last five starts—since they took the worst defeat of the season 10-0 at Boston—Newsy Lalonde's Canadiens to-day held the coveted third place play-off position in the National Hockey League's Canadian section. Following a six game with Rangers Canadiens started a winning streak that reached four Saturday with a 6-2 victory over New York Americans and ousted Americans from the position they held for most of the season.

Feature of the season's closing rush Americans and Canadiens each have seven more games to play in their battle for the new place. Both have tough schedules in front of them with three games each on the road. Canadiens will have a two-point margin to carry into a renewal of Saturday's struggle, when they travel to New York Tuesday.

Win on Successive Nights.

Toronto Maple Leafs, for the second time this season, won games on successive nights. On Saturday they knocked off the Montreal Maroons 4-3, then travelled to Chicago to beat the Black Hawks 3-0 on Sunday night and stretch their group lead to 11 points. In two other Sunday engagements Detroit vanquished the last-place Ottawa Senators 2-0 to take a five-point lead in the American section and Boston won a brawl with Rangers, 3-1, and pulled within one point of the second-place blueshirts.

The game at Montreal, touted as a classic that drew 12,000 odd, turned out to be a bitter one affair. The habitants scored their two goals in the second period, the first when Phil Leyins fed Wilbor Larochelle a pass that enabled the young winger to beat Lorne Chabot and Roy Worters.

Major penalties to Neil Dutton and Larochelle for fighting was followed by a minor to Bill Regan for tripping and Canadiens, after a one-man advantage, forged ahead for another score. Aurel Joliat worked in for a short shot bounced the puff through pads to the stick of Howie Morenz. The flashy center made an easy goal of it. George Hainsworth's work in the third period earned him his seventh shutout of the season as he turned back dangerous American attacks.

Toronto's twin victory banished fears they were slipping after six straight losses to Canadians and stamped them as formidable contenders of the league. Chuc Maroons outsped and outscored them 2-1 in the first period of Saturday's tilt but they came back, led by Joe Primeau's timely assault to win in the last forty minutes.

Maroons Score First.

Earl Robinson took Paul Haynes' pass for the first Maroon goal and Baldy Northcott and Hooley smith shot the puck from behind the nets to give the same Montreal pivot trio a chance for the second marker. After that the Maroons simply could not beat Lorne Chabot.

Primeau combined with Charlie Conacher and Busy Clancy for the only goal of the second period, then teamed with Clancy Jackson and Red Horner for the tying goal 68 seconds after the start of the third period. Andy Blair took Bob Gracie's pass and Primeau scored on the rebound as the Maroons attacked en masse in a fruitless effort to avoid the fifth overtime.

In Sunday night's rough contest Oracle gave the Leafs a first period lead on Clancy's pass, then Conacher squeezed through for another mark-er in the second before he and Taffy Abel fought their way into an old penalty splice. Johnny Gottselig's stick flicked the puck off Chabot's pads in a melee for Chicago's only goal in the third period. Muah Marsh and Joe Primeau drew assists.

Five Point Lead.

Detroit's Red Wings spurted into the biggest lead they have enjoyed at the top of the American group this season when they took a spotty game from Ottawa. John Ross Roach gained his ninth shutout of the season as Eddie Goodfellow rammed him a two-goal lead. He took Johnny Gallagher's pass for a first-period goal and then was given one in the third when the puck hit Marty Burke's skate and went past Billy Beveridge.

Boston and Rangers staged a small sized riot at Boston as Bun Cook and Alex Smith fought and all the players joined in either as peacemakers or combatants. A penalty to Chuck Johnson in the second period proved a boomerang for Boston for, when they massed goalward, Bun Cook stole away and passed to Bun for the only goal of the period.

Both teams were two men short when Eddie Shore evened the score in the third period on Nels Stewart's pass and they were still playing one man short when Dit Clapper took Joe Lamb's pass for the final goal.

Q. V. GRADS WIN BY 2-0

Defeat Holy Name Society in Ki-Y League Schedule

Applying the well known whiffle wash brush, the Queen Victoria "Grads" defeated the Holy Name Society puckpsters to the score of 2 to 0 in a regular fixture of the juvenile section of the Ki-Y League at the Arena on Saturday afternoon.

Manager Bateman's charges were travelling at top speed throughout and proved their superiority by literally checking the H.N.S. lads dizzy. Pepper, at left wing, for the winners, was by far the best man on the ice, while Pringle and McCreary also played well. The "Grads" unearthed a new net custodian in Robertson and he made a distinct hit from the outset.

For the Holy Name Society, Lee at centre and Doran on the left boards looked the best, while Hughes turned in a superb effort in the nets. McCreary opened the scoring in the second game on a pass from Pringle while Pepper on a solo effort completed for the 'Grads' in the final chukker.

The line-up:

Q. V. Grads—Goal, Robertson; defence, McCreary and Connors; centre, Hall; wings, Pepper-Hall; subs, Pringle, Muir and Belyi.

Holy Name Society—Goal, Hughes; defence, Langdon and Wilson; centre, Lee; wings, Doran and Lee, Sam. Referee—Bill Lindsay.

BILL COOK IS STILL AHEAD

Haynes, Northcott And Jackson Gain Some Ground

Toronto, March 6 (CP)— Paul Haynes, Baldy Northcott and Harvey Jackson gained ground on Bill Cook as the National League's pointscored potentialists, swept into their last half-dozen games. Bill Cook retained leadership of the big seven by a two point margin over his brother Jackson and Nor'hcott were tied, two points behind Haynes in fourth position. Johnny Gagnon and Marty Burke, Montreal Canadiens, are next in a band with 25 points each.

The standing:

W. Cook, Rangers	29	20	49
Paul Haynes, Maroons	31	22	44
Northcott, Canadiens	31	13	36
Jackson, Toronto	22	13	36
B. Cook, Rangers	31	12	36
Joliat, Canadiens	31	22	35
Harry, Boston	29	21	12

Knocks and Boosts

With a feeling that something had to be done regarding tonight's game and that something must be done quickly, Manager Dudley and Coach Shiels ordered Earl McDonald to the train out with the Doherty tonight. Coach Shiels made a special trip to Kingston to interview Earl and he consented to play with the green and white. McDonald played defence for the Dohertys in the Kingston City League and his registration was sent to Toronto at the opening of the O.H.A. season. All that was needed for Earl to play in Belleville was a terrific release from Queens.

Mase Rigby donned his skates over the week-end and limbered up. It will also be "old home" night tonight alternating with McDonald and Sherry. The association of these three players is bound to have worked a miracle among the ranks of the Dohertys and the players seemed full of pep this morning and predicted a win tonight. Mase Rigby used to be the forward line and will team with Ninnes and Covert. The return of the Shiels-coached can for tonight are Pete Morgan, McMeekin, Tice and MacDonald.

We stated on Saturday, that Harry Morgan would be a possible starter for the Dohertys tonight after being assured by Harry, that he wanted to play. His promise was consent of his physician but Manager Dudley felt, that it was asking a little too much of his trusty right winger of the "old line" and refused to let him don a uniform. Manag r Dudley was of the opinion that Harry's shoulder had not healed to a sufficient test and he might be endangering himself by playing. When the locals tackle Dudley said, "there are plenty of hockey games yet to be played, but there aren't plenty or arms and shoulders kicking around if Harry is injured a while." Even though Morgan's services are needed to a great extent by the Dohertys, Manager Dudley is to be complimented on his unselfish attitud in the matter. "With as even break of luck we'll be on even terms with the Saints at the end of the first period", predicted Coach Shiels this morning, how-ever.

It was suggested that the Cobar-bee will be minus the services of Hutchinson and now we understand that Herbie Gibb will again be an absentee tonight, Manager Murray is endeavouring to line-up "Chuck" Good for tonight's game at any rate.

"Better drop around early and avoid the rush tonight as the S.R.O. sign is expected to be hung out at the Arena.

To show the interest being taken in the Belle..ile hockey situation in Peterboro and their attitude towards the locals the following paragraph for which we thank the sports editor of the Peterboro Examiner, appeared in that Friday's issue of that newspaper:

"Belleville D.A.C. has drawn a tough assignment in the St. Columbas team of Toronto. They play in Belleville tonight and the return contest will be Monday, we understand. This Toronto squad is really a collection of the Toronto Marconville League stars sort of an all-star team and it looks like another "Hogtown" trick just to have a team in the playoffs. The Doherty club will be without Morgan as he was injured in the Peter' series and maybe Rigby who has the fire this week-end they slap the ears off the Queen City aggregation anyway."

Directly following tonight's game the inaugural meeting of the Belleville and District League for 1933 will be held in the Arena. All of the teams to participate in this loop last year have been invited to enter same, while four entries from Napanee, Tweed, Cobourg and possibly Stirling will also compete. Again the league will be divided into two sections with the strongest clubs such as Trenton, Campbellford, Napanee, Cobourg and Quinte Service in one group and clubs from Trenton, Picton, Tweed, Madoc and other small centres being placed in the second group. In all probability a game will be played on the same night each night there-by giving the fans a double-header.

Last year this loop proved a success and with added interest and one year's experience behind them the members of the league should benefit to some degree towards the operation of the loop this season. While speaking to Manager Jacobi on the subject he informed us, that a meeting dates and time is waiting for the Belleville Arena in the near future. These dances on the ice have been quite successful in other centres, so why not Belleville?" asked Manager "Jake".

During Saturday afternoon's Ki-Y juvenile game we were in conversation with Roger Bateman of the teaching staff at Queen Victoria School. Mr. Bateman has been a factor in the Ki-Y loop and points proudly to some of the local Ki-Y players who started their hockey career with him. Mr. Bateman Rigby, the Morgan brothers Bartiaux, Carl Morgan and Harvey all with the Q.V.S. team at some time during the past five years. Not only is this record going to be proud of but it also demonstrates to the fans the value of a minor loop such as is a city the size of Belleville. The Ki-Y players of today are the O.H.A. players of tomorrow.

Piles Go Quick

Itching, bleeding or protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you really want relief. New Bag blood circulation in the lower bowel and rectum is restored almost at once by making the affected parts weak. Either way, Hem-Roid Salves and suppositories fail because only an internal medicine that stimulates the circulation and drives out the impure blood can actually relieve piles. E. McDONALD IN LINEUP

Queen's Student Will Team With Sherry on Defense

Endeavouring to place the strongest team possible on the ice Manager Dudley secured the services of Earl McDonald, "Mase" Rigby and perhaps Jimmie McGuire for to-night's crucial game with the Toronto St. Columbas at the local arena. McDonald, it will be remembered, played stellar hockey for the Cities Service team when they won the pre-season Kingston City League last fall and application was made for his O.H.A. card with the D.A.C. but he never applied for a release from the Queen's University team owing to the fact he did not wish to play hockey this season. Upon personal request from Coach Shiels and Manager Dudley on Saturday McDonald stated he would be in Belleville tonight and would don a green and white uniform. Mase Rigby was reported, from the local camp, to be in much physical condition and will alternate on the defence with Sherry and McDonald tonight.

Alex Weir will take Harry Morgan's place on right wing with the "old line" of Covert and Mcoll. Weir has proved to be the "spark plug" of the Dohertys all season, fitting at the open positions when the club was short-handed. Manager Dudley all returned to their beds following Friday night's game and reported the skip-happy condition this morning. Bill Sherry also is improved in health.

Regulars To Start.

The locals will start their regular front line of McMeekin, F. Morgan and Sherry. This line has proved to be seen at a much better advantage tonight, while endeavouring to overcome the local deficit hump up by Herb Moran's charges on Friday night. Manager Dudley was wise-wise to don a "green and white" uniform for the game. Manager Dudley thought it advisable not to use Harry tonight as the risk of having his shoulder re-injured is too great from re bandage on Friday night. Harry is not in a fit physical condition.

Manager Herb Moran of the St. Columbas was quite impressed with the club's win on Friday night but feels that his team played their best game of the season. Moran is taking no chances and is adding to his scoring punch with the addition of Chuck Good, former star player for the British Consols team. Good will undoubtedly replace Crosby at centre on the second line. The remainder of the personnel of the Toronto aggregation will be the same as appeared in Belleville on Friday night. Manager Moran feels that a one goal lead is sufficient to allow his charges to win the round while the Belleville squad feel today that there was no question in his mind but that Belleville would have rocked around the Toronto net on Friday but he felt that old Lady Luck favored the locals when the O.H.D. orders are, however, being accomplished.

RED TAPE AT AFFAIRS GONE

Mrs. Roosevelt Shatters Many Precedents of White House

By BESS FURMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Mar. 6 (AP) — The century-old White House wore a startled air to-day, as though listening to the sound of shattering precedents. One day with dynamic Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as mistress, and the pattern of red-tape-embroidered official etiquette was snipped into as many pieces as a jig-saw puzzle.

A first lady who greeted her dinner guests at the door, instead of waiting for them to assemble and then make ceremonious descent!

A White House hostess who served tea in the East Room!

A presidential wife who had invited in the women of the press, with the promise that she's "safe for publication", and who, indeed, already had been "interviewed" by new hands!

A woman of proudest place who did not hesitate to kiss in greeting the relatives who came to her first tea!

Washington had never seen the like, and Anna Roosevelt Boettiger's tall figure became symbolic Sunday of an enthusiastic point as the United States capital shook off the fallout of the social transformation that apparently had taken place with the "new deal".

MONTANA YOUTH SHOOTS SELF IN THE HEAD

No Inquest as Shooting Believed Accidental

GLASGOW, Mont., March 6. — (CP) — Matthew Murray, son of Matthew Murray, member of the Montana Board of Education, was dead today, apparently from a self-inflicted shooting accident. The youth was found dead in the Murray home on Sunday night. A bullet from an automatic pistol having entered his head.

The coroner said no inquest would be necessary. Friends expressed belief the shooting was accidental.

MONEY ORDERS OUTSIDE CANADA NOT ISSUED

No Transfers Effect Until 58m-day

Montreal, March 6.—(CP)—Money orders for points outside Canada are not being issued by the Canadian National Railways, officials as headquarters here stated today. No explanation will be offered until the exchange situation clears, it was stated, but information by Canadian National Express and a similar delicion was expected from Ottawa. Money orders for C.O.D. orders are, however, being accepted.

Washington March 6 (AP)—Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana Democrat, announced today he is drafting a bill which would have the United States government levy a capital tax on incomes of more than $10,000,000.

The Louisiana Senator said last night he proposed to submit the measure the minute Congress meets. It would provide:

(1) A capital levy graduated so that when a fortune of $10,000,000 is reached the capital tax levy will take all the income above that p.m."

2) An increase inheritance tax would prevent any one person from inheriting more than $5,000,000, and give the balance of the estate to the government.

(3) An increase on income tax in the higher brackets with Federal confiscation of individual incomes of more than $1,000,000 a year.

Women's Interest In The Home

Mrs. C. Beeckman
Beatrice Fairfax

Personals

Mrs. W. H. Neal, Toronto, and her mother, Mrs. R. A. Chadwick of Picton, are spending a few days in Atlantic City.

Miss Ethel Adams, who is attending the Library School of Toronto University, was home for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cordes and family spent the week-end in Guelph, visiting Mrs. Cordes' father, Mr. John Robinson, who is seriously ill.

Mrs. Harry Venton accompanied by Miss Venton of Odessa, were guests over the week-end of Mrs. Vernon Smith and Mr. Smith.

Mr. C. B. Colling, who is attending the College of Pharmacy, Toronto University, spent the week-end at his home here.

Miss L. McLean is spending a few days in Toronto, a guest of the King Edward Hotel.

Miss Jean Fetterly, who underwent an operation at Kingston General Hospital, is progressing favourably.

HOLD FAREWELL PARTY FOR FRIENDS

A 4th Sidney, March 6—Mr. Everett Hubbie and his sawing machine have made their annual visit to our neighborhood and by the time you now get their wood ready for summer use.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Sherry spent Tuesday evening in Belleville guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sharpe.

Mrs. Wm. Wannamaker entertained the Wallbridge Ladies Aid and W. M.S. members at her home on Wednesday.

On Wednesday evening Feb. 22, between seven and eight, Mrs. Maud died friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. D. Carroll gathered at their home to spend a social evening with them before they left the community. After some time spent in games and social intercourse Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were called and were presented with an address and a handsome leather covered rocking chair as a token of the esteem in which they are held by their neighbors here.

Mr. Campbell replied in a few well chosen words thanking the people for their kindness. A lunch was served and a very pleasant evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will be greatly missed by their many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kingston of West Huntingdon are moving on the farm lately vacated by Mr. Campbell.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Wm. Wannamaker is convercing from her recent illness.

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the home of Mr. Thos. Lewis. When noticed the fire had gained such headway that only a few articles were saved.

Mr. Pollard local cheese maker has been getting in his summer supply of ice from the stockbridge on the hill were doing their share of work.

33 YEAR GUARD AT R. R. CROSSING

Montreal, March 6—Watchman! What of the night? And also the day? Very few people spend 33 years of service in a cabin or tower but such was the case of an employee of the Canadian National Railways, who recently retired at the age of 70, after acting gatekeeper at a crossing for that length of time. Furthermore, during that long period no accident occurred at the crossing of which he had charge.

Correct Manners

Danish Pastry

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how Danish pastry is supposed to be eaten? I was always under the impression that it should be eaten with the knife and fork and eaten with the fingers.

Doris.

It should be eaten with a fork. It is not necessary to take it in the fingers after a piece is cut with the fork.

Sending Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should one take out the tissue paper from an invitation to a wedding or graduation?

2. When one is at a wedding, is it permissable to congratulate the groom, even though one has not been introduced to him? The bride in this case is a relative.

I.

1. There in a never-ending discussion and argument about this point, and no one has ever really made the final judgment. Most engravers maintain that it is best to include the tissue because then the engraving is protected. Many stationers agree with this.

Personally I believe that the harmony of the invitation or announcement is destroyed when the tissue is sent with the sheet.

It gives an unfinished look to the whole. If the invitations or announcements are ordered long enough in advance, and if the engraver uses the right kind of ink in his engraving, and if the engraving is carefully done, there is no reason why they should not be dry in a few days, thoroughly dry, and then it is not necessary to keep the tissue in.

2. Yes, we always congratulate the groom, even if we do not know him. The fact that we are in the reception line of friends gives us this privilege, and especially if the bride is a relative.

The Debutante

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a debutante but married to an American, and consequently do not know the American customs as I should.

A member of our family is going to make her debut and I am sure I should like to know whether it would be proper for me to buy a present and what should we give it?

E.

Should we send flowers the night of her debut?

E.

Not many people give special gifts to a debutante.....sometimes relatives give her gifts, and perhaps her very intimate friends. But this is not at all taken for granted.

But it is customary to send flowers the night of her debut, and used to "background" the "bud".

Eating Fish

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way to use the fork and knife when eating fish? The writer remembers that in dinner table tonight and no one was positive, so we decided to consult you.

For the fish course, either a fork alone, or a knife and fork of medium size is used, special fish knife and fork, are placed. We use the silver pieces exactly as we do silver pieces for any other course. If bones are in the fish, the knife is of special convenience in "uncovering" the bones, for with the knife we can separate the flesh from the bones.

If you can do the fork-shifting fashion, you will, after you have cleared a mouthful of fish, put down your knife, and transfer your fork to your right hand, conveying the morsel to your mouth with the fork in the right hand. But, if you use the so-called "Continental" manner of eating, you will retain the fork in the right hand, and will convey the mouthful of fish to the mouth with the fork in the left hand.

Correct Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to invite my boy friend's mother and father to be at some Sunday afternoon at my home. My parents and his know each other slightly. Friends tell me that they should not be invited until we are engaged. I am not yet engaged to him, but will be on my birthday. My mother would like to invite them next month, and would like to know whether or not this is correct.

R.

By all means have your mother invite your fiance's parents to tea on the first Sunday afternoon that it will be convenient. This is a charming and most hospitable gesture. It doesn't make any difference whether or not your engagement has been announced—the invitation is as correct, for you and your mother are simply "extending the hospitality" of your home, and extending a very delightful hospitality. Too, Sunday tea-time is, I think, one of the most lovely hours of the week, and I am sure that his father and mother will love spending it with you and your mother in your home.

Daughter's First Dress For Evening

It Often Brings With it a Too-Sudden Responsibility

By Constance Cameron

Marjory is sixteen now. And last week when she appeared in the front hall, flushed, starry-eyed, dressed in her first formal evening gown, mother suddenly saw her daughter in a new light.

Behold Marjory no longer a little girl. Mother was thoughtful all evening while Marjory danced with the shah, miles away.

It was time Marjory was taking over the responsibilities of a young woman.

It was during the holidays and parties flourished everywhere. Next afternoon when Marjory awoke she had been encouraged to ask since babyhood. "What parties shall I wear to Aunt's party, mother?" Mother astounded the observant young miss by saying, "I'll leave decision for yourself. You're old enough now to take a few responsibilities."

New Problems

But Marjory stood treated, surveying her mother in bewilderment. Responsibilities, indeed! Mother gave them to her, much as she would give to her dress or a book. And Marjory has no idea whatever how to use them.

It is a queer conclusion, that of feeling that responsibility can be handed out like half-grown clothes when he has had no preparation for it. Responsibilities cannot be donned just because a young person has reached a certain age in day. He can only handle it successfully through training, and Marjory should begin training at once.

The toddler who has the responsibility of seeing that his rubbers are in the proper place, that his kitten has had his morning milk, that his toys are put into their allotted space, will take on more important responsibilities as he grows on.

The child who is given an allowance to decide its use, will be capable of responsibility with money. Any number of birthdays without training will not do it.

You can't wait until a certain number of years have passed, then suddenly expect your child to realize how to accept responsibility. That must be taught, through the years.

GOOD MANNERS

Eating Ice Cream

The ice cream may be delicious. Indeed, the young lady looks as if she thinks so. But that is no excuse for her to "linger" over the taste, drawing the spoon back and forth from the dish with part of the contents.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a lady is being introduced to a group of young people between the ages of twenty to twenty-five, it is proper for her to shake hands, or not?

2. At a party recently I noticed, when introductions were made, one of the girls shook hands with the boys and not with the girls, although the girls were right next to the young men. Is this proper?

3. I concluded that the best thing in my estimation was to just smile and say it was very glad to know you or a similar expression to both boys and girls, and not shake hands with either. Am I right or wrong?

4. When sliced lemon is served with tea, is it proper to use the first slice of lemon again for the second cup of tea?

1. She may if she wishes . . . this question of hand-shaking is such a personal one. Most girls shake a large group it would be better, I think. If an editor, usually as a matter of fact, we don't see people shaking hands very much in acknowledging an introduction, unless it is a special one, or unless the introductions are between men, who always, of course, shake hands when they are introduced to each other. And very seldom do we see a woman shake hands when she is introduced to a group of people.

2. No, this wasn't proper. She should either not have shaken hands with anyone, or with everyone. She must have been a bit "shy-ashamed" I imagine. I can't think of anything else that would account for this exception.

3. You were right in your judgment that it was best to acknowledge the introduction with a pleasant bow and a simple form of acknowledgment. But the form which you have been the conventional, always-correct "how do you do". I hope, dear girl, that the form of acknowledgment that you say is "usual" . . . "glad to know you" . . . isn't really usual with you. This acknowledgment of an introduction isn't correct. We should hang on for dear life to the CORRECT form of acknowledgment . . . "how do you do", and not try to substitute one that isn't a good form. It's such a relief to have such a definite rule about this that we should be grateful and adopt it for life!

4. No; when the second cup of tea is to be served, the slice of lemon in the first cup gives an impression of being very good to it. Also, on every tea-table should be a tea-bowl filled—one matching the silver service, or one of a different pattern, or a china or glass one. If we don't have a tea-bowl, we may use any convenient substitute, a small sauce dish or something of this kind. But every tea-bowl there should be, for we need it to place in it this "depressed" piece of lemon or used tea-leaves, or any other discard.

The Hostess.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When an eighteen - year - old daughtter introduces her boy acquaintances to me as our hostess, should I rise and shake hands with them or remain seated?

If I am already acquainted with them, do I rise or remain seated when they enter the room and greet them?

Yes . . . for both cases. You, as the hostess, should always rise when guests enter your home and you are greeting them, whether you are first forming the double idea of having introductions to you and your coming them at the same time, or whether you are greeting guests that you already know.

And the same thing, incidentally, is true when you, as the hostess, are saying good-bye to your guests. As they rise to leave you may shake hands with the mand to thank them for coming to your house.

A Meal in the Street

Full Course Dinner From Hors d'Oeuvres to Nuts May be Bought in Streets of London

"Dinner in a London Street," is described by C. L. Ricardo in "Overseas Magazine." From hors-d'oeuvres to dessert you may buy and eat a full course dinner in the street of London.

Hors-d'oeuvres may be had from the Italian barrow, and mussels, cockles, or a half pint of shrimps for sixpence. The Italian barrow stands nightly near Paddington has always its half circle of connoisseurs, who eat contentedly at their purchases and adding just a touch of pepper or vinegar.

If the hors-d'oeuvre barrow with its parsley flavors and white-and-red maitre d'hotel suggests old London, the soup and meat counters are also typical. Both the soup and pie van which does a trade in the theatre queues, can be boys on brightly painted delivery bicycles and "pony cops" are of the 20th century. Only the limited-potatoe man with his glowing charcoal brazier remains to link this part of the meal with old London.

Fish coming midway between soup and meat is always widely represented in the area. This course can, in the words of the song, be eaten "on a plate or dish" or in the regulation street fashion, "on a little piece of paper."

When you are looking for your pudding in the street, you will be confronted with several alternatives. There is the chocolate sold by disabled men outside theatres and ice-cream of every variety. Then there is the super-de-luxe product, to the old hokey-pokey which comes out of a brass pot in the middle of the barrow. All the ices are good, but the Italian ices are not what they were. You can tramp from one end of Soho to the other without meeting a man with liquorice lozenges—strange from his trade. Incidentally, even the street mufflers and crumpets are declining for the tea shops took to selling them.

But it is the dessert which is the climax and glory of a London meal. Whatever could you wish better peaches, strawberries, grapes and apples than those that centers barrows? Or not the fact tantalized in verse that you must go down that Strand to have a banana? No restaurant fare could warm your hands and tickle your palate like the wares of the hot-chestnut man. But the Londoner's favorite dessert is the monkey-nut (peanut). I wager that there are more monkey-nut shells in the gutters of London on a Saturday night than could their way into the Zoo in a year.

Seasoning Helps Routine Dishes

Seasoning helps etc.

When the same fundamental foods must be used over, and over again, the home-maker will find that clever seasoning does much to break the monotony of the necessary repitition.

Of course, "high" seasoning should not be used to cover up poor food or poor cooking, but the right use of spices, herbs and condiments will add zest and give additional relish to good, wholesome foods. Many famous cooks rely on the wide use of these ingredients as one of the secrets of their art.

The natural, piquant flavouring properties of certain foodstuffs stimulate appetite, create a desire for food, and in starting the flow of digestive juices are very real aids to digestion.

Many seasonings are available. Some of them may be used green as garnishes or relishes in salads as well as in cooking. Sources in their use depends more on the right combination of flavors than on the wide use of these ingredients as one of the secrets of their art.

The natural, piquant flavouring properties of certain foodstuffs stimulate appetite, create a desire for food, and in starting the flow of digestive juices are very real aids to digestion.

Many seasonings are available. Some of them may be used green as garnishes or relishes in salads as well as in cooking. Sources in their use depends more on the right combination of flavors than of the food being seasoned. The way to use garlic for instance is to rub salt that is needed for the meal in a clove of garlic before seasoning the roast. This gives a distinctive and savory flavor to the meat but does not in any way suggest a definite garlic or onion taste.

As one studies and galances the list of seasonings, many new uses for them are discovered. For instance, ful addition to fish, egg, cheese and meat salads. Combined with fish they give a pleasant pungency.

Fennel has a delicate flavor reminding one of anise. A few seeds add spiciness to fruit pies and cakes. Fennel, fresh or dried, are often used for seasoning fish. Fennel is a variety of fresh fennel that is sometimes served as a vegetable or celery.

Marjoram is used either fresh or dry for flavoring soups and stews and in the stuffing for all meats and fish.

Sweet marjoram is used in poultry and meat stuffings, but it is also delicious in cooked dishes and vegetable combinations. The flowers sometimes used in making salads, and the leaves are made with cheese

Summer and summer savory are used inlieu the same as sage, savory combines delicately well with horseradish in sauces.

Sweet basil has a flavor much like cloves. It is used in all kinds of tomato soups and sauces. Fruit punches are made more refreshing spiciness by the addition of fresh basil leaves.

These herbs are all very therapeutic and add practically nothing to the cost of cooking. The occasional use of them will give a touch of novelty and interest to everyday dishes.

HOW TO MAKE A GOOD OMELETTE

The omelette's value as an emergency dish is known to housewives are always at hand, and as a method of cooking eggs, meat, fish, or vegetable commends it to the novice, its failure is as frequent as success. Even a beginner, with the preparation of ingredients and of the pan, can be thrilled to learn to be turning with a cold knife, loosening the edges, and then is to be folded in and not cooked as part of the omelette is too low a temperature, and, finally removed it, on a half-cold dish. Naturally the chills occasioned by these proceedings contracts the hot air enclosed in the omelette, and it falls, becoming tough and leathery.

This fault may be prevented by resting the knife, which is used for turning, on the side of the pan. Thus the blade is at the correct temperature when cooking is finished over the omelette preparatory to folding or serving. It can be in the waiting hot dish, things should be made ready first, and the omelette put in last. Served in a little gravy or sauce, but not too much moist. Attention to these small points, so often overlooked will prevent many failures.

Perfumes Cast a Magic Spell

For the sake of her soul, and to give a pleasant treat to the nostrils of those about her, every modern woman should be the possession of every woman. Indeed, the mere thing set-up-ish about perfume. It makes a woman mindful of her charms. It effuses a romantic influence that's a help when she's out to call it too likely to dwell upon the delicate balance in the matter of it. Too exaggerated is obvious and we've been so serious here about the years that a fine quality is now a necessity. If one has to have some kind of frivolity, let it be about what better than a bottle of florettes odors? Which, as we all know, is the usual route taken by those astute minds, and let direct its application. I'd tell you quite solemnly about the need of different perfume for different moods, frocks, occasions. It sounds very elegant, but the women know and are tickled pink to own a single bottle of a really superior perfume. And then know this; one scent used all the time banks up on itself, impregnates the wardrobe with its sweetness. A scent for this frock, another for that, and a delicate aroma that may not be friendly with the first. Is it worth it? Yes!

If the perfume industry throws bones it is for upsetting their apple cart, we have an answer; a woman will use as many perfumes as she has dresses if she is to be stylish and correct. It suits up to the same sum when the year is dead and done for.

When she faces the perfume problem there are two details that possess every gal. First, I find a scent that is delicate, that doesn't go and run on me, one that don't strong enough to shoulder a shovel and work on the streets. Then I want it to last until evolution. How can one get the most scent from the concentrate of the precious vial? How can one use it and still retain it last until the beauty budget is ready to disgorge the price of its successor?

The skimmer is worth its price, particularly now that stoppers are tight. Perfume makes away with itself. If the cork in the bottle isn't plugged in tight—and even when it is—a slow process of evaporation goes on.

Capturing the body after the bath sounds like a nice idea, but

The idea is to impart to the compound a wardrobe a delicate flower essence. The opening of a dresser drawer sends forth a sweet redolence. Clover, storax, bands kerchiefs, carry "Sabian odors from the spicy shore of Araby, the blest". You can't get to that stage of luxury by switching perfumes. You've got to find a scent you like, stick to it like a friend and family, and it will stick to you.

As a special indulgence there can be the drop or two placed on ear lobes. Time was when the back of the right hand was the place for it, but there's not much hand-shaking going on these days and what with frequent hand-washing it seems a waste of precious nectar.

PRICES ARE ON WAY UP

Market Did Much Side-Sawing in Early Trading

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—The Standard Mining Market did a lot of see-sawing in the early part of to-day's session and at midday gains prices were on the way up but still below last Saturday's close. Trade was light with the advance.

At the opening prices slipped back sharply, shedded after the first hour, then slipped again but the trend was definitely upward after noon.

Mid-afternoon Teck-Hughes had recovered to 2.90 from a low of 2.70. Hargreaves to 3.85 from a low of 3.80. Lake Shore to 31.50 from a low of 31.00 and McIntyre to 21.75 from a low of 21.50. Dome and Hollinger held steady.

Nickel fell back from 8.85 to 8.25 in the early trading but recovered to 8.50 and Noranda in good demand sent up from 20.50 to 20.90.

In the silver shares Kirkcaldy opened 8 higher at 1.30, fell to 1.19 and then quickly advanced back to 1.30, where it held.

WHEAT JUMPS CENT TODAY

Buying Orders Pour Into Pit in Waves

WINNIPEG, March 6.—(CP)—Snapped out of an earlier trading rut, wheat futures jumped more than one cent higher today under a resurgence of buying from southern sources. Offerings were light, aiding prices in the upward move.

Near the close of the session, values were 1 1-4 1 1-4 cents higher, May future at 31½, July 52½, and October 53 7-8.

Traders reported buying orders were pouring from all parts in spasmodic "waves". Trading was brisk during most of the session.

Price trend was similar to that on Saturday when values advanced rapidly at the opening and eased later only to climb again with renewed support from Chicago interests.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto livestock market was slow to start with opening prices about steady. Butcher cattle were very dull with few sales recorded. Cattle trade was slow; calves firm; hogs unsettled; sheep steady; lambs no trading.

Receipts were: Cattle 1170; calves 110; hogs 794; sheep and lambs 680.

A few choice export steers brought $3.85 to $4.25. Butcher cattle sold from $3.40 to $3.75. A few fed calves ranged from $4.00 to $5.00 per cwt. according to quality.

Veal calves opened at $7.00 to $7.50 for choice with common veals downward to $3.50.

No early hog sales were recorded but showed a stronger feeling. Selection were asking $3.75 to $3.85 F.O.B. for bacons or choice lights, fats $3.50.

No lambs sales were made up to 11 a.m. but there was a strong demand for bulk of the supply with bids at $6.50 per cwt. Sheep sold at $3.00 to $3.50 for best ewes.

Produce Market

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—The following quotations on produce delivered at Toronto were supplied by the United Farmers Co-Operative Co., Ltd.: Eggs, extra, large, white, fresh, doz. 16½; Eggs, seconds, fresh, doz. 13½; Churning Cream, No. 1 b. GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 6 —(AP)— Small groups of traders gathered in the Chicago Board of Trade today for limited transactions in immediate delivery grain.

An advance of more than a cent a bushel in wheat and corn at midday attracted notice. The pits were empty and silent.

WINNIPEG GRAIN PRICES

Winnipeg, March 6 (CP)—(11 a.m. grain prices):

Wheat: May 31½ higher at 31½; July 1½ higher, October 1¼ higher at 58 5-8.

Oats—May ½ higher at 25½.

Barley—May unchanged at 30.

STOCK MART HELD FIRM

No Selling Pressure Appeared in Any Section

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP) — Nothing transpired up till mid-afternoon to weaken the firm structure on the Toronto Stock Exchange, which is finding its own level from day to day as the New York market closed. No selling pressure appeared in any section of the list and prices were, in anything, a little firmer.

Heavy trading appeared in International Nickel and the two big Canadian oil stocks, Imperial and Anglo-Canadian, while Nickel was off ½ and B. A. ¼. Brazilian showed a fractional gain while Smelters was steady at 56 and Ford "A" off ¼.

Food stocks remained firm and comparatively quiet and in the beverage group Canada Malting and Canada Malting were slightly better and Walkers Common off ¼. A

ANTON CERMAK CHICAGO, DIES

After the family recovered from the first blow of the tragedy, they left the hospital and went to the home of Dr. Frank Jirka at Miami Beach.

Take Body to Chicago

Preparations were made to take Mayor Cermak's body to Chicago by special train.

Mayor Cermak was shot the night of February 15 by Giuseppe Zangara, an unemployed Italian bricklayer, who tried to take the life of President-Elect Roosevelt at a public reception in Bay Front Park. Each of the five bullets he fired into the crowd around the Roosevelt car found a mark but none touched the President-Elect as the latters defected the assasin's aim by seizing his arm.

It was announced a post-mortem would be performed on Mayor Cermak immediately.

MIAMI, Fla., March 6 — (AP)— A coroner's jury today returned a verdict that Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago died at the hands "of a bullet fired by Joseph Zangara in Bay Front Park on the night of February 15th." The jury was out for more than three hours before arriving at its decision.

Dr. Leon Gilpin Gaspy, Dr. E. C. Thomas, County Physician, said Mayor Cermak died as a result of "gangrene of the right lung punctured by Giuseppe Zangara's bullet." Dr. Thomas' report made to N. Vernon Hawthorne, State's Attorney, read:

"Mayor Cermak's death was caused by gangrene of the right lung which was penetrated by the bullet fired by Giuseppe Zangara.

"This induced pneumonia and lung abscess which ended in dry gangrene, the latter being the beginning of the heart bringing death."

Several Hurt in Battle With Police in Streets Cops Charge Marchers

Demonstrators Start on Way to Demand More Relief

RACE EQUALITY

No Selling Pressure Appeared in Any Section

Washington, March 6.—(AP)—Several persons were injured today in fighting between police and unemployed at Twelfth and Eleventh Street when officers broke up the demonstration.

The disturbance arose after the demonstrators had marched from Ball on Eleventh Street with the announced intention of going to the Treasury Building to present their unemployment relief and equality between Negroes and Negroes.

The demonstrators were met outside the hall by Inspector Albert J. Hearding who warned the marchers they would not be allowed to march in formation in the street.

The marchers persisted, however, in spite of the warnings.

At Twelfth Street, the demonstrators found their path barred by police, armed with clubs, riot guns and tear gas grenades.

The ranks of the marchers charged the oncoming marchers, raising blows right and left as they sought to reach the Treasury.

Tear gas bombs and shotguns were loaded into patrol wagons and taken to police stations in the vicinity, the injured were sent to a hospital.

HITLERITES IN MAJORITY

Ex-Kaiser's Colors Once More Fly Over German Reich

Berlin, March 6.—Seventeen million voters today cast 17,000,000 ballots to cast their confidence in Chancellor Adolf Hitler in the reichstag election for a new session, and demonstrated to President von Hindenburg that he has the desire of the German people rightly when he seized the chief of the Nazi party ghists to take the leadership of the State.

Nazis Win Majority

Germany is now well on the way to the Nazi dictatorship, established Hitler, by the vote of the people, has been given the legal tools to accomplish the task—the end of democracy which he considers a failure.

Reports indicated that the Nazis nearly 44 per cent. of the votes in the new Reichstag and that dictator to their Nationalists co-workers in the Government will be made to bow to the will of Germany in accordance with Nazi ideals.

The Nazis made their pre-election campaign left no doubt that the Communistic republic would never be allowed to take their seats, the followers of Hitler declaring that in fact, command a majority in the new Reichstag.

In Prussia, which elected a State Diet yesterday, the Nazi victory was overwhelming. The Nazis hoist the Reich and in the largest State no Communists will be expected for a long time to come.

Rules With Allies

Hitler's National Socialists and their Nationalist allies polled 51 per cent. of the votes cast yesterday. Unofficial final tabulation showed the following party standing:

National Socialists	17,049,600	457
Nationalists	3,117,000	8.0
People's Party	4,300,000	11.0
Christian Socialist	380,000	1.0
Centrists	4,280,000	11.0
Bavarian Peoples Fly	1,206,000	3.1
State Party	1,000,000	2.6
Socialists	7,111,000	18.2
Communists	4,751,000	12.2
Stahlhelm	122,000	0.3
Total	38,985,000	....

In accordance with the promise he gave President von Hindenburg when he was appointed Chancellor, Hitler does not intend to make any drastic changes in the Cabinet, except Franz von Papen, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Count Schwerin-Krosigk, Franz Seldte and other non-Nazi members of the Cabinet in order to put Nazis in their places.

TRANSIENT IS KILLED

Brantford, Ont., March 6 (CP)—Leopold McClelland, 28, transient, was killed instantly and his body instantly killed today at Paris when he jumped in the path of a fast freight on the National Railway freight train.

McClelland made his fatal leap from an eastbound passenger train which had stopped at the depot.

Rise in Price of Commodities and Food is Expected at Once

TORONTO, March 6.—(CP)—An immediate rise in the prices of food and commodities is predicted by W. B. Somerset, chairman of the Consumers' Research Board, as the result of views of farm products, he says, have indicated an upward trend for some time and the turning point has been reached.

"World supplies of food, clothing, basic and manufactured goods have been running short," Mr. Somerset stated, "and must reflect this shortage in prices. In many cases it even indicate adjustment in terms of actual values. Shortage of butter, cheese, eggs and bacon is particularly marked."

SWIMS IN COLD WATER FOR DINNER

Barrie, Ont., March 6 (CP)—Arthur Hakeman, 19 year old Ascension youth giving Hamilton as his address, gave Barrie a chilly and incidentally earned the price of his dinner.

Clad only in a pair of tights, Hakeman leaped into the icy waters of Kempenfelt Bay at a point where ice is being cut, and swam around for several moments. He then proceeded to walk on the surface of the ice field for half an hour. A collection was taken among bystanders for a meal for the youth.

Hakeman said he planned to enter the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim in August. When he came to Canada from Armenia six years ago he could not stand cold, he said.

charge at a meeting this morning gave a special committee full powers to take "any steps deemed necessary" to bring prosperity back to the nation.

The resolution, which the action was taken by the Governors in response to a Presidential request.

All markets were closed today in accordance with the holiday made last Saturday when the exchanges voted to close at the suggestion of Governor Herbert H. Lehman's two-day banking holiday which would end tomorrow.

Brokerage houses were open this morning with full staffs in readiness there was, of course, no trading.

Plan Is Outlined

New York, March 6 (AP)— Governor Lehman announced today that he would "in all probability" extend the New York banking holiday to continue. The President-Roosevelt's decree also said he had a plan for making available to depositors of sound banks throughout the State a substantial part of funds which would permit the business of the State to continue unimpeded.

Thus, Governor's plan is now on its way to Washington for approval by President Roosevelt. Governor Lehman said when announced by him will be submitted at a special session here for action Tuesday was not immediately known.

Found Steels Upward

Montreal, March 6 — The pound shot upward on Foreign exchanges today, Breaking head offices here reported, to close at $4.85 at the close of London market with the dollar at 86 cents in New York.

Enhanced reputation of the pound in the face of the uncertain exchange situation in the United States financial crisis was the chief feature. Advice received by banks here was that the pound was in demand throughout the world.

The position of the Canadian dollar was difficult to appraise, it was stated, in terms of French francs, but reflected the depreciation and premium on gold in terms of the Canadian dollar was about 17 1-2 per cent.

Work Behind Scenes.

New York, Mar. 6 (AP)—Banks of the United States were shut to-day, but behind the scenes plans for resuming business went steadily forward with promise that by Tuesday some money substitutes would be available by tonight or tomorrow.

Two States—Louisiana and New Mexico—announced their intention of getting under way with scrip movement for permission to re-open their institutions. Treasury officials here in New York, and a number of others scattered throughout the country have studied Secretary Woodin's request for permission to re-open.

Secretary Woodin announced the banks would be permitted to open only as necessary to permit payments of payrolls.

Loans, Not Exchange

The Bankers' Exchange Committee at a meeting here today discussed in detail an all foreign exchanges except the United States dollar.

The Stock Exchange members assembled early in view of the happenings in the United States but there were few dealings during the first hour or so. Quotations were purely nominal, mostly around Saturday's close.

Chief interest was in the mining section in which quotations were marked down by fears of a decline in the price of gold and the possibility of selling by foreign holders.

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—The bank holiday in the United States has left Canadian finance sound and unmoved according to financial authorities and banks and brokerage Canadian banks and business generally today were functioning as usual.

embargo on the export of gold from the United States, Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines believes. He says the situation created for Canadian gold, he said.

"I cannot imagine the United States financial crisis will be allowed to proceed for any length of time without measures being found through drastic action," stated Sir John Aird, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. "The troubles in the United States are purely fiscature, and should be capable of some adjustment on some temporary basis which should lead to a sounder condition.

BANK HOLIDAY UNTIL THURS.

All U. S. Banks Closed by Order of President Congress Convenes

Washington, March 6.—(AP)—A modified bank holiday until Thursday for all the United States was ordered tonight by President Roosevelt. It will be lifted progressively by some financial authorities as a "conservative" measure to restore confidence.

Under the terms of the proclamation calling for the conservation of gold stocks, it was assured that private hoarding or export in gold by the Treasury will be suspended during the holiday.

The proclamation also placed an embargo on the export of gold bullion, of gold and currency, and provided for the issuance by clearing house associations of clearing certificates to keep business functioning while the banks are closed.

Banks May Open

A bank desiring to remain open could do so if the Secretary of the Treasury issued a permission. Application for such permission would be required to contain a statement under which it operates. New accounts could be accepted on a 100 per cent. withdrawal basis. The holiday could be extended.

The clearing house certificates would be based upon bank assets. They would furnish a scrip money as a medium of exchange for the limited period of the holiday. They would be issued by the clearing houses under the various Federal Reserve district and would not necessarily be uniform in form in the country.

The gold and currency embargo was proclaimed under the provisions of the war-time "Trading With the Enemy Act," which empowers the Secretary of the Treasury with the approval of such exports.

Relief Program

Running until Thursday, the bank holiday period ordered until the day the new Congress convenes in special session to enact a banking relief program which Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers are already formulating.

Over in the Treasury to-night, William H. Woodin, the new Secretary; Ogden L. Mills, the retired Secretary, and members of the Federal Reserve Board planned immediate conferences with Congressional machinery in order to give the United States a medium of exchange under terms of the proclamation.

Planned For Two Weeks

At the White House it was said that the step was taken because it was not ready in the making for at least two weeks.

Former Secretary Mills was in constant conference today on the situation. Democratic leaders believed it would have its hearty approval.

Treasury officials, it was said, has known for some time that some such a move as proclaimed might have to be undertaken, and two months ago he had formulated the plan for the provisions of the "Trading With the Enemy Act", under which the present proclamation was taken.

Work on the statement itself began today at 2.30 p.m. when the cabinet met and was stopped only by a continuous series of conferences, which lasted until midnight. Copies of the proclamation at time it was mimeographed for newspapermen.

SENATE APPROVES OF MANY NOMINATIONS

Ten Minutes in the Smoker

By Frank Gruber

George Marling was blessed with the "gift of gab." He knew it. He was proud of it. For had it not made him the star salesman of the firm of Mayer and Krutzmeyer? Marling loved to talk, but better it was about business or not. In fact, he was restless and insecure when he did not have anyone to talk to. So he put aside his newspaper and with an expansive smile to the stocky man who sat beside him on the leather seat in the Pullman smoker.

"That man Snyder in Hampton certainly got away with a nice roll—$100,000—he'll never have to work again.

The stocky man frowned slightly and wondered if the porter had made up his berth. He replied shortly, hoping to silence the talkative travelling man. "I read all about it in the papers."

He did not know his man however, if he thought to quell Marling so easily.

"Sure," agreed Marling, "the papers have been full of it for a week. The old story. Snyder, trusted employee of the bank; examiners drop in suddenly and Snyder walks out at noon with a bundle and drops out of sight. But the bank's money to speculate. When he says that he was going to be called up all the cash lying around and skipped."

Marling was waxing eloquent. He loved an audience and it annoyed him somewhat that the stiff occupant of the smoking room, a stockbroker-looking young man, was still immersed in a magazine, when he shouted by lights that he was telling in Marling. He spoke a little louder.

"I'm Snyder skips with a hundred grand and as usual the police make a fool of themselves in circles. Meanwhile Snyder with his wad, is probably in Canada, looking up sailing schedules to Europe. A bunch of dumbbells, that's what the police are—er!" Marling coughed—the stocky man had unbuttoned his coat and casually disclosed a nickel-plated shield.

Marling swallowed hard. "I should have known from that derby and those square-toed shoes," he said to himself, then aloud, "Oh, I didn't mean anything personal. Meant those special cops. Use that man Stanton that the Banker's Association rent down to Hampton, gets his man, they say. But what did he do here? Stuck a revolver against the young man and then drove up. Well, if he ever gets Snyder they'll have to lead him up to him on a leash."

Ah! Marling was successful at last. The stocky-looking young man put down his magazine and spoke. "I wouldn't quite say that; I've heard this Stanton is pretty good. It isn't so easy to find a man who doesn't want to be found and leave a clue. Snyder had several hours start and could have been a long way off before anyone missed him. Still, I'm glad to hear that this man Stanton will get him."

"Sure, when Christmas comes in July," snorted Marling.

The young man shook his head. "No, I've a hunch he'll get him very soon. I've a theory about that man. I don't think that Peter Snyder fled very far. I believe he went only to the next city and built up there for a new life. Figured that by then the hue and cry would have died down. Then with a disguise, he'd have no trouble to make a get-away."

"Disguised, ha-ha!" laughed Marling. "You've been reading detective stories. Tell you how I'd would Snyder disguise himself? As a woman, or a priest, or a Chinaman with a beard?

"Oh no," quietly replied the other. "He might disguise himself as a traveling salesman."

"Ha-ha, that's rich!" burst out Marling. He slapped his thigh and turned to the detective. "Say, mister, you better search me. I might be the undercover man you're looking for. What; I'll give you half of the hundred grand if you find him in one week."

The detective frowned. "I'm not interested in this case. I'm on a vacation."

The young man had risen to his feet. He was a little flushed with merriment. His face had suddenly become keen.

"I only used that as an example," he said by way of explaining. "I know a better way for a criminal to disguise himself. Like Snyder disguised himself—on the train."

With a wry the supposed detective leaned back in his seat and composed himself to look the master of his situation in the hand of the young man whose face didn't look very much like a student's now.

"Yes, Victor Snyder," he said icily. "Your disguise is a good one, but like many criminals you overlooked one little detail. Vil. aren't such common initials. When you get your disguise you should have gotten a new belt buckle too. Else one you're wearing has your initials on it—V. S."

The pseudo-detective sank back on the leather seat. "Well, I guess the game's up," he said, hopelessly. "I thought I'd make it, but I've failed just as I have in everything else. I'm just my cursed luck to have run into someone like you..... Who are you, anyway?"

The young man grinned at Marling. "I work for the Bankers Association," he said. "Stanton's my name!"

Reddy's Abrupt Change of Mind

Times there are when to reverse Alone can save from something worse.

—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox sat on the doorstep of his house in the Old Pasture and stared long and hard at his doorway. On his face was a look of mingled foolishness, surprise, anger and puzzlement. He and Mrs. Reddy had been away for several weeks and now on their return they had discovered that there was a tenant in their house. Mrs. Reddy had been the one to actually discover it. She had gone inside right at once to see how matters were and had come out hastily to tell Reddy that no one was at home down there very much at home.

Reddy had boasted that he would throw this unwanted tenant out, but when Mrs. Reddy had whispered in his ear the name of their tenant his change of mind had been abrupt and complete. "Are you quite sure that that is who it is?" he asked. "Couldn't you be mistaken?"

There was scorn in the manner in which Mrs. Reddy looked at Reddy. "Who in the wide, wide world would you or could you mistake for Jimmy Skunk?" she demanded. "I would doubt that it is Jimmy, just go in and satisfy yourself."

Reddy eased back a little. "No; my dear, I don't doubt you in the least," he protested, "of course not. If you say Jimmy is in there I know that he is. The question is, how are we to get him out?"

"You tell," replied Mrs. Reddy. "Didn't you say something a few minutes ago about pulling him out? Why don't you do it?"

"Don't take my dear," begged Reddy. "This is too serious a matter. I could pull Jimmy out, and you know I could. But if I did, what good would it do? It would be a long time before we would be able to live in the house and it would be a long time before I would be able to regain my self-respect. Jimmy Skunk is the last person I want to quarrel with. Was he awake when you went down there?"

Mrs. Reddy shook her head. "He was sound asleep," said she.

"Probably will be all that he was," replied Reddy. "He might not have liked having a visitor."

"Tra," continued Mrs. Reddy, he was "sound asleep and there is no reason why he should not remain asleep. A nice home-coming this is! Here we are shut out of our own house, and not a thing we can do about it, so far as I can see."

"Perhaps he will take only a short nap," suggested Reddy hopefully. "Perhaps he just happened along here last night and finding no one at home went in for a nap. To that case he probably will continue on his way when he awakes. We can get along for a day or two without the house."

Something tells me that we will have to get along without it more than a day or two," replied Mrs. Reddy dolefully. "Jimmy has rearranged things in that bedroom to suit himself and the indications are that he has been there for some time which undoubtedly means that he will be here for some time longer unless we can find a way to get him out and keep him out."

"Did he seem to be fat? Did he look as if he had had good living?" asked Reddy.

"How do you suppose I could tell? I peeked in there in the dark!" retorted Mrs. Reddy. "The last I knew he was living down on the edge of the Old Orchard. I wonder what sent him up here. I hope that at least he is alone."

Reddy turned quickly with a look of alarm on his face. "Alone!" he knew. You went down there," said he.

"But I didn't stay long enough to find out," retorted Mrs. Reddy. "Now I think of it the bedroom seemed rather filled."

"If Mrs. Jimmy is with him we may as well go look for another home," replied Reddy in a disconsolate tone.

POET'S CORNER

SIGNS OF SPRING

Down from the tree-tops dripping,
Sooner and sooner and slow,
Heart of March sunlight is stirring
Gold of the hill below.

Out from his home in the cedars,
Furtive and famished and faint,
Comes at spring's call, the raven,
Voicing his raucous plaint.

Patches of brown in the blanket,
Where the drifts of the watery bed,
Glorious sunset at noonday,
Burnest of gold and red;

Faint and far off the echoes
That come from the purple hills,
A subtle stir of the heart-strings
That scarce can be understood.

List to the flow of the waters
Under the old stone bridge,
Where the ice is slowly slipping
In rifts from the rocky ridge;
And in the heart an echo
Of the song that the waters sing,
And the spirits atune with the voices
That herald the dawn of Spring.

Sour Stomach, Gas

Hamilton, Ont.—"I was very much discouraged. I could get no relief from gas, sour stomach, gas and indigestion. I lost weight, became nervous and slept poorly—nothing seemed to help me," said Wm. Pasimeni of 1004 Barton Ave., N. "I bought three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and almost immediately my digestion was better, I enjoyed my meals without the former ill effects, my appetite improved and I felt so much better, I cannot praise it enough."

KNOWN DEAD 1535 AND 20 TOWNS GONE

Provide Relief for More Than 50,000 Homeless

Tokyo, March 4 (AP)—Military and naval detachments aided civilian agencies today in providing relief for more than 50,000 persons made homeless by earthquakes and fire which swept Japan yesterday on the northeastern Japan coast.

The known dead totalled 1,535 and it was learned that at least 20 towns were wiped out.

SON OF THE GODS

By Rex Beach

Lee Ying did not explain. Mid-dexterity he murmured: "Sometimes I wonder if I did wisely in leaving this land and accepting him in this foreign land, instead of turning my feet back toward the country of the Rising Sun. Who knows? Probably I am homesick. You see I grew old and I dream of times silenced and the remembrance of beauteous branches. One who was born to Orhim can never forget her," Miss Chandler said in an accusing and a pain. I hear flocks of temple pigeons, with silver whistles fastened to their wings, whirling in the sky and giving off the notes of a thousand tuning forks but—I listen more closely—and it is the autumn wind from the East River. It is all strange and I never go away to it. More than a thousand years ago a country-man of mine went on a journey to distant lands and there he beheld many extraordinary sights. He saw a bird of one nation had dogs' heads, those of another flew about like birds: those of still another had enormously long arms with which they groped in the sea for fish. Strangest of all, however was a race with large heads, small middles or their bodies. The rich men were carried about by servants who pushed long sticks through the holes."

At the silvery tinkle of Miss Chandler Lee Ying's countenance became relaxed and he saw that things almost as strange as that right here in New York. He was filled with my melancholies. That is because writer cannot and my literacious visitor does not warm my house with the fire of memories.

"You don't stir me, Mr. Lee; I adore stories. I wonder if there could be a book about that, and have dogs' heads and go riding around on wheels like Hindu cows."

"No, His wisdom and his understanding is greater than mine. He is the explorer. He is the one who undertakes the journey. But tell me, little poppy seed, why do you think you should cry? I suspect it was something more than the wind that brought you here, Miss Lee."

"Its awful blue, Mr. Lee. I've got to get school."

"Indeed?"

"The Cassidy clan is in a sad way. Father hasn't made a dollar since he got out of the assembly; politics either makes or breaks the trish, you know—and Jim's a total loss. Mother isn't strong and—Well, I've had to start hunting a job. Gee, it's hard on the feet!"

"Are you sufficiently trained—?"

"I can turn out neat hearings on a typewriter, and I can make a pencil smoke; the trouble is nobody can read my note. My short hand is too long. It looks like a nest of single worms....One man lined blue-eyed babies with windblown bobs and he didn't much care how slow they were in the office if there's good up after hours. He deals in cold storage poultry, but he's a torch. I had to quit him. Oh, Gee, it's hard on the feet!"

"Are you sufficiently trained—?"

"I can turn out neat hearings on a typewriter, and I can make a pencil smoke; the trouble is nobody can read my note. My short hand is too long. It looks like a nest of single worms....One man lined blue-eyed babies with windblown bobs and he didn't much care how slow they were in the office if there's good up after hours. He deals in cold storage poultry, but he's a torch. I had to quit him. Oh, Gee, it's hard on the feet!"

Miss Lee Ying's mind turned to that other girl, that other friend of his son's and he murmured: "What a difference in travelers! The unobserving tarry and drink over long in the fountains and those who see truly thirsty push on to the end sooner or later they perish and—My child, you do me an injustice, for my thirsters hundred tasks are scarcely begun, but—so be it. It is, then, your ambition to become a secretary of consequence?"

"Well, at least a secretary of those who are of consequence. It takes more than a shop-girl's salary to support a vegetarian and political grandeur in the same family. And a girl simply has to see a movie, once in a while."

"Turn your back to the wind and that girl will go no where to see a movie, said Lee Ying. "I shall tell you to write a letter to the one who calls him with regarding the obligations of friendship."

When the boy returned to his home he telephoned to his lawyers and the senior member of the firm listened attentively to what he had to say.

"If she's as inexperienced as all that I don't see what we can do with her," the attorney told him.

"The lighter her duties, the more time she will have to devote to pursue her studies."

"Good heavens! Is this another art student?"

Briefly Lee Ying explained who Eileen was. "She can open and close doors with complete grace. She is intelligent and I believe she will earn advancement."

"All right. Send her along."

So it came about that Eileen Cassidy took a position in the office of Carter and Felt. Her duties were not difficult and her work was light, but her pay was good. She did not dream that Lee Ying was footing it.

CHAPTER TWO

The time was when an expert card player could make a good living by playing for small stakes in liners especially if aided by an accomplice, and the profession is not dead yet. That was in the days when draw poker was played under the rules of which were rigidly observed, and when cheating was hampered with its orthodoxy; before the introduction of deuces wild and other fool card perks and similar destructive innovations. Poker, as it is played a scientific pastime into a mere game of chance. The effect upon the psychosis of this noble recreation was disastrous. It transformed it into an undignified aftermath of the World War, so its devotees declare, and it cannot be said to be gentle for swift action, variety, excitement, painstaking patience, perfect or high nervous tension is responsible for the decline and they should know.

Mr. Everett Hines, who for several years had contributed pretty regularly to Europe at the expense of his fellow travelers, complained bitterly that the meddling of neurotic reformers had forced him to adopt a new profession, several new professions, in fact, and that the brilliant bridge competition in the Hotel Lafayette was keen, as Mr. Hines had reason to know, having traveling in the interests of a Maiden Lane diamond broker who had employed him to undermine the market. When the cruises authorities became too deeply interested in Mr. Hines' comings and goings—more particularly in his comings—he feel back upon still other lines of endeavor in which his skilled such as book-making, stock promotions, black-mailing, and playing. He played a very good game of pool, but it was not his game. Mr. Hines, as good, in fact, that he knew exactly how much of a sporting chance he would beat him. Right-handed he was almost. The next table, as he was almost. The next table, as delightful and high gift of ambidexterity had stood him in good stead when he was in Switzerland, in Brussels for instance, he had challenged the local champion and had practiced assiduously in a public billiard room for the use in the ordinary manner and covering all wagers laid against him. On the day when the match he had dismayed his opponent, and his subsequent fame as well, by playing left-handed. For them it had been a formidable combination and he had resulted in strong feelings of animosity.

At the time of our introduction Mr. Hines was in the employ of a man he had known to himself he had interrupted his regular transatlantic trips and for the moment he was avoiding Maiden Lane as if it were a pest quarantine. On this day he was entertaining a new acquaintance in the hotel bar, was a middle-aged, floral, flamboyant woman with a generous bust and considerable good looks. She went by the name of Stevens but Hines knew her as Mrs. Father.

When they had finished their second round of drinks Mrs. Stevens departed Mrs. Stevens said:

"Come up to my room, Everett, for I've got to get down to the dirty work. I've got to get my self-respect, my selfishness, so what's on you mind, if such there be?"

Hines grinned sardonically. "All business, as usual, eh? Tell me, first, how things are breaking?"

"They might be better and they might be worse. It depends on how you look at it."

"Would you be interested in a quick-money proposition?"

"Would a duck swim?" Mrs. Stevens retorted, then she added cautiously: "But no diamonds, Everett; I never got anything out of an iceman but ice. I'll wear 'em but I won't smuggle 'em."

"I'll put you so you can buy some sort pay the duck. How's that so-called niece of yours?"

"Who? Mona?"

"Have you got more than one?"

"She's all right. Why?"

"Doing anything?"

"Oh, a little chiseling here and there. She was posing for a while then I tried to get her in pictures."

"Pretty as ever, is she?"

"She's got it on a lot of those picture girls but—Lord you can't get a lookout in the studios. Most of them have moved out to Holly wood anyhow. If Mona was lighted right she'd screen fine."

"Can she act?"

Mrs. Stevens smiled. "She can do anything. She's been my room and board for two years now. The art and dancing lessons and I seemed to be made to order—the undressing and everything—but illustrators are a cheap gang. One fellow fell for her like when I put the bee to him he lit a flare. He was drawing from her to Pisco and that stalled it."

"Funny I never got into the moving-picture game," Hines murmured meditatively. "I'd have mopped up, because I'm a born actor. Now the foreigners have got 'em body, convinced."

After a moment the woman inquired: "Well, what's the pay off, if any, and where do I head in?"

"I don't know until I give Mona the once-over. She's got to look pretty."

"Why! She doesn't look a day over fifteen."

"Too young!"

"Well, eighteen," Mrs. Stevens said in an effort at economy.

"Let's say—" Hines declared. "Honest, Father, it's art."

"I suppose it is so sort you will waste the big end."

"It's coming to me."

"Yes? I've heard of those sort of tongs. Nothing doing, Ebney. If you need us to close your deal the money will have to be cash-there wait."

"There you go, before you know what's all about."

"Business is business."

"That's right. There's enough in it for everybody if it's handled right. I've got to make a last trip over and I worked it out later in Paris. Get the way across from the corn belt, a terrible sap but out to see the world, understand—I've been there and didn't know it. Well, she tried to make with Reuter and he stalled cleanly. "and she spilled about all she knew. Then she takes Reuter. She's a painter, or something, and she's taking a ride at the expense of a man she loves. Get it?"

"Ah-h! I see the dawn."

"Well, it's coming to me. Eastern that's a big college or something and they were so agreeable to each other that the old man sent her abroad to cure the Lover. She intends to take two years at it."

"Is that all she takes out with her?"

"Not for something of her in Paris—helped her get set—and again on the way home. Then they were buddies by that time. Now then, here's the punch: papa is a Chinaman!"

Ronald Colman in "Cynara", with Phyllis Barry coming to the Belle.

"That's new slang to me," consented Hines' listener. "What's a Chinaman?"

"He talks pure English. He's a Chink, a mandarin! And he's lousy with coin."

"Who? Which papa? The boy?"

"Both of 'em."

"Bang out or it, Hinsey. You've been sleeping on your hip in some laundry."

"Really Well, I'm telling you. Here's a proposition, as wide open as a gate. It's Lee Ying."

"Lee Ying?"

"Nobody else. He's the richest Oriental in the country and his boy is wild about white girls."

"They're all wild about white girls," Mrs. Stevens declared with a curt of her lip. "But what will you, Hinsey? Do you thing Mona and I are out to lay China boys? When we got that low we'll work the Oriental dance halls. And we won't cut you in on it, either. Now if you've been cooking up a peanut lump—"

"Listen, sister you've got a pea nut on the mind. You always were a dumb on."

"If don't see—"

"—And I can't take a chance with Mona. Why, I'm the only mother she's got and she's as dear to me as—"

"Don't get throaty, Esther, or you will have me bawling, too. Mona will be safer than wheat. If you'll stuff the air for a minute and stand by for station announcements I'll tell you what it's all about."

The motherly Mrs. Stevens agreed to this. "All right, I never did lost anything by listening. Spread your hand."

For fully an hour the two talked with their heads together and it was plain that the woman was deeply interested.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

A lazy sea calling upon Mr. Lee Ying, Miss Chandler.

No women either visited Sing's apartment or telephoned him now—adays so he rose, went into the hall and took from the letter box a mixture, unculitivated voice answered him, it stammered a breathless explanation of her insistence. She was a friend of Alice Harth, she had downstairs and wished to see him on a matter of importance. Would he speak to her if she came up?

"Why of course," Sam told her.

A young girl, a very pretty young girl, stood upon the threshold. She smiled a bit, then edged her way in-side, and set down a cellulose.

RICHARD B. HARRISON, Canadian-born Negro star as "The Lawd", SALEM TUTT WHITNEY as "Noah" in "The Green Pastures" coming to the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, for one week beginning Monday, March 20th. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"THE GREEN PASTURES" COMING TO TORONTO

Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures", the most talked of production of the current quarter century, will come to The Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, for a week's engagement commencing Monday evening, March 20. The company and production that played through a year and six months in New York, and for five months in Chicago, will be seen in the play here. Lawrence Rivers, Inc., otherwise Rowland Rivers, manufacturer, Wall Street broker, is the producer.

Connelly found the basis for his play in Roark Bradford's collection of Negro stories, "Ol' Man Adam an His Chillun." But Connelly has performed a miracle, changing the humor, mayhap touched with satire, of Roark Bradford's book into tender, sweet, beautiful treatment of the stories told in Genesis and other books of the Bible.

The spectator gets the Negro understanding of the Creation of the World and its history to the Exodus from Egypt and beyond that to the fall of Babylon. The simple, positive belief of the Negroes in the literal interpretation of the Bible takes on fantastic shapes in the imagination of these grown-up children. Their idea of heaven is synonymous with their greatest treat, a fish fry, and the Lord is much like Mr. Deshee, pastor of the little church where the play begins.

Naiveté is the keynote of the performance. There is laughter in every line and situation, but it is always beautiful laughter. One sees the Lawd, the God of Battles, the Lawd who is sort of business manager when the Lawd is not occupied with the creation of the world, and then the spectator follows the fortunes of Noah and his descendants through the troubled first murder, the flood of Noah, the triumphs of Moses over the magicians of Pharaoh's court, the fall of Jericho and the destruction of Babylon. The scenes sing when, the Hosannahs of the families of the Levites on the New Orleans levee.

The cast that the play name is Richard B. Harrison, the Canadian-born Negro star, who plays "The Lawd". There are more than a hundred Negroes in the company with Harrison revered as a sort of deity. He was a professional reader before he undertook the role, a Shakespearean scholar, who made his home in Southern California and was a familiar figure in club and social circles as an entertainer and raconteur at various Negro educational institutions in the Southern states.

The management of The Royal Alexandra Theatre announces that special consideration will be given to mail orders from out-of-town patrons, and suggests that reservations be sent in as far in advance as possible. Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be played during the Toronto engagement of "The Green Pastures."

Sam bowed politely, he led the way to the living room and stood while Inviting his visitor to enter and be seated.

"Did you say you are a friend of Miss Harth?"

The stranger nodded, then shook her head. "Well, not a friend exactly. But she gave me your name—I got it from her. I used to know her. She was awful nice to me. She's also a nice young lady."

"Charming."

"CYNARA" IS CALLED BY LEADING CRITICS COLEMAN'S BEST FILM

Ronald Colman, star of Samuel Goldwyn screen success, comes to the Belle (tomorrow), Tuesday in "Cynara", his latest and his own favorite of critics and his friends, his best picture. The film is presented by Mr. Goldwyn and was directed by King Vidor.

As was the case with "Arrowsmith", Colman trods new ground in "Cynara." It was largely by dint of the sense of contrast, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Goldwyn selected the story, and it was just as much of a contrast to Director Vidor, too, for this is his initial effort in this smart style of story.

A couple of years ago it began to look as if Ronald Colman was taking his place as one of the screen's most celebrated comedians. That was all right except that in getting similar comedies the screen would be losing one of its finest serious actors. "Cynara" and "Arrowsmith" and "Cynara" behind him, comedy seems to have dropped out of the Colman career for the time being at least.

There are two leading women in "Cynara", one well known to Belleville audiences and the other one of Samuel Goldwyn's "discoveries". Kay Francis portrays the role of the young wife, and the newcomer is Phyllis Barry, a young English girl who had not heretofore appeared in a Hollywood picture. But that discrepancy is about to be corrected for, now that, "Cynara" is completed, she is in tremendous demand from other producers. A number of critics claim to see in Miss Barry what they found in the early Joan Crawford and more recently in Katharine Hepburn.

Henry Stephenson, who originated the role of John Tring in the stage version of "Cynara" repeats his part with Colman and Barrymore will, in turn was based upon the Gope Bryson novel, "Without Benefit of Clergy".

The story concerns itself with a rising young barrister who, against his better judgment, marries the best friend to draw him into an innocent flirtation which turns out very disastrously for all hands concerned. It is a powerful story of how one which might have happened to anybody. No melodramatics, no villians, no heroics. It is simply a dramatic drama laid against a background of luxury and well-being and nice living.

"The Flag Lieutenant"

"The Flag Lieutenant", is the type of picture public adores, and large audiences greeted its presentation at the Belle Theatre on Saturday.

By its happy mixture of romance, adventure and comedy, set against a colorful naval background, it will entertain everyone. Anna Neagle co-stars with Henry Edwards and they are a delightful pair of screen lovers. "Alum and Eve", is unquestionably one of the funniest Zasu Pitts Thelma Todd comedies ever presented at the Belle, funny incidents in the story cause the spectators to shriek at times. The Prince Cameron, Ernie Schaaf boxing contest proved very interesting. The entire program will be repeated tonight for the last times.

"NO MORE ORCHIDS" OPENS CAPITOL'S SECOND ANNIVERSARY

Only one picture in the past has had the sparkle and scintillating brilliance of "No More Orchids," according to critics who have previewed the picture. The other was "Lady Lyrion."

The dialogue alone on paper would make absorbing reading, even if it weren't mounted upon a plot that radiates the spirit of today and played by such charming and capable actors and actresses as Carole Lombard, Walter Connolly, Louise Closser Hale and Lyle Talbot. "No More Orchids" now as the Capitol Theatre.

Taken from Grace Perkins' popular magazine story of the same title, "No More Orchids" follows the spontaneous and dazzling course of a wealthy society debutante who is almost forced into an undesirable marriage to a title of royalty by a stern and proud grandfather.

At first, the film trips lightly from Paris to Cherbourg and on across the Atlantic Ocean to America on one of the finest and most luxurious of our modern liners, bubbling as it were with gayety and effervescing with the froth of champagne.

Then the gay and carefree manner of Miss Lombard, at this stage the emotional conflict of a sudden affair of the heart, that is serious for the first time in her life, and that can't be satisfied because of the entanglement of her engagement to a Prince and the determination of her monied grandfather that she marry into royalty.

Walter Connolly and Louise Closser Hale, two of the finest character players on the American stage or screen, play supporting roles as Miss Lombard's father and grandmother.

Louise Closser Hale is probably the world's oldest parent. In "Lady Lyrion" she almost walked away with the picture with her comedy performances by Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery. Perfect performances in "Sunnybrook Farm, "Tinfoil", "Platinum Blonde" and "Grumpy" have made her name a household word whenever screen honors come up for discussion.

Lyle Talbot plays opposite Miss Lombard as the young, handsome but aloof lawyer who mistrusts her when it appears he is falling in love with him and swears to throw over the Prince in order to marry her.

Ruthelma Stevens, who appeared in "The Night Club Lady", Alice Vincent, a young juvenile who is coming up in Hollywood; Ed. La Saint, a well known character player, and Arthur Housman, whose reputation for convincing inebriates has grown considerably in the last year, constitute the rest of the excellent cast.

LOSS ON MILK 23 TO 50 CTS. PER HUNDRED

Professor Toupin Tells Ottawa Probe of Conditions

LOSSES IN 1932

Feed For 100 Pounds of Milk Figured at 70 Cents

Ottawa, March 7 (CP)—The prospects are that for the year ending June 30, 1933, the farmers in the county of Two Mountains, Que., will find they have operated throughout the year at a loss ranging from 36 cents to 50 cents per 100 lbs of milk sold to the Montreal market, Prof. Gustave Toupin, of the Macdonald College, told the House of Commons Agriculture Committee here today. He found the minimum cost for the farmer was $1.86 through out the year, with a minimum price of $1.36 on the Montreal milk sheds average return for the year was $1.06.

$.11½ for Producer

Professor Toupin told the committee the association he represented established an average production per cow for the year. The average cost of feed per 100 lbs of milk for the year was 70 cents and to 90 cents he estimated "this represented between the end of January of production costs, he said.

Milk Sheds Listed

Ottawa, March 7 (CP)—The disorganization of the Montreal market and the Montreal milk sheds as the Hawley-Smoot tariff which, Sunday it virtually shuts out the import of milk to the United States, was the ghastly picture painted in Montreal, Que., Father Labelle, S.J., told the House of Commons Agriculture committee today.

Father Labelle had noted that the Conservative convention had passed a resolution favoring the question of tariff relations with the United States. He hoped that it' sash should be the case the matter of milk exports from Canada would be given favorable consideration.

Answer Is Supply

Ottawa, March 7 (CP) — The House of Commons Agriculture Committee should follow Lenin himself as a duty to investigate where was the source of Montreal's scorned fluid milk, Honorable Professor Gustave Toupin of the Institute of Oka, urged the committee today. The Committee was considering the enquiry into the milk situation in Montreal.

Due to a shortage of supply in the early part of the year the dealers had been hard put to obtain milk, with the result there was a "big panic" among them, Professor Toupin declared.

A "season existed in the Montreal milk situation, asserted the professor. He was of the opinion of the decreasing quality of milk as delivered to the consumer.

Zangara Arraignment is Set for Thursday Mar. 9, Counsel's Appeal Wins

All in Court Room at Miami Searched For Weapons

TODAY'S TRIAL

No Indication of Plea Which Alleged Slayer Will Enter

Courtroom, Miami, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Arraignment of Giuseppe Zangara on charges of the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, was set for 9 a.m. Thursday, March 9, by Criminal Judge Op Dyke. Dyke's decision on agreement of counsel.

The date was set soon after Zangara was led into the courtroom by officers. He wore a figured yellow shirt and dark sport trousers and appeared to be very calm as he made appearance in court, when he was asked his age, he said he was 32. The shooting at President Roosevelt last February 15 was the first mention of three other persons.

Before Zangara was brought into the courtroom, a flurry of excitement was caused when deputies searched all in the room for weapons.

State Ready to Proceed

State Attorney R. Vernon Brown announced that the arraignment be made immediately on grounds the defendant was ready to proceed with the trial.

Dyke announced that the "whole matter has caused international attention" and that investigation "absolutely" Lewis M. Tuttman, Zangara's counsel, had filed an order that the defendant be examined as to possibility of error we ask that the time of pleading be set for Thursday."

He gave no indication of the plea that Zangara may make.

BISHOP SEAGER PASSES CRISIS

Rests Quietly and Sleeping Quietly Early Today

London, Ont., March 7 (CP) — "Turned a peach" was the announcement today from Bishop-Seagrave, influential residence of the Anglican Diocese of Huron, where Bishop Isaac Seager has served ill with pneumonia.

One of the Bishop's physicians remained by his bedside all night. At 4.30 o'clock this morning Bishop Seager was awakened and his condition was apparent the crisis was over.

The Bishop became ill about a week ago but carried on his duties on Sunday, February 26, as usual. Those close to him say he has been working exceptionally hard during the past few months.

SLIDING SALE CUTS OF LONDON SALARIES

London, Ont., Mar. 7 (CP)—The city council today adopted a sliding scale of salary reductions for all persons employed by the council and its boards whose estimates are submitted for approval.

Reductions range from five per cent on the first $1,000 to 30 per cent on amounts exceeding $6,000.

The cuts range from a saving of $60.- 000 a year, half of it coming from police and firemen.

The reductions are effective Apr. 1.

Action Taken Right Course Says Coroner

Man Knew he Was Suffering from Incurable Disease

London, March 7 (U.P. Cable) "I think the man was perfectly right in what he did," Mr. Major people will disagree but he knew he was suffering from incurable disease," declared a Monmouthshire coroner today at an inquest into the death of a taxi-driver, who took poison.

The man had known himself to be an incurable cancer case and left a note to his wife saying he was not going to suffer any longer. After shooting at President Roosevelt last February 15 was the first mention of three other persons.

Before Zangara was brought into the courtroom, a flurry of excitement was caused when deputies searched all in the room for weapons.

FIGHT FOR KOUPEIKOW

Report That Strategic Point Had Fallen Not True

Tokyo, March 7 (AP)—Although some Japanese newspapers reported the fall of Koupeikow, a key wall pass between Jehol and Peiping, Japanese military headquarters dispatch said a battle for its possession had just begun early today.

All other passes through the great wall have been captured by the Japanese, reports from the front said.

Chinese defenders under General Sun Hsien-Fang were attacked sight and Koupeikow by Japanese Major General Tadashi Kawabe's 16th. Brigade. The Chinese were reported resisting stubbornly.

The 16th Brigade, General Yoshitaro Nishi's division, occupying Jehol City, and aeroplanes from the Manchukuo Army and Chinese, Manchukuo, were sent to aid the Japanese in the Koupeikow attack, dispatch said.

Turning from its conquest to Jehol, the Japanese troops are engaged in establishing the great wall passes they have taken to form defence line for the state of Manchukuo, it was said today.

A Peiping dispatch said the Chinese were making a "last stand" against the Japanese sweep and was apparent the crisis was over.

The Bishop became ill about a week ago but carried on his duties on Sunday, February 26, as usual. Those close to him say he has been working exceptionally hard during the past few months.

TAKING BLOW ON CASH BOOK WITH A GRIN

(By Ruth Cowan, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—With a grin Chicago's new city treasurer blew to its cheque book on the cash.

Some had cash; some didn't, but nearly all seemed possessed of a grin-and-bear-it-spirit—"we'll live somehow."

There was comradery.

On the lawn, elevated trains, street corners, department stores, grocery shops, hotels, even in crowds shuffling through banks' swing doors windows and down in the safety deposit vaults, good-natured raillery replaced and silent intensity.

"Brother, can you spare a dime?" This the jest of the unemployed, song of the moment.

And financiers may talk of pools but numerous instances may be found where groups of two or more Chicago families are meeting the present situation by pooling grocer-ies and funds.

"Come over and bring the eggs. I'll bring the flour" attitude has invaded many homes, and co-operative meals have set a new fashion.

In the dime stores a floorman revealed, pick was occasionally checking into the cash register.

And it was noticed that the business men explored more in the Jig-saw puzzle and candy sections.

GIFTS MADE TO GALLERY

Venetian Painting Dating From 16th Century is Presented

Ottawa, March 7 (CP)—Two outstanding gifts have been made to the National Gallery during the past year, according to the report of that institution as tabled in the House of Commons today. One, described as "a fine example of the 1852 century school of painting" included, inter alia other "the gift of four important Canadian pictures from the National Gallery exhibition of Canadian art held in January, 1932.

The first gift was the work of the Venetian painter, Sebastiano Del Piombo (1485-1547) entitled "Christ With The Cross." It was presented to the gallery by Sir A. W. Fitzroy of Ottawa in memory of her daughter, Rose.

The four Canadian pictures, namely "Doc Snider's House," by F. H. Pilsinger and "The End of Winter," by James Henderson, "Autumn in Algoma," by J. H. MacDonald R.C.A. and "The Readers" by L. A. C. Palen, are the gift of P. D. Ross of Ottawa.

NAVAL RATIO

Fleet Remains in Pacific Because of Orient

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Secretary Swanson in his first press conference as head of the Navy today said he would make every effort to build the United States Navy up to the limits of the London Treaty as soon conditions permit.

Secretary Swanson, who attended the disarmament conference at Geneva last summer, said the United States as well as other nations should avoid the naval rivalry fired by the London agreement, whether he favored such a treaty being a matter to be decided by the President Roosevelt.

"My opinion is that the fleet should be built up to treaty limits as quickly as possible," the Secretary said, adding that if this work were started it would add to relief by unemployment.

Swanson said the fleet would remain in the Pacific until the situation in the Far East had become more calm.

'Got Any Gold!' Cry of Customs Men at Border

Detroit, Mar. 7 (AP)—Customsers to Ontario were startled today as the United States customs inspectors questioning each person at the ferry, tunnel and bridge entrances on the United States.

"Got any gold?" was the question.

Inspectors said the questioning was in line with President Roosevelt's proclamation prohibiting the exportation of gold from the United States for the duration of the banking holiday. No seizure of gold was reported.

Premier of Greece Brings Order Out of Chaos

Athens, Greece, March 7.—(AP) The Greek Government of Premier Demetrios Oikonomos, today ordered the arrest of General Nicholas Plastiras and his associates who engaged in a revolt against the republic a day following Sunday's parliamentary election.

The revolt was killed and 23 wounded in disturbances incident to the setting up of a dictatorship by General Plastiras, who said his aim was to establish the establishment of the Government under the Royalist Leader Panayoti Tsaldaris, who was victorious in Sunday's election over former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos.

General Plastiras resigned today after his attempt to seize power had been achieved.

Yesterday, dusted today, that he had any intention of abandoning power, declaring, "I am here and he leaves his place during a tempest."

KIDNAPPER'S HIDEOUT KNOWN TO POLICE

Denver, March 7 (AP)—The Denver Post says two alleged members of the gang that kidnapped Charles F. Urschel and Walter S. Gadden are behind bill bars and the identity of the third member who helped stage the abduction are known.

Chief of Police Otto Clark said the kidnappers' rendezvous where Boettcher was held more than two days was located by authorities in the hills near Mitchell S.D.

The Post said the hideout was located section many miles from the main highway, Clark said, about 15 or 18 hours drive by automobile from Denver.

He declined to reveal the exact location of the hills out because he said he did not want to tip-off-cers in their search for the other two kidnappers.

Nearly every student recognized the voice of most of the others, but not one knew his own voice.

Permission to Withdraw One Third of Deposits Expected Momentarily in U.S.
Credit and Scrip Solve Many Problems

U. S. Banking Situation

(By the Canadian Press)

The United States banking holiday was relaxed today, banks being permitted to open for new deposits.

Secretary Woodin of the Treasury, believes it will not be necessary to extend the holiday beyond Thursday.

Banks are permitted to make change, except that no gold or gold certificates may be given out.

Access to safety deposit boxes is permitted.

New York Legislature approves Governor Lehmen to act up corporation for issuance of statewide scrip.

New York clearing house officials await Washington approval before moving to release scrip.

New York Stock Exchange is closed "until further notice."

Chicago Livestock Exchange votes to close stockyards at 2 p.m. today, to remain closed "until further notice," due to difficulty of obtaining cash for payments to producers.

Cash grain market at Chicago is to close beginning tomorrow.

Philippine Islands are given authority to "take whatever action seems necessary" to follow the President's holiday proclamation.

Conference of governors at Washington pledges co-operation with President Roosevelt in action to restore banking and economic stability.

Treasury authorities express opinion that President's proclamation supersedes state powers of governors.

Governors of Pennsylvania, New York and other states extend bank holiday to make uniform with federal bank holiday.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation suspends further loans during the holiday.

Banking in Miami, asking permission to reopen banks, state there are 150,000 visitors "stranded" there.

In New Orleans street car riders can issue it charged on their monthly bills.

Washington, March 7 (AP) — Conditional authority for the issuance Friday of scrip or other mediums of exchange by clearing house associations was granted today by Secretary Woodin.

Washington, Mar. 7 (AP) — A high United States government official said today the Treasury Department was expected momentarily to issue regulations authorizing bank depositors to withdraw 1-3 of their money.

New York, March 7 (CP)—Seventeen in the United States turned to the public prints today to tell the time in the street he would trade as freely as he liked on his good name; and at 8, when on 5, procures all the necessities of life as it, travel on credit even as he the cheque on a bank where he has a balance.

The ordinary pay-as-you-go basis of the past almost night, has practically disappeared. Most of the business is not available, but that credit was still the basis of most of the business and despite the present crisis remains unchanged.

Possibility of a rise in the price of foodstuffs entered the picture today. As the result of the drought, millings were issued against the hoarding of stocks. Such a hoarding, it was considered, would send prices soaring. The majority of the markets stay advanced slightly in price after two days of the national bank holiday.

Some Banks Issue Scrip

Great variety of currency substitutes were making their appearance in many cities. Some clothes are reappearing in great numbers and some municipalities have already issued scrip which is being accepted by the business concerns of the municipalities.

State after state announced the reopening of banks in line with a ruling by Secretary Woodin of the Treasury permitting the transaction of essential business.

Each institution may "meet the needs of its community for food, medicine, other necessities of life, for the relief of hardship and the payment of usual salaries" and for other ordinary essential purposes.

Deposits may be made, currency may be changed, but no gold or gold certificates shall be paid out.

In the ten annual steps announced yesterday by Secretary Woodin, as reported on Page 1 South Carolina, Georgia, Kansas, Florida, Michigan and New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware had little to fear from competition.

NEW ZEALAND TO HAVE SILVER COINAGE

Decision Results from Fraitcurrency by Exchange

Wellington, New Zealand, March 7 (C.P. Cable)—The New Zealand government today decided the Australian would henceforth have its own silver coinage.

The decision was reached as a means of checking the profiteering realized from the premium on the export of existing coinage.

As the silver coinage of the Dominion is at present identical with that in Australia it has been impossible to stop extensive exportation.

Complications of Financial Crash in U. S. Seen at Local Offices

New complications arose today for many residents of this city and district with announcements from Washington and express offices, as well as the local post office, that no funds or money orders would be sent anywhere outside of Canada.

"Only Canadian money orders are being accepted or sent," was the word officials of each office kept repeating when enquiries were made.

At the Post Office, Postmaster Lingham said that instructions to that had been made general to all post offices in this country.

"Nothing but Canadian postal orders are being handled," he said, "and limited to the British Isles, or other countries."

The same phrase was heard at the office of the Canadian Pacific Express, and the Candian National Express office.

"We are waiting for things to settle down a little," was the only encouragement officials could give.

Very few have applied at any of the offices to send money abroad, it was learned today, and only the usual small orders passed on. Canadian orders is being handled. No increase in this activity.

Union of Teutonic Nations Given Impetus by Late Elections

Vienna, March 7.—(AP)—The movement for a union of the Teutonic nations, Germany and Austria, a frequent cause of alarm and neighbouring countries since the war, was given new impetus today.

Hitlerites held mass meetings throughout the country last night, acclaiming the victory of the former Austrian, Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in the German elections.

Meanwhile the question was debated whether Parliamentary Government has been eliminated here. Officers supposed to call Parliament into session Wednesday or Saturday after a stormy meeting of the Heimwehr Fascist military movement. The semi-official newspaper Reichspost said, Parliament "abolished itself" and not even Prudent Mikias can reassemble the body.

Chancellor Dollfuss has full powers of Government since the indefinite adjournment of Parliament. His Christian Social Party won a majority in Parliament and was compelled to unite with other groups for control.

Y'S MEN HEAR OF POETRY

Howell Partridge Speaker at Weekly Luncheon of Club

"Canadian Poetry" was the subject upon which Howell "Shake" Partridge spoke to the members of the Y's Men's Club last night. The speaker referred to Burns while leading up to the subject matter, saying his with the Canadian poet, Drummond, along the lines of simplicity and sincerity.

Mr. Partridge quoted many verses of Canadian poetry ranging from outstanding lines by Drummond, Robertson and Miss Carman, while he recited a few verses of poetry composed by himself. The talk on Canadian poetry was educational as well as interesting to the members present.

During the evening the members were entertained with a duet sung by Miss W. MacLaren and J. Hitchon, with Alex Gordon accompanying. Chairman Court Miller, welcomed the members of the club to annual St. Patrick's night dance, which is recognized as one of the feature attractions among the young people left in the city. As has been the custom in past years the local Y's Men's Club will hold their annual dance on March 17th inst.

STILL CUTTING ICE IN BAY OF QUINTE

Ice cutting in the city was still being carried on in the Bay of Quinte on Tuesday morning. Despite the softening effects of the warm weather during the past week or so, the ice is holding up well, and appears to be of good quality.

WEST AND NORTH BEST IN CURLING

Brier Competition Under Way at The Granite Club

Toronto, Mar. 7 (CP)—The West and North scored a clean sweep this afternoon in the opening round of MacDonald Brier Trophy Competition for Dominion curling championship. Rinks from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and Ontario Northern Ontario were winners as three days of round-robin battling got under way. Alberta Dredge Diver Lodge Team from Manitoba, defenders of the title won for the straight years by Winnipeg curlers, outshot the Hamilton Thistle Rink skipped by Gordon Campbell 13-7 to win the feature match of morning play.

The changes were made from Northern, led by Cliff McLachlan, piled up two big ends in the sixteenth to defeat the Nova Scotia contender of James A. Cumming of Halifax by 13-8. The Bluenose Rink made it close until the fifth end, when the game was scored then and added four more on the next end.

Cliff Manahan's Alberta champions from Medicine Hat scored a 16-11 win over the New Brunswick aggregate, skipped by J. S. Malcolm of Saint John. In the fourth game the Jerry Abrams' Rink from Kirkland Lake, Northern Ontario's hope, downed Quebec, represented by H. C. Perrier of Montreal, 15-3.

DEBATE HEARD ON PUBLICATION OF CRIME NEWS

Odessa, Upholding Affirmative Side, Declared Winners

With the featured number on the program a debate on the question, "Resolved that crime should be published in the newspapers," was the topic of the enjoyable debate, both sides presenting strong arguments, Mr. W. J. Yeoman and Mr. P. Bowerman upholding the affirmative side of the question while Miss Dorothy Bell and Mr. Ivan Hepburn upheld the negative side. The judges, Miss Ethel Reynolds and Miss Hall, decided in favour of the affirmative.

During the debate a program was given which included a violin solo by Miss Doreen Brown, a reading by Miss Dorothy Bell, two delightful readings and Mr. Alex Gordon gave a piano solo. Mr. Ivan Hepburn, of Amelissburg, gave a brief address outlining the aims and objects of the series being sponsored by the Presbytery.

The meeting closed with all singing "Faith of Our Fathers" and repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

AUTO OWNERS APPROVE IDEA

Fifty Per Cent Would Like New Date of Issuing Licences

Voluntary statements by over 50 per cent. or the number of motorists in the Province of district indicate that a change in the time of issuing licences for license fees, as now used, would not only be favored, but extremely popular with the motorists, writes G. H. Ketcheson, local issuer of permits, who was interviewed this morning.

Some time ago the suggestion was made by Mr. Ketcheson regarding the changing of the time of issuing motor permits from the first of the year to some time in April—as May 24th, Dominion Day or even July 1st—when considerable and money more plentiful. It was pointed out that many people were unwilling to pay out needed cash for licenses at this time of year, however, would benefit to a greater degree commercial brokers whose increased business during the winter months would make it possible.

In the opinion of Mr. Ketcheson, the change were not only desirable on certain date set for renewal of plates, but two big ends were achieved in the effect the Nova Scotia contender of James A. Cumming of Halifax by 13-8. The Bluenose Rink made it close until the fifth end, when the game was scored then and added four more on the next end.

FELLOWSHIP ROTARY THEME

Rev. A. E. McCutcheon Guest Speaker at Club Meeting

"Fellowship Day" at the Belleville Rotary was celebrated Monday with Rev. A. E. McCutcheon guest speaker. As good fellowship is one of the outstanding features of Rotary the holding of a "Fellowship Day" is merely to emphasize the importance of practicing as well as preaching good will and good fellowship. Rev. McCutcheon, who is president of Belleville Kiwanis Club, gave a splendid address, inspiring and interesting, which won the close attention of the guests. First he pointed out that fellowship has its roots in religion and is the cardinal principle of Christianity—it is one of the principal and final words in the English language, and no word has sprung into popular use more rapidly. Good fellowship is a partnership, a sharing, an end to selfishness, and to serve and each for all in a common brotherhood for the good of all. True fellowship was the secret of the "Knights of Galilee" and His followers, twelve men, with different temperaments, characters and outlook, all welded into one body of thought and endeavor without losing their individuality, by the Master, a splendid example of real fellowship.

Pals Ye Dress Reveal

Mandolin Club mastered the art of production, and remarkable progress has been made in all the arts and sciences, but has failed to reap the reward of its own achievements—selfishness and strife still seem to be being burned, coffee destroyed, become thus an unsightly mass. Farmer is being forced into bankruptcy, Gemmi hunger stalks side by side with unheard of plenty in the surplus of prosperity want is most acute and widespread. Good fellowship is a true fellowship, all for each and each for all. All the people of East and West have got on common ground, the whole world has become interdependent, and what concerns one nation vitally concerns all others. No one nation can live unto itself, fair ideals and succeed, without unity it must perish. So accordingly of the world must be united in one family of definite purpose, a good fellowship ring around the world. All must learn the art of sharing, and sharing is the foundation of renewed hope. Good will must succeed the ignorance and war must cease for nations must learn to live in trust, heritage. Fellowship is worth fighting for, and everyone has in every way, the fellowship of service. The way to find life is to lose it, loss it in the fellowship of service.

Ghandi is a world figure because he has devoted his life to the service of his fellows, said the speaker, who quoted other noted personages who had devoted their lives to the service of mankind, such as Samuel Shatterbury, who had abandoned a practice in parliament, put aside his ambitions to become a social reformer and to go down in the slums of London to serve his fellow men, to help the down and cast to recover courage, to assist the thief to renounce his thievery and become an honest citizen, to feed the hungry and clothe the naked, to come down to his death and be followed to the grave by a surviving multitude with heartsore sorrow inscribed with tributes of sorrow, affection and appreciation. Everyone mentioned who had taken the lowly road amid the dark places in preference to the more attractive and brilliantly illuminated pathway of national acclaim and who had gained eternal life because in their needed it most in a fellowship of service such as was taught and inspired by the Master.

Letters to The Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Thursday night, March 2, 1933 issue of the Ontario Intelligencer contained an article relative to the plan of renovating the City Hall, which was represented Mayor Ponton. The suggestion to place a new floor in the Hall, repainting and decorating the hall then to be used as a community hall.

I am one of the ratepayers of the city of Belleville, I remember on last election night the chairman of the Board of Hall Property mentioned what improvements he'd been placed in the building as regards new electric lights which had been placed in the Armouries and City Hall and particularly mentioned the condition of the heating and necessity of the hall being redecorated, therefore the City Hall was not mentioned, conceived by the mayor, but has been advocated by Reverend Chisholm Charles Clark and City Property, Alderman Marshall, when the took over the reins of leadership, and having known the chairman for a number of years and knowing his business ability I am confident when the earnings from the various parties, dancing etc., warrant this additional expense the work will be handled by the chairman of the council for their consideration. As I am informed all improvements in the City Hall have been done from the revenue of the Hall Property department, without assessing one dollar from the taxpayer of the city.

Regarding the hall being loaned for dances parties, dancing etc., I personally, do no believe the taxpayers of the city would desire the hall loaned for this purpose, because the expense of lighting and heating would be too great. In this article, when we have five or six balls in the city, do you suppose we'd pay taxes, pay etc, and hope to make a return for their investment and pay their taxes to the city.

Therefore, in the interests of fair play, I am sure the council when same is due and before Alderman Marshall should be given credit for the improvements he has made and have the hall placed in charge of this department to the chairman to work out as he deems advisable to recommend to the council.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

Ed. Note—The item in question which appeared in the Thursday issue of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer on the date above mentioned was merely a tentative suggestion passed on by Mayor Ponton to a reporter during a casual conversation, and not to the reporter as a news item. It was not the wish of the mayor to interfere with the work of the chairman of any department in the city council. The item in question mentioned that Mayor Ponton had the backing of several members of the council on the matter. Alderman Marshall's handling of the department he represents needed little amplification in the notice. Belleville is one of the few cities which has no central meeting place. Mayor Ponton suggested the "Community Hall" would be a means of increasing the community spirit and expenses for lighting, etc., would be met by various organizations holding parties or parties of their own. Ratepayers would not be burdened by the use of the otherwise unoccupied hall.

RELIEF WORK Q. A. SCHOOL

Energetic Committee For Providing For Undernourished Children

With the opening up of several new members and with the formation of new committees at the meeting held by the Queen Alexandra School Association held last night in the school, added interest is given the work of supplying breakfasts for needy children now attending.

At present over forty undernourished children are receiving their daily ration of fresh milk, on the advice of Miss Rook, School Nurse, and a large number more are now enrolled for the supply of milk, rubbers, from funds supplied by the association raised by their initial efforts some time ago.

Further plans for assistance have been scheduled, chief among which will be a concert to be held in the school on Monday evening, March 20th when an "all-Irish" night will be put on.

A representative gathering of mothers and others interested in the welfare of the children on in the schools was in attendance at the meeting held last night and from this group, together with the old committee, the following were unanimously re-elected to office, the following constituting the executive committee, Chairman, Mrs. V. H. Graves with Mr. Fred Ray.

Special Entertainment Committee, Mrs. Fred Ray, convener, and Mrs. Pitney.

Entertainment Committee: Mrs. Reg. Moncrief, Chairman; Mr. Mott; Mr. C. H. Gilbert, Mrs. Mott; Mr. G. Hotel; Mr. Mc-Lean; Mr. Sprakeley, Mr. Jr. Forsyth; Mrs. Nighan; Mr. Fred Smythe; Mrs. Walker and Mr. Earl Read.

Relief and Welfare Committee: Mrs. C. H. Gilbert, Mrs. Mott; Mr. E. Fowler; Miss D. Young, Mrs. Moncrief, Mrs. Wood; Miss King; Mrs. Roswell and Mrs. Brown.

Executive Committee: Mrs. Moncrief as chairman of the School Association was only a temporary one and Mr. Moncrief was once again elected unanimously to fill the position once again, Mr. Moncrief had hardly begun as yet, and hoped the full co-operation of every of the ladies were in attendance, but that of every parent whose child attended the School. At previous attempt will be made later in the evening.

Mrs. (Dr.) Sigham suggested the raising of funds for this work by means of a series of bridge and euchre games in the school during the coming winter. She will be capably assisted in this work by Mrs. Ray, the committee who was named. The date as yet has not been decided upon.

The other of Mr. C. C. Stewart to make a large number of cards to be distributed in small homes to patrons, who attend the coming entertainment was accepted. Miss Alice Tompkins was called and charmed all the Candy Committee.

FAREWELL TO O.C.

Brockville, Ont., March 7 (CP)—Officers of the Brockville Rifles last night tendered a complimentary dinner at the Armouries to Lt.-Col. C. C. Stewart, D.S.O., retiring from command of the Regiment, being succeeded by Major J. R. McCullough.

HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS LIKELY TO CLOSE

Hollywood, Cal., March 7 (AP) Closing of studios and the indefinite shutdown of Hollywood motion picture studios was suspected today, when conferences of studio heads adjourned to await word from a committee of Washington economy officials in New York. The local industry has an estimated weekly payroll of approximately $1,500,000.

"We cannot meet our payroll," declared one studio head, and the others echoed with production without money," said a representative of the movies.

"Acts Like a Flash"

Well John—in your new autumn Tuxedo you are a flash. Yes, that's Buckley's Mixture—the great cough and cold remedy that acts like a different mixture and a supremely efficient Mixture.

For you must keep in mind that a remedy which in a few hours puts a stop to a cough, relieves a cold, is no ordinary remedy but stands in a class by itself.

Buckley's is triple strength—a little goes a long way. It is a mistake a child can take it—and how speedily it does help the little one.

If you want to stop a cough or get rid of a cold, or relieve a cold that means get a bottle of Buckley's Mixture. Sold by all druggists. Save.

For your health's sake—demand Buckley's for cheap imitations are dangerous.

CALGARY TO PAY IN CANADIAN GOLD

Calgary, March 6 (CP)—Three cent court judgments against Calgary for non payment of United States exchange, rates on which the city commerce was removed today when the city council passed a by-law paying the Malden Trust Company of Malden, Mass. in gold received from the sweepstakes.

The Malden firm had announced its intention of starting proceedings in Calgary for its failure to pay United States exchange rates on bonds held by the company. Payments amounting to $40,000 will be made in gold, Mayor Andy Davison said.

PAY PREMIUM 15 PERCENT

Demand For Cash is Behind Allowance of Premium

Toronto, March 6—(CP)— Several Canadian banks today began paying a premium of 15 per cent on American money in over the counter transactions. It is understood the demand for United States cash in the banks' reserves is behind the allowance of premium. Since banks in the United States closed they put on American money, it is understood United States firms are remitting here for United States bills.

The Bank of Montreal foreign exchange department said it offered a holder's option of accepting 15 per cent premium on American money or allowing it to be deposited at par subject to adjustment when the banking system in the United States is in operation.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce reported a similar arrangement, offering par cash on American cash.

The Royal Bank foreign exchange department said they were at present accepting United States money only at par with adjustments to be made.

The Bank of Nova Scotia reported no action taken yet on allowing premium on offered, but there a rule was awaited from the clearing house.

The Bank of Toronto said no premium was offered.

The Dominion Bank said they were handling American money, only on a consignment basis.

THE UNITED STATES

The United States is today in a position favorable for stabilization through the stoppage of trade and the curtailment of business. Yesterday for the first time exchange in currency went on in Europe without reference to United States currency. Movement upward of the British pound was another result of the financial condition of the United States which has reached a stage of international importance.

In the face of this great problem to put back trade and business into proper channels stands the man Roosevelt, whose advent upon the world political scene is in spite of the clouds which hang about, the beginning of the turn—the long-expected recovery which has been so long around the corner.

Steps taken by President Roosevelt are no longer of national importance only. Every decision of his registers throughout the world.

People in Canada who complain of affairs might be interested to know that they escaped the acute problems of the present which the entire population of the United States faces. How to get employment for seven, five, or a man of means, is a problem which few can solve. Canadians have not yet been called upon to face the problem of how to halve their measure of trouble through unemployment.

In spite of the unusual situation which has developed in the United States, due to the results of their ancestral origin in their quiet manner in the face of a situation the like of which no one of the last one hundred and twenty millions ever thought possible of development. There is no danger of political upheaval. There is no danger in other countries where there is nothing like stability of character. It is a trying time to the spirit of the United States people as they develop that spirit of people. The people of that land are passing through a crucible and a process of refining which will build up a more equitable system than has prevailed and add to their strength of character.

Canadians have yet to feel proud of their institutions which are firm but flexible. While "across the line" for several weeks there have been movements of financial nature upset the people of the Dominion, fear has failed to take hold—so much for the stability of the Canadian people, who know their institutions sound.

RACIAL ORIGINS

A study of the figures of the population of the County of Hastings is interesting. Of the 58,846 people, according to the last census, 45,104 are of British origin, 8,405 are of European origin and 122 Asiatic in origin, 1231 Indians, 4 negroes and 51 unspecified.

In the British group the English in origin lead with 24,460, Irish with 16,956, Scottish with 2584, and others 241.

Of those of European origin, the figures are French 3484, Austrian 22, Belgian 88, Bulgarian 1, Czech and Slovak 23, Danish 243, Dutch 2581, Finnish 26, German 1520, Greek 48, Hebrew 132, Hungarian 8, Italians 265, Jugoslav 25, Lithuanian 3, Norwegian 22, Polish 87, Roumanian 22, Russian 46, Swedish 49, Ukrainian 23, others 14. Chinese in origin among other races total 34; others of Asiatic origin 28.

In Prince Edward County the population is almost purely British in origin with 15,535 out of 16,993. English lead by 12,095. In the European category are 1230 persons, while in origin are eighty-one and six of these. There are 101 Indians by origin in the county. Germanic origin was given by 267.

In Belleville with a population of 13,790 as recorded, is by origin English 7,613, Irish 2,928, Scottish 1644, others 84. French 596, Austrians 4, Czechs and Slovaks 4, Dutch 417, Finnish 3, Germans 168, Hebrews 90, Hungarian 1, Italians 151, Polish 14, Roumian 7, Scandinavians 29, others 51, Chinese 57, others 2, Indians 48, unspecified 41.

These are interesting facts as showing the great predominance of the British in this part. The number of those of French and German origin is considerable, but these date back so far that as known to their neighbors they are native. South Europeans are relatively very few in the two counties bordering on the bay.

A school teacher had found her class of boys reluctant in their writing of English compositions. At last she conceived a great idea to stimulate their interest—to write an account of a ball game.

It seemed that she was successful. With one exception, the boys threw themselves at the task and evolved youthful masterpieces. The backward one chewed reluctantly at his pen and was then struck by a burst of genius. When the teacher opened his paper, it read:

"Rain, no game."

The earth lies fair before me
And beckons me away.
With lure of Spanish cities,
With hints of Mandalay.
With tales of brooding Egypt,
Of pyramid and Nile,
The world lies, wrapped in wonder,
For golden mile on mile!

The earth keeps singing, singing
Of fabled land and sea;
I thrill to all these splendors,
But they are not for me.
My tears are not come stinging
My eyes at Taj Mahal,
The sudden tears of rapture
With perfect beauty's thrall.

The world lies fair before me
But I have found all loveliness,
All magic where you are,
And beckons me afar.

ELSIE JANIS, who has been making a living imitating Will Rogers, says that Will is a great boy. Will Rogers makes people laugh at each other, while Elsie Janis makes people laugh at Will Rogers. Will didn't mind, however, and always gives Elsie a big hand, so she says Will is a great guy. She imitated him in London, where Will first made himself liked, having even passed jokes on the Prince of Wales and got away with it. Elsie also imitated Will for the defectation of Paris and does not dread them, although Will is no so well known there. Elsie can spin a rope with the best of them and when it comes to getting into a lariat act she has the Mounted beaten a mile and then some.

RADIO DESCRIPTION of the inaugural ceremonies in Washington Saturday proved very interesting to listeners-in. Graham McNamee, Floyd Gibbons, Clem McCarthy and others on the job, kept the folks hot with descriptive talk of the crowds, public personages, odd characters, the colorful high points of the parade, the military spectacle, cavalry, infantry, artillery and the aerial fleets which manoeuvred over the Capitol city. Military bands music gave the announcers periods of rest, and, of course, the big feature of the day was the speech by President Roosevelt which impressed Canadian hearers as revealing a strong character and rugged will, a leader of whom our sister nation may well be proud. A message just the man to meet and conquer present adverse conditions in the republic. The inaugural broadcastings, culminating with a description of the great inaugural ball which put the finishing touches to an occasion, historic and more significant, perhaps, than any other at the moment, a gay, colorful and musical event, fitting climax to the note of optimism which predominated in all the speeches and proceedings of the day. President Franklin D. Roosevelt has taken a big job and he has the best wishes of all Canadians for success in his term of office and a speedy return of sane and solid prosperity to his country.

"DEGREES" OF ABSURDITIES IS STATEMENT

What Does Ability to Detect Absurdities Reveal?

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

If a person makes a remark that essentially is foolish, but the nonsense of which we readily are able to detect, we may justly conclude that our judgment faculty is working efficiently.

In the celebrated Binet-Simon Test which is used to determine the intellectual status of children, it is assumed that at eleven years a child will recognize the absurdity in the following: "Somebody used to say that if in a moment of despair I should commit suicide I should not choose Friday, because Friday is an unlucky day and it might bring me bad luck." Similar absurd statements are read to the subject to be tested at this age level. To detect such, he must be sure of humor, but his judgment ability.

Yes, a sense of humor does imply a keen sense of judgment, for, if you will, the possession of common sense. Ability to detect absurdities also shows capability for reasoning and for comprehending well, and for drawing on previous experiences and making comparisons between them. All these are sure signs of intelligence.

There are, of course, what might be called "degrees" of absurdity. The absurd statement, and always gives Elsie a big hand, so she says Will is a great guy. Least Difficult Absurdities

1. The soldier waves the flag wildly in the air while standing at attention with his hands at his side.

2. The fisherman knocked the side of his boat so as to mark the place where he had been fishing.

3. That day came in sight of several lobsters which had been entirely mated by the warmth of the gulf stream.

4. When he reached the city limits the engineer put on full speed so as to enter the city slowly.

5. As the sun went under a dark cloud it grew so light at the window that the boy covered away.

More Difficult Absurdities

1. A man who was lecturing said: "Now I will advance back to my first point."

2. A boy said a circle is a round, straight line with a hole in the middle.

3. The young man looked me straight in the eye as he answered falteringly, with bowed head: "I did it."

4. While boasting about his speech a showman said he could lift himself by the hair of his own head.

5. Many a sailor has come home from a long voyage to find his wife a widow.

Did you know that: A local man is trying to patent a bristle-less shaving brush he has invented.... That another local inventor has already applied for a patent for a non-skiing golf club.... but found out he was a little too late—One has already been manufactured by a golf pro in Massachusetts. The club head is aligned with the shaft in such a way that the player who has been habitually skiing is enabled to make clean drives.... That a gentleman in the city, after years of work, and infinite patience and from parts collected at the five and dime stores, has made a miniature Oriental temple or shrine, complete in every detail.....That another man is building a complete model of an English railway system.....He has already purchased a locomotive and is on the perfect duplicate of the ordinary railway station.

And did you know that the crack orchestra in the Belle Ewart Inn on the lawn of the residence on the south west corner of Victoria Avenue and Dundas finished the "three blind mice" and then, drawing a line after it, started the "Count of Monte Cristo" Kipling, most pathetic staking of them all, wrote one stanza of "Mimi" and Sidney Young, the poet, invariably had a small placed before him on the desk as he wrote and sought inspiration by strolling among tombstones at night.....

NATURALIZATION.

Occasionally the Judge who is viewing those who appear before him for naturalization, gets a little with a tough one. Here's one specimen:

Judge—"Next! Who. Me?' Next? You sir!" "Where?" "Russia." "What Part?" "All of them." "Why did you leave Russia?" "I couldn't bring it with me." "Where were your forefathers born?" "I don't you call 'em father." "Your husband?" "Rotten!" "Where is Washington?" "He's dead", "I mean the capitol of the United States", "They loosed it to Europe", "How, do you intend to support the Constitution?" "Who, Me?" "How can I? I've got a wife and six children to support."

Landlord—"Chicken today! Like snow in June—very rare."

Landlady—"Yes, and your bill is like April weather—unsettled!"

PICK-UP FREIGHT SERVICE INAUGURATED

Officials of Railway Believe It Will Be a Success.

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—The new pick-up and delivery freight service was inaugurated to-day to fifty-two towns in southwestern Ontario and officers of the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Pere Marquette and Wabash railways look forward to its success.

"If the first day's reception of the schemes is any criterion," said R. K. Terry, general freight agent of the Canadian National System, "we have every reason to congratulate ourselves upon its success."

Mr. Terry said the only economical investment that railways can make at present is "to them to the public all available facilities to the utmost and to work out a plan whereby the more mobile trucks can be made to co-operate with the rail facilities." He said it was thought that under the present plan the truck is made an adjunct to the steam road.

Weddings

ELLIOTT—BELTZA

ROSLIN, Ontario.—A wedding of interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Beltza, Roslin on Saturday, March 4th, when their youngest daughter, Alice, became married in marriage to Mr. James Alfred Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Elliott, Trenton. Rev. E. W. Calley, officiating.

The bride was becomingly sitting in a pretty gown of powder-blue Rosalanese crepe with accessories to match, her corsage bouquet was composed of bridal rose buds and of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Alice Lomax of Philadelphia, whose frock was of apricot chiffon with lace made in Empire style and her corsage was of roses and sweet peas, while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. W. C. Elliott.

The rooms were prettily decorated with white streamers and bowls of fresh spring flowers.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate guests.

The toasts to the bride and groom were proposed by Rev. Calley and Mrs. Calley to which the groom ably responded.

Immediately after the wedding breakfast, the bride donned her travelling coat of grey check with white accessories of black and white, and hat in cherry red, and coat of Baltic Frost, gold with collar of German Fitch.

Later they left amid showers of confetti and rice, on a motor trip to Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Upon their return, they will reside at Roslin.

CRUIL—GROVES

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the manse of St. Andrew's Church by Very Rev. Alex A. J. Hanley on Saturday evening at seven o'clock, when Miss Dorothy L. Groves, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Joseph Groves, 29 Irving Avenue, became the bride of Arthur D. Cruil of the Recording Time Checks mechanical staff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cruil of Toronto.

The bridal couple were attended by the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan McCready and the ceremony was witnessed by immediate relatives of the contracting couple who have numerous friends who join in extending congratulations and best wishes for many years of happiness.

During 1931 British Boy Scouts were the best visiting parties of scouts from France, Belgium, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Germany, Norway and Sweden.

Scars From Skin Eruptions

This preparation is astonished to pretty young things who, when they discover a blotch or a pustule on their tender faces proceed to worry it. They squeeze it with their needle pointed fingers, and the tribulus accidents are multiplied. They proceed to squeeze and squeeze and squeeze the unlucky spot, otherwise known as a scar. And a scar is a scar, and almost always when it has been picked only to become more inflamed.

Acne is a small but very annoying disturbance for many people. It is a disease of the skin and hair follicles, and is caused by the secretion of the sebaceous glands being too much pronounced. Each sebum is protected with a film of fine hair, thus preventing evaporation.

When pimples appear in normal health, they disappear after an extended period, it is folly to pin one's faith in, to home treatment. These are medical men who specialize in the treatment of the skin and scalp. Some use serums to correct acne. Nearly all insist on the elimination of rich, greasy foods, fried meats and pastries, and white bread. Instead they call fruit juices, bitter, green vegetables, whole wheat bread, to correct it. Others prescribe the skin all over the body with a solution normally. Intervening by reducing the more sensitive parts on the face from where he has to work. It is necessary to have the bath water fairly hot, use soap generously, scour with a stiff brush if necessary stiff bristles that don't mar the skin, and rinse off the soap contact with water.

The doctor said: drink six glasses of water a day. Be a wet. Heavy water drinkers nearly always have clear complexions.

Showing Love Thrives Best the Simplest Fare

Throughout New England, various community centers are having carnival dances, and the spirit of a healthful picked at random, they are attracting young folk from miles around. Indeed, villages realize that youth will stay home if they can find entertainment in excess of pleasurable.

Whoever heard of people "finding fun from home" in the good old days? Not I, for one, say I! On the contrary, they fled it here more frequently when they had the chance, and went many miles to their nearest "city" for their entertainment. And instead of letting the fun come to them, they themselves went where young people were found and where they paid for themselves because they aren't afraid to marry, they are getting hopeless and disheartened.

Grange, community centers and kindred organizations are using rural school houses for socials, and they're finding that the fun is their level. Young people have got gathering places, and they're going to spend; they've stopped spending, and they've stopped spending because of discoveries ....that it's not necessary to spend in order to be happy and have a good time.

It is generally that was prodigal hard hit, owing to the failure of the two local banks, people have developed somewhat some of the youngsters requested the use of the school-room for a dainty night dance. The go-aheads who were instrumental in getting it up, had the time of their lives, and found out everyone, long-lost pines, Christmas trees, pine cones, and all of course, mistletoe for the chandeliers. The atmosphere was quite closely fragrant with the breath of Nature.

Did "evil" was the stern dictum. Dancing was to be the object of the evening, and dance it should be. Not a young dairy farmer in the neighborhood had some musical skill, and this he contributed. Perhaps the mellow fairy godmother gave the cocoa—the country paper omitted that detail. But it was the dance, and judging by the hour at which the festivity broke up, the music must have been enchanting.

The young people in adjacent neighborhoods began to give these thrift parties. Those who liked to sing organized choral societies, and other groups rounded up recruits for other activities—there will be study clubs, book clubs, cooking schools, and furniture covering classes. And best of all, these youngsters are discovering the simple pleasures of the old colonial days, when the country was practicing frugality to be employed later in really great achievement.

Dances in rural school houses are the best of introductions for young people. In the cooking school for "book sense", John discovers who makes the best buns, and husband-hunting Mary Mollie finds out which of the young men is "good at pick up after himself."

Nor is the depression engagement-proof. Young people who once stood off and surveyed each other from afar at "Saturday night corny Parties" are the best way of becoming well acquainted. And, as one of them said: "The more leisurely the march to the altar, the slower the trip to Reno."

PRINCE SUBSTITUTED

London, Mar. 7 (AP) — King George, who has been suffering from a cold, passed a good night and was making satisfactory recovery today. It was officially stated at Buckingham Palace. As predicted, the Prince of Wales substituted for the King at the season's first levee at St. James' Palace.

Correct Manners

Serving Cocktails

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

1. I am to give a dinner on Sunday evening at six-thirty. I want to serve cocktails and I shall welcome in the latter-room about one half hour before dinner. I don't know how to serve them, however.

1. Do you have to pass around separate little plates for the sandwiches, and if so, how are the plates to be served, with napkins on each plate? (Cocktail by plate) Or should you pass the napkins when serving the cocktails?

2. Is it permissible to serve glass plates, also the sandwiches in large glass plates?

3. Do the gentlemen remain in the dining-room to have their cigars, also, to smoke cigars?

4. Just what do I say to the ladies to let them know that I will serve demi-tasse to them in the living-room?

5. Are candles also passed around at the same time?

6. Is it correct to serve cream soups in place of bouillon cups at a luncheon?

L.

This is a charming and hospitable rule, and it can be done with such grace and graciousness that it gives your dinner a fine start.

1. It is most convenient, I think you will find, to have them all prepared. The first one that is passed to the guests will have on it the pile of plates, with a small cocktail napkin on the top of the first plate to the guest will have on two other plates. On this tray too will be the glasses. As the tray is passed to each guest, the glass is taken, and the napkin and then the glass. On the next tray are the canapes or open-face sandwiches, and you will find necessary if you with, such as nuts or potato chips or what you like, stuffed with pimento or anchovies ...this is a matter of taste. Some things rather than canapes or open-face sandwiches. After the drinks have been served, this tray is passed, and the guest already has the plate to put them on.

2. Small glass plates are very often used and are correct. And the large glass plates may be used as the serving-dish for the sandwiches.

3. Usually the host likes to have the hostess join this, and the men, of course, thoroughly enjoy it. At the ladies leave the dining-room to have their after-dinner coffee in the living-room, the gentlemen remain for a while, and do not take their seats again until all the ladies have left the dining-room.

4. At the dessert course is nearing its end, the ladies will keep an eye on the hostess to see when she is about to rise, and this is the signal for the women guests to rise and go with her into the living-room. If you find it necessary to say anything, you say, "Shall we have our coffee in the living-room?"

5. Usually the candles are passed at the dining-room after the dessert.

6. Yes, as a matter of fact, there is a distinct tendency now for the woman-in-the-house to use cream soup cups for all informal serving of soups, and for both formal and informal luncheons. Usually we can't own both, and the cream soup cups are convenient for practically all kinds of soup. With the appropriate cream soup spoons they also solve most of our serving problems.

The Dinner Jacket

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

I always read your articles and enjoy them immensely.

Will you tell me which is correct —when a man with a tux. should the bow tie be inside the wings of the collar or outside?

R.

The bow tie should be worn with the ends not turned under the collar.

And do you mind if I give one more suggestion? Although I realize that we hear some people refer to a Tuxedo suit as a "Tux", this is not considered good form. Say either Tuxedo, or Tuxedo suit, or best of all, dinner jacket.

Once Overs

There are too many persons trying to lift others up who are themselves, standing on a lower plane than those they seek to influence.

The one who sets out to be a leader should first removale himself.

Uplift, in many instances, fails because of the known frailties of those who are considered so superior.

The man or the woman who has more than the usual number of weaknesses should not act as counsellor or guide, for he or she is sure to injure the cause to be represented.

Absolute perfection in a human being cannot be expected.

But there must be a certain degree of perfection before a person can be justified in setting up as an example.

Many good causes fail because of the methods espoused them.

It is true that a good plan should not be denounced because of the sins or faults of some of its supporters.

Not generally speaking one must represent creditably the policy or the principals set up in a guide for others, if many followers can be expected.

Do you practice what you preach?

Isn't it a fact that you violate many of the rules you insist upon others following?

MISSION BAND

The monthly meeting of the Stone Church Mission Band was held at the school on Feb. 24 with Mrs. Whitfield, the leader, in charge. The election of officers took place: President, Muriel Vermilyea; secretary, Mary MacPherson; treasurer, Lena Detlor; press secretary, M. Bristol; corresponding secretary), M. Vermilyea.

Roll call was answered by a nursery rhyme. The attendance was sixteen. The hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers", was sung, after which Leira Detlor read the Scripture text, 22:36-44. Ruth Whitfield read a very interesting story entitled "The Artist Who Forgot Four Colors". "Abide With Me" was then sung and everyone repeated the twenty-third Psalm. Mrs. Whitfield then handed the class a new piece entitled "Brighten the Corner". The meeting was closed by the Lord's Prayer.

HER UNFORGIVABLE FAULT — by ALBERT DORNE

Put more Sunshine into your working hours

THESE are days when you require all your energy and "punch" to succeed. To tackle your job enthusiastically you need good health. It is the source of your vitality.

One of the greatest enemies of health is common constipation. This ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Your ability to work may be seriously handicapped.

Overcome common constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Within the body it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass. Gently it helps to clear the system of wastes. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful and habit-forming?

Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—as a cereal or in cooked dishes—will correct most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"When you're healthy, you're happy"

"How you feel — and how well you look — depends largely upon the food you eat. Be sure your diet is balanced — with sufficient 'bulk' to promote regularity."

GOOD MANNERS
By, Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Voice With The Scowl Doesn't Win

"It wasn't my fault that you got the wrong number," I answered in all innocence—that the operator had made a blunder, so don't permit your temper, or your bad manners, to rise. And don't slam the telephone receiver down with a nasty "Wrong Number," just as if you were slamming the door in my face.

It won't take us a minute to meet this mistake decently. You'll say, "Is this Field T-3419?" and I'll say, "I'm sorry, but you have the wrong number." Then you'll say, "I beg your pardon for distributing you."

And no mother of us will have reason to be ashamed of our telephone manners!

makes for graceful, scowlish appearances, but merely stuff an accumulation of fat cells.

It is a serious beauty error for the blonde belle to pencil her eyebrows with black. Thrown by her face completely out of form with such a shadow on them, winkers may prove flashering. Dark brown eyebrows are more becoming, all with certain colored hair than that free of India ink. Which the light complexioned is so devoted. Also, when brows and lashes carry pigment, it's best to avoid the eye shadows. Too much artifice.

Very soon now we'll all be wearing frocks of all-over shirred fabric. A new model done in black has a tantalizing jacket with shirred sleeves and long, tight cuffs. The jacket is fastened with a self-tie belt edged with white horsetail ruffling.

Women with protruding tummies who won't wear foundation garments because corselettes keep them too warm can't put forth that adult gay knack. Dress shops offer garments of sheer material, strong enough to keep the body a well-harnessed, smooth appearance, but as light as chiffon.

The Beauty Box

One hour of brisk walking each day will improve the health of any girl who is fed up with the domestic routine. Nothing clears away youthful looks. No woman can keep happy and ambitious if she doesn't get out into the fresh air at least once a day, stretch her legs, take a brisk walk around the neighborhood. Let her hold up her chest, throw her head back, her hips, straighten her knees and go stepping, swinging arms easily, but not exaggerated on the ground. Walking is the ideal exercise for the American girls aren't walkers. If they were, be national comedic bill would cease.

Fatigue takes the color from the complexion, disturbs the central nervous system, interferes with digestion. Fatigue does not necessarily result from overwork, it also results from over-idleness. The woman who has nothing to do is always pretty well fagged out. She feels useless, and that's a sure-fire wrinkle maker. Every human being needs some kind of a job, or if not a job a hobby to keep interest and ambition stimulated.

Let the short and stocky woman be not tempted by frills and flounces. Every one of such embellishments detracts from height. The round neck is not the best, better the V or surplice. Full sleeves are fatal. Erect carriage is vitally necessary. If not only

Fashion Flashes

Well hidden are charming hands under the new evening gloves. With a crystal beaded gown, one woman wears gloves of supple silver kid with loads of crisp crystal beads done in triangles.

A link with the past is the shirtwaist blouse with its cuffs fastened with cuff links. One shop is showing a wide selection of cuff links, and women are buying them, which augurs well for the blouse of masculine design. These links are of the sporting type done in crystal and enamel.

An ideal bag for the matron is a high-crowned model with built-up back and slanting small brim. It is of fine straw in purple and the crown is covered with silk and velvet petals in harmonizing shades.

Retro's special fluffy clothes for evening are of course only to be expected as the desire for daytime clothes that are masculine becomes more general. A really feminine frock is in steel gray crêpe, starched chiffon dotted in white and posed over yellow taffeta. It has a fluffy tie-on capelet of the same material lined with the taffeta.

Something new is a frock of gold and silver metal cloth worn with a severely cut jacket of rough red crepe and a matching scarf.

Success in Reasoning With Child

You'll Usually Find Him Amenable to Suggestions

By Constance Connor

"If you were well I'd spank you!" exclaimed Betty's mother. "You're a naughty girl to loosen those straps the doctor put on your leg. You'll never get well."

Betty had broken some bones, and in an effort to make a good, straight little leg for her, the physician had put on, what I believe is called an "extension." It was tight and it hurt, but it was necessary.

But, until the genial old mail-carrier stopped into the little bedroom off the parlor to say a word or two to the child, no one had talked to her sensibly or reasonably about the trial she was undergoing. It was just something that hurt and something she must endure. And, the moment she was alone, she did very human thing of loosening the contraption that bound her and was comfortable, but inef'ectual.

Reason—Instead of Orders

The mail carrier got a detailed account from Betty's mother, of what she was doing. He heard that she was a naughty girl!

Smiling, he took the child's head. "I want to see you running around with the other kids next spring! You don't want to run and play with them, don't you?" Of course she did.

"Well, then," went on the gray-haired man, "You just have to have a little pain, but the sooner you decide to let this thing alone the sooner you'll get well. Put together nice and straight, and the sooner you can meet us at the corner. Now I'm going to step in tomorrow and I want you to tell me truly that you've left this business all tight and good around your leg. Yes, I want you to tell me you can play or not. It means a lot to me, you know. It means that you'll either walk straight or limp—it's your life. It's in your hands."

Proof of Her Understanding

The next day, face beaming, Betty proudly reported that the kind mail-carrier had lessened the period of torture. And every day, she looked out of the window, waiting to make her report to the kindly old man who talked to her, not as a domineering adult to a child, but as one human being to another. She was proud of herself with, as the mother's excuse now, had Betty wasn't. It is surprising that even the youngest of the Little fellows are amenable to reason if you give them reason, instead of orders.

Beauty Box

Filling out the eyelash ranks is a beauty diversion. You buy little loose lash trimmers, pick them up on. After they are nicely placed among the honeycomb foliage, ends are snipped to form an even fringe. Only this exercise fills too much trouble on a busy day, set your eyelid curtains by the lash plans them on all at once the deed is done. Demountable eyelashes come with gayly shining black straps on stripe of court plaster. So as not to give the game away, the wearer thereof had to keep her eyelids lifted. One cast downward glance and all was over.

If the beauty budget looks weak and worn, not what it once was, let there be within the bosom a frantic yearning for perfume, cologne, cosmetic cream, or eau de cologne, which has a nice, fresh, crisp scent, isn't to be scorned at, by any means. It is popular in France, the home of perfumes. One doesn't have to be stingy with it, as a price thereof is within the purchase limits of practically every beauty seeker.

In buying a hat, there is much to consider—the length of the nose, width of the forehead, set of the eyes, and so forth. Also the kind of a neck that is to support the new chapeau. It's a specially knotty problem to the woman of uncertain age, who would appear smart on the street, and yet not affect the too youthful bonnet, for her the narrow brim is a blessing.

Small packages of lipstick tissues should be placed in the purse of every girl who can't get through the merry evening without putting a fresh coating of health on her cupid's bow. The tissues are used to wipe away surplus rosy essence, also to remove it from the finger tips. Larger tissues serve as cream removing agents when the blade decidedly makes a new complexion before dinner.

W. M. S. MEETINGS

CANNIFTON W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of Canniffon W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. Chambers, Oorleyville, on Thursday afternoon, March 2nd, the president, opened the meeting by all singing the Doxology and hymn, "There Is No Name So Sweet as Jesus." Prayer by Miss M. Callery, and Mrs. Hoard read the scripture lesson, the 23rd Psalm read by Mrs. Callery followed. Mrs. Maguire was appointed delegate to the Presbyterial at Trenton.

Mrs. Harry Twiddy, leader of group 2, had charge of the programme. Study Book taken by Mrs. Callery, Mrs. Loucks, Miss Johns, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Empson, Mrs. Holgate, Mrs. Harry Twiddy, Mrs. Benedict, Mrs. Tenney and Miss Callery. A duet by Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Harry Farnham, a reading, "The Book Called T" by Mrs. Merrick, reading, "Christian Stewardship" by Mrs. Twiddy and a temperance reading by Mrs. Maguire were enjoyed. All sang hymn "Come Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove." Mrs. Merrick closed the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Chambers and group served a delightful lunch.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The March meeting of the W. M. S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Robert MacFarlane, Kingston Road, on Thursday afternoon March 2nd.

In the absence of the 2nd Group Leader, Mrs. A. Gordon, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian presided in her place and opened the meeting with the hymn "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," and all repeated the Lord's prayer. Mrs. H. Shetler acted as pianist for the afternoon. Mrs. W. D. Tice read the devotional leaflet "Hagar the Woman of No Importance," after which Mrs. (Rev.) Clark, the president, led in prayer. Roll was then called, members responding by a verse of scripture, or one miracle performed by Jesus. Letters thoughtfully of thanks were read by Mrs. Clark from Mrs. R. Redmond and from Mrs. F. Knight for being so kindly remembered during their recent illnesses. Mrs. Clark also expressed her own thanks for the same when she was sick.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Arrangements were made regarding the Hard Times Social. Each member is requested to donate a plate and a cup. Mrs. H. Shetler, Corresponding Secretary read a letter regarding the Presbyterial to be held at Trenton on March 29th, and the two verses of "Who is on the Lord's Side" was then sung.

Mrs. Charlie Liddle Peace Secretary gave a suitable reading on the subject, and Mrs. W. S. Dies, Literature Promotion Secretary, gave a reading. Mrs. R. Gilliard then took the part of the 4th chapter of the Study Book. The program of the World's Day of Prayer was then read, Mrs. Gary Clark acting as leader in the responsive readings and Mrs. E. Elliott, Mrs. W. R. Dies, Mrs. L. E. Mills and Miss J. McAllister of Kingsford, who was a welcome visitor at the meeting leading in prayer. The dismissal prayer was repeated in unison. Attendance was twenty seven. Collection four dollars and thirty cents and for flower fund, one dollar and sixty five cents. There was also an extra collection taken on account of it being the World's Day of Prayer.

Mrs. L. E. Mills the only remaining charter member kindly brought in the minutes of the following information which was of much interest to the members. Shannonville W.M.S. was organized in 1887 on March 18th, Mrs. (Rev.) E. D. Lewis being the first president and Mrs. L. E. Mills, the first treasurer.

After the meeting the hostess and her assistants served lunch and a pleasant social time was enjoyed. The thanks of the ladies are due Mrs. McFarlane for her kind

Name this NEW MAGIC MYSTERY CAKE Originated by Miss Lillian Loughton

"When I create a recipe," says MISS LILLIAN LOUGHTON, well-known Dietitian and Cookery Expert of the Canadian Magazine, "I want it to serve the young, inexperienced cook as well as the older and more skilled housewife. And I want my own baking recipes are pleasured for Magic, and why I recommend it for all recipes called for baking powder."

Here's Miss Loughton's Recipe. Can you name it?

1 cup butter
2 cups fine white sugar
2 cups fine brown sugar
2¼ cups bread flour
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 cup finely chopped citron peel
2 cups chopped and blanched almonds
½ cup shredded coconut
3 egg whites

The texture and fine flavor of this typically English cake depend upon careful mixing. Cream the butter and sugar till light and fluffy. Sift flour once. Dust peel, nuts and coconut with one-half cup of flour. Add Magic Baking Powder and salt to balance of the flour, sift together twice, then proceed with alternately with milk to the creamed butter and sugar; when thoroughly blended add fruit and coconut. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a well-greased loaf pan. Bake 1½ hours in 300° F. oven for the first 20 minutes, then gradually decrease heat.

Dictatorial Powers Granted

New York, March 7 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman today signed the emergency bills passed by the State Legislature last night empowering dictatorial powers over banking to the Governor, and the state supervisor of banking and insurance.

The Governor also sent to Albany a fourth bill designed to set up machinery of a state-wide corporation to issue scrip in denominations of $1 to $5 to be approved by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

When he announced this action the Governor disclosed that he had telegraphed today to Secretary Woodin a suggestion that banks be permitted to certify cheques for depositors.

Besides certified cheques, the Governor believed, would be able to pass from hand to hand just as scrip and currency. The purpose of getting bank deposits into circulation through the use of scrip is ready to be placed in circulation.

Drafting of the bills began at 10:30 P.M. (E.S.T.).

TORONTO, March 7. — (CP) — Bank clearings in Toronto today were doing business in United States currency on all over-the-counter deals. The rate was the rate on the American dollar was at 99 cents for buying and 99 per cent for selling.

The Canadian dollar was doing no business at this figure because of the holiday for United States money and none had been offered Another bank reported it was not being asked in a market to sell.

All banks in Toronto quoted the rate on London as from 94.18 to 94.32 their figures varying between these quotations.

Washington, March 7 (AP)— Acting on Monday, secretary of the United States Treasury, in regulations issued today ruled that any national or state bank may exercise its usual banking functions to the extent that it absolutely necessary for the purpose of (1) paying currency for food, medicine, other necessities of life, the relief of distress, payment of salaries and wages, or necessary current expenses, (2) for making such other payments and other essential purposes.

Under these rules the banking institution may deliver to the owner or property deposited in safekeeping and checks paid for safe keeping and where settlement is made on checks presented on or before March 4 is incorporated, settlement may be made in cash. The ruling in element does not involve the payment of deposits or withdrawals.

Depositing of Collateral

The Secretary of the Treasury and bank having foreign branches may deposit collateral in the United States to secure circulation of such branches provided the transactions do not involve any transfer of credit from the United States.

Members of the Secretary were issued in four regulations announced today.

New York, Mar. 7-(AP)—The experts, like pig-eye Senate working on the banking bill, may be chasing a will o'the wisp, tried today to figure out whether the bank holiday would mark the beginning of economic recovery.

Some say, in advancing commodity and foodstuff prices, indications of confidence in inflation, with a boost in the price level along the line. This view, they think, will start hoarded money into the years of farmers and these stimulate industry toward more normal activity.

Finance Not Affected

Many industrial plants closed, however, and other manifold factors affecting business are not changed by the picture together. All they could do was receive the news from many bill centers and try to adjust to the general situation.

Among the things yesterday was the following items:

Wheat fell as much wheat advanced 2 to 5½ cents; cash corn was ahead as ¾ to ⅞ advance; cattle sold 25 to 35 to 50 cents higher; hogs surged 10 to 35, reaching a $4.85 top, and sheep and lambs 25 to 50 cents more per hundred weight. Provisions were strongly higher.

In New York raw sugar rose to three cents a pound, trading in oil products continued active and refined ton prices rose sharply in the outside market.

Higher Prices For Products

Chicago observers said that higher prices were due to orders to buy, issued by Governor Henry Horner of Illinois, and that the action of the Chicago cash wheat market. An upturn all through the commodity list on some foodstuffs, which had at times been down to the cost of production, was attributed to several factors.

They were described as the reluctance of farmers to ship under unsettled conditions, the belief that they might receive higher prices later and the likelihood of decline in trading to insure adequate supplies for customers.

Commercial Failures Arrested

Washington, Mar. 7 (AP)—Since the banking holiday was declared by President Roosevelt's inauguration, commercial failures held in supplies the leverage necessary to put their plan through the special session of congress, it was said here today.

This word the new President used in this fashion:

"There must be provision for an adequate but sound currency."

As a part of their program, the Administration leaders have chosen as speaker designate Rainey to assume presidential powers of the House of Representatives cottage committee. They hoped the vacancies left that committee might be filled and his organization approved by the latter when it could get down to short after the special session begins.

Among the men seeking this section were Representative Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, who will be chairman of that committee again, and Representative Snell, Republican, Oscar, Ohio, one of their chief supporters in the House. Rainey, the newspapermen he still thought silver legislation advisable.

Sponsors said adequate currency could be obtained by other kinds of money but, March 7 (AP)—Government printing presses were busy today with unprecedented dictatorial power over the gigantic banking system of the nation, and private authority today to provide the people with scrip.

No sooner had the legislature at Albany given Governor Lehman broad powers to control banking and insurance companies in a dramatic session which lasted until 1 a.m. he left for known he had a plan for a temporary medium of exchange.

The plan, to be submitted quickly now to the legislature calls for a state corporation for the issuance of certificates to supplement the issue of sound banks. It has been approved by the Treasury Department at Washington but would not be issued if a National scrip is issued before then.

The Governor, from his home here, said he expects to go to Albany tomorrow, saying clearing house certificates were not sufficient to meet the crisis.

Dictatorial Power

The three bills passed at Albany early today, in a rush of bi-partisan co-operation, give the Governor supreme power to supersede all present banking laws, control all issuance and new power to the banking superintendent Joseph A. Broderick and the insurance superintendent, George Van Schaick.

The bills, being brought from Albany today for the Governor's signature, give Broderick, with approval of two thirds of the banking board, power to close, reopen or suspend any banking regulation, and Van Schaick similar power to control and bank officer can be suspended.

ST. COLUMBAS WIN ROUND FROM DOHERTYS

Dohertys Hold St. Columbas to 1-1 Tie but Lose Round 5-3 and Eliminated from O.H.A.

"Red" McDonald Injured Early And Team Lost Valuable Player

SIX MAN DEFENCE

Earl McDonald of Queens Plays Inspired Game With Sherry

Despite the fact that the Belleville D.A.C. hockey club played their last game of the season, they succeeded completed by the Toronto St. Columbas "All-Stars" last Friday night proved a moonlight of counters for the Dudley-managed crew to overcome and carry the play to the old for sixty minutes, the best team efforts combined that was a case of one tie with the Queen City supervision in Belleville on Friday night and they were naturally eliminated from the Intermediate series by the decisive 5 to 3 on the round.

The Shiels-coached clan carried the play throughout and literally bombarded Doherty goalie Dave Dowie nelp at times but the Royal York goalie of the Toronto Mercantile League turned in a number of attempts of the locals aside, except-ing five that were unstoppable. The local netminder, however, on the night's play, accomplished considerable fame for himself. Scout Bert McDonald of Queen's University said that he was one of the two many amateurs had garnered the respect of the scouts during the year by their body checking tactics, while his team mate, Bill Sherry, has impressed the scouts in a big way as a real boost-to-goodness hockey player. Both of these boys played the starring line of McIlwaith, Mac-Donald and Jack Sargent, Bert with his fast rushes back looked his best this season, while the "serial boy" was at his shifty best on the attack when he received his injury which prevented him playing but two or two for the remainder of the game. Morgan did not display the form until the final period when he skated the proverbial mile to do his share towards tying the score.

The second line saw Nicoll flanked by Alex Wray and Bill Sherry, and this trio all three played inspired hockey with Gower being the most effective although Wray was a threat, while Wray with his long "drifted" specialty was in the play throughout. Jimmie McGuire established himself as a star in the Intermediate game of the season and scored the homestar's lone tally on Bill Sherry's rebound in the second frame.

Holmeshaw Stood Out.

Ken Holmeshaw in the nets for the visitors did himself proud in the end victory with his many sensational saves throughout the entire sixty minutes played. Holmeshaw was capably defended by "Jerry" Thompson and Bill Dudley, while the attack line tossed over the boards by manager Aggie Morgan was Bert Mc-Nevin, "Snub" Scott and "Ab" Forester. They were brought to the fore for the locals and on each and every attempt of the Dohertys they found themselves to face with a forty six-man defence well. The Queen City aggregation was strengthened by the acquisition of Herbie Gibbs of Chiefs fame, who played in Toronto and he teamed with "Snub" Johnson and Crosby, also displayed a perfect system of defence throughout. The St. Columbas duplicated in every measure their feat of last Friday night by laying out a letter-perfect line of defence on the locals and practically facing a six-man defence throughout the entire game. When hard pressed in the final period the St. Columbas players were forced, time and again, to relieve the pressure by sifting the puck the length of the ice to keep the locals from the scoring sheet.

The Play.

Play centred about the centre lo-zone for some time before Mac-Donald lifted a long drifter past the defence for the first counter of the first shot on the net. Later in the period play spread considerably and the teams were travelling at top speed when "Red" McDonald crashed into the goal post at the south end of the arena and was assisted from the ice amid the appalling cheers of the 3,000 odd fans present. McIlwaith and Morgan rallied in on Holmeshaw for what looked like a sure counter but the Toronto goalie rose to the occasion following which, there was a general scramble at the Toronto goal mouth with no one connecting. The period ended with the Dudleyites pressing.

Although MacDonald tried to take to the ice in the second frame he re-tired and applied ice when he be-lalled to respond after the severe bruising received in the period previous. Shortly later Roberts broke away and when he neared the Belleville defence, passed to Horne who literally flew in on Tice to flash the red light and score the first counter. This goal seemed to inspire the locals and they "pressed" the Toronto net with the result that Jimmie McGuire, coming in to bat in a rebound off Bill Sherry's after the local defence-man had rushed and shot. With the score of the game at 2 all and 3 to the locals took a new lease on life and carried the play into the Toronto defending zone continually only to be thwarted by the superb efforts of Holmeshaw. Eight of the ten penalties meted out came this period but none were of a serious nature, both teams were travelling at a rather dizzy pace and the fans were exercised to their feet time and again with the sensational plays which entered. The period ended all square.

Four Up On Offence.

Coach Shiels moved four locals to the offence to open the third frame and the pressure and whistle kept the rubber in the Toronto defending area for slightly over half of the time. During the last twenty minutes when they did everything but bulge the twine behind Holmeshaw, the Toronto scrambles and spills sakers were witnessed in an attempt on the Toronto goal mouth, but Holmeshaw rose to the occasion each time even to go as far as to sling one of Alex Wetz's fast ones with his face. These after time the 2,000 odd fans were to their feet when the locals sailed in on Holmeshaw only to see him successfully turn all efforts of the Dudleyites aside and the game ended 4 to 3, one all. The line-ups:

Belleville D.A.C.—Goal, Tice; defence, H. McDonald, Thompson; centre, McIlwaith; wings, Morgan and E. MacDonald; subs, Wray, Covert, Nicoll and McGuire.

Toronto St. Columbas — Goal, Holmeshaw; defence, Roberts and Thompson; center, Horne; wings, Scott and Forester; subs, Gibbs, Johnson and Crosby.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Refereed but not disgraced.

Congratulations Belleville D.A.C. you went down fighting.

And you were eliminated in the best hockey league played last Friday night proved a little too much for the game, visiting Dohertys.

Needless to say every member of the game Belleville D.A.C. team regarded crew enabled themselves last night. Every one knew they were out them at a better advantage. This was going to be a tough one to beat, and Bill Sherry was beyond fear of contradiction, the best seen on the local players the 'Y' has seat St. Columbas, who were further strengthened by the acquisition of Herbie Gibbs last night.

The untimely injury sustained by "Red" MacDonald in the initial frame put do the locals away good, we'd say. But on the other hand the visitors were too fast and clever for the locals and the Dohertys. All night long they laid a six-man defence in front of the net, and scorched sharp shooters with the result that although the locals outplayed the play, the result was practically inevitable from the start.

We'd like to hear some of the wise guys shoot down who were shooting, "in the bag" all day yesterday. There was a certain fraction who seemed to be in on the "know" and claimed that it was all "bought" for a third game. Well may be it was but evidently we're not in on the know as here in Belleville.

A rather funny incident happened in the first period when Herbie Gibbs of Toronto Chiefs Senior fame, broke his stick on his opponents bat. We heard Gibb turn to Referee Ellis, Kingston, and shout, "Ump you told me this was going to be a friendly game, you lied to me" we merely mention this to spike all and sundry rumours, which have been circulated about the rapacity of whether or not the Queen City aggregation was using their utmost. Following the game we were introduced to Jack "Nipper" Thompson, you know that lefty defenceman the fans pan on the "west" last night and he sure did (or he did she was ever. "Gee! I'm glad they don't play four periods in this game for I'm about ready to call it a day right now," said "Nipper" while changing his clothes. "Well I'm telling you one thing right now than that one", chirped in Ken Holmeshaw while the trainer was rubbing the bruises out of his left arm.

Congratulations are in order for the winning St. Columbas as they played two hockey, steady games and deserved their win although the locals carried the play in them in the ocasionally, but without the much needed results of goals being scored in their favor. It was a nice series to win but a tough one to lose, as Manager Dudley puts it.

Both Manager Dudley and Coach Shiels are to be congratulated upon the showing of the Dudleyites this season although we do not wish to bring up old scores, nor do we wish to make comparisons, but the two series is over, but the series was the first night, when the locals' backs were asked to change their style of play by Frank Carrol,

Exit O.H.A. for 1933 on Belleville. It was a good and glorious season while it lasted though. Nearly 1,000 patrons jammed their way into the old ice igloo for the two games. We had, eh? It just shows what a winning club can do in Belleville.

New for the future. The Belleville and District post-season hockey league was organized last night with possibly 15 teams facing the 1933 season. This loop was the talk of success last year and should be seen at a much better advantage this season as we should have a year's experience behind them.

A complete resume of what happened at the meeting will be found elsewhere on the local sport page today, while we will have more to say relative to the loop in tomorrow's issue.

It is understood, that a fine large trophy has been procured and will be presented to the champions of the local City League, which has been operating at the Arena all winter. We, E. "Weed" Brown, Jack and Stewart Warner-Alemite Company, donated a cup to the city league some years ago and when approached on the subject of purchasing it up for competition in the present City League he assured Vice President Cyril "Tubby" Hall that at their disposal and could be handed over to the winning club of the present loop. The play-off's in the City League will commence sometime this week.

Down in Kingston they are talking a rather pointed interest in local hockey circles as was demonstrated in a recent sport editorial in the Kingston press reading as follows:

"Belleville intermediates took a beating from St. Columbas of Toronto Friday night and now face the second game with a two-goal deficit. The game only goes to show that the Belleville club is not changing because in the middle of the stream. At any rate Belleville reached the team in a most successful way but last night Frank Carrol of Toronto, proved to be their nemesis and they were unable to get into the scoring end to any extent."

Congratulations Belleville.

Herman Jacobi, President of Belleville City Hockey Loop, 12 Teams Joining League to be Operated Along Line of Kingston Loop

TWELVE TEAMS

Double Header Each Playing Night With Two Bit Admission

At least twelve teams were assured of the Belleville and District post-season hockey league at their meeting held in the Belleville Arena following last night's O.H.A. game. H. H. Jacobi, manager of the Arena as unanimous choice of the gathering to be president of the loop, while Norman Alexander, secretary of the D.A.C., was elected secretary-treasurer for 1933.

Clubs from Cobourg, Campbellford, Belleville Civic Service, last year's club, Picton, two from Trenton, Brighton, Napanee, Tweed, two from the local City League and possibly Kingston were represented at the meeting. It was decided to operate along the lines of the 1932 loop, when two games per night will operate, a senior and an intermediate group being formed. The senior group will be made up of the Belleville Civic Service, last year's Intermediates, Campbellford, Cobourg, Napanee, Trenton and Tweed "A" Kingston team. The group "B" will consist of the following clubs, Trenton "B", Picton, last year's winners of the Burrows trophy, Madoc, Tweed, Brighton, the Bosworth Grills' Garage and Modern Dry Cleaners of the local City loop. Each league was represented, although but one team from Belleville in group "B", as it was decided that the league six senior and six intermediate teams.

Doubleheader Each Night

The senior loop will be made up of intermediate team player calibre with five "A" grades will be allowed to use but three junior O. H. A. players on the intermediate players. A doubleheader is to be scheduled each night, with a senior and an intermediate game being played. The league will commence operation next Monday night with three nights a week being devoted to hockey for the long season. It is the Belleville Arena from now until the end of the 1933-34 season.

Although the destinies of the league will be guided by the president, a league executive consisting four clubs, the league will operate somewhat similar to the Kingston intermediate league with the clubs not being represented by a representative. All the gate receipts being pooled and split among the teams evenly at the end of the regular schedule.

Following the double schedule which is to be run through until the third place club in each group will play a sudden death series with the second place club with the ultimate winner playing a two out of three game series with the first place club for the league title. The gate receipts of the play-off series being split as follows—45 per cent. of the winning club, 30 per cent. to the second place club and 25 per cent. to the club finishing third. Five per cent. of the play-off gate receipts will be kept for the operation of the league. The gate receipts of the regular scheduled games before the playoffs start, however, will be split on an even basis among all teams participating.

Three Referees Named

Three regular referees were appointed with an alternate being chosen on the list; the three officials being Bill Green, H. "Boomer" Holway and Jack Tremblay, while A. G. Bleecker was named as the alternate official. The schedule will be announced by the teams later this week. The referees will be paid at the rate of $2 per game and will handle two games each night. As there are 12 teams in the league, registered in one group than in the other due to the fact that any club drops out no more teams come into the league this year, the possibility of the executive ordering three games being played on some nights. Each club will be allowed 15 players, at least whom must reside within a radius of 25 miles of the town in which they are playing.

The clubs represented and their delegates were: Campbellford, Wm. Whitby; Cobourg, Max Gerald; Civic Service, Elwood Dudley; Madoc, Percy Moon; Picton, Ben Church; Trenton, Pat Picton, last year's A. Finnegan, while Trenton Inter-mediate "B" was represented. Tweed were not represented last night. Following the regular meeting a general discussion followed during which all present heartily endorsed the plan to operate the possibilities of the Belleville post-season loop. Purchase of the trophy for the newly formed league will appear at a later date with the opening date being set for next Monday night. The schedule for was set at No Sec-ond or three games as the case may be.

FINAL SERIES FOR JR. TITLE

Newmarket and Stratford Ready For Their Tilt

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey fans in their own right, Stratford Midgets and Newmarket Redmen will inaugurate at Stratford tonight the final series for the Junior Ontario Hockey Association championship. The second game will be played at Toronto Saturday afternoon and a third, if necessary, at Toronto the following Tuesday.

With the beginning of the century Midgets were a power in the age group, Stratford winning the title three times between 1900 and 1909 inclusive. Not since 1923 did they repeat, the team win the crown again. Another decade passed before they could regain the O.H.A. championship in 1931 and 1932 they reached the semi-finals, only to fall before Niagara Falls and Marlboros respectively.

While failing to match the tra-ditions of their rivals, Newmarket during the past six years can point to six even better years. In 1927 and 1928 they lost the title series to Owen Sound and Toronto Marlboros, while again last year Marlboros proved their undoing in the final.

Three years in succession, 1926-28, they worked their way into the semi-finals but two Toronto teams—Marlboros and West Toronto—proved to be their nemesis each year.

Two intermediate societies, in widely separate parts of Ontario prepare out of contention last night.

Port Edward held Woodstock to a 3-2 tie on Woodstock ice but dropped the round, 5-4, and Belleville tied Toronto St. Columbs, 1-1, at Belleville, but lost the round 5-3.

Recreation Alleys

In the Junior 9 League played at the Recreation the Koolmotor took 3 points from the Recreation Juniors. The Koolmotor Miss M. Lynch was high with 338—390—728 and for the Recreation G. Gavanis was high with 182-187-369. The Kool-motor took all 4 points from the Coca Cola. For the Never Nor G. Scott was high with 197-264-461 and for the Coca Cola F. Mapes was high with 197-184-177—484.

ANSWER

● Here's the answer to our statement that the "BLUE BLADE" provides the cheapest shaving method known. "BLUE BLADE" edges out glass. Steel hard enough to do this gives far more shaves per penny. For real shaving economy buy "BLUE BLADES."

The "BLUE BLADE" is made in addition to the regular Gillette Blade sold in the green package.

Pre-Game Comment as N. H. L. Teams Take Ice

Toronto, March 7—(CP)— Joe Simpson's New York Americans are far from convinced Canadians are through in the National Hockey League's Canadian section play-off berth, routed from them Saturday, and will attempt to prove it tonight at New York as the Americans meet Chicago Black Hawks in the third and last money position.

x x x

Five points ahead of New York Rangers in the league's American section, Detroit Red Wings tangles with the Bruins at Boston who now hold third place, one point behind Rangers. Detroit will be without Ebbie Goodfellow, injured in an injured ankle and Larry Aurie is nursing an injury but will be in the game. Boston can take second place with a win as Rangers are idle.

x x x

Toronto Maple Leafs, fresh from a week-end two-game triumph over Maroons and Chicago Black Hawks journey to Montreal for another set-to with the second-place Maroons. Eleven points in the lead, Toronto will be out to maintain their lead.

x x x

Play-off hopes obliterated, Ottawa Senators and Chicago Black Hawks will meet in Chicago for the fun of it.

MISSING EMERALD

By Lilliace Mitchell

Helen Mason was probably the only person in the world who thought Mr. Montague a good detective. His family laughed at the idea. Mrs. Mason had scolded three times, and was about to do something or other about the affair.

"It isn't," Helen said frankly, "that you are such a fine detective, Bill. I don't know anything about that. But I like you, that's all. You get the house all stirred and don't forget to retrieve the car for her when the theatre's over. Remember to put the car. You used to be when she doesn't want to drive it herself. Now, you'll look after Mother, won't you? I'll run down and get Dad. I'll do it a great deal for Auntie. I do a lot but it isn't everything. You just get on Bill in here and there, and try to be agreeable."

"I'll be agreeable to me allright, Billy, he said in low tones. "Everybody thinks you're a good detective some day. And if I make good, you'll have to marry me. Then you won't you? I wouldn't ask you now, but I'm afraid I'll get fired. I'll do something."

"Well!" said Helen merrily, "Of course, I won't, but even if I didn't want to wait—say, do you see any fairies around here—look at my door, Bill?"

Bill looked and that Ted Saunders and he's making a heap of money right now. He's always hanging around here."

"He comes to see Uncle," Helen said decently.

"Oh, yeah!" asked Bill, "well, isn't that nice, now? Listen, Helen, I'll never did know a young newspaper reporter to be the intimate friend of a jewel merchant. It's just wonderful, isn't it?"

Helen's eyes glinted, the dimples coming and going in both cheeks. She made a saucy face at him, and rose from Sadora, "Come here at once!"

Helen rose to her feet, cheeks becoming scarlet in an instant, and looked at him. When Auntie calls like that she's—you know—pretty angry about something. I might—now I'm sorry I said that, I'm afraid. I never heard her call him that. Go on, Bill!"

"I'll all right, not here when I don't be back to call me if you need me," said Bill stoutly. "You never know when I might be able to help. What's she mad at anyhow?"

"Oh, I don't know," said Helen. "Even Mother had never seen her mad so angry and excited as she was when she came in from the second floor room on the second floor to call me out of the room for Mr. and Mrs. Montague. It was in this room that Auntie keeps the Lalique that they had the gold-fish aquarium. It was here, too, that they kept the Pekingese dogs that belged at every sound inside or outside of the house. They kept the parrot's cage only Mamma seldom sat with him in the room. Mamma liked to see the perch in the window where he could play around. And all the emeralds belong below who never dreamed that they were being observed by anything living.

Now Mamma sat angrily in his cage where he always went when voices became loud. Here the parrot answered to defy the world with his odd throat noises.

Mrs. Montague sat at her desk, frowning. "The Khezar emerald is missing, Helen," her aunt announced, sharply. "Have you seen it?"

"Where is it?" asked Helen accidentally. "Auntie, I haven't seen it since I—I haven't been in your room for days. I don't know how you wanted me to look after the jewels. In fact, I thought Uncle Jimmy was going to do that."

"Don't be too sure," replied Mrs. Reddy as one of the grown children of Jimmy and Mrs. Jimmy appeared in the doorway. He was always so fair to his Father and he was quite as independent. He scarcely looked at Reddy or Mrs. Reddy, but smiled off down the new path and he was followed by another child, then a third.

"Who wonder that bedroom seemed so well filled when I left Sunday," said Mrs. Reddy. "You might go down again and see if any more of the family are left, Jimmy Reddy."

"No, thank you," replied Reddy with great promptness. "If there are any more here they may stay there for all of me." He said this with much bitterness for his disappointment in Jimmy.

CANADA ACCEPTING GOLD AT MINT RATE

Ottawa, March 6 (CP) — The Canadian Government is still accepting gold from producers in Canada at the mint rate, but adjustments of exchange will be made in the discretion of the Minister of Finance, Hon. Thos. Wilson stated officially today. It was explained that as there is now no market in New York, fixing of a premium to be paid becomes practically impossible. Consequently the payment of a premium must await adjustment of conditions in the United States.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE—No. 76

(Metropolitan [illegible] Service) By Edgar Rice Bu[illegible]

From the far end of the garden, above the din of the breaking battle, rose a savage cry, a new note that gave pause to the contestants on both sides. Tarzan's head snapped to attention. His nostrils sniffed the air. Recognition, hope, surprise, incredulity surged through his consciousness.

In increasing volume, the savage roar rolled into the garden of Opar. The lepromaries turned to face the vanguard of an army led by a horde of ape warriors, glistening giants from whose heads floated white feather war bonnets, and from whose throats issued war cries. Tarzan's Waziri had come.

At their head Tarzan saw Muviro and with him was he. As the last of the lepromaries in the garden threw down their arms and begged Tarzan's protection, those in the garden of Opar saw only the apes—men and, kneeling at his feet, kissed his hand, and as the same instant a little Negro boy dropped from a tree onto Tarzan's shoulder. "It was little Nkima who led us to find you," said Muviro.

Reddy's Bitter Disappointment

Count nothing certain and you'll not Have disappointment for your lot.

—Reddy Fox.

Reddy has learned the truth of this through long experience. All too often has he been certain of things only to have them turn out in the opposite of what he had expected. It is so with every one. Never is he overcome of anything. This new disappointment is at least unusually great.

Reddy and Mrs. Reddy had returned to their home in the Old Orchard to find it occupied. It had become a home for a family of Jimmy Skunk, and they had the old-fish appearance. It was here, too, that they kept the Pekingese dogs that belged at every sound inside or outside of the house. They kept the parrot's cage only Mamma seldom sat with him in the room. Mamma liked better to see the perch in the window where he could play around. And all the emeralds belong below who never dreamed that they were being observed by a sound inside that house. Some one was grumbling and yawning and stretching. They are sounds they heard some one coming up the long hall. They backed off to a little distance and watched intently. A black and white head was poked out and Jimmy Skunk himself blinked, then yawned and stretched.

"Good afternoon, Jimmy Skunk", said Mrs. Reddy politely

"Good afternoon, Jimmy Skunk," said Mrs. Reddy politely for it was best before shaking things.

Jimmy mumbled something. He was hardly awake yet. Then he ambled off down an old cow path. The instant his back was fairly turned Reddy sprang forward and darted into the house. He was curious as well as very of the value of possession and he intended to waste no time in using possession. He trotted down the long hall to the bedroom. A moment later Mrs. Reddy was startled to see Reddy hurrying out in great haste. He was in such a hurry to get out that he all but upset into her.

"Well, what under the sun is the matter with you?" she demanded.

Reddy started to reply, but before he could do so there was the sound of more yawning and mumbling from inside and Reddy hurriedly started still farther away. Then a black head with a broad white stripe on either side of it appeared in the doorway, and Mrs. Skunk stepped out. She paid no heed to Reddy or Mrs. Reddy but ambled off after Jimmy Skunk.

It almost ran into her down in the dark hall," growled Reddy. "Well now where is it - I haven't been in that room for days. I don't know how you wanted me to look after the jewels. In fact, I thought Uncle Jimmy was going to do that."

"Don't be too sure," replied Mrs. Reddy as one of the grown children of Jimmy and Mrs. Jimmy appeared in the doorway. He was always so fair to his Father and he was quite as independent. He scarcely looked at Reddy or Mrs. Reddy, but smiled off down the new path and he was followed by another child, then a third.

"Who wonder that bedroom seemed so well filled when I left Sunday," said Mrs. Reddy. "You might go down again and see if any more of the family are left, Jimmy Reddy."

"No, thank you," replied Reddy with great promptness. "If there are any more here they may stay there for all of me." He said this with much bitterness for his disappointment in Jimmy.

THE C.D.S.

Takes pleasure in announcing

A SALE FOR MEN WHO USUALLY PAY $50.00 TO $60.00 FOR THEIR SUITS

Hand Tailored suits

Made to Individual Order

FROM FINEST IMPORTED WOOLLENS

3-Day Sale Commencing Wednesday March 8th and Continuing Thursday

Countless men of good taste cannot, these days—because of economic conditions—satisfy their desire for the finer type of clothes to which they have been accustomed. Those who have worn the finer types of clothing are never satisfied with clothes of lower quality. Unfortunately, this class of man are rarely able to secure the clothes they want at less than the usual high prices, because the makers of fine clothes seldom sacrifice their workmanship or profits for immediate business.

A few weeks ago HAYDN'S, in Toronto, held a similar sale and the results were gratifying. Men who usually paid $50.00 to $60.00, ordered suits and when they saw the splendid woollens and the way the suits were to be tailored, they were agreeably surprised. Now, through the co-operation of HAYDN'S Clothing Workshops, the Belleville C.D.S. brings this sale to you.

This selling is of the utmost importance. To the best of our knowledge, suits of this standard have never been offered in Belleville within many dollars of this price. $26.50 suits a new standard of value in Hand-Tailored Suits—one that is unusual even for these days of great values! These suits have practically all the features of Custom Built clothes. They are made to individual order and they are hand-tailored, including the button holes. The added specifications which appear elsewhere on this page set forth the full details.

The woollens are a revelation in themselves. Dozens of fine materials from leading Old Country mills . . . the sort that are usually found only in exclusive men's wear shops. In the selection there is practically every smart and new coloring and weave . . . you can choose to your complete satisfaction. Extra trousers $6.00 pair.

If Sam would consent just for a few days—She'd be able to hold the wrap as security and advance the amount of the rent.

Sam's distress of the wrap in no time. Well, the rent was eighty dollars. Hurriedly Sam smiled.

sewing basket at his elbow then moved to go. To his surprise, Mona bowed her face in her hands and began to sob convulsively. He felt so quiet her.

"Mona!" came a stern and disapproving exclamation. Sam had not heard the door open but open it had and in it stood a woman. She looked to be anything except an invalid. "What are you crying about? And who is this——" Evidently she was the mother demanded.

Sam rose he felt his cheeks tingle; he stood silently while Mona tried to make him known.

"Oh, that's who you are!" Mrs. Stevens cried. "What are you doing here? Why did you send in while I was away? Mona told me—" The speaker's eyes fell upon the bank notes and they clinked, she started, flung out an accusing hand. With a hysterical oblique of loss she cried hoarsely: "My God! What's the meaning of this!"

"Your daughter will explain," Sam told her stiffly. He took his coat and hat, but the mother planted herself before him crying:

"Just a minute! I understand now why she's been sending all over. She's been like this ever since you left her up in your apartment. She told me about meeting you, being in your place and I suspected something. Now, the minute my back is turned you slip in here and—and give her money!" Mrs. Stevens seized the handful of bills and brandished them: a look of loathing and of scorn distorted her features. "If you think money can square—"

"Madame!" Sam interrupted, anger. "You're insulting."

"Is that so? Well, I propose to have the truth before you get out of here. Mona's a good girl—or she was until you met her——"

"Oh, mother!" The words came from Mona in a quavering cry eloquent with meaning: they were a confession and a plea that would have moved the hardest heart. "I didn't know! I—he was very kind to me. And he promised—" A convulsive sob racked the speaker and interrupted the peroration. Partial of Sam's dastardly promise. Her horrified parent mistook a scream her eyes rolled, she tottered, she clutched her throat her ample bosom heaved.

Sam slipped an extra note or sleeve of his overcoat, whereupon the mother flared him theatrically.

"Oh, you wicked, wicked man! She's only an innocent child. she's all I've got. What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm going to leave you now," Sam replied bravely. "And I'm going to redeem your property. I'll send it to you by express."

"But first I'm going to redeem my eighty dollars." With a rush of movement he seized the mother's wrist.

Britain Holds Extension in Abeyance For Another Year

London, March 8 (C.P. and A.P. Cables)—The Royal Air Force estimates for the service year, announced today, totalled £71,626,000, an increase of £26,000. They revealed the strength of the British air force would remain unchanged at 84 regular squadrons, including the equivalent of 13½ squadrons in the fleet air arm.

Lord Londonderry, Secretary for Air, declared the proposals submitted by the United States delegation to the World Disarmament Conference, if adopted by other nations, would produce substantial economies in the world's air armaments and were more important still, would avert the danger of their competitive development.

The Minister pointed out the modest basis for defence adopted in March, 1932, saying extension would be held in abeyance for another year, a decision which is further earnest of the whole-hearted efforts of His Majesty's government to promote disarmament and bring about a reduction in the burden of forces on an equitable basis."

Less Than Other Forces.

"In the meantime", he continued, "the Royal Air Force remains still the figure of strength substantially less than that of any one of the five great national powers and the rapidly growing importance of air power to the British Empire, both at home and in responsibilities.

Much attention continues to be given to the development of mobility by means of long distance flights over routes of special importance and with relation to civil as well as strategical communications, he stated.

Record of R.A.F.

The record-breaking flight of the R.A.F. pilots from Australia to Walfish Bay last month to set a new distance mark received high praise also from the Minister. He complimented all concerned with the project and said the Royal Air Force thus "won for Britain, in eighteen months worlds records for speed and for long distance, whilst in another great private enterprise the country won the world altitude record."

His hopes a regular communication service between Great Britain and Australia would be established in early autumn of this year and declared plans for a weekly service were under consideration by the British, Australian and Indian governments.

$100,000 FIRE AT MONTREAL

People's Store And Contents Destroyed in Early Morning Blaze

Montreal, Mar. 8 (CP)—Fire which broke out in the basement of the big People's 5 Cent to $1.00 Store, Ltd., in the northeast section of the city at an early hour today completely destroyed the building and its contents. The blaze was extinguished after several hours' work by firemen. Damage to the store and adjoining buildings was estimated at $100,000. No one was injured.

Cause of the outbreak was not learned. It spread so rapidly firefighters were unable to do more than themselves to preventing it from attacking other buildings in a rented garage. The store and its contents were valued at $50,000 and the building at an additional $25,000 damage to the Papineau Avenue branch of the Jewish Bank of Canada, the Papineau Theatre and other nearby business places.

Britain Remains off Gold Standard, No Return Until Guarantee of More Workable System Than Prior to 1931

Officials Who Help to Formulate Policy Wait For Signs

OFF SINCE 1931

Lowering of Trade Barriers, Balanced Currencies Sought

LONDON, March 8—(AP)—From the highest financial quarters on the British Government it was learned today the Economic Conference crisis in United States has in no way affected Great Britain's policy with regard to the Gold Standard.

That policy, as officials judge, is that while Great Britain looks forward to an eventual return to gold it can be accomplished until there is a promise of a more workable system than existed before this country abandoned gold in 1931.

Also certain definite conditions must be fulfilled, or must be well on the road to realization, before the officials who help to formulate the financial policy of the British Empire can advise the cabinet the time is ripe for a return to the Gold Standard.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's address delivered Parliament on February 22, is still the Government's policy, it was said.

On that occasion the Prime Minister said: "There are a number of conditions, such as financial confidence which must be fulfilled before the re-establishment of international Gold Standard can be a possibility. Nothing but a full declaration was supported on several occasions by more than one Chancellor of the Exchequer, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, broadly, the conditions to which Mr. MacDonald had reference are the establishment of currencies lowering of trade barriers, raising of commodity prices, and adjustment of the war debts.

Events of the past week in the United States have not altered the British financial policy because the British fear is that the present American difficulties are purely domestic and certainly temporary.

ALBERTA IN 3RD STRAIGHT

Ontario Curlers Win Victory Over New Brunswick

TORONTO, March 8.—(CP)—Alberta won its third straight victory in MacDonald Brier Trophy play for the Canadian curling championship here this morning, when Quebec conceded defeat at the hands of Ontario after eight ends had been played. Ontario was leading at that stage and skip R. G. Fowler of Ridgetown, Ontario, already twice beaten, had no chance of overtaking Quebec's score.

A Manitoba rink is the team to be beaten by scoring their second victory of the day. Johnny Douglas' rink from Winnipeg held the Alberta team to a draw until the 11th end and the final end was not played.

Ontario's rink skipped by Gordon Campbell of Hamilton, won an overwhelming victory over New Brunswick 23-9.

War on Speakeasies by Federal Authorities is Ordered Ended

WASHINGTON, March 8—(AP)—Henceforth the United States Government will co-operate "almost entirely" on liquor manufacturers and transporters to enforce prohibition, leaving speakeasy prosecutions to the States.

As announced today by Amos W. W. Woodcock, enforcement director, the new deal includes the restrictions laid down by the Congress after July first. This means no more wire tapping or purchase of liquor as evidence for consumption by agents.

Woodcock placed the decision on the grounds of economy. He pointed out the huge cuts in enforcement funds made by the last Congress. The orders were dated, March 8, the day before the Roosevelt administration took office.

How the new set-up will affect States having no local enforcement acts remains to be seen.

(By The Associated Press)

Further relief in the United States bank situation was looked for today as federal reserve banks were told they might open their coffers to facilitate financing of necessities.

Federal funds told reserve banks they could give currency to member banks for necessary purposes in exchange for gold or gold currency.

There were indications the administration would move toward controlled currency expansion under the Glass-Steagall Act.

A decision as to whether the national strip idea will be abandoned is expected soon.

President Roosevelt, after the immediate emergency is met, will lay a complete banking reorganization plan before Congress.

TSALDARIS TO FORM CABINET

President of Greece Zaimis Entrusted With Selection

ATHENS, March 8.—(AP)—President Alexander Zaimis today entrusted Panayoti Tsaldaris, Royalist leader, with the formation of a new Greek Cabinet.

General Nicholas Plastiras, Dictator for a day, could not be found by officers seeking to arrest him today on a warrant charging high treason.

His arrest was ordered by General Othonaios, who yesterday succeeded in Monday night, when the dictatorship collapsed. Frontier guards were warned to be on the lookout for Plastiras if he attempts to leave the country.

His house was searched by police and troops but Colby Bey reports the two machine guns and 300 cartridges were discovered.

General Plastiras seized control to prevent a new government being formed by Panayoti Tsaldaris, Royalist leader.

Panayoti Tsaldaris, who was in control of the elections, brought about the resignation of Premier Themistocles Venizelos.

LET'S PUT OUT LIGHTS SING LITTLE TOTS

Lindsay, Ont., March 8.—(CP)—A Public School teacher was conducting the lesson when two little girls quite calmly interrupted and offered to sing. The teacher smilingly overlooked the impudence and continued the lesson. The little girls repeated several times until the teacher decided it would be better to let the tots give their voluntary contribution to the programme. They mounted the platform and sang in part, "Teacher, we're do about it, let's put out the lights and go to sleep."

BISHOP SEAGER IS GREATLY IMPROVED

Rested Comfortably and Temperature is Normal

London, Ont., March 8 - (CP)—The Right Rev. Dr. Frederick C. A. Seager, Anglican Bishop of Huron, was reported today by physicians as considerably improved. He has been suffering from pneumonia at his home, Bishopsgrove.

"Bishop Seager's temperature has been normal for more than 24 hours," the statement today said. "He rested comfortably last night."

Last night physicians said full recovery is expected.

FORMER KAISER YIELDS RIGHT TO OLD THRONE

Sons of Wilhelm II Turn Over Rights to Ex-Crown Prince

London, March 8 (AP)—Any prospect of former Kaiser Wilhelm II resuming to regain the throne of Imperial Germany as a result of the Nazi victory there was ended today by him vanished through the formal renunciation of his sons.

In the London Daily Mail's correspondent in Doorn, Holland, is exclusively informed, William Hohenzollern has completely and voluntarily abandoned the aim with which he has often been credited, of regaining, by force of arms, his own people.

Instead he is reported seeking abrogation to spend his declining years in the privacy of his castle at Homburg Von Der Hohe, the famous, mineral, spring resort in Hesse-Nassau, where he was born 74 years old in January.

Any sturdy the ex-Kaiser may have felt concerning the attitude of his sons on the question of renouncing claims to the throne were reported removed by a kind and conciliatory letter of their father's abdication. At a recent family council in Doorn, the sons were reported in favor of renouncing all their "rights" to the throne to the ex-Crown Prince for his dynasty.

WINDS SWEEP THE PRAIRIES

Howling Nor'wester With Heavy Snow Over All West

Winnipeg, Mar. 8 (CP)—Old Man Winter had begun what West-ern Canadians hope will be his last thrust at their district as howling winds swept the prairies, carrying heavy snowfalls and propelling temperatures to "plumbing" to Calgary.

Railway and motor traffic were disrupted in Saskatoon as the van of the western blizzard struck the city of the northern plains. At The Pas, the barren lands of Northern Manitoba were in the grip of another high aerocplane, the mining north's only means of fast transportation.

All points in the three western provinces today reported traffic to a greater or less degree, but brought satisfaction to the farmer, whose land is certain of adequate moisture for the spring planting.

BUDGET BALANCE

Roosevelt's Plan to Put Into Force Sweeping Reform

Washington, Mar. 8 (AP)—Secretary Woodin said today that actual currency would be circulated thruout the United States in place of scrip or clearing house certificates under a plan now being formulated.

He did not disclose the plan under which currency would be used, but made it clear that a formal plan for scrip or other medium of exchange issue was being abandoned.

The secretary appeared highly optimistic as he said with a smile:

Light Ahead.

"We can see the light here," he said, with a smile, addressing newspapermen who surrounded him as he left the treasury.

"This thing isn't going to please."

Woodin said he could not speak as to what form of money was to be adopted, but said banking plans by means of midnight conference, because a constitutional regulation issued earlier in the day would permit the issuance of scrip Friday morning.

Budget Balance.

Apparently foreseen the possibilities of the present plans, for in issuing the clearing house regulation permission is granted he made it conditional it might be revoked.

Roosevelt Dictatorship.

Washington, Mar. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt intends to continue his command of the United States monetary situation until permanent legislation is possible.

This determination is due on Thursday night when the present holiday ends to continue the broad powers of the President over the banks.

In his message to the special session of congress on Thursday, Mr. Roosevelt will ask for broad powers to meet a situation that is changing from day to day.

Because of the swift moving developments the President feels it is best to let congress handle only the board banking reform program he has in mind.

Plan In Two Weeks

Therefore, after congress receives his message on the program on Thursday, he will continue his personal control over the banking crisis until completion of a permanent plan to be submitted probably in two or three weeks.

While scrip may still be resorted to to give the people currency until the banking respite, the President has in mind the idea of a sounder and more flexible way can be worked out. He is apparently at a relaying on the plan put forward last night by the New York Federal Reserve Bank for the emergency issue of federal reserve notes based on the assets of closed banks.

It was very definitely hinted today at the White House that Mr. Roosevelt will also include in his message to Congress on Thursday a sweeping reorganization program of government activities.

as the first step in the drive to balance the budget which he has urged in the past.

In his new proclamation on Thursday the President intends to keep the door closed on the gold in

Strength of Canadian Dollar

MONTREAL, March 8 (CP)—The Canadian dollar is soaring on foreign exchanges. This was the interpretation placed by experts here on quotations in London, Paris and Montreal.

Relationship or the pound and the French franc has remained steady the past few days, according to cables received by exchange brokers. But the Canadian dollar has increased in value as against both the others. Sterling opened here today at $4.14 as against yesterday's close at $4.16, then slid down to $4.10. The French franc which was quoted at 4.82 cents over the week-end had fallen to 4.71¼ cents today.

As the French franc is a gold cottage it serves as a basis of comparison in calculating the Canadian dollar vis a agains gold. The pound for several days has been steady in terms of france, the quotation being 86 francs.

SHARP ADVANCES

When the United States banking holiday went into effect a few days ago, a prompt demand for sterling occured on European exchanges and the pound advanced sharply. The Canadian dollar did not at once participate in the upward movement, but this was attributed to the concentration on sterling credits. Since then, however, the dollar has reasserted itself.

A new element has entered into the complicated exchange position, in the opinion of these whose business it is to trade in money as a commodity.

Hereto-fore European importers arranged to purchase Canadian goods and they thought in terms of the pound or United States dollar and the Canadian exporter received his payments after the European coinage had first been turned into pounds or American dollars.

Now, however, there appears a possibility that the importer in Europe may think in terms of Canadian dollars. Shippers in Montreal here observed a disposition the past few days to carry on trading in the new way.

STUDIOS TO CLOSE TODAY

Employees And Artists Asked to Take 50 P.C. Cut

Hollywood, Cal., Mar. 8 (AP)—Cessation of all activities at all motion picture studios in Hollywood was ordered early today by the Association of Motion Picture Producers to-night.

Drastic cuts in salaries and wages for an 8-week period, due to the banking situation, were taken by all employees and artists.

The board of directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, meeting shortly after the announcement was given them by the producers, recommended to its members that they accept the proposed reductions.

Any salaries more than $50 weekly, a cut of 50 per cent for the 8-week period would be made with a minimum of $372.40 established. Those earning less than $50 weekly would take a 25 per cent cut with a minimum of $15 a week.

The action would be retroactive starting March 6.

"The studios no longer can exist unless substantial cuts in pay are made," said a spokesman for the producers.

The studios will remain open, it was announced, pending the action of employees regarding the proposed reductions.

SCHOOL ESTIMATES CUT TEN THOUSAND

Sarnia Board Proposes to Deal with Collegiate Salaries

Sarnia, Ont., March 8 (CP)—The Board of Education last night decided to cut $10,000 from the 1933 estimates, $7,000 off the Collegiate and Technical School, and $3,000 off the public school. This reduction brings the total down to $175,000 as asked by the City Council. To achieve this saving the board proposes to revise salaries of Collegiate teachers and a five-may reduction in janitors' salaries. Data from other cities and draft a new and fairer schedule which may become effective May 1.

Duchess with $4, Hungry Man with Stamps, Butler Only One with Cash

New York, Mar. 8. (AP)—As the newsboy would say: Read all about it.

In a downtown restaurant, a man ate a hearty meal and tendered the cashier a counterfeit $5 bill in payment.

"You can't take the stamps," said the cashier.

So the diner called a policeman.

"It's Uncle Sam, ain't it?" said the law. "You got to take it."

The Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia, had $4 in her purse today.

"But I've got credit," she said.

"Think of the hardships for those who've neither credit nor money. I can get along easily."

A man and his wife walked up to the soup kitchen here in a White Plains Theatre, planking down 150 pennies for their admission.

"We've robbed the penny bank," said he.

Stevens—plain Stevens—is a butler for a Park Avenue family. He has a night off, so he go to the country for the holiday. They had no funds. But Stevens financed the trip.

YOUNG OXFORD IS ENDORSED

In Spite of Pacific Resolution "English Sport Lives"

London, March 8 (CP)—Many prominent Britishers have deplored pacific resolutions passed recently by the Oxford Union, Lord Hugh Cecil, ex-Debating Society, but Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, thinks they are all right. He wrote the newspapers saying on "Under the Surface" that "English Spirit Lives," the doctor, who first came into prominence during the war as the man who allegedly "Kept the King's conscience," declared: "Oxford undergraduate magazines, which have confused that beneath the philosophic theories or "Young Oxford" the courage of the British lion still lived. He described himself as a former enemy of those who have had all ways "held strong admiration" of British ideals.

His letter occasioned some annoyance until it was found out that it was only in the form of "Cherwell." One of the present editors found a reference to some of his previous exploits and thought it would be a good idea to have him write a letter to the press.

EXTREMISTS ARRESTED

Antwerp, Belgium, March 8 (AP)—Police arrested five Flemish extremists who threw pamphlets last night upon Queen Elizabeth's arrival at the Flemish opera to attend a performance. Four Socialist police who helped them were deported also were jailed.

The opera received enthusiastic cheers from the loyal population.

CAR CRASHES POLE DRIVER IS KILLED

Passengers Hurled Out or Windows Upon Sidewalk at Ottawa

Ottawa, March 8 (CP) — Alex Smithson, 24, was killed almost instantly and Lloyd Anderson, 30, was critically injured when the car in which they were driving, skidded and crashed into a telephone pole here today.

The automobile struck with terrific force, crushing Smithson in the driver's seat, and throwing Anderson out of the car. When help arrived Smithson was jammed in the seat with his foot on the brake, and Anderson was on the sidewalk suffering severe cuts and bruises. He was rushed to hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

An inquest will be held later in the day.

The Weather

Toronto, March 8 (CP) —A deep disturbance, 28.88 inches in Hudson Island covers the Great Lakes and New England States, and another, 30.30 inches in Alberta, is moving N.E. west of Lake Superior, while high pressure and colder weather extends from the MacKenzie Valley eastward across the western provinces to the northwest States. Local light snow or rain are reported from all provinces.

Northern Ontario—Light snow locally and part of Thursday, followed by northwest winds and colder.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Cloudy today and Thursday with some snow or part sleet, probably turning colder Thursday night.

MARKED DECREASE IN ACCIDENTS

According to information of the two highway traffic officers in the district there is a marked decrease in accidents over the same period of last year, although the month of February, according to the members of the force, was the worst month this winter. The month of February, according to the records, showed that only minor motor accidents were occurring on the highways.

It is also noticeable, that there is not the usual heavy traffic moving on the highways as in years past although the roads and highways in this section are in splendid condition for traveling than in previous years when the snow has been in evidence during the winter months.

AUSTRALIA BOOSTS FOR EMPIRE TRADE

CANBERRA, Australia, March 8 (CP Cable)—Measures designed in the interests of Empire trade were made by the Australian House of Representatives today.

A schedule reducing substantially the duties on 31 commodities from Empire exporters was introduced in the House by Sir Henry T. W. White, Minister of Customs.

RETAIL TRADE IS DISCUSSED BY MERCHANTS

G. L. Hougham of Toronto Gives Address on Merchandising

Belleville retail merchants gathered in the Y.M.C.A. assembly hall Tuesday evening to the number of sixty or more to discuss over the dinner table matters of interest to the retail trade. Mr. Harold Ostiker, of John Cook, president of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association, occupied the chair; Russell Wolfen was acting host after Albert Adams left at the piano, and Rev. A. L. Geen opened the proceedings with prayer. Incidentally Mr. Geen was introduced as the first president of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. George L. Hougham, of Toronto, executive secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario, who has been affiliated with the organization for many years and has made a close and intimate study of merchandising and selling.

A splendid dinner was served by the ladies and the evening was one of rare enjoyment and profit for all concerned.

Mr. Hougham made a strong plea that the Retail Merchants' Board Association become affiliated with the provincial association and that he be placed at its disposal for the good benefit the facilities of the national association, including the management, merchandising service, general counsel and other departments. He described the various departments and the work of the Retail Merchants' Association and the benefits derived from a united and strong action. Illustrations were given of the work of the organization from the days of the proposed ban on trading stamps up to the present more applicable one, called forward stocks being hawked all over the Province and the necessity of organizations to indeed the product of city owned stores.

A bill has been prepared by the legal department of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario which will be introduced at the provincial session of legislature providing for licensed liquidators. Under the bill no bankrupt stocks will be licensed and confined to a certain length of time, with provisions for the prevention of what is termed a "fire-day" sale will not mean a conflagration but a sale that is constantly augmented by cheap stock. Reference was also made to have this act framed in such a way that it can not be easily evaded.

First President

The Retail Merchants Association of Ontario (Incorporated) was formed in 1908, although it had been functioning before that time. Mr. John Cook, of Belleville, was the first president and only other Belleville merchant active in the organization of the body which now stretches from coast to coast and has been of great service for the retail merchants of Ontario.

Two large meat firms were getting all the meat business for relief purposes in Toronto when the Retail Merchants' Association stepped in and asked that the business be divided. Through the activities of the organization the business was divided and meat business was diverted to the retail merchants in a very pleasing manner.

Transient traders, house-to-house sales and all other methods designed to cut into the legitimate business of the retail merchants were watched by the parent organization and its legal department and attempts were constantly made to have legislation enacted to remove the evils. Much has been accomplished in this through the parliamentary member and a strong effective drive made to eradicate the evils through effective legislation.

Mass Production

Mass production, its growth, its present effect and its possible future was described in a very interesting manner by the speaker, who predicted that the future state of mass production brought to a high peak of efficiency would astonish the world and chart the present great productions. The effect of this increased mass production on business was discussed by the speaker and the preparations made to meet it by the organization which he represented. Mankind must learn to use increased production for the benefit of the common man and this can only be done by organized effort. Selfishness must be mastered and co-operation take the place of destructive competition. Retail business must express itself in terms of co-operation or perish.

Problem Business

Distribution has not kept pace with the rapid progress of production, its mechanism is out of order and must be speeded up. Modern merchandising is being reduced to a science and every problem has been studied and literature is available to the retailer through the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. Classes in merchandising have been established at Toronto University and graduates have secured positions immediately. These classes have part time store experience and the increase is developing and meeting with great success.

Business Surveys

A business survey department had been established by the Retail Merchants Association of Ontario and now any merchant in the organization can have his business surveyed with a view to stopping leaks which threaten to destroy the business or making general improvements. Finding out the weak spots of the business and endeavouring to strengthen them. Mr. Hougham gave several instances where retail business concerns have been kept from going on the rocks by the survey made by the organization for the help of individual problems, and the personal and advantageous service.

Individualism in business has had its day, and can no longer survive under present conditions, co-operation is necessary to live. Chain stores will continue to do so long as they serve a public need and no longer, and the retail merchandising must mend his forces and prepare to conquer on competitive lines, the chains or perish. This needs organization, community, provincial and national.

Selling Alarm Clock to Sales

It is just as important to sell the speaker, to have government departments to make surveys and the studies of domestic retail businesses as it is to have departments to negotiate trade treaties, to send trade to Rome, and using this as an illustration, he said that Belleville could improve some very self-evident truths.

In closing the speaker says it is at his opinion that the day of the retail merchant is bright with promise and he would come out of this era of changing conditions with honour. Legislation against chain stores would be met by modern merchandising and the unfair competition would be dealt with by organization and application and legislative action.

F. O. Hartley, manager of the Canadian Consumers, was called on and made a brief address upon the benefits of co-operation. Mr. J. Thompson, district secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario, also made a brief address. Appreciation of the splendid address by Mr. Hougham, the retail secretary of Albert Adams, and the splendid repast served by the ladies, as well as the courtesy of the Y.M.C.A. management was ably expressed by Mr. Harold Newby, secretary of the local Retail Merchants' Association.

ANANIAS CLUB PRIZE GIVEN

Soo Hockie Club Decides Jones of Soo is Winner

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 3 (CP)—D. H. Jones of Sault Ste. Marie today kept Algoma's reputation for veracity unsullied and the Ananias Club safe from the onslaughts of liars from the outside.

Last night when fishing tales were told for three hours at the Soo Hockie Club, Jones' catch first prize over that of Jack Hambleton, Toronto newspaperman.

After the club had clarified the amateur status and slightly of outside contestants Jones told of his fishing trip on the north shore of Lake Superior. He said he had caught a loon in the head, the loon with this in its mouth, and the fish taken by a trout. In the weird struggle that followed the hook had come off and the trout the loon, the loon the fish and the fish the line when it bumped onto the rocks and sent Jones into the water.

Rabbit Overlooked

Jones beat the heavy bait of his rod and stuck it into his fish's mouth, rendering it helpless. With his fish under his arm he made the long body of the loon and found it attacked by another trout. He recovered the body of the loon and repeated the new assailant with a blow from the bait. The loon's head came off and the trout the loon, the loon the fish, when it bumped onto the rocks and sent Jones into the water.

Then the top of the tree a mink fell dead of fright at the size of the fish falling like a log from the sky and landed on the mink, killing it instantly.

Meanwhile in addition to the first fish the loon had swallowed over and Jones had to rescue a rabbit who fell into the lake.

When the excitement died down, Jones found he had caught in addition to the fish, loon, trout, rabbit, one mink, and two huge trout and on the strength of this catch he had received a tartar as a game warden charged him with having in his boat four pounds of fish, killing mink out of season, killing a loon and without paying stumpage fees. The warden is a new appointee to the north shore.

Too Much to Swallow

Hambleton's runner-up story told an eerie tale of how Jones, after set with fishing tackle he and his partner in a Hudson's Bay canoe paddled to the mouth of Agawa River to get some fresh water. After using a silver doctor, other fishermen's favorite lure, Jones opened until he fished out the Sault Ste. Marie canoe. The rest of Hambleton's story is in print and used that for bait.

That was when Hambleton and his partner took a ride. Across the lake a big fish leaped. Across the lake a big fish leaped. Across the lake a big fish leaped

United States banking crisis.

Distress and Protection.

Every effort to relieve the distress incident to the banking holiday is to be considered but Mr. Roosevelt plans to keep the national gold supply safe in vaults until he feels the situation is in hand.

The views of the busy chief executive who assumed office late Saturday soon with the banks of the nation closed were given informally today by him to newspapermen who jammed his office.

He said he would not guarantee to answer all questions for various reasons but he did answer all that were put to him today and almost without exception these related to the trying domestic economic situation.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, did not permit direct quotation.

No Mere Debts.

He made it plain that as a basis of sound currency he plans to see that the government does not go any further into debt.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss when the United States was on or off the gold standard.

An invitation to trade frozen gold for United States currency to finance essential everyday affairs, such as the meeting of payrolls and food purchases, was put today before the federal reserve system.

Frozen Gold Traded.

The invitation—almost a direction—was in the form of new regulations sent to federal reserve banks by Secretary Woodin of the Treasury. In a word, he told reserve banks they could give currency to members for "absolutely necessary" purposes in exchange for gold or gold certificates.

New York, Mar. 8.—With the federal reserve system opening its coffers to facilitate financing of necessities and regulations clarified, banks were in many localities of the United States prepared today for more generous lightening of the burdens of the emergency holiday through cashing payroll checks and providing funds for essentials.

Exchanges Would Open.

Washington, Mar. 8 (AP)—Representatives of the principal grain exchanges of United States today asked for modification of the banking rules to permit immediate resumption of their markets to both cash and futures trading on the grounds food shortages in United States might otherwise be seriously disturbed.

The representatives presented their problem to Harry Morgenthau, Jr., new chairman of the Farm Board. He was expected to seek the opinion of Secretary Woodin regarding the prospects of modifying the rules. Morgenthau said he would have no announcement to make regarding the plans for reopening the exchanges before four p.m. (E.S.T.) today.

Firm Hand on Banks.

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—Plans moved forward today for expansion of United States currency to obviate the general run on scrip during the national emergency, in which President Roosevelt will keep a firm hand upon the banking system.

At the White House, the Treasury and the Capitol, the Chief Executive and Congressional and Financial leaders worked as the remedies that will be employed to relieve the situation.

From these word emerged this afternoon that the President would retain his control of the nation's banks for which legislation has been enacted and that this program would be expedited through the special session which meets tomorrow; and that no national plan for the use of scrip was contemplated, but that its use would not be forbidden in communities and sections where special conditions called for it to do so.

Each locality using scrip would have to be permitted to go so by Secretary Woodin.

After a meeting with Mr. Roosevelt, Governor Ritchie of Maryland said no federal scrip would be issued but he planned to go ahead with its issuance in his state, where needed.

There were no details as to the form of currency expansion that would be employed, but it was pointed out that under existing law federal reserve banks are permitted to issue currency backed by government securities.

RADIUM PLANT IS GIVEN NOTE

British Publication Tells of Importance of Industry

Recognition of a nearby industry has been given the Port Hope radium refinery, at Port Hope, in an excellent editorial in the "Canadian Trader," and Canadian Export Trader, a periodical published in London, England, in the interests of Canadian trade and export.

Cited as the only radium refinery in the British Empire, the Gazette remarks that especial interest is being displayed in the exhibits of radium ore samples which have been sent by Canadian government to the British Empire Industries Fair now being held. The editorial in full reads:

"Special attention will doubtless be paid to the two assorted radium ore which the Canadian government have sent to the British Industries Fair from the only radium refinery in the British Empire, the one newly established at Port Hope, Ontario. As our readers know, a new process is being followed at Port Hope to permit a greater percentage of recovery by more complicated operations than any other known method. Only a small quantity is available for the world's hospitals at present, and each grain is worth about 14,500 English pounds. The specimens come from the east shore of the Great Bear Lake, almost within the Arctic Circle. Over 90 tons of pitchblende, the ore

RESOURCEFULNESS

Emergencies reveal unexpected resources. Many a United States citizen has demonstrated his resourcefulness in the present crisis. Many individuals have come upon the Republic financially with the tie-up of banking facilities.

New light has dawned on them and on many other people. What does the dollar bill or the pound note or the francnote mean? To most people it means just that which gives credit and buys. So common have they been, though always scarce enough to be individual, that these media of currency seem more important today than ever. Many a Canadian has wondered what he would do under similar circumstances, but he is not going to have the extreme anxiety of proving his resourcefulness as the United States citizen has been called upon to do.

The manner in which the people are facing the situation and the way in which the outside world is looking upon the situation is encouraging. The dire eventuality of the bank-closing has revealed resourcefulness on the part of nations as well as of individuals.

CERMAK'S DEATH

Mayor Cermak has succumbed amid the general expression of regret throughout the United States and in other lands. A powerful man with a gift of civic administration has died in Chicago. He will probably inspire those who want clean government to renewed effort.

Probably the fall of Cermak may also draw the attention of other communities to the need of a clean-up.

Should the reactionaries win out in the coming civic elections, they will but inspire the reform group to added effort against gangland and this turn will ultimately mean the cleansing of the city.

It was a noteworthy fact that Cermak, the man who was noted for his progressiveness and clean-up was one of those whose racial origin was not that of the original settlers of the United States but who came as a foreigner, while many Irish-Chicago bearing names which are familiar household names in English-speaking lands have not carried the progressive banner. This surely shows that immigrants from Central Europe are not of the type to be indiscriminately refused entrance to Canada among them may rise a leader for purification in municipal and social life.

While Mayor Anton Cermak did not die from any conspiracy as directed against himself, his death will place him in the martyr class—one of the most influential and potent groups of men whose careers have been run. Cermak, with peculiar self-resignation to the blow which struck him, said: "President Roosevelt that he was glad it was he and not the president who had to suffer. Nature took him at his word, but it will be a long day before Cermak's memory is allowed to fade.

WHO WINS THE DEPRESSION?

There have been divers claims as to who won the war, and as yet it is perhaps too early a date to decide who won the depression, though evidences are not lacking that Great Britain is coming or has won the depression and that she also had a large part to play in winning the war, though she does not assume to herself alone the entire achievement.

EVIDENCE OF FEAR

Organized goodwill among the nations is the need of the world today, according to Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, minister of Riverside Baptist Church, New York. Fear is one of the most significant factors in the present dilemma as has been so sharply demonstrated in the raids on bank deposits by frightened depositors and by hoarding in the United States.

What is back of this panic mob feeling is largely lack of confidence and distrust due to revelations of dishonesty and chicanery in high places and of folly.

Dr. Fosdick sees the need of deep-seated reforms in the economic life of his country, and the need of giving public faith something better to grow upon than it has had in the past.

The same fear which is wrecking financial system is wrecking world relationships. Agreements which are intended to protect cause a race for arms and the sense of security becomes lost in a panic fear, which is the cause of war. "Not battleships and poison gas but only organized goodwill can ever give the nations real security and cast out fears," he says.

A TRACK FOR SIR MALCOLM

Sir Malcolm Campbell has suggested that he might be able to find tracks in Canada on which to try for a new speed record, passing his recent 272-mile achievement at Daytona Beach and it is said he has been thinking of the prairies as providing places for trying for a new world title.

Canada will be proud to have Sir Malcolm go over any course which he could find in the Dominion. It is to be hoped he will be able to find such a straight-away as he requires. Sir Malcolm is a man who will do honor to any course. His sportsmanship makes him a man who is welcomed anywhere.

GIFT OF ROSES

When someone gives me roses,
Peach-petalled, hearts of gold,
New joy the day discloses,
Fresh hopes the hours unfold!
No pleasure like roses
Affords a deeper thrill,
For with rose-fragrance rises
Love's incense, sweeter still.

The roses tell of raptures
In gardens drenched with dew,
Of spells the bold bee captures
The whole bright Summer through.
And I, like bees and flowers,
The treasure they impart,
And from each lovely flower
Drink nectar for my heart.

When someone gives me roses,
As golden hearts unfold,
Each petal bears a message
The love that is life's gold.

"LAUGH, CLOWN LAUGH," the pathetic song of the laughter-maker whose life is empty though his heart is drowned with sorrow, is acted in real life very often. Crock, a great European clown, retired after making people laugh and bring forget that his savings of fifty years have dissolved into nothingness. However, he must finish the show, and old as he is, "I am determined to win back every sous-marque. I mean to turn the Pagliacci refrain, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh! into 'Laugh, crowd, laugh!' Crock says that times have changed in the brief time he has been absent from the stage. Gags that once made millions hold their sides and yell, now are received with shrugs of contempt or expressions of boredom. "I must find jokes to pierce that contempt, to annihilate that boredom. My wife thinks them up and I express them. She wanted to do my turn, but did you ever hear of a woman clown? Yes, there was once one, Nellie Wallace, but it took her a long time to make her. I have studied mass psychology. Once the laughter was automatic, the direct reaction of the sight. It is no longer now. People who laugh want to convince themselves that it is worth while. So now, when I want to plant a joke I wait till it sinks in. If no laugh comes, I always have another joke ready, an ironical comment on their lack of humor. It never fails.

SPAIN in addition to other troubles has risen against the ringing of church bells, and throughout the length and breadth of the land it is now unlawful to ring the church bells between 7 p.m. and 9 a.m. These regulations prevent summons to early mass and in many cases the evening Angelus. Taxes on bell towers, ranging from $20 to $30 annually, have been imposed in many of the cities and towns.

PLEURISY IS DANGEROUS AND PAINFUL

Several Specific Types of Pleurisy Are Described

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous American Health And Psychology

The term pleurisy comes from "pleura", the name of the membrane which lines the chest. Any pleurisy, of course, means an inflammation of this membrane.

The pleura is really a double sac. One part covers the lungs and the other adheres to the ribs. In health these two surfaces slide smoothly over upon the other. When one or both are thickened or dry, or the sac is distended with fluid, then a most painful affection may result.

Every time we take a breath the lungs expand and the lining side of the pleura rubs against the rib side. That is why the earliest symptom of pleurisy is a sharp pain—the side at every inhalation.

Although several specific types of pleurisy are described by doctors, it is sufficient to understand that a pleural inflammation may be dry, or that it may be moist. If the sac is known as an effusion of fluid into the pleural sac.

In ordinary cases of dry pleurisy, besides the pain in breathing, there may be a cough, a slight elevation of mucus; fever may or may not be present. In the effusion cases the disease may develop suddenly and with a chill; later there is fever and pain in the chest. Both of these may develop slowly and with little shortness of breath.

The pain in pleurisy is usually its most distressing manifestation. It is felt near the breast or armpit, either on the side right or on the left side. It is sudden, and so sharp that it seems to cut like a knife. It may be so severe that the patient is actually afraid to breath. Coughing makes the pain worse.

In severe cases of pleurisy—a variety of the effusion kind, one might say—pus forms in the pleural cavity. Then it is known as empyema. Empyema is often aftermath or a pneumonia, and it may also be caused by a wound inflicted in fracturing a rib.

Sometimes empyema develops quickly and sometimes its progress is slow and insidious. Sooner or later, however, the pleural sac fills with pus and the patient gets very sick indeed, empyema is dangerous so far as life is concerned. In all severe cases, therefore, it is desirable to remove a piece of rib so that proper drainage of the pus from the pleural cavity may be established.

Chronic pleurisy also exists, and this again may be of the dry form or of the effusion variety. Chronic dry pleurisy may result in acute cases in which there has been effusion.

No matter what kind of pleurisy the patient may be suffering from, home remedies should never be tried.

First of all a diagnosis of the exact nature of the condition is necessary, and to delay in obtaining such an expert opinion is courting trouble. Secondly, the duration of the disease is lessened if proper treatment is begun promptly.

Pleurisy may recur again and again. Often, too, adhesions, or a sticking together of the pleural surfaces takes place. It is therefore the part of wisdom for every person who has had an attack of pleurisy to have himself examined every so often by the family physician.

Children may develop pleurisy as well as old people. In fact, no age is immune.

What a new thrill you are going to get when you see and drive these new Hudson-built cars!

In our well-considered opinion, they represent the finest motor-car values offered at anywhere near their prices by any manufacturer in America.

We can say this because we know all the other fine 1933 values. The whole industry has given its best.

But Hudson—in the new Super-Six and in the roomier, standard tread Terraplanes—has this year far surpassed all its contemporaries in genuine car-value.

With the Unit-built Terraplane, Hudson has sprung into unquestioned leadership in the low-price field.

This great car, built on an entirely new principle, has out-performed every other stock-car in the world, regardless of price. There has never been a car like the Terraplane before, because no other car has ever been built as it is built.

The 1933 Hudson Super-Six—a big new car that bears one of the most famous names in motor car history—is going to bring joy to hundreds of thousands of motorists who know and respect what "Super-Six" stands for: beauty, power, reliability, economy.

ARMED FORCES CONTROLLED BY THE HOUSE

Bill to Vest This Right Now Before The Parliament

RAILWAY BILL UP

House Delays Action on Relief Bill Owing to U. S. Situation

Ottawa, March 8 (CP)—Railway problems in all their complexity with its afred in the House of Commons in a debate expected to start today on second reading of the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act Amendment Act to give the Canadian National Railways a new administrative set-up and to provide for two great systems to co-operate in the public interest.

The degree of opposition the bill will encounter in the Commons is still uncertain. Some provisions will likely be assailed by the Liberals, but it is unlikely the opposition will attempt to wage from the opposition benches a filibuster, such as that several private members on the government side conducted last session.

Yesterday the Commons only completed a good deal of work and enjoyed a somewhat varied day. Every member got a chance to question departmental estimates and made a start on the budget discussion. They gave second reading to the visiting Boards of Trade delegation's resolution in the Parliament of Canada to control over the armed forces of the country.

Up to the present control has existed in the Militia Council under the Army Act. The new bill would place it under the control of the Senate of Westminster and is similar to a bill being enacted in the Dominions. It provides not only for control of militia in Canada but for control of it in the whole or any part of the Empire and for the organization of Canadian forces with the forces of other parts of the Empire under a supreme command in the event of war.

Purpose Acted

The banking and financial crisis in the United States has made it impossible to postpone further consideration of measures to extend the unemployment and farm relief acts, Minister R. B. Bennett told the House. He believed the present session might ask for more power than was now contained in the measure before the House for 1933.

Canadian troops will not leave the country for a theatre of war until parliamentary authority has been obtained, it was agreed in the House by the leaders of the Conservative and Liberal parties, Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, respectively.

When Mr. King took the view that the bill would permit the Minister of National Defence to mobilize troops without the authority of parliament, and also place Canadian troops under a single command, which command without parliamentary sanction, the Prime Minister agreed to proceed no further until he had consulted with the chief of the general staff and the law officers of the Department of External Affairs.

Delayed for Time

The grave financial condition in the United States has had the effect of delaying for a time the unemployment relief measure before the House. This resolution authorizes the continuance of payments under the Unemployment Relief Bill which has been in operation since 1930. This bill gives the government wide powers in dealing with any emergency which may arise.

"In view of the events of the last few hours," said the Premier in the House, "I think it undesirable to proceed at the moment with the order" referring to the unemployment relief resolution. "We may be obliged to offer a House a further motion in the resolution."

The leader of the opposition said he shared the views of the Prime Minister entirely in not proceeding with the resolution.

PETERBORO CHIEF IS ASKED TO RETRACT

Resolution For Resignation Was Not Passed.

Peterborough, Ont., Mar. 8 (CP)—The city council decided last night on the police commission to ask for a retraction of statements allegedly made by Chief Constable Ross as well as a record meeting of that body against alleged statements by the chief constable.

The statements objected were said to have been that certain members of the council were in the habit of standing on the street corner and encouraging the "lazy loafers". The inference was that unemployed were meant by the term.

Alderman McIntyre, a member of the police committee, asked that his resignation be accepted in view of what was said, but the council would not grant his request.

Albert Jay Anderson

(Contributed)

Full three quarters of a century ago, on the 7th of January, in the Township of Ameliasburg, in an old-fashioned farm house, under very humble and lowly circumstances, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson, a son who was named Albert Jay. When they were but a few months old, the family left the section of a farm which, by force of circumstances, they had been trying to work. Each made his almost start, and unproductive, and in the end, as was the case, to yield fruit and to produce food for the family over whom only one grew before. Each succeed his own destiny and he to whom they nourished and sent forth, Albert Jay, has done his part performed an important part in the development of Prince Edward County and in the fullness of time, and ripeness of years, has gathered and received by all who knew them most, Alfred, preceding Jay by 11 years.

At about 5 years of age, on the death of his father, Jay went to the reside with his uncle, Asa Wallbridge in the Township of Sidney adjoining Stirling, he received a very meagre education, that of S. S. No. 6 under Mr. Walter Osborne but the foundation of his subsequent success was laid in the home of Mr. Foster Wallbridge they instilled in him an appreciation of the principles of truth, of righteousness and relentless. They taught him to be honest, to be upright, to be reliant and to be frugal almost to a fault. He was taught to work and to bargain to his dog life. From these days on as well as from the girls of the neighborhood, he was taught by his brother, he gained resourcefulness and the capacity of meeting and overcoming difficulties and obstacles as they arose few persons with whom he would not meet, with whom he would him early with the principles of truth, of honesty and of justice for Canadian people and with the tradition of a daily consultation with the Bible as a guide to conduct and to subsequently became The Mail and Empire and the Globe newspaper of Canada.

Upon the retirement of his Uncle from active life, Jay bought the land and stock and farming implements having gained a free hand in his management, he began an aggressive farm and cattle policy of his own development which resulted in its becoming one of the most productive properties of the neighbourhood. He purchased and sold a number of advantageous farms with the result that he advanced from a small beginning to a large and extensive farming operation, he also built a new barn, enlarged the stables made convenient and up-to-date, he also about the time of the Great War purchased a threshing outfit, which he operated and controlled. The outfit was from time to time increased and the machinery were improved. Stumps were removed, trees cleared from the fields which were all enclosed in new fences and the farm which was constructed 30 years ago was still giving service. He realized the need of water for his stock and built a windmill and provided a spring that never failed. Year after year he went early to see the need of permanent and on the farm which was made so comfortable and commodious house of which he was so justly proud. He became a leading agriculturist in the district to have an automobile and to "try with the Hay" he was a familiar sight in the Hay way, though he lived it mainly as an agriculturist, he was a keen student of his best of cattle and bred up a herd of Shorthorn Cattle which were admired by every one who saw them. They were exhibited at the various Country Fairs where they were always among the many competitors for the award of Hydro Power he installed the lights and other conveniences in the barn and house. He enjoyed speeches and programmes over the radio.

Jay had a broad outlook upon life as well as a phenomenal memory. He travelled to the eastern and western provinces of Canada as well as far in the northern limits. He visited many of the Northern States and always returned to his home enriched by his experiences. He was a keen observer of human nature. His travels, Local geography had a special charm for him. He spoke-lated upon certain mounds in the Township of Sidney, they might have been made by the Mound Builders of long ago. He noted settlements and the changes that occurred. He picked up some of their flint arrow heads. He was interested in the history of the place was associated in his early days with the pioneers concerning the family or the neighborhood.

While he did not appear to be in a hurry Jay was always driving his team to work. It was rare to see a team in the field every day at 7 o'clock and he was more than one day work done to its proper time. He threshed the field 7 times in the day, yet he was scarcely ever behind with his work. This required much thinking and planning. Jay was a man of action. He made a hobby of trees and bought and raised his own hobby pay. Though he lived by the land he was not a slave to it. He loved it, and though he had a gun and fishing rod, he had a dog and never known to kill anything, unless perhaps a skunk that was making inroads on the chicken coop.

In later years Jay and the girls of the neighborhood were always a familiarly occupied by his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Wallbridge whose home at his boyhood days. Jay was always sincere affection for his aunt and his children rise according to the wish of his fathers Though he lived the life of a bachelor, he was not a recluse. He was fascinated with the study of minerals and loved to make the endless procession of the stars through the sky but his interests were faded away. His benevolence is done and many "Hikers in the traveller, home from the sea and the hunter home from the hill." His death Friday, February 17th, 1933, beneath his own vine and fig tree. The funeral services was conducted by Rev. Mr. Fetcher and Rev 1931.

Mr. Mullen while a Sunday visitor was given a warm welcome. He was born 83 years ago in the Belleville cemetery. Besides his many interests as a neighbour who assisted the services there were 4 children, Mrs. Frank Parks, Mrs. Fred Forrester, Fred Ward, Stirling, Mrs. Albert Hamilton and Herbert Mullen, Madoc.

Brother brothers and two sisters remain, George of Sarnia, B. C., Fort and Charles Conrad, Mass., Mrs. Mary Ann Dore, Tamworthville, and Ella of Redmondville, while Beatrice Wallbridge and Mrs. Ida Wallbridge and Rosie and Rosie Wallbridge are the other sister who known the most up of a brother.

Of Funeral and Interest

In the death of Albert Jay Anderson at his home "Bay View" Ameliasburg Ontario, on February 17th, 1933, Prince Edward County has lost one of her highly respected citizens.

Mr. Anderson was a son of the late Levi and Mary F. Anderson, and was born in Thurlow township, nearly seven years ago, he was a prosperous farmer by nature and training and fortunes ability and tact that agricultural production of the highest order, requiring skill and thought second to no other occupation.

Mr. Anderson retired from active life about 10 years ago and has enjoyed living on the old homestead of his uncle and aunt, the late Mr. and Mrs. Asa Anderson Wallbridge, by whom he was adopted, at the early age of 5 years, and who cared for him the years of age. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida Rosie Anderson, Toronto; Mrs. Beatrice Brackett, Bon Echo; Mrs. Bert and Charles of Manitoba and George of Sarnia, B. C.

He was a very loyal Conservative, and took a great interest in politics and his influence for the simplified, honest government of the country. During the past few years, he has been a keen student of the changes of the various schools in the city of this week. The first of the new type of school, an eight grade of architecture with plain covers, except for the Children's Aid Society has printed on the cover of the book, as follows:

My Creed

I believe in God.
I love her as my home.
I honour her institutions.
I rejoice in the intelligence of her resources.

I have unbounded confidence in the ability of her people to excel in whatever they undertake.
I cherish exalted ideals of her destiny as a leader among world nations.

To her I pledge my loyalty.
With its protection I will live.
Because I pledge my support.

To her service I will give my patriotism.
And to the cause of her prosperity I pledge my devotion.

Little Benny's Note Book

Last nite I was supose to be doing my homework only it was hard to do on account of there still being talk about the little white dog with spots on it that was run over. I told the teacher about how maybe we could get another dog and she said I was excused but if he thawt he was interested in such things, and I thawt, I wonder if Miss Wood, she is the teacher, is pupy?

Speaking if he would buy him for me, and I said, May pop, do you think he'd buy him for me, and pop says the best things of many?

Pop is full of proverbs or both spose as very much, and when there was some talk about the little dog was run over I said to pop that I was sorry for those times when he let his cats out at nite, for I like cats and supose to a fire in which he had no insurance and pop said, Yes and I swore fire horses ask the modern fire engine has run ruined all the other horses' morals for a mile around. I said, I was sorry I had ever got a race horse so high-strung that he'd run away and pop said, Anything is high-strung that runs away from a bill collector.

They chase burglars, dont they? I said, All pop said, theoretically, but actually they cast even chase a fire, excepting to another part of the block, and pop said, Son, you have common sense, and on my opinion as a self-made man, you owe your social scale according to its ability to get out of your way. Sometimes I think these questions pertaining to the higher education of youth.

O, no special reason, I said.

And I bet on dollars my homework reading today I hadn't actually asked him yet.

Land Annuity Question is Far From Settled

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 8 (CP)—Queen Mary's Hopes of settling the long dispute between the Irish Free State and the State Governments received another setback today when the British Government was officially told the land annuities due England and reclaimed by the Irish Free State would be used for normal exchequer requirements.

John Whelan Dulanty, Irish Free State High Commissioner to Great Britain, today informed Secretary J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, that the Dail Eireann meet was going to take the annuities from the suspense account to which they have been residing since the dispute started, in anticipation of a settlement which no agreement has been reported.

FORCED TO FLEE

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Thirteen persons were forced to leave their homes in a fire which entire early today when fire of unknown origin caused $50 damage to a store and apartment of H. Weinstein on Dundas Street. Mrs. Weinstein and her children were awakened by the fire and roused her family and those on other floors of the building.

SURTAX BILL IS DEFEATED

Might Tend to Drive All Industry Out of Province

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—The Three Hour Sitting Rule will be further debated when the Ontario Legislature resumes today, and in addition the Private Bills Committee will hold its first sitting of the term this morning.

The line-up for the debate has not yet been announced, although F. J. MacArthur, Conservative, North Cumberland, will be first call for the government side. Liberal speakers, however, are known, will also speak during the argument.

Premier Hepburn is expected to intervene slowly from an attack of intestinal influenza which overtook him last week, but not expected back in the House today. Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, is leading the government in the Premier's absence.

The House had a fairly quiet session yesterday, passing briefly to committee completely a bill sponsored by George Stanley Challies, Conservative, Toronto Woodbine which would have provided for imposition of a surtax on all incomes of more than $10,000. All the opposition came from the conservative benches, while a goodly clear tallow to Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines. Practically all agreed there should be no further taxation, particularly when it might tend to drive industry and capital from the province instead of bringing more in.

Tribute was paid by Mr. McCrea to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the United States who, he said, was a great and good leader.

THREE YEARS FOR TWO ROBBERIES

London, Ont., March 8 (CP) — Howard Fountain, colored, was sentenced to six years today in three years' in Portsmouth Penitentiary on charges of robbery with violence and 30 days on one charge of theft, the sentences to run concurrently.

IS YOUR DIET A THIEF?

*Is "DEFICIENCY the ROBBER"

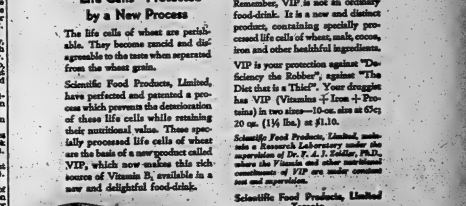
Depriving you of an adequate supply of Vitamin B, so vital to your family's health?

If you are subject to headaches, indigestion, constipation—if you lack "punch"—if your children have poor appetites—your diet may be deficient in Vitamin B_1; for these are the symptoms of a chronic B_1 deficiency.

Up until a few years, it was thought that the ordinary diet supplied sufficient Vitamin B, for the needs of the average individual. Then scientists discovered that foods formerly considered rich in Vitamin B, were actually inadequate sources of this vitally important Vitamin. They also found that the life cells of wheat were one of the two richest known sources of B_1.

In addition to Vitamin B_1, VIP also brings to you an increased supply of Vitamins B_2, A and D, as well as energy-building proteins, health-ful minerals, and an easily assimilable form of iron to enrich your blood.

* VIP Hot or Cold Has Delicious Nut-Like Flavor



For best results VIP should be taken once or twice daily, HOT or COLD. Taken regularly, VIP is a builder of vigor, strength and resistance; an intestinal stimulant and aid to digestion; a benefit to nerve health; a builder of rich, red blood. VIP also stimulates the child's appetite and increases growth and weight.

Remember, VIP is not an ordinary food-drink. It is a new and distinct product, containing specially processed life cells of wheat, malt, cocoa, iron and other health-building factors.

VIP is your protection against "Deficiency the Robber", against "The Diet that is a Thief". Your druggist has VIP (Vitamins + Iron + Proteins) in two sizes—10-oz. size at 65cts 20 oz. (1¼ lbs.) at $1.10.

*Scientific Food Products, Limited, conducts a Research Laboratory under the supervision of Dr. F. J. Tisdall, Ph.D., where the Vitamin and other nutritional constituents of VIP are under constant test and supervision.

GOOD MANNERS
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Check Your Pronunciation

Do you "realize," I wonder, the importance of correct speech as a mark of good manners? In cultured circles a word-mispronounced is misused; one may be truly as sure branch of good form. Why not begin a note book and set down words and phrases about which you are in doubt, then look them up? It's a good plan. As a beginning, test yourself on the pronunciation of some of these words, write me.

Commencement Exercises Draw Large Audience

Madoc, March 8—At the Empire Theatre on Friday evening, Principal Scott, a capable host, presided at the appearance of the high school staff and students at their annual high school commencement. Parents and friends of the pupils gathered to see the presentation of prizes, diplomas, and field day prizes, and to enjoy the splendid programme presented through the untiring efforts of teachers and pupils.

Mr. T. E. Burnside presided as chairman with his usual gay humor and courtesy. The chairman's address was necessarily brief, and was followed by a number from the Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Fox, "Over the Fair," with Miss Dorothy Fox presiding at the piano.

The Field Day events, won by the students in the local high schools in the field day tests and races, were awarded by Mr. Cook, Mr. Gordon and G. Munro to the following pupils: Girls, Carmel Graham, Gladys Reed, Marion Hamm, Dorothy Fox, Marjorie Ellis, Beulah Keene, and Marion Keene. Boys—Kelvin Kincaid, Kelvin Kincaid, Leslie Brout, Leslie Ashley, Albert Seger, Ray Redmond Gunsolus and Warren Ellis. A very beautiful and well executed May drill followed under the direction of Miss McDermid by the junior girls of the school, with one of the juniors, Jean Nickle, as pianiste. This was followed by the presentation of the prizes to the Field Day champions. Sr. championship to Carmel Galen, and Jr. to Gladys Keene. The presentation was made by Mr. G. Munro; Mr. Fred Nayler presented the prize for the championship to Clinton Nickle, and the Jr. prize to Kelvin Kincaid. The Strathcona medal for merit-mentality was presented to Gordon Higgins by Mr. R. T. Naylor, who explained the requirements and the benefits received by the courses of training necessary to become the proud possessor of a Strathcona medal.

The Glee Club gave a very hearty chorus "Old Man River," following this, the business of the evening was proceeded with—the presentation of diplomas of graduation to thirteen pupils by Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Cook. Whytock. Those winning this high qualification last year were:—Margaret Ann Hamm, Ruth Walsh, Margaret Stewart, Laura Bell McDermid, Mary Jewell Fulcher, Madeline Ella Ruby Spencer, Lorna Elizabeth Pinnell, Florence Bernice Bailey, and also M. Hayes, who won the Scholarship, awarded by the high school board for the highest marks in six sr. school subjects, and Dorothy Fox who won the Hon. J. R. Cooke scholarship of $60 for the highest marks in any six papers of the Middle school at the final departmental examinations.

Then followed the play by the scholars of the school under the direction of Miss R. McDermid, "The Tryding Place." The following is a brief synopsis. It is late afternoon in a large hotel at a summer resort. Several people look at the time and express. The result is a very complicated situation in which all the characters are involved. It is a closed door and then it was as follows:

The Mysterious Voice, G. Rivers.
Laurencie Briggs, obviously under the influence of drink.
Mrs. Curtis, An attractive young widow, M. Carr.
Mrs. Briggs, A pretty girl of twenty-five, M. Hall.
Mrs. Briggs, Mother of Jessie and Laurencie, Mrs. Kelly.
Rupert Smith, in love with Jessie, Douglas Ashley.
Mr. Briggs, An elderly gentleman and a former friend of Mrs. Curtis, Mr. Hamilton.

"The play was exceptionally well presented and afforded much amusement to the audience as the plot developed.

During the evening in the intervals of writing, the Principal, Mr. A. J. Ferguson, and Mr. F. H. Anderson, Assistant, were called on for a few remarks which were well received. In speaking of the Scholarship awarded Dr. Ferguson explained that these had been awarded in 1931 to Alex Hay Walsh in Sr. school and to Wm. Harper in Middle school, and for 1932 to Norah Fox in Middle school, and Dorothy Fox in Middle school.

Just before the close, Miss McDermid was called forward, and on behalf of the members of the cast was presented by Gray Rivers with a present as a small testimony of their appreciation of the good work done by Miss McDermid to secure the success of the play.

The National Anthem closed the sixth.

"This is My Secret for Keeping My Family Well"

Mrs. Russell Wirt, Hilton Beach, Ontario, writes: "This is my secret for keeping my family of six well. For all the years I have used Baby's Own Tablets, and I cannot praise them too much. If my baby is fretful, I give her a Baby's Own Tablet, and in a short time she is happy. If there is any of us a cold, I give the tablets, and she is soon all better. If she is constipated, I find the tablets a wonderful regulator. The tablets are fine during teething. I wouldn't think of being without a box in the house."

LIBRARY CORNER

Many library patrons read and enjoyed Arthur Train's Victorian Fairy Show", by W. P. Dawson, in which he reviewed the museum collection of the late journalist and commenting upon its leading figures: Disraeli, Gladstone, Queen Victoria, Dickens, Thackeray and Browning. Now he has written "As we are, a modern review", which does as much for the post-war generation. Pictures of "Society" showing the changes which the war has brought about in the outlook of humanity, morals and literature. The volume is written with insight and wit. The author says Mr. Benson's "split time in two" and to illustrate his point he gives an account of his day in typical noble Victorian fashion, before the war, and after the war. The chapter "Grub Street" presents the conditions of literature in the days of the pen, war pensions, James Joyce, Virginia Woolf, D. H. Lawrence, Lytton Strachey, with comments on their style of writing and the subject matter of their period as compared with that of the Victorian era. The book "is a serious reference to the still popular "As we were."

Mr. Marion has added another volume to his series of books. He completes his study of Britain in his chapter on "Lords of Misrule" in which he describes the impressions made by Wales and Ireland upon the mind of a stranger. This volume proved more difficult to write than the unbiassed, friendly

WALLBRIDGE W.M.S.

The Women's Association and Women's Missionary Society of Wallbridge United Church, met held on the regular day, The first Wednesday of the month members and friends met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Wickson, fourth concession of Sidney, with about thirty ladies in attendance and a number expected to have several gentlemen visitors.

All seemed to enjoy the very appetizing supper served by Mrs. Wm. Wickson and her assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Ralph Prentice, Mrs. Wm. T. Hinchcliffe opened the meeting with prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting was read and approved after which the business was discussed, collected and social events planned for the coming months.

The President Mrs. R. V. Hinchcliffe appointed delegates to the district meeting at Trenton March 28-30. It was also decided to hold the Mission Band of the United Church to give their Pageant some time next month. Plans were laid for April is to be responded to by sending flowers to the sick.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary was then appointed for the "World's Day of Prayer", it was agreeable to all that the meeting be held at the so many ladies present and those who could not be present be asked to send their offering to the Treasurer at the Stone Church.

Mrs. Ralph Prentice led the devotional exercise and program for the Day of Prayer service. The theme was "Prayer" with silent prayer periods and beautiful hymns. A prayer for "Missions" and for "Christian Women throughout the World" was offered by Mrs. Wm. T. Hinchcliffe. Mrs. Chisholm giving prayer for "Missionaries and Staffs" and Mrs. James Hinchcliffe prayed for "Children".

There was also a prayer for "The King, The Empire and our Country" and a very helpful and inspiring meeting was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King" in unison.

Mrs. Chisholm, President of the Ladies Aid, took charge of the business session. It was voted to buy St. Patrick's Tea.

The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Nicholson.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

The regular W.M.S. March meet, ing was held at the home of Mrs. A. Paice in the evening. Many visitors were present and a splendid session was enjoyed by all. The theme of the program which was in charge of group two.

Mrs. A. Paice was chairman and the following program was given: Hymn, Lord's Prayer in unison, Scripture Reading (Matt. 5) by Mrs. Finch, Contests by Group One (Grandfather's Clock); Misses Mary and Ethel Rout (piano solo) Ray Mr. Plant, and Gabriel Jones and Margaret Green, reading (Mrs. Finch), accordion (Allena), singing contest by three groups, duology, Mrs. Hancock and Mrs. R. Ketcheson were appointed delegates to attend the Presbyterial at Trenton March 28-30. Hymn and prayer and each one present thought they had spent an enjoyable and profitable evening. Collection, $6.41.

NEW ZEALAND OPPOSES PLAN

Wellington, New Zealand, March 8—(AP Cable)—Every Dominion but Australia, in rejecting suggestion of United Kingdom leaders that the Dominions impose immediately restrictions on their shipments of foodstuffs to Britain, has done. British importers had suggested the step to aid the British butter industry.

Since the Welsh people possess that sense of all-seeing from the earliest days, Mr. Bingham, Mr. Marion has dealt with both sides of Welsh life, impartially, as keenly as revealed in North Wales and its black country in the South dedicated by a hundred and fifty years of mining. Many interesting visit only the Northern region and disregard the mining valleys of the South. The author endeavours to rectify this shunning of the Scottish district by travellers for he believes that what the South may lack in beauty it makes up for in human interest, the miners and their work. Included in the book are many fine photographs of Welsh scenery and also the only flashlight photograph ever taken in a Welsh coal mine explosive gas.

Deploring the fact that London is one of the few cities of Europe which has no regular use is made for passenger purposes of its naturally fine river, Mr. Arthur Mee, F.A.S., Rector has written the volume "The Roads on the River". One book good not give the views of a thousand and one famous places and practical suggestions for the intelligent of a journey by river. In addition to stimulate some of the heavy traffic from London streets, many fine views of the riverbanks and the buildings seen along its banks are shown. The very first picture in the volume is taken from the Percy's quadrangle, Lord What's-a-me and Now it is no boats on the river; and grass grows all up and down Whitehall.

9 out of 10 screen stars use it
Of the 564 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 656 use the fragrant white soap. That's why all the great film studios have made it their official soap!

Lux Toilet Soap will delight you too!

Fashion Flashes

A popular classic is the wedding frock of white satin, always beautiful and glamorous. A recent bridal model is fashioned with a princess line, with long tight sleeves and a square neckline. The entire frock is lined with white chiffon and embroidered with a border of seed pearls.

Flowers burst into bloom on the newest hats and some designers are showing quaint bits of flowers to match hats. One hat of novelty black straw with a border of white hyacinths is lined with black satin.

Still under cover are many arms at night as the long evening glove comes into considerable favor. One smart woman wears satin gloves of the same shade as those made of matching fabric. Recently I saw straw-yellow pigskin gloves with tiny crystal beads and her matching gloves had flower sprays done in crystal beads.

It won't be long now before we are wearing ensembles and suits of a most useful model in a long coated suit of navy wool crepe, the standing collar and tuxedo fastening stitched in white to match sign. There is a blouse of natural crash, gaily embroidered in red and blue.

Where is the monkey fur that has been absent from the mode for so many seasons? Well, it is with us again, as you no doubt have guessed by now. I saw a frock of black lacquered satin, one woman wears a jacket of the same fabric with a collar and cuffs of fur. The same fur is being used in absolute quantities in some of the new evening jackets.

Couldn't SLEEP couldn't WORK
for her BACK!

Now feeling fine thanks to Dodd's

Always tired—always dull—heavy-headed — depressed. Every day a new burden—every night another trial. Life held little pleasure for her. It continued until she realized her back was the cause of her distressing condition.

On a friend's advice, she tried Dodd's. Backache quickly disappeared—soon fatigue gave way to clear-headed energy and restful sleep. Again life seemed worth while.

If you are not feeling just right, look to your kidneys. Don't wait—take Dodd's at once. You'll be surprised how quickly Dodd's begins to cleanse and purify the blood stream by healing the kidneys. Backache, Rheumatism, Headaches, and all signs of faulty kidneys soon disappear.

U. S. Currency Fished Out of Socks, Baby Banks, Clocks

Belleville Citizens Hunt Through Money For U. S. Bills

QUERIES MADE

New sidelights on international financial complications which have been felt in Belleville were revealed when old socks, baby banks, alarm clocks, mantle ornaments and the secret hiding places behind the family clock had been searched for dollar bills and changes being used in the local currency to pay their bills at the meat shops, the grocery, the bank and the post office. The money is needed Merchants are scratching their heads regarding the situation, but are accepting the money—at par. Shops of them, however, are packing it off to Toronto over the transaction, hoping that the dollar will not take a decided rise before it is believed to be in United States circles.

Several persons have come to the local Chamber of Commerce for information regarding the advisability of investing in bonds at the present time. One lady wanted to know if she should carry over the money or invest the money. The local Chamber discouraged any investment in bonds at the present time. Canadian money would be chiefly concerned, it was pointed out.

Belleville's financial position is sound, in the opinion of Mr. Herity, owing to the City's policy of conserving much of money in larger cities.

At the local post office, inquiries regarding the new Trans-Canada Limited that, becoming effective at once, money and correspondence will be resumed between Great Britain and Ireland, the Irish Free State, Canada, Newfoundland, British Guiana, Leeward Islands, Trinidad, Tobago and the Windward Island with the understanding that the rates will be the same as local orders with the United States.

Hotels report no difficulties with the new ruling. Most of the tourists and tourists had their money changed in Belleville before leaving the border and are not handicapped to any large extent by the new ruling, it is believed. The men of affairs have come well supplied with funds, and business has been stimulated in the city so far, writing the report. Some tourists have been held over, but the week is expected to see a considerable increase in the number of visitors.

The stations report few tourists. One of the largest was during the past three days. He paid for his purchases in American currency and was reported to have done a good deal of buying. It is said that his dollar had gone to par.

Banks do not place the same importance on American funds to be spent in Canada, however, and while their cheques are still being held up however.

Chamber officials in the local customs have been valuing the American dollar at par in their transactions, except in the case of trucks, on which the duty is based 5% on the sterling last, when rate of exchange when existing is charged.

MINES SHOW STRONG TONE

Lake Shore at 35 Imparts Confident Feeling to World

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—The Standard Mining Market maintained a strong tone in the afternoon trading though the latter has slowed down considerably. Active buying of Lake Shore, at the high price for the day, imparted a confident feeling to the rest of the market.

In the gambling gold group, Preston, McIntyre and Hollinger held all their best prices for the day at the close. Sales in the gulch of Dr. Teck Hughes held at 4.14, up 10 and Wright Hargreaves at 4.40, up 5.

Both Noranda and International Nickel showed strength in the base metals, Noranda closing at 22.50. In the oil group, Imperial Oil was off a point at 9.40 and Norman Wells at 2.60, up 10.

Among the industrials, Steel of Canada was firm.

International Nickel continued its good demand and at mid-afternoon was still higher by one point at 34¾. At Wall St., it was up ¼ at 35⅝. Bell Telephone was ahead nearly a point at 99 and British Columbia Power holding a gain of ¼ at 8.

Trading in Dominion common reached the noon trading with a jump of 3¢ to 8¢, and the stock was in demand following publication of a report that there was prospect of an agreement with other third party interests.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, March 8 (CP)—Eastern Canada, coupled with moderate trade hedging pressure, accounted for a 2-4 cent to 3-4 cent wheat price rise in early trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. After the few points, however, fair buying for both Canada and southern account was uncovered and prices at one time came back to the previous day's closing.

Nearing the mid-session period wheat was holding steady, 1-4 to 1-4 cent lower. May option at 51, July 53 1-4 and October 53 3-4.

Pit trade from the start was rather quiet, with the bulk of business on a much lighter scale than during the past ten days in line with the way of support to bring values back from bottom levels. No export was reported.

Liverpool wheat opened lower due to renewed pressure of Argentine shipment wheat and cheaper Canadian parcels and generally weakness the close were 1-4d to 3-4d lower. Buenos Aires wheat opened 1-4c lower.

DISTURBANCES IN 4 CITIES

Five Killed And Several Injured in Different Places

Berlin, March 8 (AP)—Five persons were killed and several injured today in political disturbances in four German cities.

Troops fired into a crowd of Communists in Berlin when shots were fired from inside union headquarters, killing a man and 20 brown-shirted members.

Two persons were killed and six injured, when a funeral procession in Dusseldorf was fired upon.

In Wuppertal a Reichsbanner man was killed by unidentified assailants.

A Communist leader was found dead to death on a street in Duisburg, while a worker was seriously injured in his home by an unidentified person.

ROBERT LOGAN LONDON, DIES

Believed to be Oldest Railway Man in Canada

London, Ont., March 8 (CP)— Robert Logan, believed to be the oldest railway veteran in Canada, died in hospital here today. He was 93. Until seven years ago he served as foreman of police at the Canadian National Railway station here and was carefully known.

Among his friends he numbered Mr. Harry Wilson, Wilson Tire former President of the Canadian Football League. Mr. Logan himself jokingly invited "old Bob" to lunch.

Mr. Logan began railroading at Watford, when the old Great Western tracks were laid to Stratford in 1859. He was 19 years old then and he refused to quit at pension age. He was carefully conscious, he said age, he kept working until his 86th birthday.

GIROUARD NOW IN TORONTO

U. S. Police Claim $1,000 Reward For Capture of Man

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— George Girouard, alias Ralph A. Sears, was yesterday in connection with robbery of $1,000 from Mrs. Elizabeth Church Streets branch here last week. He was brought to Toronto today by Detective Ralph A. Stearns of the Nashua, New Hampshire police.

It is understood Girouard voluntarily returned to Canada with Inspector Stearns but was not actually "placed under arrest until he reached the Border. It is believed the Nashua Inspector will obtain the necessary extradition with Girouard's capture. Girouard is said to have been trailed from Montreal, Nashua and New York. Some months ago Girouard was arrested in Montreal recently and it is alleged Girouard was also arrested in Reg'ina on charges of U.s $3,300 lost before his apprehension.

ARRESTED AS VAGRANT TO PREVENT TROUBLE

Man Has Acted for Unemployed Before Board of Control

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— Philip Pollenger, 37, unemployed, acting as spokesman several times for unemployed before the Board of Control, was arrested on arrest on a vagrancy charge. Police yesterday arrested Pollenger on a charge laid at the Bridge office on instructions of Capt. Wm. Thomas, acting Superintendent of Public Welfare.

Following the arrest police dispersed 150 unemployed, mostly foreigners, who were waiting outside the building for Phillips. The dispersal caused no trouble.

Magistrate Denison before Leader said Phillips' arrest was to avoid possibility of a disturbance.

FRENCH DIPLOMAT IS NAMED AMBASSADOR

One of the Biggest Shake-ups in Paris

Paris, March 8 (AP)—Andre Lefevre De La Boulaye, veteran of the French diplomatic service, today was named ambassador to Washington.

He succeeds Ambassador Paul Claudel, who was named to the Belgian post succeeding Charles Corbin, who in turn was appointed to go to Rome.

The chief diplomatic shake-up, one of the largest in recent French years, was announced after a cabinet meeting.

Charles Alphand, former Minister to Dublin, was named Ambassador to Berlin.

BUTTER PRICE BOOSTED

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— Orders from Ontario boosted the price of butter on the Montreal produce and butter market here today from 24¼-¾ cents per pound to 25-25½ at noon.

LONE LIBERAL TAKES HONORS

Fiery Session in The Ontario Legislature Tuesday

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Legislation will occupy the Ontario Legislature today, with hints of confidences inside the session. Tonight members will attend the new wing of the Ontario Museum here at the invitation of the president of the University of Toronto.

The house had a fiery session yesterday. There were but three speakers in the throne speech reply debate, two Conservatives and one Liberal, but the lone Liberal took the honors. He was Dr. T. L. Kennedy, Simcoe Centre. Hon. George Challies, Provincial Secretary, and P. J. Kaufman, Conservative, Northumberland, upheld the Conservative standard. The debate was augmented by D. M. Ross, Progressive, Oxford North, and occasional fire with an "iced cut" men when the debate remains tomorrow.

Dr. Kingsmill's approach was certainly the highlight of the day. It was the widest attack Legislature taking in practically every department of the government, including the Hydro-Electric administration with a "cowardly, contemptible, unspectacular" attack on Sir Adam Beck. Hepburn, M.P., Provincial Liberal Leader. He declared the Conservative caucus on his decision had been permeated on one occasion and spoken against Mr. Hepburn.

As a physician he declared the Conservative members they must not give way to a Conservative Government similar to that of the Prime Minister, Hon. George S. Henry, last week, and ran afoul of Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, when he said Mr. Finlayson had stated at a public meeting that the province of Ontario was being run by its officials and the Minister (Mr. Henry) was wildly extravagant.

Sharp Exchanges.

There was a sharp exchange across the floor, medical by Challies and Kennedy, with Kennedy's statement retracting the offending statement.

Mr. McArthur called for a royal investigation of abattoirs and the packing industry, which he declared was "something concrete" in economy and emergency accounts and not grind out the "dirty work" entrusted, and objected to Hon. Herbert Bruce's statement that Canadians in Russia, he said, were taught to write "there is no God" and pictures were displayed there of workmen sweeping God from the country.

Mr. Challies devoted much of his time to the penal institutions of the province, and declared they were among the finest in the world. Treatment of prisoners was equally to be deplored, he said, but had its compensations. Prisoners, he said, were learned, as they attained maturity, crime did not pay. Mr. Challies declared prisons taught youths valuable vocational education so they might take their place in civil life after they are released from prisons.

He was strongly in favor of completion of the St. Lawrence Waterway project which, he said, was the greatest work producer in sight right now," and would bring the markets of the world closer to Canada.

AMALGAMATION NOT POPULAR

Clause Deleted by Senate Maybe Replaced by House

Ottawa, Mar. 8 (CP)—Amalgamation of Canada's two great railway systems is still unpopular with members of the House of Commons if yesterday's debate was any guide. The railway bill indicate anything. Indications are the disparaging claims expressly preventing amalgamation, deleted from the bill in the senate, may be replaced by the House Commons.

At the suggestion of Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, petty lines were almost forgotten when discussion began Tuesday yesterday on the second reading of the bill, which is designed to be a partial solution of the railway problem.

Mr. Manion had a message of optimism in connection with the railways. He believed new business had been reached and thought a recovery in general business in the near future would bring improvement in the railways.

Long known as a champion of the Canadian National and of public ownership generally, Mr. Manion, leader, former Minister of National Revenue, lent his support to the bill. Asking his colleagues to dismiss he proposed the powers given the arbitral tribunal should be vested in the Board of Railway Commissioners, a body trained to the handling of railway problems.

Further debate on the bill will take place later in the week. On today private members will have a chance to give their favorite resolutions.

FORMER C. N. R. EMPLOYEE HELD

Believed to be Connected With Kidnapping of Boettcher

MONTREAL, March 8.—(CP)— Headquarters of Canadian National Railways today revealed Arthur Youngberg, held at Denver in connection with the kidnapping of Charles Boettcher Jr., had been employed on the C.N.R. as late as 1930 at Fort William, Ont.

Youngberg is one of four persons held by Colorado police in connection with the abduction of Boettcher, millionaire brewer, for which $60,000 ransom of $60,000 had been paid.

Youngberg was arrested after confession and suspected to have fled to Canada. Verne Sankey is reported to be the kidnapping gang, is also a former Canadian National Railways employee. Sankey, whose wife is among those held at Denver, disappeared from Calgary last, 1916, until he resigned with-out notice of the C.N.R. Youngberg is also reported to have been living as Melville, Sask. Sankey served at brutcman, Alberta.

CITIZEN REFUNDS TO GOVERNMENT EXCHANGE

Sold Canadian Bonds Payable In U.S. Funds

Ottawa, Mar. 8 (CP)—One of the little incidents that crop up occasionally to brighten the dull routine of the Civil Service in these dark days of budgeting against unprecedented financial emergency, had occurred today. Hon. R.H. Rhodes received, from a taxpayer, a letter in which the writer's name is withheld, a cheque refunding to the treasury $1,000 in Canadian funds received on change he had received recently on Canadian bonds payable in New York funds.

CONVICTION OF YOUTHS BRINGS ARREST OF MAN

Alleged Police Have Recorded Many Complaints.

On a charge of selling hard cider, Thomas Ellicott of Camelton appeared in the city police court this morning and was remanded for one week by Magistrate Mikel upon request of the defendant's counsel.

Ellicott was arrested by the provincial police late yesterday afternoon at his home and arraigned this morning. He was closely followed in the examination of four youths in the police court yesterday, who were apprehended by the provincial police in an intoxicated condition at a dance recently held near Camelton.

Ellicott was lodged in the county jail but bail will be provided later today.

The Lincoln Highway is over 3,-300 miles long.

THRILLING RACE STAGED FOR THIRD PLACE

Canadiens and Amerks All Square for Third Place with Six Games Yet to be Played

Americans Scoore 2 to 1 Overtime Win to Tie Habitants

LEAFS WALLOPED

Maroons Set Them Back in Montreal With 7-2 Beating

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Tense struggle at Maple Leaf Gardens between the Canadiens for the last playoff berth in the International Hockey League's Canadian section found them all square today with six games to go. A 2-1 overtime win by the Canadiens' hockey proteges combined for six overtime goal last night that gave Americans a 2-1 triumph over Canadiens at New York and obliterated the two-point margin held by the Montrealers in the standings.

Eight seconds after the overtime started Calgary-born Rosario Malbeuf, in wheedled Canadiens' defense out of position and slipped a pass to his Winnipeg team-mate, Red Wilson, who, from left wing, drove circled a shot past George Hainsworth for the winning goal.

Prior to those game-winning goal all the scoring was done in the penalty-ridden first period. Leo Bourgeault sank Canadiens' goal, while Americans were paired to the man, on a play with Johnny Gagnon and Aurel Joliat. George Patterson making his first appearance in two weeks, retaliated while Canadiens and Amerks were tied with the aid of Bill Brydge and Lloyd Klein, upsalned for Americans.

Leafs Walloped 7-2

Boston Bruins nicked a point from Detroit's first place Cubs in the position lead when they smashed the Red Wings for a 7-2 victory last night and handed into second place over the idle New York Rangers. The Montreal Maroons helped Boston's 7-2 to settle their own supporting hungry ends. Cubs Black Hawks threatened with a sale or trade, rumored Chicago, Brooklyn and the other games played last night.

Harvey Ward accounted for four of Boston's goals, which put them in place and was top six nine points. Tiny Thompson, Bruins goalie, is setting point-scorer of the Canadian section by scoring the first goal and Harvey Jackson kept pace with his second goal of the season. Aurel Joliat Canadien and Glen Brydson shot the other Maroon markers. Ace Bailey scored the only goal for the other Toronto goal to his record.

Detroit and Boston thrilled 12,000 rabid hockey fans at the Motor City bang display. Nels Stewart hung Detroit's Jeremy Jacobs blue-line goal enough to score twice and win in another after a scoreless first period. Stewart with his 16th and 17th to furnish Vic Ripley his second goal in the Boston uniform in the second period then took Rodie Shore's pass for another.

Open Season

George Owen sallied through for the third Boston goal before the second period ended and the third period was none complex, then Stewart took a double pass from Leads and Jackson to make the count 4-0. Johnny Sorrell robbed Thompson of Shore's shutout in the season when he drilled the puck into him after Goalie Wilson and Goldsworthy had prevented him with the opening.

Frederick Scaughlin came out with a threat to trade or sell any member of his Cubbie team, but even before the game at Chicago rather Tommy Gorman and the Black Hawks got busy. Munn Marsh had the Cubs' No. 1 goal and two assists; Billy Burch, Art Coulby, Lola Cousins and Dunnie MacKechnie were his others. Ebbie Goodfellow of Howe, youthful Ottawa centre, moved temporarily to left wing to aid of Danny Cox and Desse Roach.

MANAHAN IS UNDEFEATED

Win Two Games in McDonald Brier Competition

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—The curling pack started in pursuit of Clifford Manahan and his Edmonton Rorths from Alberta today and they had the longest lap of the three-day Manahan Brier trophy competition in which to overtake the western-er.

The champions of Alberta got the jump yesterday in the semi-round-robin Canadian title series by defeating successively the champions of New Brunswick and the champions of Northern Ontario while all but one of the other champions, they too are here won and lost.

Manahan's rink faced H. C. Forster and his Montreal Thistles in the afternoon game and as the Quebec lads is the only contender still without a victory the Albertans are strong favorites to hold a lead at least till noon.

In the matinee fixture they hook up with Gordon Campbell, who skips Hamilton's Victoria Thistles and sit night he bumps into Sas-katoon, represented by Cliff Mc-Lachlan. Oyhtsan is the only team be in other hands before the bag is day is over—but it may not.

In other morning games Johnny Dowgher's Strathcona Curlers from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick played Ontario and Saskatchewan met Northern Ontario.

N. H. L. All-Star Team Announced After Large Vote

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Oh well now we find that there are a small few Buffalo hockey fans still very much in the running. The Bellsville Collegiate Institute Intermediate hockey team defeated the Belleville Collegiate Institute Intermediate team in the C.O.S.S.A. hockey series, which took place last week. The juniors won their first play-off game at Tweed and enjoy a two goal lead, when they take to the ice against the north-enders Saturday night. The Belleville-Shieks-couched seniors face a stiff task, however, as they will try to even-come a three goal lead garnered by the Tay Marmora seniors at Madoc last Thursday night. Coach Kinkie has reason to be both of these games played as a double header at the Arena on Saturday night.

We understand that this team of pucksters from Marmora are no "set-ups" and play a smart game of hockey. All season we have been periodically reminded that the Marmora Tigers have garnered a real team of puck chasers. Not until they gave the Madoc seniors a real "going over" to the tune of a 12 to 1 did we realize that the information coming out of the northern part of the county carried some weight. With two wins under their belt up up for one admission price the Belleville fans should get a good turn-out of fans on Saturday evening.

We inadvertently forgot to mention that all games to be played in the Belleville and District peewee hockey league will be played at the Belleville Arena with the opening game scheduled for next Monday night. On paper the senior peewee competition of Cobourg, Campbellford, Trenton, Napanee and the local Clies Service entry should be a keg much stronger than the old season Kingston City League. Every one knows the strength of the Trenton and Campbellford clubs, while the Napanee and Cobourg and Kingston keep only to be late climaxed by Clies Service in the playoff as they came up well with the other four teams. As for Cobourg they are allowed for four players for a radius of 25 miles from that town, which gives them Fort Hope, Brownsville and all points down along the lake shore as far as Bowmanville. Napanee and the Cobourg club, has garnered a pretty fair team of juveniles, which includes such players as Archie Campbell, the Elliott brothers, Al "Shaw" and Jimmie and many other juvenile players from along the lake shore district.

In their annual quest for the provincial collegiate basketball honors three local teams of cagers will compete in the provincial play-downs in Trenton Friday night. The B.C.I. senior girls won their group in the C.O.S.S.A. and both the junior and senior boys teams at the local zeal of learning came down in front of their group. The local senior team are up against the fast Niagara Falls C. I. outfit, while the others will meet teams from the west of Western Ontario during the elimination series, which take place at Hamberd Collegiate Institute in Toronto. All three teams stand a good chance to make a real showing in the provincial play-downs this year, we understand, for the junior girls' team were defeated in the final game by a single point after a rather hectic tussle. May they're-turn winners this year.

The aftermath of Monday night's hockey game, merely simmers to this; "the bears gave their all but, even then they are not good enough to stem the tide". Second guessing has always had its place in sport, as here goes. There is no denying the fact that the Bakerite carried the rubber into Tweed on the one month enough to win a half dozen hockey games but that's not going to bulge the twine. What the old hockey needed was an outstanding goal getter. Red "Conner" Arnott or "Dave" Whales, in their palmy days, had so many goals to their credit as did the green and white on Monday night. They could have scored the proverbial "jag full."

Some little talk has been heard about town relative to the possibilities of new blood being injected into the ranks of the Belleville Intermediate hockey team. A team of intermediate hockey would be a real addition to the town and those of two high class forwards, who can score goals, when inside the opposing defence. It was no disgrace to be beaten by a team besetting of Lonsdale Juniors, as was proven by Herbie Moran for his St. Catharines, to be beaten by either Toronto Mercantile League to sign the best players on the dating list. One new heavy hitting defenceman would not come amiss either. Give us a couple of Bryan and Jack Goldsmith's at the pay-off station about a year from today.

While we have been working fervently along the lines of hockey the local league baseball sought to have not only stocked up on material for spring training but are right. Judging by the way the Yanks and the Giants are hard at it while the Cubs are getting a preliminary work in the making—"Babe" Ruth has yet to step on the Florida soil. As Taylor Spink, in the St. Louis Sporting News, and all baseball newspapers say, "if your looking for publicity nabs, well O.K. Babe, but if your in earnest about signing for $85,000.00 per, you should remember, that there's a depression on Mr. Ruth." Many baseball fans have been consternated during the winter months with the apparent absence of the players do not know but what spring training camp they

MIDGETS WIN FIRST GAME

Preston of Newmarket Scores One Goal For Winning Team

Stratford, March 8 (CP)—Playing before a house packed almost to capacity, Stratford Midgets Tuesday night took the measure of the Newmarket Red Shirts, 3 to 1, in the first game of the O.H.A. junior finals. Despite the fact that Preston, of Newmarket, in attempting to clear the rubber from his own net, notched Stratford's second goal the Midgets deserved their win on the night's play. Stratford had to fight every inch of the way to gain their verdict. And they might even have to show a little more to win the second game and the championship in Toronto on Saturday afternoon.

The teams, probably as evenly matched as any junior finalists, were both keyed to high pitch, but the coolest was clean throughout, and only a few penalties for minor infractions were handed out.

For the first two minutes the visiting team appeared the more aggressive, and their fast-skating forwards soon had Gerth's defenders pads. Mann drew the first shot on the goal, but Gerth handled it magnificently. The Stratford goalie showed about the best form of the O.H.A. season. On two occasions in the second period and once again in the third Newmarket had the Stratford defence beaten, only to be cheated by Gerth.

BLACK HAWK OWNER READY TO SELL ALL

Says it is Last Season to be Out of Money

Chicago, March 8—Expressing dissatisfaction with the club's showing this season, Owner Frederic McLaughlin today announced that a prominent member of the Black Hawks, Chicago National Hockey League entry, is up for sale or trade.

The club owner refused to disclose the identity of his player, but said individual certain of his job, Major McLaughlin added.

"Gorman took over a pretty sick outfit, and kept it alive in pretty well. We are in accord on the idea that something must be done to better this club. It is apparent that not a few of our players have outlived their usefulness, and their places are needed, and we'll get them."

Major McLaughlin said he had time a hockey team of mine finish out of the money for the first time since Monday on I will sell or trade any member of the squad or all of them if necessary. The Black Hawks finished fourth in the Stanley Cup series last season.

Manager Tommy Gorman, astute Canadian hockey took exception to mid-season, is the only individual certain of his job, Major McLaughlin noted.

"Gorman took over a pretty sick outfit, and kept it alive pretty well. We are in accord on the idea that something must be done to better this club. It is apparent that not a few of our players have outlived their usefulness, and their places are needed, and we'll get them."

TEAM FINALLY IS SELECTED

Roach And Boucher Replace Gardiner And Morenz

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Little John Ross Roach, who knew ten long years ago what it was to be a hero and got himself sold "down the river" after last season when he was no hero at all, came back in the hockey peaks today along with veteran-beaten Frankie Boucher, who played for New York Cook brothers.

Together they crossed out two famous names and joined the Canadian Press National League all-star team for 1933. Roach, sensational veteran of Detroit Red Wings, pushed aside Charles Gardiner of Chicago to become the game's ranking goalie and Boucher displaced Howie Morenz.

Lawrence (Baldy) Northcott, first a fair-to-middling winger a year ago and this season the biggest gun in the Montreal Maroons' attack, is the only other newcomer to the select gallery, chosen by 23 sports writers in National cities. The writers named first and second teams as follows:

TRENTON BOWLING

Trenton, March 8 (Special)—The Night Hawks are champions of Monday night six-man finals in the Major League bowling between the Cubbies and the Night Hawks.

The former won the second half of the schedule and the latter the first section, and after six hectic games the Night Hawks Organized Baseball Team won the glory, only six pins difference in the totals. J. Quarrie of the Night Hawks had a total of 1277 for six games and high individual single with a 245 to his credit.

The new ten pin league opened last night with the Clydes taking 3 points from the Cubbies. Clydes won the first game by a slight margin of 222 and three string of 540.

RADIO BOARD MAKES DEAL

Plants And Leases of C. N. R. Acquired by Commission

OTTAWA, March 8.—At a valuation as yet undisclosed the Dominion Broadcasting Commission will immediately take over the broadcasting facilities of the Canadian National Railways.

Broadcasting stations at Moncton, Ottawa and Vancouver are the chief physical properties involved and these will become the property of Canada's National Broadcasting System.

It is understood that time leases on stations at Montreal, Toronto and other points will also be taken over by the Commission as well as the staffs now employed by the three company stations.

Arrangements are under way for leasing or land wires necessary to national hook-ups, while a proposal is also being paid to preparation of programs for the new non-political National broadcaster.

The Government has set a price at which the radio department of the C.N.R. will be taken over. It will not be taken out of the $1,000,000 voted this year for radio. The C.N.R. will be given credit for the amount and there will be charged against the future votes to the Commission, probably over a term of years.

Tuesday Parliament of the arrangement today Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals.

"There is another saving that will be brought into effect in a few days, because it is intended that the Canadian National will sell to the Dominion Radio Commission their whole radio plant as a figure has been decided upon.

"This will eliminate many drain upon the O.N.R. and, as the staff is being taken over by the Radio Commission, it will mean economy at the expense of further unemployment."

NO SORE ARMS IN CAMP OF YANKEES

Trainer Afraid he is Going to Lose Job

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8 (AP) —The New York Yankees thought through the first ten days of training in such excellent shape that Doc Painter, the trainer, is getting genuinely worried.

"Say, if someone doesn't get hurt or something pretty soon," he said, "the club will have nothing to do but don't need a trainer and then where will I be?"

There hasn't been a sore arm or "charley-horse" in the camp since the athletes began work.

TEAMSTER BADLY HURT IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Five Ribs Broken and Severe Body Bruises

NAPANEE, March 8.—Thrown forward from a load of ice when his horses became unmanageable on Napanee hill, George Bell, of North Fredericksburg township, was run over by the heavy wheels of the heavily-loaded vehicle and received dangerous body wounds. He had five ribs broken besides receiving severe bruises. It is feared serious complications of a hemorrhage on the right side. He is suffering severely from shock and his blood has been classified for a transfusion if necessary, Dr. F. Cameron Wilkes ordered the man removed to Kingston General Hospital. Bell was engaged in hauling ice for Denison Brothers, when the accident happened.

SCOTS GUARDS FOR EX.

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—The band of the Scots Guards, one of the most famous in Great Britain, will play at the Canadian National Exhibition this fall, officials of the Canadian National Fair announced today. Permission of the King has been secured for the members to make the trip to Canada. In bringing the band here the Exhibition will be furthering their policy of presenting the best of British band music.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

By Emmy Tuomy

Alack Fellows sang sorrily to herself as she moved around the tiny kitchen. Her voice, usually melodious, drone was causing puzzled looks on her shy customers. Perfect strangers to Alack's grief struggle, since she would get for the passing word go into her trip from Scotland to California and spread this morsels with her recently widowed friend, Dave Fellows. She would be good for both of them by the time her car pulled.

Anne was wiping the same area with a soft damp cloth when Alack finally finished shuffling dress, opening the back porch door and a blast of futility in his mild blue eyes.

"Letter from Chicago," he said blow to Margie?" asked Annie.

"How much does she want?"

"Now, now, Dave, you have to send it right away."

"Never can tell what has happened. Money with city people is different. Always changing. Guess it is because they spy so much buying and selling all the time."

Annie wrote and ask her what she wants the money for. If it is something that can be provided for, why not send it? Then if she doesn't have to pay it back before January, tell her that is the place to send it to California."

"I'll send tonight," said Jim," and I'll ask her what she wants it for. If it is something foolish I won't send it."

Anne kept on rubbing the glass jars with more vigor than ever when Jim left the house. She had never cared for Margie's husband. Dave is too much wrapped up in her for husband Dave Fellows who worries the child, especially if he didn't look out. Margie was always talking about the wonderful time she cooked for him. Was that what Margie was going to do with the loan? Buy fancy food for Dave?

Anne continued up. She must stop thinking such things. Showed that she was mean. Dave was right. She would ever know how she had worked for the money. Canning patches had only been a hobby. She had picked wild berries in the fall. She had hoarded cream! she had collected cottage cheese in little jars. She had dressed spring broilers and baked cookies from an old recipe. And then all the peddling in their terrible-looking old car.

Sometimes she wondered how she had ever found the strength to bake as the time for all the extra work she had done.

Jim rose to Margie that they had no money except what they had saved for her trip. He explained carefully how they would let her have it before January 1st if really needed it.

Margie sent back a frantic letter. She needed the money at once but she would be able to send it back before January as Dave, who was a consulting engineer, was going to land a big job. When Dave had money he always gave her a generous allowance. She could easily save enough out of it to repay Anne.

Jim sent the money the next day. The letter that she had received it and would pay it back without fail. She would send it back in installments from her allowance. October passed without a word from Margie. November. The first of December Jim wrote a letter of reminder. Two weeks later he wrote another letter and sent a wire.

"She has no intention of paying back," said Jim grimly. "Dave is a fool. Always did think so. Now get the money or else."

"Because if you don't, I'll make you sorry," Anne said tragically.

"Oh!" said Jimmy. "So you're one, too. Well, I'm not. It is a long time since any one has told Mrs. Jimmy to do anything. I don't want to do so. You'll make no more trouble and do it. You don't know Margie and I do. The stopping put the pinch. Come, on kid."

Jimmy scowled at Anne. Jimmy was a big man, and Anne, small as the latter he was fairly bellow with anger. At last he succeeded in beating to feel rather foolish. The worst of it was he was likely to have his threat carried out. Jimmy had Margie and he knew it. He had made a fool of himself when he had said Mrs. Jimmy would make Jimmy obey. That was an unfortunate slip of the tongue. There was no doubt about that.

"I can tell you it I want to," growled Reddy.

"Then you don't want to," retorted Jimmy. "That is, you would like to have me believe you don't want to tell me yourself."

"Who says I don't?" snarled Reddy, growing angry every minute.

"I do," replied Jimmy skunk. "You know it would be so unpleasant afterward."

Reddy did know. He had no desire to have Jimmy see that hide of his. He had to see him. It was true that he was bigger and stronger than Jimmy, but Jimmy had sharp teeth and claws only could kill Reddy, and it was a little that he didn't dare face that some-pun of Jimmy's and he knew that Jimmy was dead. He wanted Jim and Anne to stand in the background.

"I've got no money," said Jim Fellows.

"We will have to use my trip money," said Anne. "You must go to your dear cousin."

To herself she said: "And I will go and tell Margie how I feel and show them to Dave. He must pay me."

It was after the funeral while Jim was out for a walk that she had that conversation with Dave in her hand. She found Dave thumbing down in a big chair when she open fire.

"Glad you came home," he said. "I want to talk about Margie. It will make me feel better to think over her bad luck with Mrs. Jim's consolation. Always bright and cheerful. Always trying to make the best of things. And saving. Take those pennies she saved. That is my

By Rex Beach

Mrs. Stevens possessed herself of the money and rose, whereupon Lee Ying stayed her, saying:

"A moment, please, Madame. I owe you one more thing and I would be lost in politeness if I permitted you to leave my humble dwelling without a suitable company. Now Tsen's is a carnival season, yes; great joy, no sorrow—tiring refreshments." Announcing the private citizens, he clapped his hands and a houseboy appeared; this one exchanged words in Cantonese.

Soon, Chinese lanterns in the room, stanchion, grew rigid attentively he listened.

With the conclusion of the business matter, Lee Ying stood in front of his guests, whose shoulders he became a punctilious host. A gracious host, for the refreshments were carried out: his orders he maintained a flow of pleasant conversation about the Celestial Empire New Year customs, the which his visitors doubtless would have enjoyed more if they had been less impatient to begin.

Trays were brought in after a while, some loaded with English dishes and others with a delicious assortment of strange delicacies. The wine poured was Chinese, with the flavor of which was unlike anything the Americans had ever partaken of tasted, and Lee Ying made a good deal of a ceremony over each glass. He delayed the drinking of it long enough to recite the old folk-lore legend which had originated with the discovery of the beverage. It was quite a story and he appeared to enjoy telling it, he became more genial as the momento passed.

While he was talking a telephone bell tinkled faintly in the adjoining room, and a voice answered it. The voice was strange to Sam and Mrs. Stevens, but it had an effect.

Mrs. Stevens nibbled at a crumb-cake by each mouthful. The room was manifestly not big enough for the two of them. Sam, in the humor this talkative old parrot. Fifty thousand dollars! In brand new banknotes!

The servant reappeared and delivered a message to Lee Ying with an employer whereupon Lee Ying smiled and his voice sharpened. He was ready to focus a sudden alert attention upon Sam.

"I told you earlier that today is the last day of the year. That is the day upon which we allow our debts to run. We Chinese pay in full today or we lose face. Now I have confirmed upon receiving that which I have sought for. Sir Charles Stevens upon Rather Stevens and they are coming to my house this day to bring your daughter to this establishment for purposes I am doing. I have detained you here

The object of his remark uttered a cry and rose, as if propelled by a steel spring, from her chair. There a startled voice and he, too, rose. Sharpest alert was Sam. The cry of the old man extended a restraining hand. The old woman exclaimed to her companions:

"Come on! I want to get out of this!"

"Never to gladden the heart of your mother again!" Ying smiled. "You have been imposed upon, dear!"

"What the hell—?" Hinnes broke off. Alice came out, too. Her mother Marcus had paled, he cast a startled, furtive glance about the room. "Is this a trick, Sam? Is this those Shanghai sharks around here? Is she confessed upon a charge of—of—what?"

"Of what?" This came from Alice.

"Money!" the mother queried. "What do you mean, Charles?"

"I—I—" In sudden suspicion she blazed forth: "Have you pitched me, Sam? Have you lied to me? What have you done to her?"

"Not a thing, through which Lee Ying's house boy had come and gone on a silent, two footsteps, appeared and one of them answered: "Yes, Master." At the station house Headless of the dismay caused by his interruption, the servant added as he came forward: "The inspector has rang up to tell us she was there and waiting, and I—I—"

"Stupid!" Lee Ying's voice was sharp. "And don't try to slough that off, sister. I'm not any good for so many heads and said wretchedly:

"Alas, that I bring!"

"Your heart-sent old age, I have failed. I am disgraced—" Lee Ying's voice softened. "Comfort me, my son. It is not you who are to blame. I am sure you have forgiven cause of this disaster."

"Yes, Master." The servant withdrew.

"Everything is all right," Lee Ying spoke to Sam. "Everything is all right, Mrs. Stevens. "She says she isn't responsible for—"

"Sam!" Hinnes broke in. "Sam, what's the matter with you? Are you sick?"

"Sick?" Sam's head was whirling. "Sick? No, I'm all right. I'm—I'm—"

"Then you're drunk!" Hinnes declared with an affable smile. "Is that what's the matter with you, Sam? Is that what's the matter with you?"

"Yes, I won't be still." They can keep their money if they want to, and I'll try to slough that evil, sister. I'll have got the numbers and everything. Yeah! The girl certainly put it over on you."

Both newcomers chuckled at the humor of his last remark.

Marcus, very white and flurried now, broke in: "Your daughter, Sam, but the other member of the pair grinned at him and replied: "Not quite one laugh at a time, can't you? Or maybe there's some mistake. There always is. And you don't know us, either. Well, we're the people that young policemen, trying to get ahead. We've got badges and everything. Here's the bidding."

"It was for——the good of the family," explained Hinnes lamely. "I had the grace to be apologetic but Lee Ying interrupted with a wave of his hand. "Let us not be offended. The alumni resented the stain I had put upon——"

Lee Ying interrupted with a gesture. "It is unimportant. I am innocent of all wrong——"

"Then you're innocent?" Sam appeared with the welfare of the colony at its reputation at the expense of its superiors. College must live. Innocently or otherwise——"

"Then mine lies innocently. I am the victim of an economic process. Sir Charles Stevens, while gay——"

"Sir Charles Stevens!" Sam cried. Two white girls, one a student! The very association is a scandal. Parents are threatening to withdraw their children. Trustees present a protest against a condition which makes it possible——"

"It has always existed."

"Yes, but trustees never dreamed that their own immaculate offspring would take such associations with us dissolute Orientals. Lee Ying, you've got to get out of this town. Immaculate!" Sam uttered an American oath that would have shocked Lee Ying at any other time. "They admitted that I had done no wrong, no very grievous wrong at least. They even put the blame for the affair upon Alice where it belonged. But a principle was involved. The races must not mix, they must not come in contact outside the lecture rooms. It is repugnant to American ideas of social contact."

After a moment Lee Ying inquired: "What do you mean in what I've been through."

"Sorry, well, I had intended it to come later, but it is an education in itself. There is the story of Tang Ying lived more than a thousand years ago: a very clever young man who, by the use of his wits, came to be a foolish and unreasonable tyrant."

"You are no tyrant."

"I am on a long voyage to distant parts of the world where the new many extraordinary sights. When he returned home he was received with honors. He was in the country and received high honors. The world spilt in two colleges: one could trace like a Mandarin and see it all."

Lee Ying was smiled, there was a mist in his eyes, but he shook his head gravely. "I've got not wholly understand me."

"Why indigent Chinese come out, too. Her name was not and but she was described as a beautiful art student from Shanghai. Shanghai sharks indeed. Eastern and who was now pursuing studies in the Occident. Yes, yes."

Whatever interest all this stirred up in Hinnes' family ended in a sensation on the campus of Sam's college.

Shanghai, Lee Ying heard a stir in the hallway of his house and Sam's voice, low and tense. He was speaking, he was directing Mey to go to bed. Then Sam entered, his voice heart the father rose and when he saw his daughter he held out his hand. They embraced each other and for a moment neither spoke; then Sam said:

"Your unworthy son has returned to you, Father. He is not knowledge is at an end."

"Terms of gladness spring up in my heart at your coming" Lee Ying said. "I have failed. I am disgraced——"

"Yes, I've been a fool," Sam admitted, "but I'm not going to slough that evil, sister. I'll be all right. I'm—I'm—"

"Then, Father, I'm sorry I've been so much trouble," Mey said. "I'm sorry I've been so much trouble and I'm sorry I've been so much trouble and I'm sorry I've been so much trouble and

BOOTLEG MILK AND PROBLEM OF INSPECTION

Importance of "Scoring" Barns and Stables at Montreal

MILK TEST

Montreal Means of Securing Guarantee of Pure Milk Supply

Ottawa, Mar. 9 (CP)—The procedure adopted by the Montreal Board of Health to ensure to the metropolis a supply of pure milk was outlined to the House of Commons Committee on Agriculture here today. Dr. J. J. O. Hood, superintendent of food inspection for Montreal, explained how milk produced in the Montreal neighborhood were "scored" under regulations set forth by the board. This "scoring" of the farmers' barns and stables contemplated a maximum of 100 points. The milk itself, quality for the right of supplying the distributors, is also graded to a score 50 points or over.

For many years the Montreal authorities had appealed to the provincial legislature for authority to license milk producers.

Total of Inspectors

There had been a great deal said about "bootleg milk", said Dr. Hood. Efforts to control the supply were opposed by the authorities; but it must be remembered, he said, that a number of inspectors were limited, and many roads led into Montreal.

Dr. Hood explained the system of supervision; over-milk tests made by the companies and the investigations conducted by the police of the disabled automobiles that escape traffic inspection as mandated by the authorities. All costs of inspection and operation of that branch of the department were defrayed by the city.

Pasteurization Benefits

"Pasteurization has very little effect on the vitamin content of milk," Dr. Hood told the committee. He had two children who had benefitted from a health viewpoint on pasteurized milk.

"I have four children who have grown quite healthy on the real raw milk." Dr. T. F. Donnelly (Lib., Wolfe Island) also testified.

Between 1907 and 1922, the death rate among babies had been cut by one-half in Montreal, Dr. Hood asserted. This decline decreased to a trickle as a considerable extent to pasteurized milk.

George Gerrard (Lib., Kamouraska) thought "too much credit was given to pasteurized milk from the health viewpoint as compared with the special raw milk supply."

Scientific Research

"There is very little of any real benefit sold in Montreal today," said Col. T. A. Mullins (Cons., Marquette).

"It is certainly not the old bottle-milk that used to drink out of the old dash churn," commented Col. Mullins, who had often dabbled in dairy-farming. "I remember the old-time "cowjess, soulless, chickenless farm."

Dr. Hood said that milk should be sold under the seal of Montreal City.

"GUILTY" SAYS ZANGARA ON MURDER BILLS

Reiterates "I Want to Kill All Kings And Presidents"

HIS WORDS HALTED

Two Charges of Killing, One of Them of Premeditated Murder

Miami, Fla., March 9 (AP)— Giuseppe Zangara pleaded guilty to charges of murdering Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago when his mad shooting spree at Miami President Roosevelt here February 15, 1933.

Zangara's plea was entered by Louis F. Twyman, chief of the counsel appointed by him after Zangar himself had said, in response to a query he gotit he was State Attorney H. Vernon Haw-thorne.

"I want to kill the President. I want to kill all kings and presidents," Zangara had declared on a lengthy discourse but was halted by Twyman.

The latter said his client would plead guilty to the fifth count of the indictment returned Monday by a special convened Crown Jury if the court would accept it.

The first count charged Zangara with killing Mayor Cermak as he tried to kill the President, the second charge premeditated murder of Mr. Cermak.

BRITISH ARMY IS NO LARGER

Charges And Counter Charges Heard by Inspector

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 9 (CP Cable) Britain's increased army estimates do not indicate increase in the size of the British Army, nor do they call for additional expenditure for war.

On these two points A. Duff Cooper, financial secretary to the War Office, was emphatic today in the house of commons today.

"The estimates simply means replacing guns made during the financial crisis," he explained. "The additional bankruptcy was regarded as a matter of sufficiency to the fighting forces," he declared.

The British army is quite sufficient. I am unable to carry out the police duty for which it is responsible throughout the Empire," today chided the war office official.

The estimates show an increase of £1,462,000 over last year's figures but this is offset by a decrease in estimates of 1931. The total estimates this year are £37,850,000.

ESTIMATES OF ROYAL FLEET UP 3 MILLIONS

Britain Will Build Navy Up to Treaty Strength

WORK ON CRUISERS

Automatic Rise in 1933 of "Non-effective" of £738,340

London, March 9—(CP Cable)— The Royal Navy estimates for 1933 released today total £53,570,000, an increase of £1,603,700 over last year. Almost all the increase—£2,335,300—is accounted for by decision to make immediate progress with new construction and replacement. This includes four cruisers of 7,000 tons, secondary 8in cruisers, in order to carry out the replacement programme of cruisers in 1936 under terms of the London Treaty.

The estimates provide that agreement will proceed to build the navy up to treaty strength. This is considerably underlayed by the financial crisis of the 1931 and afterwards.

An accompanying memorandum sets out "a large part of the normal expenditure on shipbuilding in 1931 was deliberately retarded and beyond into subsequent years by the overlapping record between England and the Cape, held by Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison.

Fewer Cruisers

The programme for 1933 includes work on the 8in cruisers, the keel laying one of the Leander type (7,000 tons, armed with 6-inch guns) one destroyer Flotilla Leader and eight destroyers, three submarines, three sloops, one convoy sloop, one coastal sloop and smaller auxiliary craft.

The reductions in personnel and submarines are the same as in previous years. The memorandum notes the treaty became effective while the final installment of the regular replacement programme is being brought back up to date strength.

The remainder of the increase over last year, it was explained, "does little more than make good the shortfalls in the 1932 non-effective." This portion is £738,340. It will involve £19,000 will cover increase in the cost of the maintenance of ships at sea arm. No new agendrons are provided.

MARCH LION BARES TEETH

Storm Visiting City Almost Reaches Blizzard Proportions

A March lion, with bared teeth, held full sway over the stage today on an icy throne, while a fierce blizzard howled around the month with spring-like promises, disappearing into the background in the early hours of the evening, leaving gale from the west which by daylight, had reached blizzard evening.

Drifting almost the proportions of the blizzard, that was fell in the west where the intensity of the gale was reported. Gusts of near strong winds created little damage, except to a few signboard lines installed sections, and a fewer number of chimney pots.

Snow fell steadily and heavily throughout the afternoon and early tuesday later turning to sleet that froze trees, buildings and wires with a thick coating. A few trees and tree branches in the city, a number of wires down in the rural areas and minor damage, caused by the ice and the gale was all the damage was reported.

Traffic was hindered on all highways by the slippery roads and many heavy snow plows. No accidents, but little damage, however was reported..

Roads out of the city on Thursday were reported open, although icing was reported in the north. Road, according to the driver of the Toronto bus, were slippery but good, but owing to the icy condition of the roads, cars were subject to disruption or schedules on other stage, bus or coach lines have been disrupted.

Garages again did considerable business with their cars, hundreding travellers and their cars from the highways. Many cars have been had stalled with short-circuited wiring, due to the sleet, which penetrated the crannies of the hoods to the local shops.

In the city department of public works employees were kept busy throughout the day sanding various sections of the city. They were aiding traffic in the city, but the streets from on the walks assumed a corrugated surface as it froze.

Banking Legislation Will Lift Clouds of Unwarranted Doubts and of Suspicions, President Tells Congress

Slashing Drastically of Federal Expenditures Plan Of President, Who Will Ask for Support To Balance Budget

OTHER BANKS AFTER REORGANIZATION

Money Markets Encouraged by Plans of New President in Address to Senate And House of Representatives This Afternoon

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt in his message to the United States Congress today proposed immediate opening of all sound banks and provisions for currency expansion during the banking reorganization.

"I can not too strongly urge upon the Congress the close necessity for immediate action," he declared.

He will request of Congress "at an early moment" two other measures which he regards of "immediate urgency."

It was understood in Capitol quarters that these would refer to granting him power to cut federal expenses drastically, including those for veterans, and also for getting to work on a huge building programme to provide employment.

"It is my belief," the President told Congress in a message of 508 words "that this legislation (banking legislation) will not only lift immediately all unwarranted doubts and suspicions in regard to banks which are 100 per cent. sound but will also mark the beginning of a new relationship between the banks and the people of this country."

The text follows:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"On March 3 banking operations in the United States ceased. To review at this time the causes of the failure of our banking system is unnecessary. Suffice it to say that the government has been compelled to step in for the protection of depositors and the foundation of the nation.

"Our first task is to reopen all sound banks. This is an essential preliminary to subsequent legislative action directed against speculation with the funds of depositors and other evils of a vicious system of trust.

"In order that the first objective—the opening of banks for the emergency of business—may be accomplished, I ask of the congress the immediate enactment of legislation giving to the comptroller of the government control over the banks for the purpose of reopening them; authority forthwith to open such banks as conform to rules and regulations to be laid down in consultation and other such banks as rapidly as possible.

POWER GIVEN BY CONGRESS

Tremendous Currency Expansion is Given Authorization

Washington, March 9 (AP)— The United States Congress moved this afternoon to grant sweeping powers to President Roosevelt to empower him to reopen "sound banks" and to take other emergency measures to relieve the financial situation.

Spurred by his call for "immediate action" Senate and House alike acted, writing into the law a new revision of banking statutes among the most extensive in history.

Even while his brief message was being read to crowded galleries in the Senate chamber, the big financial and legislative authorities were at work behind locked doors putting the finishing touches on the all-embracing bill.

Aged and Children Only Visible in Shuttered Towns as Japs Advance

By James A. Mills

Jehol City, Jehol (with the Japanese army), March 9—(AP)—A 350-mile journey across Jehol with the advancing Japanese force during the past week disclosed a series of practically deserted villages with 95 percent of the buildings shuttered and only the aged and children visible when the Japanese entered.

Closely in the wake of the victorious army were Manchukuo's "publicity wagons," loaded with flashy, gaudy posters proclaiming the Japanese-advised government of Manchukuo an earthly paradise.

City walls were placarded, while troops were still marching in and professional Chinese-speaking propagandists harangued the remaining populace, trying to re-assure Manchukuo and promising liberation from the "unbearable" misrule, corruption and exactions of Chinese war lords.

Currency is Not Debased in Plan to Rescue Banks

Washington, March 9.—(AP)— The 73rd United States Congress convened in extraordinary session at noon today, to all intents ready and eager to act within a matter of hours on emergency currency expansion and banking regulation legislation designed to enable bank reopenings tomorrow.

Opening formalities had to be carried through before the special message from President Roosevelt could be read, including the formal notification by Speaker Rainey of Illinois, to the Speaker's ship to the House.

Arrangements were ready for quick reference of the new banking bill to committees of the House and Senate, and the Democratic leader-ship of Representa-tives in the House.

Reports from the top rank of Congressional authority displayed practically complete agreement on the main points of the emergency programme.

Resources of the banks would be determined by the Comptroller of the Currency for final action by and by the Federal Reserve Board for the future operation of that system.

Reserve From Reserve Bank

Banks adjudged sound would be allowed to borrow from the Federal Reserve Banks, if necessary, additional currency on the proposed programme, "so they could pay every depositor within 24 hours if necessary."

Banks determining unsound would be closed by receivers and their deposits utilized either through the White House or the Treasury.

The currency expansion provision, informed authorities said, would not result in any debasement of currency whatever, nor would it operate through a reduction of the gold content of the dollar.

Aldrich Would Divorce Deposits And Investments

DRASTIC PLAN

New York, March 9 (AP)—Widened Wall Street looked toward Washington today and pondered the Legislative chances of Winthrop Wall Street CAPT CMPW CMPY" Aldrich, who plans to change the set-up in the financial heart of the Western world.

Aldrich, who is head of the Chase National Bank, the largest in the world, and is brother-in-law to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., proposed last night the most drastic programme of banking reform that ever emanated from Wall Street.

Not only would it divorce deposit and investment banking completely but it would create, in their stead, the Class BII, which hitherto has met much disfavor in Wall Street. One effect would be to curb severely the activities and power of leading private banking firms, notably J. P. Morgan and Company,

ENERGETIC CLUB HOLDS MEETINGS

Holloway Street Organization Hears Rev. Harold Reid

The Energetic Club of Holloway St. Church, at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening had as their guests the members of the Merry Club of the church and their leader, Mr. Archie Frederic had charge of a short devotional period following which the main feature of the evening was an illustrated travelogue through the British Empire, presented by Mr. Jack Fletcher of Rev. Harold Reid. Mr. Reid had spent some time in Canada in Germany and had had opportunities to see the countries and people. His talk and slides were very entertaining and instructive, and every one present felt that they had had the opportunity of hearing Mr. Reid.

Following the trip to Europe, Mr. Arnold Campbell made the announcement that Jack Fletcher had to move from his position as accountant in the Royal Bank here to Woodstock, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher were called to the platform and were presented with a pair of silver candlesticks as a token of friendship from the club. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher have been very active members in the club since its organization and they will be missed both from the point of view of them from the friendship and esteem with which they are held by the other members.

A contest was held, the visitors winning Mrs. Mac. Jones Cordes and Mr. B. Langabeer.

At the close of the evening lunch was served and all went home feeling that it had been both an instructive and entertaining evening. It was felt more such meetings between the two organizations in the church would be beneficial.

CHILD FALLS THROUGH ICE

McArthur's Mills Youth Drowned While Playing

Falling through the ice while playing Sunday William E. McArthur, and of McArthurs Mills, North Hastings, was drowned in the icy waters of a mill pond near his home through the village, on Saturday afternoon last.

Little Willie, the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy McArthur, McArthur's Mills, was playing near the bank of the mill pond when suddenly the ice on which he was standing gave way. He immediately disappeared under the ice. Mrs. Clifford McArthurs, a neighbour, saw the little fellow disappear under the ice and gave the alarm.

All of the villagers assisted in the rescue, and were rewarded when Mr. Ellis Wilson, of Stirling found a few yards down stream, about two hours later by his father and Mr. Amos Losey, a neighbour.

Provincial Constable Price Morris had been notified in the meantime, and arrived on the scene. An inquest was considered unnecessary by the coroner.

LOOK FORWARD TO RAIL PLAN

Freight Pick-up And Delivery Expected in Near Future

Officials of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways here in this district state that they look hopefully and expectantly to the inauguration of the same freight pick-up delivery system that is now in service on the C.P.R. lines in other sections of the province.

"No, we haven't any knowledge of the proposed plan as yet," one said, but, it undoubtedly will come in time. Probably the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway office this morning received instructions to be ready for getting a lot of business in the west since the system started, so it is very probable that it will be commenced here. It will be a good thing for the city," they added.

Freight agents and officials of the Canadian Pacific office south of the city voiced the same sentiments. "The quicker the system starts the better," they questioned. Outside of that they had little knowledge of how soon it would happen.

Belleville Branch Bank of Montreal Celebrates Its 90th Anniversary

Important Factor in City's Growth

Past And Present Conditions of Banking Told in 90 Year Record

ANCIENT CHEQUE

Oldest Customers Join in Paying Tribute to Bank of Montreal

Early days in the history of Belleville are recalled by the fact that the present year marks the ninetieth anniversary of the establishment of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. It was in 1843 that the bank appointed G. Benjamin its first agent in Belleville. From that distant day to the present time this ambitious institution of Canadian banks has continued without interruption, although the business is today being conducted under vastly different conditions.

The bank's first office was in a small red brick, one-roomed, single storey building on the north side of Victoria Avenue, about fifty yards from Front street corner, which at that time was the principal business centre of the community. Some two or three years later a move was made to a two-storey, two-storey building on the west side of Front street, business section of a large hotel, the "Anglo-American". In 1857, the bank leased a building on the Ontario Shore building on the corner of Pinnacle street and Victoria avenue (then Hotel street) where the business was carried on for upwards of 49 years. In 1906, when the former Merchants Bank of Canada was amalgamated with the Bank of Montreal, the businesses of the two banks were merged in the office of the latter institution at Front and Bridge streets.

While today Belleville has a population of about 14,000 and is the centre of one of the most prosperous agricultural and dairying sections of Canada and has also a diversity of industries which add materially to its business life to a remarkable degree, at the time the Bank opened its first branch, the town had a population of but a few hundred persons who were housed in buildings constructed, in the majority of cases, of wood and which were for the most part unpainting. There were a few "rough-cast" houses and stores, but only a couple of a large number of the Front street shops had that item dressed lumber, story-and-a-half structures, with cable end to the street. The street was then unpaved, being composed largely of saw dust and spt to be in bad condition in wet weather. The lumbering industry, which in the early days kept the town busy, continued until about 1860 when all the available timber in the vicinity had been cut. Since that time Belleville has developed and attracted many industries which have made it what it is today. The city is now the lock manufacturing centre of Canada; and during the past ten years, several United States concerns have established there. One of the most important industries started in the city's history was the selection in 1856 of Belleville by the Grand Trunk Railway as one of its chief divisional points, thus giving a quarter of the city's population are railway employees and their families.

During the first three hundred years of its existence in Belleville, the bank continued to grow and proved to be, an important factor in the growth and development of the city.

The following is a list of managers since the branch was opened: G. Benjamin, 1843-46; G. A. C. Weir, 1847; Gaulton MacAdier, 1847-48; Wm. B. Jones, 1848-49; Edward Hay, 1849-52; Alexander Nasmith, 1852-54; R. J. Dobbin, 1854-1857; G. C. Capreol, 1857-59; Thomas Cannahill, 1859-61; H. A. Tobin, 1861-65; and G. A. C. Weir, the present manager.

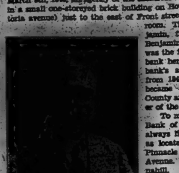
Behind the Bank of Montreal as an institution there lies a history closely interwoven with that of the Dominion of Canada. In fact the bank's history began fifty years before Confederation. It was on the 23rd of June, 1817, that nine merchants of Montreal signed Articles of Association for the establishment of the "Montreal Bank". This action marked the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, which today holds the distinction of being by far the oldest institution of its kind in British North America, and one of the largest financial institutions in the British Empire. It also established the beginnings of the Canadian banking system.

To realize the conditions which prevailed when the bank first came brought organized financing to the notice of the early pioneers of the Canadian business men, it is necessary to delve deeply into the history of the country.

The only organized portions of what is now the Dominion of Canada were the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada and the Maritime Provinces. Their whole population was less than 400,000 and that of Montreal, the chief trading centre, less than 30,000. The development of trade and industry was hampered by lack of facilities for exchange. The country was too poor to afford the luxury of a metallic circulating medium, and not only American, British and French, but also Portuguese and Spanish coins were legal tender, and the ratios of exchange into colonial money of account were subject to frequent variations. As a consequence, domestic trade was carried on principally by barter, and international trade was on a very uncertain basis.

Such were the conditions when the Bank of Montreal began business on 1st November, 1817, in modest rented premises, with a paid-up capital of $350,000. In a very short time this institution became the focal point of the business of the colony. It provided a medium of exchange such as had hitherto been lacking, nursed along the early enterprises of the country, and straightened out the difficulties of inter-urban, international trading. Its operations were conducted with conservatism and caution.

Everywhere as conditions have become ripe, the bank has opened new branches for facilitating the agricultural development of the country and its manufacturing industries, and its general commerce.



Today the bank has over five hundred and fifty branches distributed throughout Canada and Newfoundland, while its paid-up capital and reserves represent a total in excess of $75,000,000, and its assets amount to over $750,000,000. The value of the bank to the country, however, is not to be measured so much by the amount of its capital, or by the size of its dividends, as by the security it has given to those who have trusted it, the facilities it has furnished for the exchange and the increase of commodities, and the assistance it has contributed to the development of the country.

The branches of the Bank of Montreal are situated alike in the large business centres and in residential districts, in agricultural communities and in mining camps. Everywhere in Canada it is a factor in the life of the community. Today, notwithstanding its influential connections it is essentially a bank of the people, a bank where small accounts are welcomed, a bank to which all classes can come with confidence in the security of deposits entrusted to its care, and in the assurance that every facility consistent with sound banking will be extended to those who seek its services.

There has been in the past too much emphasis on actual buildings and too little on the people who are going to teach in them.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The only paradise of self-contentment are now crowded to the door with paupers."—David Lloyd George.

Bank—Past and Present

MR. G. A. C. WEIR,
Present Manager of the Belleville Branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Today, Thursday, March 9th, ushers in the beginning of the 91st year in the history of the Bank of Montreal in Belleville. On March 9th, 1843, the agency of the Montreal Bank was opened in a small one-storeyed brick building on Hotel street (now Victoria avenue) just to the east of Front street, and occupied one room. The late George Benjamin, father of Mr. Fred Benjamin, 96 Bridge St. East, was the first manager of the bank here and acted as the bank's agent and manager. From 1847 to 1847, later he became Registrar of the County and who first published one of the Intelligencer.

To many in the city the Bank of Montreal here will always be known as the premises so located at the corner of Pinnacle street and Victoria avenue. Mr. Robert Tannahill, for many years manager of the Bank of Montreal in Belleville has related much of the institution's early history. When the Montreal Bank building was erected on Pinnacle street and Victoria avenue, along the Metro River from Dundas to the present Upper Bridge was also to be a parkway and a bridge was to be erected at the north end of Pinnacle street to connect with the "Hotel de Hastings Road" which led to these parts to the settlements in the southern portion of the county. Later the bridge was built where the Upper bridge now stands.

BANK STREET IN THE OLD DAYS.

Along Front street at the time of the erection of the Montreal Bank building on Pinnacle street, there were no buildings on the north side of it and those located there and on the east side of the street were one storey or storey and a half wooden structures. For the sake of protection from fire the banking institutions of the story they did on corners with sufficient grounds surrounding them to protect them from hazard of fire.

Of prominent citizens and business men of the city it will be recalled that Mr. Robert Richardson, the fourth manager of the bank in Belleville, married the widow of Phillip Ham, its second manager or agent here.

Among the Bank of Montreal's oldest customers in the city are Mr. James Roy and Mr. Charles Cross, the former having entered his 82nd year and Mr. Roy is well on in his eighties. For spores of years they have used the Bank of Montreal to carry on their financial transactions.

Probably one of the oldest relics of the Bank of Montreal hereabouts is a cancelled cheque now in possession of Col. W. N. Ponton. This was dated April 16, 1847, and was signed by the then manager of the bank here, the late William Hutton, in payment to Richard Widman for the sum of $4-0-0. For four generations the Pentons of this city have transacted their banking business through the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Robert Tannahill of this city entered the employ of the bank here in 1870 as a junior and rose by degrees to advancing positions in Kingston, Montreal, London, Sarnia, Picton and Lindsay, returning to Belleville as accountant and assumed management of the branch here in 1902.

MANAGER'S BANKING CAREER.

G. A. C. Weir, the present manager, came to this city as the Bank of Montreal's representative in 1906, after a wide experience in the bank's interest, a greater portion of which service was spent in the ever-expanding provinces of the west. Under Mr. Weir's regime the bank has kept up its generous courtesy and attention to customers of the institution, the business of the branch here has increased considerably and it has taken its place as the commercial life of the community. During these past years of depression, he has most actively engaged in the relief work for those in need and his counsel and advice has materially assisted his associates in formulating and culminating their plans. Mr. Weir since resident here has served as president of the local board of trade, an organization and one greatly to his personal courtesy and attention to customers of the institution, the business of the branch here has increased considerably and it has taken its place as the commercial life of the community.

EXPECT SWIFT ENACTMENT

New Issue of Currency Based on Government Bonds

(By D. Harold Oliver, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, March 9.—Lightning swift enactment of President Roosevelt's first remedies for banking troubles was the prediction today of the 73rd, United States Congress, called into extraordinary session for extraordinary purposes.

When the gavels cracked at noon, both Houses and Senate had some preliminary organization work to do, but the leaders of both—including Senator Robinson of Arkansas and Speaker Rainey—pushed ahead toward completion in time before quitting work today Mr. Roosevelt's plan for a new issue of currency based on government bonds.

Except for formality ratification of committee slates and election of Senator Pittman of Nevada as president pro tempore, the Senate already had completed plans later to become the Merchants' Bank it was anticipated that the House would.

was to become the main thoroughfare of Belleville. Plans had been drawn up for an attractive park system, of which this was a part was to be made from Campbell street north to opposite Patterson street and running through to the river. The whole of the property along the Metro River from Dundas to the present Upper Bridge was also to be a parkway and a bridge was to be erected at the north end of Pinnacle street to connect with the "Hotel de Hastings Road" which led to these parts to the settlements in the southern portion of the county. CURATES MUST SERVE 3 YRS BEFORE MARRIAGE

Many Bishops Disapprove of Early Marriages

LONDON, March 9.—(CP Cable)—More than one Anglican Bishop lately has commented unfavorably upon the tendency of young clergy to marry early. Rt. Rev. Henry Pelham Burn, of Chelmsford, is showing his disapproval of early marriages among the clergy by declining to issue to curates licences to officiate in his Diocese, unless they undertake to tarry during the first three years of their ministry.

The age at which a man is admitted to Deacon's orders usually 23, so the "ban" of the Bishop will apply to those who when they have reached the age of 26.

The Bishop's action has aroused discussion. Himself only 39 when he married, the Bishop and most of his brother Bishops are young, and are marrying entered upon this state also at an early age.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is unmarried. The Archbishop of York was married at 35. Among the prelates, who have seats in the House of Lords, the Bishop of Exeter was married at the age of 34, the Bishop of Oxford at 36, and the Bishop of Norwich, who did not enter the "Holy Estate" until 45.

MOTOR CAR MEN MEET HERE FOR "SERVICE CLINIC"

Sixty business men of Belleville and district engaged in various departments of the automobile garage and general repair service business gathered Wednesday evening to take part in what was known as a "service clinic". The place of meeting was the Queen Street Fire Station, operated by Chris Lewis on Dundas street. The speaker of the evening was Mr. R. H. Hobbs, of Toronto, representing the Auto Electric Service, Limited, of that city. This meeting was the culmination of a two-day series of meetings specialists giving demonstrations of the latest developments in motor car tune-up, especially Delco, at Hallard, Mr. George J. Beattie and Mr. A. F. Lindsay, of Toronto, also representing electrical and carburetor equipment manufacturers.

Practical demonstrations on cars driven in at random of new methods were given at the clinic, which also stressed the necessity for service men to keep up to date on the developments in motor engineering so that the motoring public could always get the best possible service for their cars. Modern service tools were demonstrated, one chairman of which was a tune-up, during high voltage and the other a carburetor.

Representatives of the automobile business from each district present appreciated the clinic very much and expressed appreciation to Mr. Chris Lewis for having made the demonstration possible.

BILL'S DAY IN THE HOUSE

Act Affecting Mortgages Passed First Reading Easily

Toronto, March 9 (CP)— Hurrying to conclude the debate on the Throne Speech reply by Tuesday night, the Ontario Legislature, Friday will hear a large group of speakers, when the debate is continued. Party whips have agreed to set the deadline for the debate at Tuesday night, and the road will soon be clear for the budget. Many interest groups specialists giving demonstrations of the latest developments in motor car tune-up, especially Delco, at Hallard, Mr. George J. Beattie and Mr. A. F. Lindsay, of Toronto, also representing electrical and carburetor equipment manufacturers.

Second reading was given another measure of Mr. Tweed, which provided that mortgage agreements could not use second-band material in the construction of new mattresses, but the bill will now be sent to Committee which it is expected it will be modified.

Another measure sponsored by W. R. H. Thompson, C.C., House Liberal leader, which provides Boards of Estates, runs under the Ontario Government in the last months of their terms, to enable them to be filled by ballot at election, was given second reading but also went to Committee.

Several other non-contentious bills were given second reading.

OTTAWA RAILWAY NOT ALLOWED APPEAL

Nurse at Capital is Awarded $15,981

London, March 8—(CP Cable) — The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today refused leave of appeal to the Ottawa Electric Railway Company against a judgment handed down in the Supreme Court of Canada awarding Miss Ethel Nixon, Ottawa nurse, $15,981 damages.

Miss Nixon received injuries when she was knocked down by a street car at the Ottawa Civic Hospital in January, 1921.

"GREED IN DRIVER'S SEAT," SAYS SPEAKER

People Were Duly Warned But Did Not Heed

Brockville, Ont., Mar. 8—(CP) — The world is passing through an experience today that is the direct result of the most extravagant era of selfishness in its history, S. J. Moore President of the Bank of Nova Scotia, told a Baptist Laymen's gathering here last night

Greed, he said, had been in the driver's seat and had driven at a fast pace. Previous to the crash warnings had been made and prophecies made of what would happen unless policies were changed, but these had gone unheeded and the world today was reaping the consequences.

Mr. Moore added that Canadians ought to be thankful for the fact that, in view of the difference in the relative financial strength, the difficulties were not extending to this country.

The chief barrier to returning prosperity now is the debris of World War inflation.— Bernard M. Baruch.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

It is a satisfaction that while many people are in stressed circumstances, legislation in the province of Ontario makes it possible for a number of citizens to live in peace their declining years. That is, those who over the age of seventy, are not compelled to face want because the Old Age Pension law comes to their aid. To those who have been through worse years than the present, and have had trials which those others can neither know nor realize must bring satisfaction to the people. While there is a financial burden connected with social legislation of this kind, one has but to realize how much more distress there would have been than there is.

Some may claim that to many of these elderly folk has come in their last years even a little more enjoyment than has been theirs in the years of their activity. So much the better.

Another piece of legislation is the Mothers' Allowance Act which has made it possible for those heads of the wage earners to bring up their children with the assurance that they will not be quite deprived of the benefits of life in a modern community and provide for the education of their children in a way which will make them the best of citizens.

Any legislation which benefits the physical, moral and intellectual status of the individual is of state importance and the money expended for these purposes is well spent.

It is noteworthy that social legislation grows upon a people as they feel the needs. How much better is this way, than the uncertainty, the unfairness, and the criminality associated with the efforts of those who would overthrow the modern world to set up a new earth, founded on a revolution, which, whatever it means, indicates sorrow, suffering, brutality, crime, and a long and trying struggle to win the way back to law and order.

A MUNICIPAL STUDY IN CERMAK

In the death of Mayor Cermak of Chicago, the latest victim of the gun of the former insane, commented on freely. Cermak, according to the New York Times, was a man of gusto. Which might be compended for comfort and admonition to many high-brow reformers. Out of the wildest scramble of spoilsmen and jobhunters, he achieved as a civil service reformer. Yet he was a master of the political machine. In a confused and difficult local situation he showed rare shrewdness and tact. He remains an interesting figure for the student of municipal politics."

Such a successful career as that of Anton Cermak is a lesson to municipalities as the Times says, lest they turn down a man at some time because he happens to have been a poor immigrant boy or to have been a man who had to fight his way through by his own energy to the top of the municipal ladder. For Cermak possessed energy and intelligence and with them honesty. He became the business man in politics. He promoted humane and charitable institutions and where others sought to be extravagant he tried to save.

It is within the experience of everyone that many a foreigner demonstrates more native energy and resourcefulness in meeting the life problems than those blessed with birth in the New World. And many of them make notable contributions to the country of their adoption.

LEVEL CROSSINGS

Municipalities which have been slow to take steps to secure monies from the level crossing fund find they are now too late. And yet many hundreds of level crossings remain, dangerous of course, to the travelling public on the highways and in a degree to those who ride in trains.

It is hoped now to enact legislation which will place the obligation to slow up to twenty miles per hour on approaching crossings. The dead stop before passing a crossing has been proposed but is unlikely to become compulsory. While the enforced reduction of speed is quite a possible development in the present situation.

With all the efforts of the railways, press and motor leagues accidents do happen, a situation which often makes one wonder at how little some people value their lives.

Toronto Telegram puts the situation in this way: "The taxpayers can no longer provide funds to protect those who refuse to protect themselves."

There is no motorist who cannot halt for a moment or so to assure himself that those in his motorcar are absolutely safe from a passing train.

A Scotchman went to a fancy-dress ball in the guise of Napoleon. A friend, meeting him at the function said: "Now why on earth should a Scotsman dress up as Napoleon?"

"Well, for one thing, you can keep your hand on your wallet all the time," replied the Scot.

POET AND MAN

(Alice Hickenbotty)

Too long I dwelt with words, found my delight
In subtle phrasing of a singing thought;
Too long I was content could I indite
In music's voice the meanings that I caught.
And then came life and laughter at all my pains—
Came life and mocked my foolish, poor desires—
Taught me how soon the joy of living wanes—
With beauty's torch lit being's unguessed fires.

And now for scholar or for frosty age
I leave the words I loved-too well, too long;
Henceforth, on life's kaleidoscopic stage
I will enact my every phase of song.
Poet's love words where life's reflection shines;
While men ask life itself in singing lines.

WHAT IS FUNNY AND WHY

A funny story is a test in logic, humorous as it may seem. The joker is, that, after conceiving our minds hunting for probable endings, it snaps us up short with a ridiculous conclusion.

What is probable as the final point may seem under usual circumstances, it must seem logical enough to fit the facts of the anecdote.

This says R. F. Maier of the University of Michigan psychology department, is what psychology finds when it examines our thinking during the progress of an after-dinner speaker's tales. To quote a recent news-bulletin of the university.

Even the comedy hero in the movies is thrown through a window by the villain, we laugh because it is an unexpected solution to the excitement leading up to the act, and a different solution from any we might have been subconsciously working out ourselves. At the same time we see it as perfectly logical, so far as the villain is concerned, according to Dr. Maier's theory. As the humorous experience is without emotion, the humorous situation must not arouse our tender feelings.

"Authors and tellers of stories intended to arouse hilarity will be more sure of hoped-for results if they will make sure of the following points, says Dr. Maier. The solution must have been subconsciously busy looking for a conclusion, so no hint must be given if he is to be properly astonished; second, the final humorous shock must appear suddenly and bring with it a rearrangement of the facts of the story in an unexpected way; third, the 'point' must be experienced momentarily as disconnected with the personal experience of the listener, lest it bring up painful memories that might spoil the humor; fourth, the final 'kick,' though unexpected, must still grow logically out of the facts in the story and retain them; and last, it must have the characteristics of the ridiculous in that its logic is limited only to the facts of the story."

Brown had a bad quarter in his pocket. He was absolutely certain how he had come by it, and, calling upon his tobacconist the next day, said: "I believe you gave me a bad quarter yesterday."

"Fairly probable," said the tobacconist. "I've never had a false coin since I've been in the trade. I seem to have an instinct for spotting them. What did you buy?"

"Oh," was the response, "I've just given it to you for these cigarettes."

It was too rainy to go out so Peggy and Tommy were entertaining themselves by picturing the wonderful things they would have when they grew up.

"I shall have a lovely motor car," said Peggy.

"So shall I," said Tommy.

"And a radio," continued Peggy.

"So shall I," said Tommy.

"Oh, Tommy," Peggy said in an exasperated tone, "I believe you are what they call a 'So-shal-ist'."

It was the dear old lady's first ride in a taxi, and she watched with alarm the driver continually putting his hand outside the car as a signal to the traffic following.

At last she became angry. "Young man," she cried, "you look after the driving and watch where you are going. I'll tell you when it starts to rain."

HOW SELF IS REVEALED IN LETTERS

Impressions of Letters Affects Relationships

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D.Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Have you ever noted your own reactions when you receive a letter? Is it true, especially when the writer is of the letter is stranger to you, that you try to form a judgment of your correspondent's character by what he says and how he says it?

In similar manner your own letters are judged by those to whom you send them. The impression you make with your letter has a lot to do with the kind of future relationship you will have with the particular person you are writing to, whether it be in a business or social letter or both.

Letter writing is an art. Unfortunately it is almost a lost art. Contrary to most other arts, however, it is carried with it a distinct personal value. Men have fallen in love with women, and vice versa, through letters. Important jobs have been obtained in the same way. Letters have made friendships, and broken them. And when we read the collected letters of famous men and women we really get to know them.

Aside from the content of the letter—the actual meaning that the letter is supposed to convey—instances or abruptness will telltale in every case. If in write with a free, bold hand we will be apt to get better the impression of frankness, honesty and generosity. A cramped letter may be engendered in the mind of the recipient if your writing is small and cramped. Finally, you may be considered nervous and erratic if the stroke of your pen are uneven and you scribble all over the page.

What is of more importance still in letter writing is the way you use the English language. Misspelled words and bad grammar at once signify either carelessness or lack of education. Style likewise has a great deal to do with making a good impression, style being the way your thoughts are phrased and grouped.

As a matter of fact, it is no simple matter to write a good letter. Even those who use excellent and fluent English in conversation may find it difficult to compose a satisfactory letter. Indeed, the better-writing bracone it is best to practice writing on scratch paper first, then correcting the copy before penning the final draft on note paper.

The tendency of many persons when they sit down to write a letter is to use as flowery language as possible. Simple sentences and simple words are, however, always better than the big ones. Say what you wish to say in as few words as possible. Always be free in your expression and write naturally.

And "be yourself," as the saying goes. Try to properly adjust personality on paper the same as you do when face to face with another person. Let the tone of your letter feel that you are right here in the room with the one to whom you are letter and reads it.

The telephone, likewise, has cut out cards and the habit of dictation have more or less affected the gentle art of correspondence. The typewriter also has done its share in undermining the personality of handwriting.

Still, a good letter always has and always will enhance your personal worth in every field of activity and practice and study of the best forms of letter writing are worth all the trouble they take.

An excellent way, too, is to note the letters that appeal to you, try to find out why. In this way you can learn certain ways in which to make your own letters more effective.

TAXPAYER REFUSES INCOME EXEMPTION

Second Stratford Man is Willing to Pay Though Asked Not To

Stratford, Ont., March 8—(CP)—For the second time within a week city assessor W. G. Dixon has had a refusal by a taxpayer to claim exemption to which he is entitled on his annual income-tax. This second ratepayer sent a letter with his income tax return stating that while his income has been reduced by 30 percent since last year he was willing to contribute the same basis as last year.

Several days ago, a taxpayer appeared at the assessor's office and advised the assessor he was not claiming exemption this year because he felt the city needed the money in these difficult times.

Last evening about twenty friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mrs. Ernest Hall on Cedar Street to celebrate her birthday. Progressive euchre was the order and dancing. The prizes for euchre were won by ladies' Mrs. Blasdell and Mrs. Martin; gentlemen, Mr. Rose and Mr. Martin. After an enjoyable lunch was served, music was furnished by Mr. Don Hall's orchestra. Mr. Hall was party booking up by wishing Mrs. Rodgers many more happy birthdays.

A most enjoyable time was spent Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harry Bowerman, Cobourg, when her friends to the number of 40 assembled to do honor to Mrs. Bowerman's birthday. After the usual business had been despatched a delightful program was enjoyed, including instrumental and vocal solos, readings and recitations. Also a short story was written by each one present on a given subject and was passed on to the next literary effort when the best literary effort which caused a great deal of merriment was chosen. The evening's presentation was made to Mrs. Bowerman by Mrs. Ross Jose, a faithful worker with the group since its organization. In an address in poetry Mrs. Nicholson assured Mrs. Bowerman that the good wishes of the group would always be her reward from them and Mrs. Bowerman on behalf of the group of Mrs. Nicholson, with a handsome leather bag in which to carry her knitting.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Moorman for her hospitality after which delicious refreshments were served.

The time has now come when nations must accept, in self-interest no less than in altruism, the obligations to co-operate in achieving world stability as mankind must again resume the march of progress. —Herbert Hoover

Evangelists Make Strong Appeal to Congregations

Rev. And Mrs. Gordon Wishart at Alliance Tabernacle

INTEREST SHOWN

The special Evangelistic services which are being held in the Alliance Tabernacle, West Main Street, are being conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Wishart of Toronto are proving of great interest and blessing.

These young evangelists have been greatly used of God wherever they have been and many have been led to a full surrender to Jesus Christ as Saviour.

Rev. Wishart is known from coast to coast and in many places in the United States, Mrs. Wishart was known as Miss Evelyn Agar, as "the girl Evangelist of Ohio," at the age of fifteen she was preaching the Gospel with great power.

At the services each evening there are "stirring, profound Bible expositions and searching evangelistic messages given by the Lord to the Psalmist for salvation and deeper spiritual life.

Monday night of this week Mrs. Wishart took for her subject "Get, Do, Be" "Yvrak died calling from sin of the world and to a sanctified life in the death of the Lord and a full surrender to God."

Tuesday Mrs. Wishart spoke on the subject "From a throne to a cradle's grave," a full picture of Saul and his fall through sin.

Wednesday Mrs. Wishart spoke to the boys and girls at 4 p.m. sharp o'clock and gave an illustrated talk on "Pilgrim's Light to Glory."

Continuing at the later meeting Mrs. Wishart spoke of strength and gave a wonderful message on the subject, "Strength to cut out the truth in a marvelous way."

Thursday (tonight) Rev. O. Wishart will speak on "Revival" which is a great young people's meeting will also be held when Mrs. Wishart will give her remarkable life story. The services will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

The Young People's Societies of the different churches and young people of the city are specially invited.

There will be no meetings on Saturday but on Sunday special services will be held at eleven, three and seven, the campaign closing on Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wishart's next campaign will be in St. John, New Brunswick, then to Ottawa.

Tweed Horticultural Society Plans Season's Activities

Tweed—Mr. Jos. Wilson, B.S.A., died to ten or twelve items. The revision of the Prize List was placed in the hands of a committee of which Rev. R. B. Fairbairn was made convener. Mr. George A. Middleton will exhibit donations of special prizes for the Flower Show, the date of which was tentatively set as August 17th and 18th. Plans have been made for a lecture by Mr. Lochs Campbell, Provincial Lecturer on Horticulture during the latter part of April.

An interesting debate will feature the regular meeting of Tweed Lodge No. 260, I.O.O.F. on Monday, March 13th. The subject will be "Resolved that lodge dues with sick benefits is preferable to lodge dues without sick benefits."

Mr. O. D. Wilson spent the week end in Peterboro in Peterboro.

Master Jos Cook of Peterboro, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McTague.

Mr. George Ponton of Belleville, Sheriff of Hastings County, was in town on Monday.

The ladies present attended the hockey match at the Belleville Arena on Monday night.

The final game of the Juvenile Hockey League was played on Monday night between the Black Hawks and the Trail Rangers. These two teams had qualified for the playoffs during the regular schedule. In Monday night's game the Black Hawks won by a score of 5 goals to 3, thus winning by a score of 9-5. Some records for the senior team are being developed by Jimmy Gibson and in a year or two the local brothers of the Black Hawks and Rangers, Cecil Gibson and Provost of the Rangers should make good.

The Beauty Box

(by Helen Follett)

Nothing less than coiffure perfection will qualify this season. No longer can a woman "do" her hair to her own satisfaction. She becomes the slave to her bonnet. Gone are the clipped out, made to glisten, carry undulations that are the pride of Dad. A few girls there are blessed with naturally curly locks or bewitching permanently waved hair, who are clever enough to manage the proper wave, coax a design into line, stand among the glorified who take prizes at a hairdresser's show—but the most woe-lost to the beauty shop and get their celestial coops put in form.

One way to reduce waist measurement is to play at wood chopping, lower clasped hands and to and fro above the head, come alone with a downward swing, as if chopping wood. With each bit of an axe, stretch the body. When bending, land at the floor, the hands just touch the water. There will be a strong muscle pull all the sides and down the abdomen. Rope jumping is another good exercise, but one must come down faint calves as well as wide spreading hips.

All wrong is the shoe that pushes nails of flesh to the front, the arches along the side lines. The shoe is too flat if it will not appear comfortable across one. One sees such little dogs on the fronts of fashionable ladies toddle. The well shod foot doesn't rest in cramped quarters, but keeps a sole, is spread fairly comfortably. The gist of the trouble with most feet, especially those of Miss on shoes, won't try a change of size or heel.

No comment will bring normal body to a completion that looks gray. The source of the condition may be anemia, constipation, poor blood circulation. The remedy is found in rallidol for the blood, vitality and health-guide exercise for the body, long hours of rest, full sleep meals that supply the various needs of the daughter of the house. Rallidol consists of vigorous patting and rubbing with the skin well oiled.

As sex freedom increases, love seems to diminish.—Havelock Ellis.

WHOLE WHEAT EATING ON THE INCREASE

The increasing popularity of whole wheat foods, according to home economist authorities, one of the most commendable dietetic trends of today. Evidence of this increasing popularity is provided by estimating made by the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company Limited, showing that nearly 2,000,000 Canadian families are today using shredded wheat; items in their daily menus. This complete concept of alive figures for ten years ago are available, it is stated, but the increase during the last decade has been remarkable.

One factor in the growing popularity of whole wheat is undoubtedly the fact that it is so versatile as to offering the public branded prepared whole wheat in packages "appealing forms, as for instance "Shredded Wheat" ready to eat as a ready cereal, "Triscuit" ready to eat as a ready cereal, "Triscuit" and "Shredded Wheat

PRICE CHANGE IS UPWARD

Listings Quiet But Firm in Morning, Stiffen Slightly Later

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—Listings on the Toronto Stock Exchange after quiet but firm morning, stiffened slightly in spots in the afternoon trading. Walker, common added another fraction to its morning gain, selling at 5-1 and Ford of Canada increased 25 cents.

The heavy end of the trading still centred in International Nickel, which retained a gain of 1-8 and British American Oil and Smelters, 30-8. Oil held at fractional gain over the last close while Smelters was off a half point.

Other interlisted stocks were steady, Brazilian and C.P.R. trading unchanged.

International Nate recovered a morning recession, while Imperial surrendered a fraction in light turnover. In the bond section, Dominion Stores added to its gains of yesterday, trading at 100 common and 13 for a half-point advance while the Loblaw issues were steady.

DOLLAR AGAIN MOVES UPWARD

Advances Against Both The Pound and French Franc

Montreal, March 9 (CP)—After a strong opening the Canadian dollar took a further upward spurt on world exchanges today to advance again against both the pound and the French franc. The pound opened at $4.12, yesterday's "asking" figure then sank to $4.11 in the first hour of trading on exchanges here.

The franc in all currency used as a basis for testing the movements of the Dominion's currency against gold, opened at 4.49 cents, fairly far away to 4.48 7-2 in closed yesterday's 4.47.3. A few days ago it was 4.60 cents.

MARKET FIRMS AFTER MIDDAY

Sudbury Basin Moves to 90 High in More Than Year

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—After a morning setback that carried leading stocks down from 5 to 75 cents Standard Stock Exchange shares quickly soon after noon and began a steady climb, international, with its base metals and golds moved up to-gether.

International Nickel recovered to 20.80, Noranda to 22.10 and Falconbridge advanced to 7.60 for the last gain of while Sudbury Basin jumped to 90, its high in more than a year and up 12 today and Sherritt Gordon gained a few cents. Hudson Bay advanced 20 to 2.75.

Buying of silver stocks was active this afternoon. Fend Oreille, a slow mover in recent months moved up to .75, a gain today of 6 on top of a 5-point advance yesterday. Minnie Moose, Silverado and Mill-ing were firm.

Among golds, Teck Hughes recovered from 2.90 to 4.12, still down 3 for the day. Lake Shore gained its loss and Lake Shore gained some ground.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 9 (CP)— Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was light today with very few offerings in all classes. Prices generally were about steady with yesterday's closing quotations. Cattle was slow; calves weak; hogs unsettled; lambs steady.

Receipts were: Cattle 67; calves 30; hogs 91; lambs 20.

The light supply of cattle were cleaned up at steady prices. Good to choice butcher cattle sold at 3.75 to 4.00. A few butcher cows were offering in all classes at prices ranging from 2.25 to 3.75 per cwt.

Veal calves opened at yesterday's closing quotations of 7.00 to 7.50 for choice grades, common veals down-ward to 5.00.

No early hog sales were made with Dominion asking 4.35 f.o.b. for bacon, 4.40 off cars for thick smooths and 4.25 for lights.

A few common to medium lambs sold at 4.00 to 6.00 per cwt according to quality. There were no heavy sheep offered.

U. S. Banking Situation

By the Associated Press

Seventy-thing Congress is called in extraordinary session at noon today to enact legislation to relieve "immediately" the United States banking situation.

Federal reserve banks call upon member banks for names of all persons who withdrew gold since February 1 and who have not redeposited it before March 13; hint that names of gold hoarders will be made public is seen in order.

Today is the last of the national banking holiday under President Roosevelt's proclamation.

Leaders of both House of Representatives and Senate predict prompt passage of Roosevelt emergency banking bill.

President Roosevelt issues early morning statement, following conference at White House, saying the measure before Congress today "will at once start banking operations throughout the entire country."

Plans for national scrip abandoned as bureau or engraving works in three shifts turning out additional Federal reserve currency, which is believed to be basis of proposed legislation.

The new currency will not have gold backing, but is to be issued on the same basis as treasury notes, which are backed by government bonds.

Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee believes national banks will be first to open, with state banks following.

Secretary Woodin to confer with local clearing houses throughout country to issue scrip if needed.

Treasury department prohibits exaction of plan of Governor Lehman, Democrat, of New York, to issue local clearing house scrip of which Alfred E. Smith had been named chairman.

Appeal for "national unity" is made in simultaneous proclamations issued by the Governors of the States.

An additional $300,000,000 worth of scrip circulates freely in Nashville, Tenn., on the first day of issuance.

State banks of Minnesota are permitted to extend operations today by use of scrip.

Laws already on statute books permit issuance of new currency to the amount of $2,000,000,000.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank, offers a plan to divorce commercial and investment phases of banking.

In general, foodstuffs prices remained about the same; pork prices dropped 5 cents Monday yesterday after earlier rise.

President Roosevelt said early today: "I am gratified at the outlook.

U.S. CURRENCY DRIBBLING IN

Fewer U. S. Bills Find Way Into Local Merchant's Tills

Further developments in financial circles here and abroad were hailed by various officials in the city today.

At the local post office, a new bulletin received by Postmaster Trusach advised that money orders and travellers' cheques, negotiated were being issued and paid, commencing today, those on the list which was printed in Wednesday's issue of this paper, both branches of the being carried on with the United States.

Scarcity of American cash exists in local banks, due mainly to the efforts of speculators who have been buying up the American currency for as low as five cents on the dollar, with a view of realizing a considerable profit when the situation has become more settled.

Deputy Minister of Currency Advice was issued by Mr. E. V. Illsley at the Dominion Bank of Commerce: Those in possession of American currency should deposit it in the banks and thus help the unusual premium later on when conditions become more settled.

The situation has not as yet become clarified, although there are hopes that the next day or so will see a change for the better, Mr. Illsley when questioned. "At present we are assisting travellers and others who are in need of funds for business dealings between here and the United States and are encouraged by us."

The same view was held by Mr. Tulley of the Bank of Montreal.

Those who desire to send money to friends or relatives in the States should await currency in a registered letter, according to the officials here and bankers. This is the only avenue which remains open for those trading.

Debtsbe of U. S. Cash

Local stores have likewise recently considerably quantities of American currency during the past week when the first flurry struck, are now receiving fewer. All of the cash, unwillingly accepted for the most part in small denominations.

No money orders are being sent in the U.S. either by the post office, or the Canadian National or Canadian Pacific express offices. Money orders are being sent by the offices to points in the British Isles.

Chamber of Commerce officials say nothing new on the financial front, except that a decided air of anxiety of travelling from this section to points on the American side has been noted.

Decrease in Imports

In the larger centres, despite the difficulties of making financial arrangements with the United States, Canadian importers are rushing to take advantage of the preferential decision to compute customs duties on a basis of parity to the U.S. and Canadian dollars for the period of the banking shutdown. A great increase in importations has been noted in all Toronto office, particularly those dealing with the U.S. the same arrangements exist in the local offices, but little change in condition has been noted.

"We have had a decided week we can remember, as far as imports are concerned," declared officials in the local customs office this morning when questioned.

News and stationery stores who import American magazines and other articles were questioned, and they didn't know yet how they were going to pay the monthly bill. Others figured that out yet, was no danger none of them gave.

Hotels still do a fair business, attended tourists. A few of them have been staying in the city, waiting for orders and money from American head offices, but seem not in the least embarrassed for cash.

Banking Legislation

possible; and authority to reorganize banks and their capital may be found to require reorganization to put them on a sound basis.

Additional Currency.

"I ask amendments to the Federal Reserve Act to provide for such additional currency, adequately secured, as it may become necessary to issue to meet all demands for currency and at the same time to achieve this end without increasing the unsecured indebtedness of the government by the issue of bonds.

"I can not too strongly urge upon the Congress the clear necessity for immediate action. The continuation of the stagnation of banking facilities is unthinkable. The passage of the proposed legislation will end this condition and I believe that in a short space of time will result in a gradual return to normal conditions."

New Era Dawning.

"In addition, it is my belief that this legislation will not only lift immediately all unwarranted doubts and suspicions as to the banks which are one hundred per cent sound but will also mark the beginning of a new relationship between the banks and the people of this country.

"The members of the new congress will realize I am not asking to assume responsibility which lies upon me and upon them.

"In the short space of five days it is impossible for me to present a complete measures to prevent the recurrence of the evils of the past. This does not and should not, however, justify any delay in accomplishing this first step.

"At an early moment I shall request of the Congress two other measures which I regard as of immediate urgency. With action taken thereon we can proceed to the consideration of a rounded program of national reformation.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt.

48 hours "after it leaves the cow and not 48 hours, after pasteurization." Milk held by grocers and not sold within that period, must be returned taken back by the distributor from grocer.

As soon as it became evident that farmer was supplying milk below 3.25 per cent butter fat, the farmer was notified to bring his herd up to standard. If he refused, a month to do so.

Frederick Fuller

Ottawa, Mar. 8 (CP)—Many milk producers would like to give evidence before the House of Commons Committee on Agriculture, but they are deterred by the cost of being "shut off" by the distributors, Dr. F. H. Fridrick, Chief Milk Commissioner, told the committee here today. He was appearing on behalf of a number of farmers, who desired to be heard.

Dr. Fridrick suggested they be heard in camera or that a sub-committee be appointed to take their evidence. The matter will be further considered by the committee.

Regulations governing pasteurization production and distribution of milk in the city of Montreal were explained by Dr. A. J. Hood, superintendent of the food inspection department of that metropolis.

LAST GAME LIKELY TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP

Alberta and Manitoba Tied as Curling Rinks Enter Last Day of Brier Competition

Saskatchewan Rink Provides Upset of Competition

ONTARIO IN RACE

Present Leaders Meet Today, Which Will Decide Winner

Toronto, March 8 (CP)— Stoutheorted champions in their own right, Alberta and Manitoba curlers today were deadlocked as the contending teams entered the final stages of the challenge for the Macdonald Brier Trophy and the single rink curling title of the Dominion.

From rumours from the start of the tournament, Cliff Manahan's Edmonton Royals were banking in the glory of four consecutive years, when they engaged the Rossmere, Man., skipper-and-his-Portage Prairie mates in the last draw of the day.

They virtually had things his own way all morning and when the Clearers threw forward a five man attack in the third round, Dan broke away three times to score after having bulged the twine twice in the initial frame, for a solo effort. "Ribs" Bustard in the meta for the winning club proved the stumbling block of the evening against the "Clearers" forward as he rose to the occasion throughout to stop and sundry attacks at the hands of the losers. By virtue of their win the "Rubber-benders" earned the right to meet the Maroo bashing Orills' Garage team in the City League play-off and the Rossmere Cup. Bill Lindsay and Max Mallehers also played good hockey for the winners.

For the losing Modern Cleaners the front line of Dan Lee flanked by Jack Kidd and Zeke Tobe looked to be the best bet, but were thwarted in their scoring efforts by Ryan's net guarding. Sammark and Fisher did not display their usual brand of hockey on the defence as the opposing team experienced little trouble in crashing through the rear guard of the Cleaners.

The line-ups:

Belleville Yulcanizing—Goal, Bennett; defence Tim Day and Bob Bowerman; centre, Baker; wings Happy Day and Lindsay; subs, O. Mallehers and Mac Mallehers.

Modern Dry Cleaners—Goal, Simpson; defence, Dan Lee and Ryan; centre, Lee; wings Kidd and Tobe; subs, Sammark, Fisher and Harvey.

Referee—Alan Meagher.

DRAW IS MADE FOR TOURNEY

Game to be Played at Harbord Collegiate Friday and Saturday

St. Catharines, March 8—Preliminary A. E. Houston and Secretary H. E. Doolittle of the O.G.D.A. released the draw for the annual O.G.D.A. Ice Hockey championships to be held at Toronto's Harbord Collegiate Friday evening March 10 and Saturday afternoon, March 11. Junior, intermediate and girls' teams, eight junior and eight senior, representing the four districts of the O.G.D.A. will take part in the semi-final eliminations on Friday evening and the finals and Senior-Death games carried for Saturday afternoon.

Laurie Irwin, O.A.S.A., secretary, Ice Hockey Association, Toronto, has been appointed as official for the boys' games, while Miss Dorothy Gallagher, O.G.D.A., probably handle the girls' games.

Semi-finals—Friday, 7.00, Lake Ontario winner vs. Central winner; Georgian Bay winner—Collingwood, Meaford, Thornbill.

8.00—Lake Ontario winners Oshawa, Whitby—Georgian Bay winner, Owen Sound.

Final—Saturday, 2.30 o'clock.

New York State health officials who studied 1,500 deaths from measles found that 68 percent of the fatal cases were said to be infected by prior cases in the families; those cases were apparently preventable, had a physician been called in the first case and taken precautions to protect the rest of the family.

"HAPPY" DAY SCORES FIVE

Vulcanizers Eliminate Modern Cleaners From Loop Race 5-0

Led by "Happy" Day, who rapped home all five goals scored by his team, the Belleville Vulcanizing proficiency eliminated the Modern Dry Cleaners from the City League play-off and Rossmere Cup series between the second and third place teams for the right to meet the first place Orille Garage outfit in the finals, when the Rubber-benders blanked the Cleaners by the score of 5 to 0 at the Belleville Arena last night.

Day virtually had things his own way all evening and when the Cleaners threw forward a five man attack in the third round, Dan broke away three times to score after having bulged the twine twice in the initial frame, for a solo effort. "Ribs" Bustard in the meta for the winning club proved the stumbling block of the evening against the "Cleaners" forward as he rose to the occasion throughout to stop and sundry attacks at the hands of the losers. Pasadena, Cal., March 8 (AP)— While five workers over Al Schacht's baseball head vanished today after the big outfielder threw ball after ball over the fence in batting practice.

"If he's sick, show me a good hockey player. I can get more like him," Manager Lew Fonseca shouted as all performed yesterday.

Managers estimated he would pay the Red Kress in right field this season. In the first inter-club game Kress sent the ball to the centre field fence.

Won't Change Style

Bradenton, Fla., March 9 (AP)— Manager J. Monroe Stoneham's batter, when brilliant 1921 pitching record was dusted by a tall spin ball in the first game, may come back and star with the Cardinals, Manager Bobby Street had predicted today.

Street said he was pressed at Mooney's failure last year until he found that Mooney was a high ball pitcher in 1921 and the change back to make a low ball pitcher out of him. "I can't do that," said the portion in place of Ever Swanson. old sergeant.

John Ross Roach, Idol of Detroit Fandom

This is the first of a series on players of interest to the Canadian Press all-star National Hockey League team.

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—A pressason holdout by Vernon (Jumping Jakie) Forbes 13 years ago gave Detroit Coach Percy Thirty, his old his chance in the National Hockey League which Thirty seized.

In his first season the youngster helped the club win the world championship and Stanley Cup.

Today the kid hero of 13 years ago is Big Mr. of Detroit fandom fans, just about the most valuable possession of the Red Wings.

He is John Ross Roach, in the opinion of sports writers, who voted him to a place on the 1933 Canadian all-star team, the best hockey goalie of them all. And Roach, who purchased him for Detroit, when New York Rangers decided Roach had to go after last season, has said he regards John Ross as the best goal-tend- r of the decade. Roach has not.

Pre-Game Comment as N. H. L. Teams Take Ice

Toronto, March 9 (CP)— Joe Simpson's New York Americans face a tough assignment tonight when they travel to Boston for another art in their duel with Canadiens for third place in the National Hockey League's Canadian section. Boston, four points behind Third-place Detroit in the American division need the win to even the season's series.

And Canadiens tackle the second-place Maroons of the Canadian Division in their April 1st to the last play-off series. This close-looked struggle of Canadiens and Americans provides the feature of the waning league schedule and two-game high-light of tonight's four-game card.

Detroit takes their forty-point total into New York in an effort to at least maintain it at the expense of the Rangers who hold third place one point behind the Bruins.

CATARACTS IN 1ST PLAYOFF WIN BY 3-2

First Time Fall's Team Defeats Ports This Season

HAD AN EDGE

Brilliant Hockey Served up to Over 4500 Fans

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 8— (CP)—Credited with their first win in five pennant series with Toronto, Niagara Falls picked an opportune time for spring for victory and today they are within 60 minutes of the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" title.

Before 4,500 fans and an impressing group of O.H.A. celebrities, Cataracts last night defeated their pennant rivals, 3-2 in the first game of the two-of-three games title-series, the second of which will be played at Port Colborne Friday.

Typical championship hockey prevailed throughout. Strong defensive hockey featuring with plenty of the open variety to furnish a spectacle worth witnessing. It became a matter of the caliber of the return game between the well-matched settlers.

The winners featured two shifty attacking units in Maxie Kamby, sky and Jerry Shannon and George Hastis and "Pinky" Hunter, the latter for seating in a goal apiece, while Shannon accounted for the other.

Harry Gray, bustling young husky skating centre he dished with Johnny Ouhbert for Sellers, and Reid popped in the goals for the visitors.

Goals Well Earned

Cataracts pohnis in the initial canto were well earned. Hunter opened the scoring after 3.30 when Hastis's pass to penetrate the Hudson-Horne rearguard and outpoce Dinty Moore. The ballcarrier then Hastis scored the second on a solo rush.

The bulkier and more bruising Cataracts assumed command of the proceedings at the start of the next act and only slightly more than a minute had elapsed when Gray lifted one from well out, which Sellers failed to hold. The goalminder of the period the visitors rallied their best in their own defence ares.

Play was at even as' the goalin the final set-to with the pace becoming faster as the ontest neight in the Cataracts' favour in the scoring drumway. Shannon's goal, which came on a 30-foot range eluded the Ports' custodian and Cataracts enjoyed their first goal margin. Reid's counter five minutes later was the result of the first scored of the night. From just inside the blue-line he drove a terrific slap which landed just Eseline.

HON. HEENAN OPPOSES BILL

Human Element Not Considered Says Former Minister

Ottawa, March 9 (CP)—Mingled support, opposition and scepticism greeted the first speech of his latest appearance in the House of Commons. The support came from G. R. Geary, Toronto Conservative, the opposition from Hon. Peter Heenan, former Liberal Minister of Labor, and the scepticism from T. L. McCibbon, Conservative member for Muskoka.

Mr. Heenan's assault on the bill yesterday Mr. Heenan offered the first out-and-out opposition to it from the House of Commons. An engine driver, he said, was far away from the point of view of the railway employees. The bill would not settle disputes, but would aggravate them. The human element had not received sufficient consideration.

Supported by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, with making wild statements, Mr. Heenan retorted he would make his own speech and declared the government was afraid to go to the country on the bill. Mr. Manion had suggested the government would go to the people at the proper time on that and other measures.

Dr. McCibbon was one of the shrewdest critics of the Canadian National Railways when the experiment was in its early days. His review before the railway committee a few years ago, believing the bill would not solve the railway problem and saw no hopeful sign in the whole railway picture. Amalgamation of the two lines might be a help and he believed this would come sooner or later.

Col. Geary was fully in accord with the terms of the bill. He believed it provided a method through which the railroads could advance to a more favorable position.

INTERESTS TO BE PROTECTED

Highway Dept. to be Satisfied All Firms Are Protected

The department of highways will not issue licenses to the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways for motor truck transportation in Ontario until it is satisfied that in so doing the interests of firms at present engaged on the highways will not suffer unfair competition from possibly elimination.

This will be the attitude of the department of the highway event of the two railways applying for licenses to use their trucking business upon the expiry of the temporary 30-day licenses already granted to them for the purpose of short-hauling, it was learned at Queen's Park yesterday.

Hon. Leopold Macauley, K.C., minister, would "cross his bridges when he came to them" but learned what attitude he would take in the event of applications being made. While declining to commit himself to any definite policy at this time, the Minister made it clear that in his opinion, the railways should come to the department with their independent trucking interests, even to the extent of buying the existing franchises of truckers.

Four Long-Haul Competitors.

The trucking companies do not fear the short haul experiments now sought by the railways in order to obtain data as to basis of rates, but the long haul business is confined to in and around Toronto and Hamilton. Instead of a flood of applications for long haul licenses to Toronto or similar suburban areas for the purpose of soliciting freight for trucks owned by the railway collectors, the department has received only 11 in the suburban locality. But it is the long-distance hauling—that between cities—that causes the interference—that the truckers fear, and which they intend to fight to a finish with Mr. Macauley. They claim that the railways have never found any method of transportation in the province, have contributed extensively to the building of highways and systems, and therefore are entitled to protection from the province. The latter's belated entry into the trucking business is resented.

On numerous occasions in the past two or three years the Minister of Highways has pointed out the danger to the two railroads in refraining from entering the trucking business in accord with the rail method. He has also pointed out that the railroads' interests to secure uniformity of action and to eliminate the "evil" practice of rate cutting, which is deadly effect for a considerable time, would not be strong enough to withstand the pressure of competition. The cases from Frank Gilbard's home town will not be heard before the latter their club in B group.

TECUMSEHS ON WAY TO COLLECT BIG SHARE

Lead Intermediate Series by 4 Points And Only Three Games to Play

Toronto, March 8.—(CP)—Undefeated since February 4, London Tecumsehs were a fair way today to collect the five percent players' pool, that goes to the team finishing first in the Intermediate Hockey League.

Blanking their closest rivals, Buffalo Bisons, 1-0, at London last night, Tees pulled into a four-point lead and with only three more games before the end of the schedule left a heavy cost on Buffalo to overtake them.

The shut-out was Herbie Stuart's 12th—one less than his 1932 record —and it was the ninth victory in 13 games for Clem Loughlin's rugged warriors, the other game a 3-3 tie with Cubs.

London will rest for a few days, after a grind of five games in eight days, preparing for their next appearance—Fort Erie Saturday with Buffals.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Statistics go to show that Elwood Dudley's Doherty and Cities Service Hockey Clubs played 30 games each, Dudley's club winning 20, losing 10, 24 games, lost 7, tied 3; a record to be proud of.

In the Kingston pre-season league the club played 12 games, winning 10, which is a record of 83 per cent. In the O.H.A. series the club, including the Campbellford-Bellerille play-off series, played 21 and tied 1. In the O.H.A. playdowns, however, they did not fair quite so well as four games out of the nine played. The locals defeated Peterboro, were defeated by the same team at the Lift Lock City and last and tied with the Toronto Ont. Shamrocks.

During their regular O.H.A. grind the Doherty scored 22 goals and had 17 registered against them, but played with Campbellford they added to this list by scoring 7 goals and allowing 6, while in the Peterboro series they scattered the pucks 9 to 7. The Doherty style of organization, however, entered the intermediate O.H.A. then piloted the O.A.D. a record of 43 goals during O.H.A. competition while but 21 goals were registered against them.

Thirty-six games of amateur hockey in a set of hockey for a club in the city of 12,000 people is a terrific record speaks for itself. The club's name stood in the Belleville and District post-season league under their previous name, as players for their previous Service. Both Manager Dudley and Coach Shiels are to be congratulated on the success of the club and their efforts were more than appreciated by the local sporting fans.

It is understood that no less a personage than Walter Gerow is to be asked to coach the senior hockey team in the post-season league. The Toronto club executive, Secretary Alexander that they would like to have Gerow at the helm, owing to the fact that their club would not be strong enough to enter the O.H.A. senior company. The team from Frank Gilbard's home town will not be asked to enter the senior ranks.

This will leave but four teams in the senior group—Cobourg, Campbellford, Trenton and the Cities Service. It is understood that two of the clubs in city will be Griffs' Garage and Modern Dry Cleaners, who have made application for a berth in Group B. It has been suggested that the winner of the City League only be allowed to enter the group, but the other clubs in the city hockey club by adding players from the other teams in the league. The winner of the best loop would not stand the prevailing player's chance in Group B, but with a few additions should make a fast showing. Belleville then would have a team in each group and it would add interest to local hockey circles. Such a team as Belleville will be ready for publication by tomorrow, according to President Jackson.

As the loop now stands, however there are but four strong teams in Group A, with Napanee, Picton, Frankford, Madoc, Tweed, Bobcaygeon and possibly another team entered from Trenton ready to face the barrier in Group B. In order to get as near as possible an even number of clubs in each group so as to have a game in each group on scheduled nights it was decided at a meeting held last night at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. to invite Port Hope and Bowmanville into Group A. The Port Hope club played in the group which Peterboro won and should be a doubled team to the league. The Cities Service invited to go to Kingston and Napanee in which case one or even more than the lads from Port Hope would have to come. As yet no invitation forwarded to the latter two clubs to be home.

A complete review of the three group champion basketball teams of the B.C.I. is expected for tomorrow's issue of the Intelligencer. Together with the boys' junior and senior champions will have Friday morning to play in the provincial playdowns at Peterboro. All of the basketball players from all over Ontario will compete at Harbord Collegiate Institute Toronto.

Owing to the fact that we have never been present at one of these basketball games, the fate of which is being staged at the Arena on Friday night, and the Chairman of the manager of the Arena, we know little or nothing about the merits of the players, but the variety of fun is to be had all. As Mr. Jacobi says: "Once in a year one has a chance to treat yourself to one real mighty entertainment." We are pleased that the rules to see ice croupers but we're going to try make a pair near the door keeper to assure odd footing. These dances are all the rage in Toronto, Hyperion and many other centres.

With the local baseball season but two months away it is high time that Belleville had some definite action. As it stands at present Cobourg seems to be the only club in the loop to have definitely signed up. Word fed to Peterboro they are raising funds through the sale of season tickets and dance every Tuesday night. From all indications the club is all right, might recompense them enough to carry on during the part of the season. Trenton is another of the eight of these to have a dance in connection.

Mr. Shiels had both of his collegiate hockey teams out for a short workout yesterday afternoon in preparation for Saturday night's games when the B.C.I. juniors meet the Trenton High School Juniors in a return fixture, and the seniors battle with the crack team made up by Marmora. The winners of these engraved this week-end on the ground of the Intelligencer championship.

PRESENTED WITH FAREWELL GIFT

On Tuesday evening, February 21, about one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Don Hubbs to tender a reception of Sidney to bid farewell to him and his wife, who have moved to their new home at Anson.

Mr. Chester Bowers capably performed the duties of chairman for the evening. After Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were given seats of honour, Mrs. Clarence Holmes read an address, while Mr. Hilton Shorey and Mr. Charles Fisher presented them with a handsome upholstered rocker rocking chair. Although taken by surprise, Mr. Hubbs and Mr. Campbell suitably replied and expressed their appreciation of having such good neighbors and their kindness to them while they had lived in this community. Several others in the audience spoke, expressing their regret at losing such good friends and heaters from the neighborhood. After singing "For they are jolly good fellows," the ladies served a bountiful lunch. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and dancing.

Following is the address:

Dear Don and Edna:

"Friendship is a golden chain
Which binds us all together
The links are love and loyalty
And may it last ever."

Thus as a token of our friendship and long for you, we are met here tonight, to spend a social time together in order to show to some you that the links in our friendship that you are about to break is strong.

We are sorry you are leaving this neighborhood and feel that you will be a mighty gain. However we distance to your new home is no so great but that we will still be with your acquaintances with your friendship and fellowship we have always had in sharing our sorrows and also failures we have always had in sharing our joys as a true friend and neighbour, willing to help and lend a helping hand.

Now Don and Edna as you go from from our hearing and Ladies' Aid meeting we will never forget to assist in any way to promote these worthy societies. In our meetings and church gatherings, we will miss your help, friendly and cheerful presence of you both.

We feel we cannot allow you to leave without giving you some tangible form our esteem for you, so we ask you to accept this rocking chair, and may it always remind you of your friends in Sidney.

May the Giver of all Gifts continue to bless you with health, happiness and prosperity.

On behalf of your friends
Arlington Bowers — E. Bonisteel, S. Nicholson, R. Hoyt, C. Fisher and H. Storey.

Mrs. Carrie Bowers, Mrs. Bessie Bonisteel, Mrs. Ethel Nicholson, Mrs. Ethel Storey.

W.M.S. OF TRINITY CHURCH MEETS

Madoc, March 8—The March meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church was held on Thursday 2nd. at the home of Mrs. W. Dafoe. After devotional exercises conducted by Miss Wood and Mrs. W. H. Bailey the President, Mrs. Bridgeford took charge of the business. Minutes were read, and Roll Call responded to by a favorite hymn. Twenty-eight members responded. A letter was read from the Presbyterial Secretary, Mrs. Meyers requesting a bale of clothing be sent by September 1st. Good work, cheerily, clean and mended, for children and adult clothing is much needed. An invitation was given to any who will, whether members or not, to attend the group meetings for prayer and study which are being held this year.

The Secretary of Christian Stewardship, Mrs. T. Mayhew, gave a short article on "The Practical Results of Christian Stewardship." Interesting reports of the peace secretaries, Mrs. M. Bristol and Mrs. H. Mickelchan received briefly. Nominations were then appointed for the various committees. Mrs. G. Meyers was appointed delegate, and Mrs. J. Hermiston, alternate, to the Presbyterial which meets in Trenton on March 30th and 31st. The introduction to chapter VI of the Study Book on the work of the W.M.S. was given by Mrs. Garrison following which Miss Wood gave a brief outline of the organization and work of the Congregational, Presbyterian and Methodist churches. Mrs. Bailey continued with an account of the work of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church. The good accomplished by these societies is impossible to compute. It depends for its value and strength upon the devotion and self-sacrifice of members and officers in their fidelity to give "the everlasting gospel unto those that dwell on the earth." The closing hymn was the hymn and prayer. The social hour was with Mrs. Bristol and Mrs. Irwin as assistant hostesses was enjoyed by all. The April meeting will to held at the Parsonage.

A TEN-CENT GIFT

By Allen Kaylor

Scott Carbrough friends gasped when Ruth Ann Carbrough announced that she was merely sending a dime to the Red Cross. To a salesman in a rare book shop he bought only a calendar, and the dime went to buy new furniture they could afford after paying "the bootlegger." But, she said, she had a "brain storm" and sending a Dixie dollar for unwanted magazines.

Ruth's love for Dick was great, though he sensed her low estimate of his shortcomings he may have had. What's a diamond brooch and a diamond horseshoe compared to a kiss of adoration from one you also adore? Every week, would be a new Ruth's answer.

And yet Dame Gossip has a way of showing love aside, making wives grumble and plunging husbands into misery. That's what happened to the Sanborns when Ruth overheard some of the latter her "friends" were fond of saying behind her back.

One evening when Dick came home he found his young wife in the dumps; the supper uncooked and the house untidied.

To his first astonished demand for an explanation Ruth gave back sassy answers and refused to eat. But the bad been married less than a year, and Dick still had that and patience when it came to pestering his wife in his favorite way.

"Are you hurt your thumb on the can-opener," he queried, "or did your aunt Aggie write she's coming to visit?"

Ruth grimaced, to stifle a smile. "Neither," she retorted.

"Nothing" she could be serious."

Dick agreed.

"Well, then, let her the grimly," I went to Keith Earhart's bridge party to-day and everybody was there "as I told you I would. And it was perfectly lovely, Dick."

"I see," said Dick, soberly. "Who got scrambled eggs?"

Ruth paused guiltily. I wanted to have party to prepare something special for your dinner. So I came into the bedroom for my clothes and found the others in the kitchen."

"What did you overhear?"

"Nice, dear, nothing special," cooed. She said it was an awful rag."

"Indeed!" Dick's voice was cold. "Then Keith Earhart spoke up."

Ruth continued, "She said I was a fool for putting up with your silly ways. We have no car, and we don't go travelling, and we don't throw big parties, and——"

Dick glowered. "And you might have more money than their husbands never will in a million years. My insurance policies for your protection, and I'm investing all the dollars-and-cents we can in good real estate."

Ruth eyed him coldly. "I told you I wanted to let them know I overheard them.

"And what did I'd been there?" Dick mustered.

"Why, no bad you. werent't. You would have heard Edith make the remark that she had an 'old fish' anniversary you'll probably give me a gift costing ten cents."

"Oh, did—and the others laughed outright."

Dick set his lips in savage silence. He didn't answer.

Ruth, weeks later, Dick came home in a strangely jubilant mood, but he would not divulge the reason. A few days afterward, questioning, he simply answered, "It's a secret."

After dinner Dick reminded her of their approaching anniversary.

"I want to give a little party to celebrate it," he said. "And I'd like you to invite your friends and your family husband."

Ruth appeared startled. She had been afraid that Dick might frown at the expense of an anniversary party.

The celebration was a perfect success, as such affairs go. The guests, though slightly improper but not embarrassing, the toasts were clever and the cocktails were mixed according to a good recipe.

Finally, Dick rose to speak. He placed a small package on the table. He paid glowing tribute to Ruth's goodness and devotion, and wound up by announcing the present he was giving her.

"As some of our kind friends have predicted," he said slowly, glancing at each of his listeners, "this gift that cost me very little to purchase, it cost me exactly ten cents."

There were mutters of astonishment. Somebody said Ruth grew furiously crimson, but Dick went on:

"One of my pet lunch-time diversions is browsing around old book-stores. A couple of weeks ago I came across an item for which the proprietor wanted 10 cents. I bought it."

He handed his gift to Ruth, who opened it silently.

"The book," Dick concluded, "is a fine edition of 'Teacher,' written by the author. Anytime, Ruth, that you'll care for a diamond bracelet, or a pink coat, or a month in Paris, just let me sell that for you. If I know anybody should read books, it'll bring you a few thousand dollars."

MAR. 9— MR. AND MRS.— A HARD DAY AT THE OFFICE

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE—No. 78

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

In Castrum Mare, Fulpus Fupus had had his revenge. Worming his way into the favor of the Emperor, he had been adopted by the childless Augustus as heir to his throne. His first act had been to order Erich von Harben and Malbis Lepus cast into prison. They were roughly seized and chained in a dungeon.

The gladiatorial games in both cities were held at the same time every year, so while Tarzan was being exhibited in the arena at Castra Sanguinarius, Erich von Harben was brought forth into the Colosseum at Castrum Mare. Watching him from her father's box was the lovely Favonia, her eyes full of horror.

The Emperor Augustus, in gorgeous robes, sat upon his carved throne. Naked blacks were swaying long-handled fans of feathers above his head. Here was the embodiment of wealth and pomp and power. Then von Harben saw something that puzzled him. It was his black servant, Gebula, who had long been missing, now moving toward the imperial box.

Gebula was seen for a moment and then disappeared, like a flash behind the hangings that formed the background of Caesar's throne. The contestants in the arena were being marched away when a wild shriek halted them. There, in Caesar's box, Gebula had the Emperor by the throat and was drawing his dagger to kill.

...stifle and misery. Pain! Desperation! Discomfort! Despair!"

"I'm sorry to hear you're not well," said Mr. Smith. "Am I to consult with you, or what?"

"The matter was not settled that night. It was discussed frequently in the days that followed. Sam's mother was certain, he did not accept, only oppose the proposition. She was decidedly perplexed and disheartened by his attitude and was at a loss to understand what she would attack a change, if change there was to be, because convinced finally that there was none.

Stubbornly, such by fiat, the old man yielded: he acquiesced in full and had but to endure the rest of his surrender. Having given his consent, he ordered no modification, no advice, for such was Sam's generous way.

The hour of parting came, Sam squeezed both of his mother's dear ones in one of his bear hugs, donned clothes and with a sentence in each hand, the one a valise, the other a cloth cap, nothing more. Then as he set forth, he turned to look at them, there to the motionless figures on the throne like chair at the other end of the room.

Lee Ying looked regal in his slumber robe and cushions.

"I'll all in recollect," the father muttered.

"I'll be. The stuff sale at eleven o'clock tonight. I may come around and ask in order that I may be instructed in my ay benefit. Ah, yes. It's a la a large and a seaworthy craft."

It is not large but it is seaworthy and it has weathered many storms.

"You se yi louries a -ango "You se yi louries a -ango of the ...ngs of the ...ngs of cattle. Are your duties hard, my son?"

No heeder than others which my countrymen perform every day. I am to sit here in the shop and attentions, the cleaning of dishes, the serving of food to the guests, and such useful labors.

Disappointed, Shelrod over the father's face. His noble son, his spelling, to be a menial! Ah, well, there, He managed to conquer his expression.

"The justice flows forth in diligence," he said. "Put he mete remember the birth."

"I shall engrave your words upon the tablets of my memory," Lee Ying promised.

Lee Ying strolled. After a moment he rose and came forward across the polished floor and now he made no effort to conceal the limp. Taking his ...on into his embrace he stroked his ...ack and kissed his breast. He stood ther for a while, then in a broken voice he said:

"Go forth on your pilgrimage, I shall expect you to return to me. Do now, while I can still see you."

Lee Ying listened until the footsteps died and then he sat until he had heard the last echoed whisper of the departing guests. Then he went down into the world he wished to know, there to begin his life's work at-sent son the vigor bled out of the old man's body and he moved to the door of his station and with bowed head and the pearls of his rosary clutched in lighted joss stick, then knelt upon the silken floor cushions and, his eyes wet, was strangling.

Then, too, was blind as he rode down to the street level. A feeling of guilt possessed him. He was a bad son, now old and how lonely his father was!

When he stepped out of the elevator he would have passed a waiting Chinese if Sam had not stopped him. Sam had not stirred and if he had not heard the dear voice he would be surprised to recognize Moon Cassidy.

"Are you leaving without a good-by to your friends?" the latter asked.

"Moon, I didn't think anybody knew I was going. I —didn't know I had any friends."

"Is if you're working your way across?"

"Yes, I'm an undercurrent, a—roustabout boy."

"And how long will you be gone?"

"I don't know, Moon. I've forgotten a good many things and a good many people, Moon. I'm going to remember all I can."

"Me? Don't worry about me, I won't forget you."

Absently, slowly the boy inquired, "Why not? I'm nothing but a nuisance to you. I'm a—a—I'm the same steer. We can't even touch fingers."

"If to disprove the Eliot reached forth a paw, Sam took it and held it while he, You're a kind of a person to me."

She put her arms around his neck and kissed him full upon the lips.

"Good-bye, Brian Boru," she whispered. "Come back as clean as you go."

It was a virginal kiss, the first girl's kiss that Sam had ever received. He head was whirling when he bowed to the car and started off towards the elevated station. A pathway lighted by love and a pilgrimage! What harm could come to him?

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Sam's experiences came swiftly on shipboard and he rose to meet them in a way that quite surprised himself. He began with a hazy dreamed that he was Chinese, and that was a relief; he was merely a greasy member of the greasy crew of a greasy tramp. For that matter, his companions had little or no more soap than he. They were a motley fellows, some of them were fellows, but they were very sure in run among the lowly. Among these Sam found himself, and he fitted in with ease. Acquaintance with them was of the superficial sort which is normally reviled if deliberately in his mind and yet which was doubly precious at this time would attack a change, and he became convinced finally that there was none.

Stubbornly, such by fiat, the old man yielded: he acquiesced in full and had but to endure the rest of his surrender. Having given his consent, he ordered no modification, no advice, for such was Sam's generous way.

James Carney, Ralph Linn and Winnifred Shotter in "Mischief," now at the Bella.

SUCCESSFULLY PASSES CRISIS

London, Ont., March 9—(CP)—Further improvement in the condition of Rev. Canon Richardson, rector of the Huron Diocese of the Church of England in Canada, was noted today. Bishop Seager successfully passed the crisis of a pneumonia attack several days ago.

"HARD TO HANDLE" AND "MISCHIEF" ARE LAUGHTER MAKERS

A story that combines quaint humor, rare satire, uproariously funny situations, snappy dialogue, was chosen by Warner Brothers as the starring vehicle in which James Cagney makes his return from over the screen after an absence of several months.

It is "Hard to Handle", which is scheduled to be shown on the screen at the Pelle, today and Friday, matinee daily. The story was written by Houston Branch, one of the pi oneer press agents of the movies, and the first motion picture editor of the New York Daily News.

Wilson Mizner and Robert Lord, who have worked in publicity, enhanced the humor of the story with snappy dialogue and unique situations which should stir everyone's risibilities.

Mary Brian has the leading feminine role, as Jimmy's sweetheart. As Ellie Nolan, she is the daughter and mistress of a newspaper publisher and marries him when he gets into trouble. Others in the cast include Allan Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly, Claire Dodd, Gavin Gordon, Berton Dunn, Robert McWade, John Sheehan and Matt McHugh.

Winnifred Shotter returns for another excellent entertainment we suggest you see, "Mischief", to be shown at the Bella today and Friday. This funmaker is a British and Dominion production featuring Ralph Lynn, who has established himself as Britain's leading comedian. The story by Ben Travers is in the style of "Rookery Nook", and other Travers' comedy stage successes, and maintains the audience in a simmer of merriment throughout its length. Ralph Lynn is provided with one of his characteristic parts in the development of which he is seen at his very best. The film very amusingly describes a matrimonial complication into which Lynn distracts the most customary eagerness and excellent intentions. Naturally, he complicates the issue, but in good time runs against clearing himself through the delighted Bella fans recently in "The Love Contract", and forgets all about his mission, falling in love with the charming girl. It all ends happily, the end of the film being more ludicrously ridiculous than the Ralph Lynn scene. The famous comedian is supported by Winnifred Shotter and a fine cast which includes Jerrold Lanna Carney, Joanne Stuart, Jack Hobbs, Maud Gill, Bromley Davenport, Kenneth Kove and Louise Emery.

SHERLOCK HOLMES NOW AT CAPITOL IN "MISSING REMBRANDT"

Your old friend, Sherlock Holmes is in town again, solving the most difficult problem of his career in "The Missing Rembrandt" (British talk) which opens today at the Capitol Theatre for three days.

This production, made in England, is based on the adventures of Sherlock Holmes from H. Conan Doyle's famous "Adventures of Charles Augustus Milverton." And if you remember Sherlock Holmes, as very good detective stories, you will recall that this is one of the most thrilling and mystifying in the whole series of Sherlock Holmes.

You will remember, too, that is is distinctly different from all the other Holmes' adventures in that the villain, his chief villain, is typical of the modern gangster as he has been portrayed on the screen by such stars as Edward G. Robinson and James Cagney.

Arthur Wontner whom critics of the earlier Holmes pictures hail as greater Sherlock than John Barrymore, will again be seen in the leading role. Several others, too, who have appeared in earlier productions of this series, are also in the cast. Among these are Ian Fleming, Philip Hewland, Jane Welsh, and Minnie Rayner. Cyril Twyford personally directed the production.

The program is made complete by the addition of Canadian News, a comedy and further adventures of "The Hurricane Express."

Berlin, Mar. 10 (AP)—The Berliner Tageblatt was suspended today until Mar. 13 under provisions of the right censorship recently established by the Hitler government.

The Berliner Tageblatt is generally rated as an independent newspaper representing tendencies of the Democratic party.

Munich, Germany, Mar. 10 (AP)—General Franz Von Epp, who yesterday became federal commissioner for the Free State of Bavaria today ordered the arrest of all Communist officials and all Reichs-banner leaders in the State.

Orders were given for the police to break no opposition in the hotbed of Red flags on official buildings. Searches for weapons were ordered started.

Hard Line For Germans

Berlin, Mar. 10 (AP)—A threat of hard labor for thousands of Communist prisoners and a promise of legal safeguards for Jews and foes were voiced today by the two members of the cabinet who spoke on last Tuesday's long six hours of bullion.

Thus the hard labor for detention camps faced thousands of imprisoned Communists was intimated by Minister of the Interior Frick and Interior Minister, in an address at Frankfort-on-Main-Main.

He said Communists would be barred from prisons "not through fear but because "useful members of the nation".

Captain Hermann Goering assumed the central union of Jewish citizens that "the safety and life of Jewish citizens is legally guaranteed."

Socialist Attacked.

The Socialist Reichstag member, William Sollmann, former Minister of the Interior in the cabinet of the late ex-Chancellor Stresemann, was attacked and injured in Cologne by political opponents who forced entry into his apartment. Socialists were taken in custody there for personal protection.

A Telegraphic Union News Agency dispatch from Chemnitz said a Socialist publication there was killed when the Socialist club house there was occupied by police.

The War Zone

Tokyo, March 10.—(AP)—Heavy battle between Chinese and Japanese forces within the walled city on Kupeikow was reported today as the Japanese army began extending operations into North China proper in order to take that northern gateway to Peiping.

A dangerous situation developed with the Chinese strongly reinforced in that area and supposedly still holding the pass despite earlier reports that the Japanese occupied the city at noon today.

A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Kupeikow said: Chinese, Manchuria, disarmed today. Chinese were putting up a resistance within the walls of Kupeikow.

BRITISH GAMES IN LONDON IN 1934

Girls' Events Will be Added To Program

Hamilton, March 10—(CP)—M. Robinson, Honorary Secretary of the Canadian Olympic Committee, had little comment to make on a London despatch indicating the British Empire games in 1934 would be in England. He stated that Senile Laidlaw, former Toronto Argonaut Club official had represented Canada at the meeting—Jan. 30, which decided the next year for the games and had advanced this country's position.

Canada decided the games should proceed but had no desire to stage the 1934 games unless England did not wish to do so. A full report of the meeting has been received here and it indicated the programme would be the same with the addition of track events for girls would be added.

ZANGARA IS SENTENCED TO DEATH CHAIR

Pays Penalty For Murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak

I'M NO CARE

Denounced Judge Thompson as Sentence Was Pronounced

Miami, Fla., March 10 (AP)—Giuseppe Zangara sealed his assassin today was sentenced to death in the electric chair for the murder of Mayor Anton J Cermak of Chicago in his fatal attempt to slay President Roosevelt.

Sentence was passed at 10.31 a.m. by Circuit Judge O Thompson who ordered Zangara from a prepared statement ending with "and may God have mercy on your soul."

There was a flurry in the courtroom and sentence was passed but Zangara denounced Judge Thompson and shouted "you give me death, die chair

"I'm no afraid die chair.

"You're one of capitalists.

"You is crook man too. Put me in electric chair.

"I'm no care."

Presiding ruled Zangara from the court room as he shrieked the sentence. Spectators were held in the courtroom until after the prisoner was removed in the elevator and taken to his cell.

Under Jo Florda law the execution date will be set by the Governor of the State and officials of the State penitentiary at Raiford.

Judge Thompson announced he ordered that Zangara be confined in Dade county jail until his removal to Raiford and that he be kept there until the Government sets the execution. In the hour and half recess, to be set by the prison farm superintendent.

WIRES DOWN FROM STORM

District East of Napanee And West of Trenton Affected

With miles of sleet-coated wires down somewhere in the belt the Bell Telephone Company of this district office were working frantically today to restore interrupted service between intermediate points in the area of Kingston, Brockville, Napanee and points east, and from Belleville to Trenton. Immediate rural sections surrounding this city, little trouble has been experienced since the ice storm which swept this district during the past 24 hours, the overloaded wires collapsing in the early hours and isolating whole communities. It is expected that service will be restored early today.

The available man on the field crew is at work this morning", stated Mr. C. W. Proctor when questioned.

Telegraph lines report little difficulty, and long distance service is fair. At the Canadian National Telegraph office "all clear" was reported. Officials of the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs stated that the line down in the vicinity of Marysville.

Hydro service, in the city and rural sections was carried on for the most part with no interruption except in the rural districts, where a few wires have been down. Power was kept at a minimum by consumers participating.

In the city damage was kept at a minimum, the sum total reported by the department of public works, being broken tree branches crashing to the walls in various sections owing to their sleet weighted coverings.

STORM AT WORST IN AND AROUND IROQUOIS

Only Two Rural Telephone Lines out of 36 Working

Iroquois, Ont., March 10 (CP)—After 36 hours of wind, snow and sleet, Iroquois is today recovering from one of the worst storms experienced for some years. At mid-March blizzard raged here yesterday stopping all branches of trees and power down in the streets and poles. Out of 36 rural lines only two are working order.

All long distance communication was cut off yesterday, but with several repair gangs out, it is hoped to make sufficient repairs to allow the resumption of long distance communications today.

PRISON TERMS AND LASHES ON GUILTY PLEA

Theodore Giroard Gets 10 Years And 15 Lashes

BANK ROBBERY

George Brought From States Given 8 Years And 10 Lashes

Toronto, Mar. 10 (CP)—Stiff penitentiary terms and lashes were imposed in police court today on Theodore and George Giroard, brothers of Hull, Que., New Hampshire, after they had pleaded guilty to bank robbery of a bank branch here last month when $2,300 was stolen.

Theodore was sentenced to ten years in penitentiary with fifteen lashes. George was sentenced to eight years with ten lashes.

The brothers who returned to Toronto this week after Inspector Hallen Pickett had gone to St. J., police trailed him from Montreal through several States and arrested him in New York. He returned voluntarily with the inspector and was placed under arrest after crossing the border into Canada.

Arrested On Feb. 2.

Theodore Giroard has been under arrest since the night of Feb. 2. He was wounded in a gun battle with Detective Joseph Cervini of Toronto after the robbers had fled. George escaped in an automobile and was believed to have carried all of the $2,300 loot with him.

The two sons of Giroards was in Nashua. When some of the stolen money was found in their possession.

Montreal police took up the chase. Several days later the Giroard brothers flew from Detroit to Montreal Dear Lake aiming region of Canada on a brief prospecting trip.

SOLD TO TOWN FOR 25 YEARS

Councillors at Blind River Think No Wrong is Done

Blind River, Ont., March 10 (CP) Members of the Blind River town council have been selling goods to the town for 25 years and nothing was said about it, Mayor William Rowan stated today.

Two councillors, Isadore Provencher and Pierre Wemsley, have resigned Wednesday night did not "know the law" Mayor Rowan told the Mayor. "We pay only $100 a month forward relief costs, $70 to a bookkeeper and $25 to another man.

The government pays the rest and we did not think it was wrong for a councillor to buy from the government."

Meanwhile, councillor Raoul Gendron, who also charges that he lost to the resignation of the two men, is proceeding with a petition to relief accounts to see how much money has been spent and who received it.

Refused permission to see accounts at the municipal office, Gendron says he has the assurance of H. Alderson, chief of the provincial police in the district, that it is his right and privilege to look at all relief bills.

'HOLIDAY' CASH IS STOLEN FROM HOUSE

$1,235 in Safe Taken by Bronx Holdup Men

New York, March 10—Three young masked gunmen held up the home of Kenner and another man in his apartment at 1520 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, which he uses as his real estate and insurance office, and escaped with $1,235 and scores of blank checks. Because of the bank holiday, no money was being kept in a safe.

The gunmen in their haste overlooked $2,000 worth of jewellery belonging to Kenner's wife.

Mr. Kenner was talking with a friend, Joseph Chilnick, of 284 East 161st street, when the bell rang and the robbers entered. The intruders, Kenner said, were Italian. One, a cleric, of 1,121 Elder Avenue. Into bedrooms. Then they rummaged the safe, but failed to find the jewellery. They were last seen walking rapidly south on Mount Eden Ave.

Two Messages to Congress By President on Cuts And Budget

WILL FIND JOBS

Roosevelt Satisfied With Progress Made So Far This Week

Washington, Mar. 10 (AP) —His second attack on the United States economic crisis finds President Roosevelt calling on Congress today for authority to effect a $500,000,000 slash in veterans' costs and government salaries.

And his swift development emergency program brings forward a proposal for a $500,000,000 bond issue to be used in employing approximately 500,000 men in internal improvements.

Both proposals were put to Congressional leaders in another White House Conference last night that lasted until early today, unofficial reports said.

Mr. Roosevelt, emphasized that he regarded the measure as of emergency character. He expressed himself as satisfied at the progress made in the conference.

Asking full responsibility to make the economy moves that have proved unattainable by Congress in the past, the President laid down limitations by which he would be guided.

The restrictions provide, in the case of veterans, that all entitled to pensions or compensation be those whose disability was of service connection. For veterans whose disability is not traceable to duty when they were in the service, only temporary relief totally disabled are to be kept on this privileged basis Pitting Compensation.

Reduction of compensation for all other veterans now receiving allowances will be in line with reductions to pensions or compensation be those whose disability was of service connection. For veterans whose disability is not traceable to duty when they were in the service, only temporary relief totally disabled are to be kept on this privileged basis Pitting Compensation.

City and District News

STORM HAS NOT BEEN COSTLY

Whitby's barrage of ice, sleet and snow, which has been falling since noon on Tuesday, has not materially interfered with city duties or the operations of public works and has proved a success only for snow removal contractors, it was pointed out this morning by the Mayor of the town. Although the number of men employed by the municipal department is doubled in the event of a storm, the cost of the operations is not increased, as the men are paid by the hour. The only purchase of material was that of cinders for slippery hills and corners.

OVERHEATED PIPES CAUSE OF RUN

Overheated stove pipes in the home of Mr. Patrick Hurst, 28, Stradan street, brought number two brigade of the local fire department to that address late Thursday evening. Nothing was reported as the result as soon as the arrival of the department without damage.

RED WINGS AND O. S. D. JRS. WIN

In the two K-Y League games played at the rink here last night O.S.D. Juniors continued their triumphant march toward the league title by defeating the Q. V. S. 'Grads' by the score of 9 to 1 in the junior group, while the Red Wings defeated the Holy Name Society by the same score in a hotly contested game. Both games were quite clean throughout and plenty of fun indulged in by those on ice for the few fans to follow these teams. Bill Lindsay handled the first game while Alex Gallagher officiated during the second tilt.

CHEERY ROBIN IS DISGUSTED

While shrill gales whistled around downtown corners early Friday morning, and stinging flurries of snow bit and stung the mufflled faces of early birds, a cheery robin, all puffed out and huddled in turned up coat collars, another early bird of the spring season, hopped to a hunched into a little ball, with feathers fluffed as he perched jauntily on the peak of a building in the Robertson Hook on Front street, at a corner of the latter cluster and broadcast was on the birch face as he sat and twittered out his fully to believing too much in signs—especially early signs of spring.

ICE CUTTING IS NEARLY COMPLETED

With nearly their whole season's supply in and with only a few more days cutting to do before they completely fill their ice houses, commercial dealers of the city have the season well in hand. In spite of adverse conditions during the present season, there has been no shortage of natural ice during the coming he months for many dealers and supplies will be well supplied.

"We've had about a dozen days' cutting to do," declared Mr. Harry Smith, when questioned today, "and it is good ice. It is about the best ice we can ever remember cutting. In the last few days we have been busy for the clarity of the ice this year has been exceptional and in some cases time ago from the ice quickly. In spite of the cold windy days, the whitish crust on the surface, all dealers were back on the bay on Friday hard at work finishing the cutting of the crop.

MAY PURCHASE OIL MACHINE
City Engineer to Visit Firms Selling These Machines
Only three recommendations were passed by the council sitting in committee on Thursday night and which will likely be ratified at the council meeting on Monday evening. Ald. Harker introduced a recommendation "that the City Engineer be instructed to visit the different firms selling oiling machines and make a written report to the council on each one as to the best machine advisable to purchase". The council believe the cost of oiling can be materially reduced by the purchase of a machine and at the same time adequately maintain the road bede in the city.
The city solicitor was authorized to prepare the prepayment tax by-law for council and also for council at his earliest convenience. James Babcock was also engaged as scavenger for the city at a price of $100 payable quarterly.

CHAMBER WILL PUT ON DRIVE
Energetic Membership Campaign is Launched
The meeting of the Membership and Finance Committee of the Chamber of Commerce held yesterday afternoon, had to do mainly with making arrangements for an energetic membership campaign that was largely attended. Much enthusiasm was shown and nine teams were organizing so as to have interviews with as large a number of prospects as possible.
The objective set was to acquire 50 new members. It was believed that this total would be considerably exceeded, when the campaign is concluded next Thursday.
The Chamber of Commerce is now out of debt, but an increase of support is needed, if that favorable position is to be maintained. There are also many essential activities that are now being undertaken because of lack of funds. Membership is being preserved, and important reductions in expenditure have been taken to meet the necessities of the times. But further economies in this way would seriously impair the usefulness of the organization.
The Chamber of Commerce has played a dominating part in the development of the past couple of years which have virtually transformed Belleville's business. As one of the most substantial and beautiful cities in Canada, a large portion of stress through which we are now passing has seriously reduced the revenue of the city's temporary phase which will soon be forgotten in the greater progress to come.

COLD WINDS SWEEP CITY
Mercury Reached 4 Above With Wind Velocity 35 M. P. H.
Opinions differed in the city last night as to which spot was the coldest, but everyone agreed that whirling continued to hold their sway over the downtown district.
Gordon street residents whose back porches face the north shore of Coleman Pale were willing to bet that it was "way past zero" when they looked out upon Bonnie Rig Inlet stride. The only takers of the bet were those one-storey residences whose front porches faced the same commerce and the wind which swept uninterruptedly over the wide open spaces. They were willing to add that it was "way below" and pointed to the fact that the street registrations, and call it 'a night—and they did not. About an hour above, near the city pump house, when the 3am fill was put on the city reached of cold Cannifton, residents didn't know how cold it was. Few of them stirred out of the house to see.
Officially, however, it didn't go to zero, in this immediate district. At the city pump house on the automatic thermometer, the lowest point reached, during the early morning of Friday was at 4 for above zero. At most the same registration was made at the weather bureau at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory on upper Dundas street, with a low of three degrees. High, at noon Friday, was in the, neighborhood of twelve above. Velocity of wind was set at 35 miles per hour maximum.
Streets were deserted in the city during the evening, while residents coaxed furnaces that had carried banked fires almost since the start of the month into real heat production. Janitors of public buildings, schools, offices and other places found it hard to heat the buildings that had become chilled by the whistling winds. Fire calls, even though firemen of both brigades stood-by nearly all night on account of the wind, were fortunately few. Only one run was reported during the evening.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple Accepts Call to Bridge Street U. C.
Will Leave Smith's Falls to Become Pastor in Belleville
HIS CAREER
Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of the Smith's Falls United church for the past six years, has accepted the invitation to take charge of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, at the close of the Conference year in June.
Rev. Dr. Semple is one of the younger young ministers of the United Church in Canada. He is of Irish birth and has a thorough knowledge of life in the new world and the problems of life. He has compiled a number of profitable pamphlets. He has been chairman of the Q. V. Quinte Conference athletic association. He is a member of the Renfrew Presbytery and was a representative at the Presbyterian General Assembly of church sitting at Hamilton. He is a brilliant student. Dr. Semple is held in high esteem for his remarkable executive ability besides the distinctly ministerial qualities.
News of Acceptance
News of the acceptance of the Belleville church pulpit has been received here, but the formal announcement came from Smith's Falls, where he has been acting as pastor.
Last autumn Dr. Semple was to Belleville as delegate to the anniversary of Holloway Street United Church and was then approached upon capacity congregations. He was recently in this city guest of the Bridge Street Club and one to the members.
He will take charge of the duties in connection with Bridge Street United Church on April 1st.

Praise for Dr. Bell
At the congregational meeting of Bridge Street United Church recently, a resolution, moved by Mrs. G. F. Stewart and seconded by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn, was passed expressing the appreciation of the congregation of Rev. Dr. Bell's services. In making the motion McStewart referring at the request and on behalf of the Board of Awards, said as follows:
"I esteem it a privilege and pleasure to express to Dr. Bell on behalf of the congregation Bridge St. United Church, our appreciation of his services during the past four years as minister of this congregation. Dr. Bell's ministry has been one of unusual success in many of those gifts, some others, which he has, also possesses in all. But, in addition to many other gifts, Dr. Bell has a special gift in that phase of his work that brings him more personally into direct relationship with congregation and into contact with the individual members of his administrations.
"Before he came to Bridge, Dr. Bell was reputed to be one of the eight or ten most gifted preachers in the United Church of Canada, and his reputation he has fully sustained during the past four years. He was also regarded to be one of the most fully sustained. I think I am quite within the mark in saying that this church has never had a pastor who had so deep, all-comprehensive a knowledge of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and who could also ever surpassed him. Combined with this rare knowledge, he also seems to a pre-eminent degree the gift of clear, logical, forcible, and easily comprehensible exposition and explanation and searching applications.

Biblical Knowledge
"Moreover, and still better than the Biblical knowledge they embody he has a deeply spiritual content of his sermons. He has ever held up before us the highest ideals of spiritual consecration and worship and devotion, and made the most heart searching appeals to his hearers to accomplish the Christian graces in their daily lives.
"So, to Dr. Bell, as a manly, outspoken man, a pre-eminent and gifted scholar, as an eloquent preacher, as an ardent promoter of the Work of God, and, as a loyal friend, I pay my sincere tribute. I wish, for ourselves, every one present will heartily concur.
"To Mrs. Bell, also, so greatly esteemed and admired and beloved by the members of the congregation, I wish on your behalf to pay your sincere tribute, and to express our heartfelt appreciation of her untiring and devoted services to the church and all its interests, and, in particular, to the most generous hospitality. The doors of her home have always been wide open, and the social side of organization in the church she has been repeatedly the hospitable and gracious hostess."

It required 40 years to a day to build the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City.

SILVERWARE IS FOUND IN SHED
Small Boys Make Discovery While Playing, Police Called
Secluded in a shed behind Lobb-law's Grocteria a cache of starting silver pieces of odd patterns and descriptions was found by three small boys playing in the vicinity early Thursday morning. About two dozen pieces of silverware, all of which had been plated, were secretly hidden away in the shed. The city police department were notified and are investigating.
The spoons, table spoons, dessert spoons and large fruit and gravy spoons were all found in the cache. The spoons were neatly wrapped in individual containers of silver compartment. It is quite evident that the silverware has been stolen from a nearby residence, while the piece is engraved but three different monograms are found on the spoons found. Some are stamped or engraved with the letter 'C' and have 'L.P.' while still others have 'H.P.', while one set is engraved with the letters 'C.M.' and 'Sterling'.
After carefully investigating the matter the police are of the opinion that the word "Hannah" is a lady's Christian name, while it is P. Hannah for the surname. Thus all the silver would probably be marked 'P. Hannah' or some other device. According to a local jeweller, who was consulted by the police, the pattern on some of the silver spoons are of very quality and valuable.
Constable Reid has been detailed to fully investigate the findings but to date no information relative to the disappearance from the vicinity of sterling silver has been received by the police department.
It is expected that the silverware was originally in the shed for safe keeping by the burglars, who intended to return at a later date and remove it to their home. Owing to the fact, that no reports of break-ins or robberies have been reported in this vicinity the police are of the opinion that the thieves took place elsewhere while the stolen was originally brought to the shed to escape suspicion. Information of the discovery was dispatched to Chief Kidd of Toronto, while police departments throughout the province, while the search for the owners is being followed out by the local police department.

Alleged They Consumed Liquor On School Premises.
Investigation by Principal Fox of the Picton Collegiate Institute has resulted in the suspension of three scholars of the Picton Collegiate Institute. The boys have been readmitted to the school pending further investigation now being carried on by the Collegiate Institute Board of Education. It is said that the liquor alleged to have been brought to the school grounds last week by a follower of the Trenton Hockey team. It is said that the three boys had been invited to partake of the liquor by the visitor and that the game was in progress. Police are investigating the Trenton end of the affair.

The road employees of the C.N.R. from Brockville to Belleville attended in a body and also sent a floral offering.

GOITRE
Goitre is a condition where the thyroid gland is enlarged. It is not a superfluous growth as many people think. The gland is actually supplied with blood vessels and nerves. The nerves supply to the thyroid are derived from the nerve centres in the neck and connected with the cranial nerves in the lower part of the neck. Pressure on the cranial nerves which control the various parts of the thyroid gland are responsible for the enlargement. A chiropractor by locating the impinged nerves and removing the pressure therefrom can reserve the cause of goitre.

UNREPORTED AT BENI ABBES

Young Aviator in Record Flight From London to Oran

Oran, Algeria, March 10—(CP)—Nineteen-year-old Victor Smith, enroute in a hurry from London to Cape Town in the hope of beating Amy Mollison's record flight of four days, six hours and 55 minutes, was unreported early today from Beni Abbes, his first stopping point since this Mediterranean port.

Smith made the flight from London to Oran yesterday in less than 10 hours; a record for the 1,300 miles he had flown. Here, his plane was being refueled and hopped off again for the Atlas mountains to Beni Abbes, at the edge of the Sahara desert.

Communication between Oran and that point is unreliable.

Took Active Interest in Hockey And Baseball

Galt, Ont., March 10—(CP)—Herb Carter, one of the best known figures in sporting circles, died here today, following two serious operations, the first of which, it is performed last Saturday.

He was born in Galt and lived here all his life. He had been identified with sport, in all its branches and was one of the best known men in the province. He had been identified for years with the game of hockey and baseball as an executive. He was also for many years a keen bowler and golfer. For years he conducted a barber shop here but in recent years had been out of the active life of the local government liquor store, a sydney and two sons survive.

PAPER MILL BUSY ON JIG SAW CARDBOARD

W. B. Ireland, M.P.P., Tells How Fad Helps Machine Industry

Toronto, Mar. 10.—W. H. Ireland, member of the Legislature for West Hastings and Conservative Whip, tells a story of how a modern fad may greatly assist industry and business. He explained that he had put the usual "how's business?" question to officials of a paper mill in the province. Ontario. "Great!" was the encouraging reply Mr. Ireland received. "We are busy making jig saw puzzle eight-hour shifts with the exception of Sundays." Asked as to what he was at the answer, with business supposed to be bad all around, and even in politics, Mr. Ireland asked for more details. "Where does most of your output go?" he queried. "Well," replied the official, "more than half of it goes to make jig-saw puzzles." "One can imagine," Mr. Ireland commented as a reporter, "after-reaching beneficial effect this may have on several businesses with the demand so greatly."

Canada was the best customer of British Guiana in 1931, importing fully three-fifths of all the sugar produced in that colony.

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia Prevents Trouble Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full bloated feeling after eating is caused by acidity. Instantly the stomach hydrochloric acid in the stomach neutralizes the acidity and relieves distress.

Acid stomachs are dangerous. Prolonged acidity causes the lining and lining of the stomach, often leads to stomach ulcers. Relief from acid indigestion, gas, sour stomach, heartburn occurs, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, is obtained by using Bisurated Magnesia.

It is the worst of folly to neglect acidity and trouble in the stomach, treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on this stomach acidity. Bisurated Magnesia is a tasteless powder that is easily taken in a teaspoonful in a water right after eating. This will drive out the gas, wind and bloated sensation the stomach, neutralize the acidity and relieve the pain, distress and sour stomach. Get a few ounces Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form) at your druggist or apothecary. It is safe, inexpensive, and a few remedy for the acidity. Be sure to get what you ask for, as there are several brands of this well known antacid on the market, some of which may not be suitable.

Plebiscite on Rail Merger Contemplated by Government

Full People Decide at Next Elections, Bennett Suggests

Ottawa, March 10 (CP)—Amalgamation of Canada's 22 railway systems into two groups, in fact, it may be definitely ruled out as a number of practical politics because both Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. C. A. Macdonald, King's Liberal leader in the House of Commons last night declared their opposition to the plan.

Apart from that the two party leaders insisted in agree on how King introduced an amendment to the Railway Bill, which was up for second reading, to insure parliamentary control over the Canadian National Railways and guard against amalgamation. Mr. Bennett declared he was committed as a "second in responsible government" which had no place in the Bill. He suggested, however, to have inserted in the measure a clause expressly prohibiting amalgamation of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Further discussion of the Railway Bill will take place today, and the expectation is the debate on second reading will end by next week. The committee stage will follow and before long the measure will be passed.

It is designed as at least a partial solution of the railway difficulties of the country and will provide a new form of administration for the Canadian National Railways.

It also sets up machinery of arbitration between the two railways and the public in order to prevent conflicting out unnecessary expense, duplication and wasteful competition. Where they are unable to agree the arbitral tribunal will settle the issue.

Amalgamation Queried

Amalgamation was early queried against in the government's railway legislation based on the report of the Duff Commission on Transportation, the Prime Minister said. But the Canadian National was a bankrupt enterprise, calling into the financial affairs of the country. The purpose of establishing a board of three trustees to manage the government road was to set up a receivership with wide and extraordinary powers in an effort to put it back on its feet.

There is no thought of any trick to bring about something to which we have pledged ourselves not to do said Mr. Bennett, referring to amalgamation. Conservatives and Liberals pounded their desk.

There is no sinister design in the mind that measure to accomplish the amalgamation on these systems when parliament is opposed to it. In my opinion, it would be impossible to bring about the amalgamation on these railways on any terms or conditions unless the people themselves had the opportunity so to declare. I have given much thought to the point as to whether or not the honest and proper method to pursue is to afford an opportunity at the next general election by plebiscite for the people to determine whether or not they are destroyed this should happen."

MANUFACTURE STEAM FROM ELECTRICITY

New Steam Boiler Plant is Officially Opened

Thorold, Ont., March 10 (CP) With officials of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission present, a new steam boiler and boiler plant was opened at the Ontario Paper Company here today.

By the manufacture of steam from electricity, instead of from coal the company will eliminate a daily coal consumption of 300 tons.

The new plant consumes three single tanks of three-phase electric steam generators, of 3,000 kilowatts each, and each generating steam at the rate of 50 pounds per hour of 200 pounds pressure.

Among those attending the ceremonies at the opening were C. H. Jeffery, or the engineering department of the Hydro Commission, and other Hydro representatives from Toronto; George Pettit, member of Parliament, for Welland; Marshall Vaughan, M.L.A., Welland; A. A. Schonn, general manager of the company, and manufacturers of equipment used in the new installation.

Mr. Schonn pulled a switch starting the new system in operation. The party then went to the St. Catharines Golf Club to attend a luncheon at which a number of the speakers were present.

Thyme, savoury, marjoram, sage, mint and other herbs are now being grown in a small way in British Columbia.

GEORGE ARLISS IN LATEST PICTURE AT THE BELLE

When Mr. George Arliss returned from the long vacation in England a short time ago he found Warner Brothers waiting to surround him with the finest cast, the most lavish settings and the best story of his whole career.

The picture resulting from this unique combination of star and material is "The King's Vacation", which opens at the Belle tomorrow and promises to be one of the most popular production this popular Canadian actor has ever appeared.

"The King's Vacation" is reported to be a happy combination of the light comedy of "The Millionaire" and the heavier drama of "Disraeli." In the last two most sensationally successful pictures prior to his vacation, Mr. Arliss, the actor, Arliss, his wife supports him in one of the principal roles in the as she did in both the other pictures mentioned above.

The present sets, unrivalled by anything seen in Hollywood in recent years, are reproductions of the early palace sequences of "The Iron Duke" and one of those particularly is the largest interior set ever built and exceeds in size also the massive set that Indian temple which was once built for another Arliss picture, "The Green Goddess".

The actor and his producing studio searched the lists of available stories and finally decided on "The King's Vacation" as the one to offer the exact people to carry the principal supporting roles. Marjorie Rambeau, recently seen in the New York stage and more recently featured in pictures, plays the "other woman". Patricia Ellis lovely young Wampas Baby Star, has a part in the young love story that runs through the picture as has the famous comedy popular new find from Pittsburg, Dick Powell.

Others in the cast include O. P. Heggie, previously associated with Mr. Arliss on the stage, Dudley Digges, Douglas Gerrard and James Bell, all well known and capable players.

John Adolphi who directed, "The Millionaire" and four other previous Arliss pictures, was in charge of the production of "The King's Vacation."

"The King's Vacation" is the story of a man who gave up his wife and child, his happiness in his country's throne and who, when peacefully enjoying after 18 years of pomp and power, leaves his Queen unannounced and returns to the scenes of his earlier happiness. What he finds has taken place there and the changes he observes in people whom he knew and loved eighteen years before, give Mr. Arliss a rare opportunity at the next general election by plebiscite for the people to determine whether or not they are destroyed this should happen."

HULIN SCORES LONE GOAL

Stirling Defeats W. Hunt-ingdon 1 in First Game of Playoff

"Buck" Hulin's lone tally late in the third period gave the Stirling Legion B.C. a one-to-nothing win over the West Huntingdon club in the first game of the county league playoffs at Stirling on Thursday night.

The nearly three full periods the teams battled on even terms and not until after Hollan had broken through the Huntingdon defence and called upon to exercise his authority did either player receive and Hulin stage his last minute Dick Merriott and Fergus Gunn was the first of the play-off series between the two clubs which will end with the Huntingdon scoreboard the leagues honors with the second game being played tonight. Stirling had the best period when, owing to over-anxiousness, the players became slightly excited and rough play was checked, the play was rather clean. The winning team looked the better throughout.

Line-up:

Referee—Donald Wrylock, Madoc. Goal Referees—Don Reid and Arthur Munro.

MACAULAY SEES HEPBURN OUSTING

To be Replaced if Party Moves Nearer Power, House Told

Toronto, March 10—(CP)—Bills private and government—occupy the attention of the Ontario Legislature today but as usual the session will probably be short, and in order that members may resume their duties in Ottawa. The expected Premier George S. Henry who has been ill for some time, will not be present. Hon. Wm. Finlayson, K.C., Attorney General, has been acting Premier during Premier Mr. Henry's absence.

There were many brisk passages yesterday, when Hon. Leopold Macauley, Minister of Highways, attacked the Opposition Leader, and throne speech reply debate and Peter Heenan, K.C., Hepburn, for with evading his responsibility in not taking office as Premier. Today Mr. Hepburn is a member of the Federal Parliament, but not a member of the Legislature, the Liberal party being led in the Ontario House by Hon. Harry Nixon.

Mr. Macauley charged the Liberal party with being divided on policy issues, and claimed Mr. Hepburn would be the logical man to speak as leader by October of this year.

D. M. Ross Prog., North Oxford, asked Mr. Hepburn's attitude which he claiming did not lessen cost production, but created unemployment. He urged too, immediate relief for farmers, and that he should not be able to assist industry to recuperate from the depression until buying power has increased.

UNUSUAL PROGRAM AT PHILLIPSTON-ZION INSTITUTE

Phillipston, March 10— A very successful dinner was held by the W.M.S. in the Hall on Wednesday, Ketcheson on Wednesday evening. The proceeds were very gratifying and an enjoyable evening spent. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marshal visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery on Sunday.

Miss McMillan of Trenton accompanied Miss Lucy Robson on her visit with her parents here over the week end.

Mr. Lorne Linton with his bride has come to reside in this community.

Miss Edna Ketcheson spent the week end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Sayers entertained a number of their friends at a social evening, euchre party on Friday evening.

The meeting of the Phillipston Red Cross held at the home of Miss Addie Gifford took the form of a birthday party in honor of the sale of donations from the members. The proceeds were equally allotted to relief work. The program of the afternoon consisted of a current broadcast (from another room) by the Junior Red Cross pupils of Bethel and Zion, the Christmas story of Miss Edna Ketcheson, teacher. The Misses Ella Gifford and several pupils is worthy of highest commendation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Carter spent Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mcovery in Belleville hospital).

The Women's Institute held a quilting and sewing bee at the home of Mrs. Walter Pearsall and Mrs. J. F. Ketcheson at which much was accomplished for relief purposes.

The Saskatchewan Government disposed of 4,000 settlement parcels of land, comprising 580,160 acres, during the last fiscal year.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

Brilliant Acting by Setting In Sherlock Holmes Story "Murder Rehearsal."

The Players. Their Roles
Arthur Wontner ... Sherlock Holmes
Ian Fleming ..... Dr. Watson
Hilmda Raynor ..... Mrs. Hudson
Philip Hewland ..... Inspector Lestrade

Jane Welsh ..... Lady Yule
Francis L. Sullivan ..... Baron van Gruyl
Dino Galvani ..... Carol Rzeski
Ben Welden ..... Chief Officer
Anthony Hollis ..... Marquis de Chemindaire

Herbert Lomas ..... Manning
Ben Welden ..... An Agent
Ben Welden ..... Sir Augustus

A mine of dramatic ore which Mr. Arthur Conan Doyle in his detective yarns seems to have drilled the world for decades. In these tales the ingenious if sometimes jerky reasoning pictures, and for radio plays, and the stories themselves lend themselves admirably easy dramatic presentation.

So the inevitable Sherlock which came to the Capitle Theatre on Tuesday is sure of an appeal. It is one of the most dramatic of the stories told by Doyle, and to this must be added the additional appeal of the fact that the producers have chosen the cast of merit. It is particularly filling that Arthur Wontner has been given the work as Doyle's tales deal largely with the character Sherlock.

Many men have played Sherlock Holmes, both on the screen and U. S. stage than William Gillette having played in the part. Here is the Sherlock Holmes of Wontner in the role with all the subtlety of Gillette, although the interpretation Wontner's acting is particularly interesting in the standpoint of the study in the character his musical roles. Ian Fleming as Dr. Watson plays a rather light role as well as a relief in comedy Francis Sullivan as the Baron van Gruyl fills the role from the score of avoidance. Hilmda Raynor as Mrs. Hudson contributes which he has acquired to accomplishment. Philip Hewland in the role of Baron von Gunierman, Jane Welsh as Lady Violet Yule Drew a touch of sympathy to itself and the whole story.

Hilmda Raynor was clever in the role of Mrs. Hudson.

The story opens with the theft of a famous painting of Rembrandt, the property from the Louvre at Paris, and purloining of a theft of letters. Here is the basis of the story which proves to be one of the most melodramatically inclined of the Sherlock stories.

But through the melodrama runs the thread of humor which makes Sherlock Holmes role the fine acting of the other members of the cast and back of all is a superb setting.

On the same program Jimmy Gleason in the role of Archy Goody which causes a continuous roar of laughter.

"AFTER THE BALL" BRITISH FILM ABOUNDS WITH MUSIC, COMEDY

The divine waltz tune of the audacious Strauss days—"After the Ball" is being whistled and danced to throughout Canada and everywhere. Because the picture is the cleverest, wittiest, naughtiest and exciting the most entertaining of the year. The title of the picture's name, when added theme-song of "After A Waltz A Tune" and the talented cast includes George Curzon, Basil Sydney, Mary Glynne and Esmond Ralston formerly of Hollywood.

The glorious days of Carmen provides a new and refreshing background for the gay days of "After The Ball" and even the mighty Emperor of Malaya is humorously worked into the plot. The world of the happy-ever-after variety, but with a delightful guessing element the very end as to how the happy ending will be achieved.

George Curzon, a really handsome Englishman, is a regular scream as representing his country at a series of all-night sessions of the League, and his love affair with the pretty and beautiful wife. When he tells her that he has been utterly parted all-night conference and will be detained to take her to Carmen's eagerly awaited opera ball, his disappointed wife decides to attend secretly and just "look in" on the gay throng, from the supposed safety of a box.

The scenes of the famous ball are the highlights of the picture, but no one will be surprised to learn that Curzon's husband appears on the scene and after flirting and finally dancing with the neglected wife insists upon taking her home.

The stranger, you see, is a friend of the Baron's business and is unwittingly boasted to him of his ball. Curzon's discomfiture when he hand discovers his wife to be the lady referred to in his friend's indiscreet confidence, is what is to be done?

If you see "After The Ball" at the Capitol Theatre Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday you'll go for yourself what happened after the Ball. You'll enjoy this lighthearted screen comedy and like everybody else, you'll be humming the tuneful waltz that is delighting all-out the story for weeks to come.

MAY REPEAL "BLUE LAWS"

Pennsylvania State May Have Baseball on Sunday

New York, March 10 (AP)—Four score and more years after the Pennsylvania forefathers of America decided on a code and should be declared illegal to engage in anything except "godly, virtuous and honest" pursuits, passed laws to outlaw other activities.

A national survey by the Associated Press of those so-called "blue laws" many on the statute books from the 18th century, today shows, that 25 states still carry a ban against recreational or gainful activities on Sunday. However in only six have there been any consistent effort to enforce them against baseball and in five games ball are pending.

Most important in national interest of the repeal bills of which in Pennsylvania home of three major league teams and without Sunday baseball since 1794. If in the only 25 states still carry a ban against ball which have handed Massachusetts having lifted the restrictions last year.

Annually for many years bills have been introduced which would give the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh baseball clubs the right of adding to their revenues with Sunday attendance but not until this year of depression has the issue become of near passage.

So the bill repealing the ancient laws has passed the lower House and is now in the Senate awaiting favorable reading in the Senate.

GOLD HOARDS COMING BACK

In Suitcases And Other Containers Returned to Banks

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Golden treasures, after playing hide-and-seek in mattresses, crept back to the secure vaults of the Federal Reserve banks of the United States here.

Beginning Monday, it was certified, $40,000,000 of gold and $90,000,000 in gold coin and gold certificates were returned to the banks of the country by Saturday.

Much by Attack and Ilmoustier the hoarders came singly and in pairs. Some carried purse and some had none. They carried suit-cases, bags, boxes and bundles of old glass bones bulging with the yellow metal whose recent heavy withdrawal from circulation was also responsible for the subsequent United States bank holiday and almost unprecedented banking suspension.

Not only did a stream of rather shamefaced depositors begin to beleive the Federal Reserve Bank window with some of the yellow coin ranging from $100 to $10,000 and more, but trucks bearing gold and certificates from other banks kept the reserve accountants busy.

NEW TYPE OF OIL BURNER IS MADE HERE

The Big "A" Company of Canada Limited, subsidiary of the Big "A" Company of Chicago, Belleville, has announced its immediate readiness to sell and install a brand new type oil burner which they claim to be the finest oil burner on the market. The selling organization officially got under way on Saturday of this week.

The new and improved type of burner is that it does not require levelling. It is not a pot burner. It is strictly a pressure burner and takes the place of the coal stove in 1 minutes. It can give as much heat as a red-hot coal stove and will heat a house with a very small compared to other types of burners. There is no dirt, the air control valve used, which enables the burner to burn cleanly. Keep the new company running to fat capacity.

All of the nine provinces of Canada, except Alberta and Saskatchewan, have boundaries touching salt water.

New bank law, swiftly passed by both Houses and signed by President Roosevelt last night provides means for reopening or "sound banks" upon their being approved by the Treasury department.

Secretary Woodin of the Treasury announces policy will be "to permit as rapidly as possible the opening of sound banks."

Senator Glass interprets extension of bank holiday as being designed to permit as many state banks as possible to "come to the shelter of the federal reserve."

No bank reopenings are to be authorized before Saturday, the Treasury indicates, in order that all banks upon opening "will be placed in a position to meet all demands."

Food supplies continue plentiful and prices stable.

New York stock exchanges to remain closed until national holiday is lifted.

Banks in many parts of the country open, operating within the restrictions laid down by the Treasury Department.

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE

How normal things become! Hysteria which was manifested while people were withdrawing their gold and savings from the U. S. banks in order to hoard it has ended and in its place is the "greatest kick" which the people of the United States have had. The moratorium on banks has made them look over normal conditions. Even the butler is the man who has to pay for the party of his master, when only a dollar in pocket is the only thing separating the wealthy from the poor and so on, and when people who never knew one another before the "break," now pass the time of day.

This laughter is a relief from the strain of the days of last week when the drain on the brain and the strain on the nerves of the people were becoming unbearable on bank and mind.

Radio broadcasters have taught the people a lesson. The programs go on despite closed banks. The people remain normal.

How disgusting this must be to the revolutionists, or communists or nihilists, who would seem to be anxious for Smith, Jones, Brown, Tom, Dick and Harry, the Misses Smith, the Smith boys, and Baby Smith as cool as usual, not to talk revolt and overthrow of government, but rather everybody supporting the hands of their president, even to dress him with dictatorial power. Reds are getting little understand this among a freedom-loving people.

It is remarkably strange that the wildeyed, long-haired, hair-throated revolutionists themselves have been more than normally quiet, in the face of their opportunities. The reason is that the people in a real crisis are braver than they themselves imagined they could be.

So far as the wild Red can see, everything is going along smoothly. What poor recompense for all his efforts to "rock the ship," efforts which have meant him nothing in rewards!

The normalcy of a people in a crisis is a badge of the race. The British people showed that long ago last autumn when the British gold standard was abandoned for the time.

So the home, in the school, in the street, in the office or factory, all is as it was, except for the greater friendliness of one person to another due to the comradeship of a great experience when the U.S. banks closed.

It is again a case of "one touch of nature."

THE 35-MILE LIMIT

Whatever motorcar drivers from this part of the country desire in the way of a new speed limit or of the removal of all speed restrictions except as calling for safe driving will not be satisfied this year as is being announced by the Hon. Leopold Macaulay that the 35-mile top speed remains for the present season, and until the roads and streets are more perfectly educated as to safe driving and exemplify that by their actions on the highways.

While motor laws are broken every day by most drivers, especially on the score of speed, the fact that there is a limit of thirty-five miles according to the regulations, imposes on everyone some restraint which would be a great speed upon the highways. Whereas many now travel forty or forty-five miles per hour with the speed limit at thirty-five miles many would doubtless drive ten miles an hour better than the limit of, say, forty-five or fifty miles per hour and if the top speed were either raised or off, there is no doubt many would go as fast as their cars could carry them and recklessly, too.

It would be well to keep such thought in mind that the Minister of Highways said what he did about speed and safe driving.

Motorists probably differ with the minister, but it must be remembered that all classes and all drivers have to be considered, not only the safe and fast drivers, but the less experienced and the reckless as well as those who do not wish to drive rapidly.

Fear of different speeds upon the roads today, the removal of the maximum would put an increased number of speeds upon the ways. There would be the fast driver, the slow driver, the careless driver, and the indifferent driver. The problem would be one for the highways safe with this variety of speeds on the roads. There are, of course, many drivers who can be trusted to drive at a very high speed and to use their brains in emergency and to retard their speed at the crucial moment but there are others who could not be trusted to drive without a restraining influence. True it is that a limitless speed would only be allowed where there is the possibility of safe driving, yet many would break that rule of the road and persons would suffer.

The tendency is to go just a little faster than you are allowed, as everyone knows.

"An optimist is a man who cherishes vain hopes, and a pessimist a man who nurses vain regrets."

"And what is a man who does both?"

"Oh, he's just a plain, ordinary husband."

DON'T VISIT SCHOOL JUST TO SEE FAULT

Parent Can Help Teacher With Children at School

BY LOUIS E. REICH, M.D.P.E.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Perhaps mothers visit the schools of their children more often than a few generations ago but, unfortunately, such visits are often likely to be prompted by a critical attitude of a destructive nature, instead of a helpful, understanding and cooperative one.

It's mighty easy to find fault, anyway. It's following the line of least resistance to the children, instead of education upon the shoulders of the teacher. It's comforting to think that, after you have washed dressed and fed the little ones and packed them off to their classes, your duty is done so far as pedagogics is concerned.

Have you ever stopped to consider how much good you could do in your active interest in the technical training of your child's mind? Have you ever thought how very close the teacher, herself, would welcome a sympathetic and understanding study of child's reactions at home, in contrast to his reactions in school? It is, in fact, only fair to place so much responsibility on the teacher's shoulders?

Yet, when a mother does visit a school, it goes without saying, it is because she is dissatisfied about something. It may be that your child's standing in his class rate as many A's as she would like; there may be a disagreement between the child to do, or too little; perhaps the child has been misbehaving, or maybe the child is not acting fairly, or is rude.

What should be remembered is the fact that no two children are alike, and that it is a rather impossible for the school with its usual overcrowded classes, to take care of the individual differences among them that is exactly where the parents come in.

Your own child may be particularly sensitive or shy. Perhaps he is a backward lastman in school subjects and activities that do not interest him. He may be a boy or girl who is quickly discouraged. He may suffer from a defect of hearing.

At any rate, whatever his or her special and personal differences are from the average may be, we must not always expect the school to find out the thing that we should tell her about it, so that she can modify the regular class work in such a way as to fit the particular needs of that particular child.

Often it happens that a boy or girl does badly at school for no other reason than that he is preoccupied—that is, above the average, in that case he looks dull and often looks down upon the school assignments and his classmates. Such precocity may easily be overlooked, however, by a teacher who has over her hands full, no matter how we may look upon her job. And no teacher would be glad to give such a precocious child extra or special help in order to satisfy such eager intelligence and so capture his interest.

Therefore make it a point to get well acquainted with your child and teacher your child gets, and as early in the school as possible. Don't be afraid that the teacher will not want to be bothered. Any teacher worth her salt will welcome your intimate knowledge about your own child, as well as your suggestions and help.

But don't visit the school only to have you have heard a complaint. Usually the teacher is right and the child wrong. At any rate, give the teacher all you can of the information gained in discussion with her, for, after all, it is the future of your own child that is at stake and not the teacher's.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

Reported by The Laughlin

COASTING

I'm sure the weathernan must know
I have a brand new sled;
He sent a lot of snow last night
While I was snug in bed.

I thought of hitching on a truck
Like other boys I know,
But Mother says that's dangerous
And warns me not to go.

So I'll coast over on the hill
Where it is safe to play;
Far away from streets and roads
No traffic comes that way.

MOCCASIN DANCE this week reveals the fact that moccasins are a scarce article. Shoe dealers do not carry them as there is no demand for them and the article made popular by the first Canadians, the Indians, and where once moccasins were a popular article of winter footwear they are rapidly becoming obsolete. The reason is not far to seek, outdoor sports of snowshoeing and tobogganing have disappeared for lack of snow, and wearing moccasins on the pavements is not quite the comfortable thing. Not many years ago few families threw much bonewarter for the child to do, or too little; perhaps the child has been misbehaving, or maybe the child is not acting fairly, or is rude.

BUDGET LIKELY TO COME DOWN TUESDAY

Increase Tax on Some Articles—Tightening of Income Tax Expected

Ottawa, March 9 (CP)—Indications still point to the budget being brought down next Tuesday, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance is working hard on the budget in his own apartments so that a slight cold which has kept him indoors should not cause any delay.

Increases in taxes on several articles as well as a tightening up in the income tax are expected, although any definite information as to what the budget will contain is carefully guarded. According to earlier reports, it is understood that there will be a number of tariff changes mostly to correct isolated situation, which have developed in the working out of changes made in the earlier budget and in some of the Economic Conference. It is said that most of these changes will be in the nature of tariff revisions.

OLD DAYS

If great-grandmothers could visit for a few hours in the rural districts around this city they would be greeted by the familiar whirr of the spinning "Jenny", and the click of knitting needles. Long forgotten and deep seeming wools have been taken from obscure corners, accounted to reports, and are once more serving with their old-time usefulness. In a few cases, it is said, some of the more energetic have been able to make profitable sales of the wool of the sheep they have clipped themselves, although such homespun products have been more in the nature of a test than anything else. It seemed hardly costly than it could be purchased for in local stores, although it was accordingly gone up in price, and although a carded comes from the mill, in the city, very few have been reported. One of the very few months several articles on the "revival" parties, in which ladies vied against each other in the art of affliction as rheumatism, and the like, and the winner was awarded with her clicking knitting needles. He won't constantly by him.

Such as such modern striped affairs as "socks" and younger generation parade the streets.

CHANGING HABITS—

Changing seasons are altering the habits of many birds, says the opinion of V. C. Wynne-Edwards, McGill University ornithologist. Even in this district the changed habits have been noted. Last year a flock of Canada Geese were seen by Mr. Carl Keaster of this city, intently peering through the upper reaches of the air on invite flight, headed in the direction of formation for the land of the barrens and below, the birds, evidently from their actions, were those which had remained throughout the past season, are months ahead of their time, reports Mr. Keaster who read the news item, and commented as it brought to his mind that several ordinarily been well behaved years ago they have changed their habits of their feathered tribe by refusing in many instances to migrate, but have been content to paddle around in the shallow reaches of Quinte, dodging the floating ice cakes. Theories advanced by naturalists found every winter, it is pointed out by Mr. Keaster, that not all birds migrate, only those in the districts are increased numbers of ducks are noted this

MANCHURIA IS DESCRIBED BY REV. J. A. KOFFEND

Stirling, March 9—St. Andrew's Church was crowded on Sunday, on Tuesday night, March 7th, when Rev. J. A. Koffend gave a splendid review of Manchuria where he and his wife labored at Seoupingai.

The program began with singing three hymns, thrown on the screen, "Tell me the Stories of Jesus" and "Sing them Over Again to Me." Lovely prayer was rendered in unison. Mrs. Chambers read beautifully two passages of Scripture taken from 10-20, 1st Peter, 2 Si-61. Mrs. W. T. Anderson then led in prayer. Its special request, Mr. and Mrs. Koffend, Korea, Mrs. Koffend at the piano. "When I get to Heaven." "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder." "The Low Sweet Chariot."

Mrs. Koffend in the old days" was sung heartily by the congregation.

Mrs. Koffend sang "Jesus Loves Me When I Read not Peer" was sung by Misses J. A. Koffend, Mary Chambers, Margaret Hall and C. Allen. Mr. R. W. Mackinnon then gave a most interesting address regarding the trees in story by hearsay, after which Mr. and Mrs. Koffend and his with had done in Manchuria.

Mrs. and Mrs. Koffend then appeared dressed in an Emperor's costume and Empress's costume on coming. He and Mrs Koffend had a conversation in Japanese, during which of course was very unintelligible but interesting to hearers. He also sang "Jesus Loves Me," a very great favorite with the Manchus. He closed with "Come to my Heart Lord Jesus."

A series of children's Chinese games with shawl, the game of Smithwick is a great test of steadying on one foot a boy has been practicing for days. This was the one foot showing great power of endurance.

Mrs. Koffend only twice in the year Mr. Koffend said her each stated that Mrs. Koffend was a very versatile in take forty copies to equal our one. Mrs. Koffend's address was an eleven of footfinding what misery to the people, and how the Light of Jesus as early as a month and. and there is so much degradation.

Mrs. Koffend's address was an enjoyable evening.

SITUATION IN VIENNA QUIET

Federal Troops and Gendarmes Occupy City of Munkirchen

Vienna, March 10 (AP)—Federal troops and gendarmes occupied Munkirchen, near the industrial region of Wiener-neustadt, this morning after a report that armed workers were organizing a hunger march on the provincial capital.

Machine guns and barbed wire were placed across the highway. Up until 1.30 p.m. however, an estimated 1,000 marchers—six, early, persons.

The situation in Vienna was quiet and the street presented a normal appearance.

Most of the morning newspapers did not even mention the presence of troops in Vienna. The newspapers, however, are under strict censorship.

EDITORS FOR CUT IN DEBTS

Majority Urge Sharp Reductions in Obligations

New York, March 10—Prompt and fiscal settlement of international debts either by drastic downward adjustment or long period moratoriums is favored by editors of ninety-two trade publications representing all the major industries in business and industrial interests.

Statements by the editors were made public by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, on behalf of the committee for the reorganization of governmental debts of which Mr. Sloan is chairman. The statements were in response to a questionnaire distributed by the committee. Ninety-two trade papers are representing key industries. Out of a total of 107 replies, only two were opposed to revision, three favored a settlement but doubted the intention of debtor countries in this respect, such a settlement and ten of the editors ended with no definite minds.

Consideration of war debts as a definite obstacle to recovery and as a factor in the common understanding of the problem formed the substance of replies from editors of papers serving the steel industry, coal, construction, motion picture, paper and machinery and building industries.

Wallace Thompson, authority on Latin America and author of the questions. Interrogations, considered the revision of debts essential to trade revival between this country and Latin America.

SIGNALS FOR WAGE UPSWING

Green Calls For Rise in Prices as First Step

Heading the public support of President Roosevelt in the "National crisis" is William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared "the time has arrived when wage-cutting should cease in those corporations and humane employers should actively join in a movement to lead in announcing increases of wages in all industries."

In his address before the New York Board of Trade, Inc., at luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria, Mr. Green declared "it would be a fatal mistake for the business and professional interests of the nation to assume that labor will continue to exercise discipline and restraint while it is denied a living wage and is forced to suffer intolerable impoverishment and unspeakable distress and hardships.

"There must be an increase in wages and purchasing power before unemployment can be overcome," he said. "Second, in order to take up the slack of unemployment and to deal constructively with the problem of mechanized industry, the five-day work week and six-hour day should be generally and universally applied. Third, the creation of credit through the Federal Government so that both small and large employers of labor may finance production."

REVIEWING FORT BENNING MAPS

A detachment of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey recently arrived at Fort Benning, Georgia, to begin the work of establishing bench-marks and triangulation stations in the vicinity of the infantry post. The work is being done in preparation to the revision of many maps of the surrounding area, according to The United States Army Recruiting News.

First Ananias Club Traced To Manxman Mine

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mar. 10.—Members of Algoma organizations of many kinds from across Europe, Jacob of the ability of members of the Soo Rackle Club to tell 'em wide and handsome, recall the old days when Ananias Club flourished. The various points in the district gave trophies for tales which put the efforts of the more modern members to shame.

It is now claimed the original Algoma Ananias Club was founded at Michipicoten shortly after the first gold boom. Before the completion of the Algoma Central Railway, Michipicoten was isolated from the world, the only contact with the "outside" being by dog team in the winter time to Gracefi. When the mine suspended, interest languished, during the depression there are difficult task than to sit around the stove and tell tales. Some of the dog teams were given the leading parts in many of the stories told.

Club Born At Manxman.

As far as records can be traced the club was born at the old Manxman mine. The first man to win the wooden medal with the leaden sinker, the club's badge of honor, was Bill Longabaugh, and Bill steadily won it by telling the truth.

Then Bill Longabaugh left, capture the trophy, night after night regaling the club with the tale of how he went skiing hatless with his mittens and a muzzle loading shotgun. Bill's tale was true, but no one was there, standing on a log over a deep pool of water. The gun was loaded in the gun, and a big black-jack ground with many holding steady about half a cent higher.

TRADE VOLUME IS VERY LOW

Big Gold Producers Are Particularly Quiet

Toronto, Ont., March 10—(CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange had hardly enough business today to keep it stirring. Interested stocks especially the gold producers were particularly quiet, no sales at all appearing in Dome and Hollinger, Lake Shore and McIntyre. Local traders seem hesitant about getting too far ahead of the United States New York market closed.

Base Metal shares held their ground fairly well and Nickel even advanced to 34.00. Noranda was narrow elsewhere. Noranda advanced to 22.25 12 and Falconbridge slipped to 2.37 off a big trader for morning was Stadacona, 2,000 concerning which Jules Brazeau street rumors suggesting an amalgamation with Falconbridge. It weakening however to 1.01, off 4. In big gold Lake Shore receded to 33.50, Hollinger to 8.90, Teck Hughes to 4.50 and Wright Hargreaves to 4.17 all down slightly.

Caucasus Peasantry in Need Soviet Forced to Feed Hungry

Moscow, March 10 (AP)—The Soviet government now is feeding some of the peasants in the North Caucasus region, where the agrarian situation is acute because of failure of the last grain crops and the reluctance of the farmers to produce.

The action was revealed only casually in a provincial newspaper reaching here today from Rostov-on-Don.

The North Caucasus Regional Communist Party Committee, the newspaper revealed, has threatened a slowing of food allowance" as one of the measures taken against collective farms and villages failing in proper preparations for planting.

"Food where needed will be allowed only these showing diligent work," the edict added.

WHEAT PRICES GIVEN FILLIP

Quarter to Half Cent Rise Per Bushel Friday

Winnipeg, March 10 (CP)—Southern grain traders again supplied the buying with their grain today, but set at the opening today, giving wheat futures prices a mild fillip. Values started 1-4 cent to 1-2 cent higher.

Lightness of selling in the pit and higher prices at Liverpool also were favorable factors. A better spring wheat export demand also was reported here, standing on a log over a good trade. The news was announced in the gun, and a big black-jack ground with many holding steady about half a cent higher.

STRIKERS ACCUSED OF COURT CONTEMPT

Restaurant Receiver Asks 12 Be Committed to Cantonal

NEW YORK, March 10.—Samuel Miller, attorney for the Irving Trust Company, which is receiver for Childs restaurants, in papers before Federal Judge William Bonds to demand the punishment for contempt of court of thirteen members of the Food Workers' Union, accused of causing disorders in the restaurants, a chain of restaurants doing a strike.

Mr. Miller, describing the disorders as acts aimed at interfering with the receivership, said that "pickets, some of them, chains thrown stench bombs and ordered customers to leave."

James Marshall, representing the union, denied that the union had taken part in the disorders, and suggested that they had been caused by agents provocateur. Judge Bondy, who reserved decision, said that he did not believe for one moment that the received had had anything to do with the acts of which it complained.

Canadiens Hopes Brighter to Enter N. H. L. Playoffs, They Winning, While Amerks Lose

Red Wings Lose Ground Being Defeated by Rangers

SENATORS TIE

Bruins Flash Brilliant Win Over Amerks to Creep up

Toronto, March 10 (CP)—New hope centered today in the battle of the National Hockey League's play-off spots when Montreal Canadiens, fighting desperately to stay in the running, defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in a thrilling overtime game at the Forum last night, while Americans lost 4-3 on Boston Garden ice to give the Bruins a fighting chance for the coveted third-place berth and a home-and-home series in games next week-end. Ottawa Senators ended their schedule with a 2-2 tie and they round in event of a point-tie in the play-off race.

Detroit's chances of finishing first in their group were definitely ended when New York Rangers took a close 3-2 decision over the Red Wings and the Red Wings' lead over Boston to two points. Rangers have one game left and find the Americans have set many goals to play against three for Detroit and five for Boston.

The only other game last night ended in a 2-2 tie as Chicago Black Hawks and Ottawa Senators ended their round-robin series for the season. Both are definitely out of the play-offs but still may have a say as to what money distribution the clubs enter the post-season series.

Morenz Leads

Flashing speed of Howie Morenz led, his team to a thrilling 3-2 victory over Montreal's other N.H.L. entry, Pittsburgh, and kept alive the first two periods to supply the winning margin. Both goals came after Wilder LaRochelle rounded on a pass from Battleship Kelly and Morenz, taking a pass from my Ward's slip for Marcons' long goal.

Morenz's shot on a forward pass from Aurel Joliat in the first broke the spell and was questioned by the Marconi, who was ruled good however, and there was no evidence about the Stanford wizard's second-period goal. Pittsburgh scored Morenz's goal. Pittsburgh scored Morenz's goal. Pittsburgh scored Morenz's

The Stone Thrower

By Earl Harold Allen

Purring like a large, healthy cat, the Chautauqua Chicken-Incubator seem astray, rolled easily up the steep hill facing the eastern banks of the Mississippi River. At the wheel sat Blackwell, in stately posture, believing a man ought to look dignified, of course Blackwell himself took in the beauty of the Mississippi Valley much. He was a self-made man. His thoughts was always forward in his station in life. He was ever on the opportunity to make some tripping betterment in his affairs. Whatever strikes wanted his soul, the youngest members of the Blackwell Cousenors could reveal in his self-made man. Even his older sister married indignantly and looked reserved when he sat down.

Grandchildren not to mention has conceived the family business morning at 10 in the gloaming. "Where's the grave we guest; then Claybourne's father had died the day before, passing it to Claybourne whose twenty-ninth birthday was on hand, right on the day when the Chautauqua Incubator stopped at Hannibal, Missouri, and Claybourne Shepherd Blackwell got a nice letter and a hole in the dark. It was all in the humdrum not to make money then, but Claybourne modestly laid it all to his own personality. Figures didn't lie—so for yourself — last profit in 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917 — gallons — gallons — gallons — half! Very able management— you bet!

Leaving the highway the powerful car stole up steeper and better curves until before the eyes lay Blackwell's Bluff Farm. Climbing out he looked through the trees, over the shoulders of the bluffs, down into the sparkling surface of the Father of Waters. A truly superb view, and a truly self-made man. He was enjoying it thoroughly when Mrs. Blackwell stuck out and asked the chauffeur if he would climb down the bluff and get Junior, aged eight.

"I'll go," volunteered Blackwell," a little exercise before lunch." He strode to the path that led to the river. Two minutes after he started, his cautious maneuvering brought him to the level terrace where the Iowa railroad tracks and plotted his way through the scraggy pasture and spoon-bills. Then he increased his river's edge. Fifty yards further on he saw a tent by the blackwell fortune talking animatedly to a red-haired man of foreign appearance, who was flashing off the stern of a small house boat anchored parallel to the bank.

Junior, with all of childhood's democracy, was making genial friendship with the light of the child-wandering in the net. Blackwell stood up, tempted something of his self-made dignity, and frowned with such scene. The latter was engaged in the most interesting activities of her, which he beseved purtomcatcliffe, and, never having seen his father so angry, — and as I say, clear out of here. Don't you dare! I'm here to enforce my orders by upon somebody's refusal, true, in particular, the same thing. Sup—"

Giving Junior a push, Blackwell swung at the foreign "dago" with his. His mood was lashed to fury by the calm found in retaliation. He stubbed bearded one who was clubbing very unbecomingly much as if Blackwell didn't exist. The rich man nearly collapsed when Junior called back defiantly, "Somebody's dago," and the mongrel's answer, "No long, bo!"

Son!— the contemptible creature familiarly addressing his father! He half turned; almost determined to bruise the face of the cad. Then he thought better of it—a lingering impression of cat-like strength in the other direction. It is for the sheriff do any needed fighting. That was his job, he argued.

Next morning before leaving Blackwell stood at the edge of the bluffs and searched the river pastures with the binoculars. He discovered no visible evidence of the tent, of roof, the tiny stack just visible above this line. Then a wisp of smoke floating across the tree tops. Drifting blue smoke miles due south, he found the sheriff gone to other parts. He left detailed instructions of the community wanted his assistance, undoubtedly must be back by noon—something big neighborhood.

Sheriff Grogan returned at six P.M. "Guess I'll have to look into this big buzz business," he said as he read the note from his new and influential constituent. "Boy, he's plenty mad it seems."

Darkness had settled when the sheriff stole upon Sandy Wilson's tiny cabin boat. He could tell it was there all right, and Sandy was there, too, for a dim light showed him. Both men heard a powerful motor boat coming down the river, with its engine lifting. Grogan drew a deep breath and exhaled. Sandy's great body, his son heard and said Sandy was a river rover, was fond of his liquor, a solitary existence. Yet, would that be a reason Sandy would kill that bad Junior though. Yes, he'd heard Sandy say how much he hated the boy.

Suddenly both men started. A shrill voice cried, "Oh Sandy — they're stealing me! Help! Sandy!" Then a splash, and the loud report of a pistol.

Grogan and blinding beam of light flashed full on them as they hurried outside the floating boat. In the same instant there was a splash, and a dark body dove down stream and close to shore. Sheriff Grogan tried to shield his eyes from the glare as he jerked out a service revolver. Sandy dashed out of the menacing glare and slid his hand around for a rock. A second later he smashed the seven light with a well directed blow.

Shots crashed out and Sandy heard them stuttering against his shanty. Grogan was returning them as fervently as possible. Sandy called to him down to the water's edge, they both crouched low until the machine gun fire had momentarily ceased.

Moving towards the boat and half crawling in the water, Sandy could see the gunner's form in the prow. Grogan's arm flashed and in a thousand rock bounced crazily off the gunner's shield, falling that "typewriter" quiet reigned for a minute or two; then Sandy recommended leaving Junior's body with a jewel of pain, it was plain that one of the Blackwell's had caught one full in the face.

Sandy flattened quickly as several bullets churned the water a few inches from him. But he kept on the open ground.

At last they reached the hill Claybourne Blackwell and the chauffeur were busy rejoicing a half insane Junior with cool water and hot coffee. Hysterical wails were all Blackwell could get from either. Junior's face was a horrible mass of blood and his thoughts were fully in the shanty on the river. The rather big mosquito was to pay for that. He grabbed a revolver from the drawer and the incongruous bulge of his wife in her nightful. The outraged father started for the phone; changed his mind and dashed to the door. It opened in his face, and—

He shuttled a bedraggled and mud-sloped human carrying the half-conscious Junior. Blackwell recognized Sandy and was about to level the gun at his face. Only the fierce tear-stained face of the girl stayed him. "Don't Daddy, don't hurt Sandy — he saved me!"

Blackwell's arm dropped as Sandy cropped the gun and hugged the boy who explained, "I'm alright daddy—Sandy's got them tied up down at the river—they can't get away."

A month later three men—a millionaire, a hardened criminal and a river hybrid—sat in Sandy's spacious new home-boat Blackwell's fine radio which Blackwell had given to Sandy brought from here, was hearing against Sandy's knee watching him smoke an old corncob.

"Only for him, Mr. Blackwell—" the sheriff was saying. "Shucks!" interrupted Sandy, his eyes on the river, "I allus could throw straighter."

MISERY ACROSS KIDNEYS

ANTONE who suffers from backache across the kidneys, headache, dizziness, nervousness, ankles or pains, dizzy spells, dark, scanty, flashing, should take this wonderful prescription. Dr. Pierce's called "Anuric," and from Thomas Scott of 30 Elizabeth St., Hamilton, Ont., says: "I had suffered for years with kidney trouble and backache. I was run down and tired out. I had dizzy spells and pains across my kidneys. Anuric has done me a world of good. I feel fine now."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess

Mrs. Reddy is Tactful

The wise and clever use the fact. That much is often gained by tact.

Old Mother Nature

When Reddy Fox started off after Jimmy Skunk Mrs. Reddy watched him out of sight. She grinned as he disappeared. "I know Reddy, to do anything rash and foolish," she muttered. "It will be just too bad if he does. There are times when I suspect that Reddy lacks tact. I believe I'll look into Mr. Jimmy and see what I can find out from her."

Mrs. Reddy soon found where Mrs. Jimmy had taken a brave path. Turning down this she soon overtook her. Jimmy's entire her to stop as Reddy had ordered. Jimmy she spoke pleasantly. "Excuse me, Mrs. Jimmy," said she, "I don't wish to interfere with your business affairs, but I just happened to take this path myself."

"That is quite all right," replied Mrs. Jimmy pleasantly. "It has been a hard winter, hasn't it?"

"I should say so!" exclaimed Mrs. Reddy, sitting down. "There was a time when I thought Reddy and I would surely starve to death. I suppose that when the weather got too bad you and Jimmy just went to sleep and forgot about it."

Mrs. Jimmy nodded. "Yes," said she. "We started that way, but I'm fat, and when the weather got too severe we and Jimmy decided to curled up together and kept each other warm while we slept. Now I think of it I haven't seen you or Reddy around here for some time."

"No," replied Mrs. Reddy. "It became so hard to get a living around here after the great storm that we decided to try another section for awhile. We have been there only a few days. I see you are occupying our old home. Do you find it comfortable?"

"Very," replied Mrs. Jimmy. "It was quite a change, but we discovered that you were not using it. There are so many of us that we need a good-sized bedroom and we have found that one of yours just right. Of course had you been at home and using it we would not have thought of it for ourselves."

"Of course not," replied Mrs. Reddy pleasantly.

"So when we found you had given it up we moved right in," continued Mrs. Jimmy.

"And I suppose that now you consider it is yours," said Mrs. Reddy.

"Certainly. Why not?" retorted Mrs. Jimmy. "It is the law of Old Mother Nature that possession carries with it nine tenths of ownership. Any one who finds an empty house becomes the owner of it by taking possession. We found your house empty and took possession; therefore it became ours."

"And there is also the law that whoever is strong or smart enough to hold a thing has a right to it," said Mrs. Reddy dryly.

Mrs. Jimmy nodded in agreement. "That also is true," said she, "but it doesn't concern us. No one ever has tried to take possession from us. They are welcome to try if they want to, but nobody seems to want to."

"What you really mean is that no one is as foolish as to try," amended Mrs. Reddy.

Mrs. Jimmy grinned. "Perhaps that is it," said she. "Where are you living now, Mrs. Reddy?"

"Oh, here and there," replied Mrs. Reddy. "We had expected to occupy our old home, not being the thing that you had moved in. As it is we are homeless for the time being. By the way, are you and Jimmy planning to remain in the Old Pasture?"

"I don't know what Jimmy is planning to do, but I am not," declared Mrs. Jimmy in a decided tone. "It has been all right for this winter, but I don't altogether like it as a location. I'm waiting to bring up a family, I am going to move back to my old home on the edge of the Old Orchard and I think I shall do it soon. The three children who have been with us all winter will be leaving any time now. What Jimmy will do I can't say."

Mrs. Reddy and Mrs. Jimmy parted the best of friends after having had a delightful chat. Reddy had found out what he wished to know.

...worthless and impossible, his profession had brought him only rewards. He honors rested flatly upon him, he reported it as a man highly dignified and learned, as able-minded men said he possessed a high faith whatever he felt so-called learning.

He had taken an instant liking to Orell and when Orell Bathurst died and when Orell Bathurst died a person he seemed dead to him. Orell was a man in whom interested the dramatist a Chivers boy of both attainments and of unusual ward attributes of soul. Occidental was a spirit which afforded opportunity for study not for association. It was accordingly that Orell's name was not slow to reflect that the boy had a "white mind" and that to all but the Orient he was an American; here then was an ancestry of distinction, and Orell's fat fail to interest any neglected man. With a mysterian's skilful and sympathetic vision Orell took a play of order that he might thus convey to the young girl his character and...

These requests, with one exception, he ignored. He did permit a maiden to attend, especially, when lucky chance had proven the lady beautiful. Orell was not so busy a hand, lighter than a fern, upon his zithra and echoed harmonies whatever delicate benefit she could.

It so chanced that he was present at the tea-party club on the following afternoon and at the reception of Dorothy Carter meeting she escaped herself in pleasant and inspiring talk with him. Dan Glenn Tells of His Experiences in Quakes in South California Area

Belleville Man Relates Story of Big Quake at San Diego

SEES ROAD BEND

Soldiers in Camp Thought Wind Had Sprung up During Night

When the earth shook was vividly related by Mr. Dan Glenn, now of this city.

Mr. Glenn, now of this city, has not only been through one earthquake in the southern sections of California during his two years' travelling, but several of them. Fortunately for him, however, they were nearly all minor ones, although one of them he recalls was "bad enough". That one caused some damage.

It was at the time Mr. Glenn, now a boarder at the home of Mrs. J. Keegan, Dundas street, was serving as a private in "I" Company of the 91st United States Infantry.

Near San Diego.

"We were living in camp at that time near San Diego, several thousand of us", declared Mr. Glenn, recalling the experience. "That would be along about 1917 or 1918. Suddenly, without warning, the earth commenced to shake. At first most of us thought that it was the wind shaking the tents. I had been lying down, and when it kept up, I knew there was something else."

He ran out of the tent, and found the whole camp in a state of excitement. Everybody was shouting and shaking, and stock quiet. Nobody knew what to do. Some started to visit and shake the smaller tents, and others left. Here and there the cracks started to open in the dry ground. Of course most of us knew what it was all about, but there were people who live in California some of whom thought the end had come.

Didn't know exactly what was going on, he stated. People screamed out of the city.

"Down the road came a Ford car. All of a sudden as we watched it we saw the road bend in front of it, and then the Ford took a dive to the left. Then the buildings nearby began to shake . . . the big concrete stones bulged out, several of them started to fall. Some firemen escorted in saving the planing mill operated by the lumber company.

TREASURY TO AID DISTRESS

Banks Empowered to Advance Cash in Quake Area

Washington, Mar. 11 (AP)—Call-tonight was issued authorized today to advance cash necessary to relieve distress caused by the earthquake and if further assistance is necessary it will be granted by the United States Treasury.

Already, however, every facility of the government has been offered California officials to aid in relieving distress in the stricken area and there was little more that the President could do.

Necessity of early reports from Red Cross personnel to President Roosevelt. The report related how A. L. Schafer, manager of the Pacific Coast area with headquarters in San Francisco, and J. W. Richardson, Schafer's staff, had flown down to the Los Angeles area on the midnight plane from San Francisco after receiving word.

At about the same time the treasury announced that it had empowered California banks to advance money needed by victims of the quake and that if additional assistance was needed it would be provided.

A travel rush dispatch said 1,200 blue jackets from the warships at San Pedro had been loaded to prevent looting of open buildings and abandoned homes.

Washington, Mar. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt early today sought the latest information concerning the seriousness of the California earthquakes before turning to other matters.

Hundred Cities and Towns Stricken in Earthquake Harrowing Stories Told by Survivors of Tremors 120 Dead, Property Loss Runs Into Many Millions

INDIANS IN 1663 THOUGHT TREES DRUNK AS EARTH SHOOK

While many local residents still distinctly remember the miniature earthquake that was felt in this district some seven or eight years ago, during which time the whole district between Montreal and Toronto was visibly affected, rattling dishes and buildings even in the city of Belleville, not many will recall the severe earth tremors that were felt along the St. Lawrence in the summer of 1663. During that season the quakes were felt there, lasting for a period of six weeks. The whole summer, it was revealed from old records kept, and spread terror through the ranks of the Indian and French, the only inhabitants of this country at that time.

The Indians at that time declared that "the trees were drunk". Many of the trees were uprooted by the force of the tremors, according to the old records, and in many places the earth opened up and swallowed them. Quite a few were reported to have been killed. The manifestation was one, that caused great wonder and fear throughout the whole country.

That was the last and greatest earthquake ever felt in this country.

Relatives Here Await News of Friends in Quake Area

Partial List of Belleville Persons Believed to be in Zone Which Was Rocked by More Than Score of Quakes in Southern California on Friday Night And on Saturday

Telegraph keys in local offices clicked busily throughout Friday and Saturday as anxious relatives in the city despatched telegrams after long delayed telegrams after long distance telephone calls to friends in the stricken area of California in an effort to learn if personal safety existed for relatives, had gone through the catastrophe unscathed. By noon the number of queries sent had reached a maximum, when a constant wash of the wires let toll and casualty lists be sent. Telephones in the office of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer also kept up a busy ringing throughout the day, as anxious queries flooded the office. Up to a late hour on Saturday, however, no reports of local or one-time residents of the City, being injured or killed had been received.

Belleville people who are at present residing or visiting in the parts of California which have been shaken by the quake, relatives of local people are as follows:

Mr. F. E. Gerow of Bagley avenue, Los Angeles, California, is brother of Mr. Walter Gerow, local garage owner, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. A. H. Gerow, of California.

Mr. Edgar Ketchleson, one time resident of Moira, now in Ontario, California.

Mr. George Burgess and Miss Retta Burgess.

EARTHQUAKE HISTORY HERE

Seismographs Some Years Ago Placed Quake Area Closely

As far as known, the nearest location of a seismograph or earthquake apparatus for recording and measuring the force of earthquakes occurring any earthquake, is at Ottawa, according to Mr. A. Baillairge, chief of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau and Meteorological Observatory, on Dundas Street.

That I believe is the closest one", declared Mr. Baird when questioned by The Ontario. "There is one, I think in Toronto, though, although I can't remember. I've heard of earthquakes from there."

It will be remembered that several years ago, a fairly distinct earth tremor was felt in this immediate city. Reports were sent in by telegraphs throughout the Dominion and Mr. Baillairge was able to give approximate location of the 'quake.

Dodges Falling Brick and Runs For Life at Long Beach

TABLE HELPS HIM

Clothes Showing Through Pile of Brick Lead to Discovery

Long Beach, Calif., Mar. 11—(AP)—A story of how he dodged falling brick and ran for his life was told today by C. A. Williams, janitor of the Hotel Academy of Anaheim Boulevard, the section of Long Beach hardest hit by the earthquake.

"I was in the boiler room," said Williams, "when it struck. A table and several bags of laundry rushed at me and I dashed for the exit. They probably helped me get out. Then I dodged falling brick as I went to the street."

Mrs. Hazel Eilers, bookkeeper for the laundry, was killed when the roof fell from the office of the building. She was crushed under an avalanche of brick. Mrs. Eilers' husband is her office, she would have lived, for the office was the only room in the building which remained intact.

Williams said had the quake struck an hour earlier, he would have caught twenty women at work.

Only Two Dead

"Only the fact that the banking holiday had ordered business almost to a standstill limited the number in the laundry," he stated.

"We scampered through what was left of the building and couldn't find a single person then. I saw a couple of her dress showing through a pile of brick."

FAIR AND MILDER OVER WEEKEND

"Fair and milder" is forecast for local citizenry over the week end and already on Saturday bright skies and a strong sun has chased the wintry spell which has held this district for the past several days.

The following report by the Ontario Motor League shows the following roads blocked with travel on them being limited to those with tire fully equipped to cope with high drifts and packed snow:

All other highways are open. Ice in open in Severn, slippery around Barrie, and heavy from Barrie to Orillia.

No. 27—Barrie to Midland—open.

Ferguson Highway reported blocked north of Severn.

In the vicinity of Belleville, however, little difficulty has been reported by drivers.

Officials of the post office and telegraph company in Belleville had no knowledge of when funds would be sent.

"The matter is entirely indefinite," was the answer at all offices.

The Dominion Government is awaiting word from Washington before sending any funds, until further notice. This was agreed upon by the executive of the Dominion. Patients desiring to take advantage of this privilege will report at the Kingston General Hospital at 11.45 a.m. each day.

MOCCASIN DANCE AT ARENA FROZEN OUT

Severe Cold Weather Stops Many Would-Be Attendants.

Whether it was because local citizenry mistook their moccasins, or because the cold has wintry effects, whistled through the city last evening and made the dance floor at the arena Friday night, is not known, but at any rate, only a few couples played with cold fingers to an empty house in the arena Friday night. However, the management was on the first one that has ever been put on in the city, and the entertainment which would have been held if the crowd had permitted, proved a complete frost. At nine-thirty o'clock in the evening one couple graced the floor, Jimmy Gow and Miss Ruby Bell, provided for the dancers that didn't show up, and no matter how seductively a skilled orchestra broadcasted their efforts within the arena, more of the stir or seven other individuals could be coaxed to take part in the evening's fun. The prizing the ticket writer closed up shop and the orchestra and band enjoyed their music, and the management called it a night.

MAGNATE DIES AT CLEVELAND

Drops From 5th Floor of Cleveland Clinic to Death

Cleveland, O., Mar. 11.—(AP)—Dan P. Hoover, 47, Vice-President of the Hoover Company, manufacturers of Vacuum Cleaners, dropped to his death from a fifth floor window of the Cleveland Clinic this morning.

Hoover was the son of the late W. H. Hoover, founder of the company. He came here from his home at North Canton, O., several days ago for treatment of an intestinal disorder.

Police were without immediate details of the case, but Assistant Coroner Wilson S. Chamberlain said he was investigating.

Hoover was known for his charitable, civic and religious work. He is Hoover Company headquarters. He founded a community club named after him.

The widow, a daughter and three sons survive. They were notified of the death at Canton. Members of the family were expected here soon.

BUTTER IS UP TO 25 CTS. LB.

Fresh Maple Syrup Brings Seventy Cents a Quart

A sharp increase in the price of butter was noted on Saturday morning's local market, when it was sold at the highest price, 25c, that has been registered for over a year. Eggs rose to 25 cents a dozen, the variation in the price of eggs was noticed, however, as they were from 17 to 19c a dozen with a few extra large sized ones bringing 20c a dozen.

Owing to the large number of chickens offered on the market, the price dropped considerably, when a small chicken that in the past would possess sold for 40c each with larger ones bringing but 25c each at a top price. One large turkey weighing 20 pounds was offered at 23.5c, while a few ducks were observed and brought $1.05 each. Owing to the rainy weather, which prevented the majority of the morning's business, eggs were slow to the market. Five large chickens sold for 50c each, while dressed apples a fine type of pork went on the local market, made their re-appearance and sold for 9c a pound. Maple syrup cooking and home canned fruit and vegetables were also displayed.

Fresh maple syrup was offered at the outside market to the citizens at 70c a quart. Only two vendors of butter put in an appearance offering their wares for sale, however, for the majority of the farm produce market. It was with deep regret that the death of Mrs. Herchimer Aylesworth was learned throughout the city on Thursday morning. Mrs. Aylesworth had been in ill health for many months, but had still remained active in the affairs of home, 214 Church St. She passed away during Thursday morning. Mrs. Aylesworth was born at Garden Island 68 years ago. She was daughter of the late Samuel and Amelia Anderson, and had lived in Belleville for the greater part of her life, a number of years previous to which she resided at Desmond. She was a member of Bridge Christ Church and took an active interest in the various departments and activities of that congregation. Mrs. Aylesworth was most highly respected by all who knew her. Their sympathy goes to the remaining members of the family.

Surviving are the husband and son—Roger; also six grandchildren, Herbert, of Desmond; one sister, Mrs. Ida Bongard, of Desmond and three brothers, Capt. S. V. Anderson, Ogdensburg, N. Y.; M. of M. Anderson and H. M. of Monmouth, Illinois.

THE LATE JOHN M. ROBINSON

At the Belleville Burial Co., Limited, funeral home, there were many former friends and friends of the family of the late John Robinson assisted Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of the late John Robinson who for many years had passed away Tuesday last, in Quebec, in the 79th day last, in Quebec, in the 79th year of his age. Mrs. F. Laing, of the Salvation Army, assisted by Commandant J. Woolcott of the local Salvation Army, conducted the service at the home, and also at the graveside in the Belleville Cemetery. The Rev. M. B. Nesbitt, pastor of the Bridge Street Methodist Church and Commandant Laing of the Salvation Army, assisted in the service. Mrs. J. Woolcott and members of the local corps rendered sympathetically sang as a duet, "Face to Face."

At the graveside the last rites of the Orange Order were performed with Brother F. Smith officiating, assisted by Brother D. Assistine.

Members of Quinte Lodge, I.O.F., No. 774 acting as bearers were Brothers G. W. Reid, Ald. Reid, E. Johnson, J. Donaldson and D. Assistine.

LOTS FOR GARDENING WILL BE AVAILABLE

Hope Here Will Take Advantage Of Offer

Even though the ground at present is frozen and hard, and spring gardening seems a long way off, already the question of the lots for the unemployed for the coming summer, which they may use to grow some vegetables for themselves and families during the next winter, has been brought to the forefront. Speaking on the matter Deputy-Mayor Tice pointed out, that the same practice as last year would probably be carried out. Under the system last year, a number of lots were offered to those who applied, with the lots also being supplied free of charge, and seed being furnished by the city council. Many gardens of the city have generously donated seeds to those, who applied for them, and a number of plans also offered to donate their lots to those, who needed them. Deputy-Mayor Tice stated, that he was pleased to see that there was disappointingly small, Following the fact, that last year has been an expensive one for the corporation, that the council feel that an effort would be made this year to get more of the needy interested in growing their own vegetables.

MAP OUT PROGRAMME FOR COMING YEAR

Chosen Fishery Patrol Officers By Retiring Officials

Calling together to map out the coming season's activities of local organization, some twenty directors of the Central Ontario Cheese Patrons' Protective Association met Saturday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte. Mr. Geo. H. Barr of Belleville, director of Dairying in Ontario, and Mr. W. B. Hamilton, secretary of the meeting Board addressed those assembled.

Following this meeting the committee of the organization met, to go over into details the plan of the year's arrangements and the program of work for the next few months.

BRITISH COMEDY OF DIPLOMATS DOINGS AT CAPITOL THEATRE

Praise for a British film in "various" leading American newspapers of authority is praise indeed.

The film to be shown Sunday at the Capitol theatre on Monday was recently acclaimed by this American critic as "a delightful comedy of manners, magnificent and distinction." No British picture production has ever received such praise.

"It sends romance," the article states, "into dancing attendance on the picture-goers revel in. The locale of "After the Ball" is the Vienna during a conference of the league of nations, and the prime minister is awaiting the arrival of a courier, who is a bit of a lad with his feet on the ground, but a romantic adventure arrests.

Eventually arriving at Geneva, he attends a masked ball where he encounters the wife of the British diplomats who is in his suspicion. He diplomats who is his suspicion. He pretends that he has come to get gone to her house after the ball is over. The scenes at the masked ball in Geneva are glamorous in the extreme and the masked ball is the "ball after the ball" mentioned in this scene is destined for wide popularity in the dance publications that will come after the ball and highly embellished are the pictures ends with a surprise twist, delightful.

"After The Ball" stands up splendidly with the best of the continental productions, photography and a capable cast, Esther Ralston as the wife, Lilian Harvey as the adventuress, Basil Rathbone is a charming philanderer and has the best opportunity to display the splendid cast. The Gaumont-British film has also another fine cast with other high-class feature in "After The Ball," "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" starring Dorothy Gish.

Basil Rathbone, is the English diplomat who places pleasure before business and after arriving in Geneva for the league of nations discussions, he decides to look for more pleasure. He finds it when he finds the charming young wife, played by Esther Ralston, at the ball and from their flirtation forms the frivolous romance in which the comedy is made.

The European waltz hit "A Night, A Waltz, A Tune" is introduced in "After the Ball" and forms the introduction to the love theme of the delightful bit. The picture makes no attempt to be specially hot light and has happy entertainment and succeeds admirably.

Monday is Dinnerware Gift Day, with the "Missing Numbrood."

FISH BEHAVIOUR IS PECULIAR PROBLEM

MONTREAL, March 11.— Some peculiarities in the fishing industry are pointed out in a bulletin of the department of marine, published by the Canadian National Railways. Why the shad's lack of fertility in Columbia is higher in even than in the sterility of oysters is not explained but such is the case, in connection with the shad fishery. There is a superstition that every third year is a year of plenty for the Columbia coastal waters. The last run of shad in these waters was in 1930 and fishermen were looking forward to a year of plenty for the season of 1933.

GOLD STANDARD

The question whether the United States is on or off the gold standard is one which is causing and will cause a great deal of controversy. New York Times discussing this subject comments as follows:

"There will doubtless be much discussion whether the United States is "on" or "off" the gold standard. Responsible foreign comment on our existing situation rejects the idea of an abandonment of that standard here. The London Times remarks that 'none of the compelling reasons' which in 1931 drove England off the gold standard is found in the United States today.' The attitude of the European central banks and of the Bank for International Settlements appears to be the same. One high banking authority at London, quoted by The Associated Press, dismisses the idea with the remark that the talk of depreciation of the dollar we consider nonsense.

"What has happened thus far is that export of gold is prohibited pending the 'bank holiday' or moratorium. This is part of the program for dealing immediately with the banking crisis caused by money-hoarding. The action taken has not, like the decree of the British government on September 21, 1931, embodied formal and official suspension of the redeemability of the domestic currency in gold. Even if dissatisfaction with the policy which, after 1931, drove England off the gold standard is found in the United States today. The attitude of the European central banks and of the Bank for International Settlements appears to be the same. One high banking authority at London, quoted by The Associated Press, dismisses the idea with the remark that the talk of depreciation of the dollar we consider nonsense.

"During the twenty months in which that experiment lasted, no one contended that the United States had 'abandoned the gold standard.' On the contrary, it was recognized that continued maintenance of the gold payments was the government's objective, and that the wholly abnormal and non-commercial requisitions on our gold reserves were being restrained because they were an obstacle to normal operations. The sequel to the experiment in 1931 and 1932, confirming the United States as the chief guardian of the gold standard and the main repository of the world's gold supply.

"Restriction of free gold payments is itself an unusual step; but if taken merely to meet a temporary emergency, it is no more abandonment of the gold standard than the restriction on cash payments by the New York banks, in the panics of 1907 and 1914, was abandonment by them of the responsibility to provide depositors on demand with lawful money. Difficulties of international domestic situation have required and may require hereafter the adoption of measures to restrict the ordinary processes of banking. As the London Times remarks, the problem of the moment is 'the panic loss of confidence by American depositors in their stability of banks.' Therefore this confidence is the immediate task. No proposal has been made in any responsible quarter looking to permanent departure from the gold currency on the statutory basis and no such proposal would in the least promote the solution of our banking crisis."

REV. DR. SEMPLE

Rev. Dr. Charles Semple of Smith's Falls, who has accepted a call to Bridge Street United Church pastorate at the close of the present conference year is one of the most brilliant and energetic of the younger ministers in the United Church. He has been in Belleville on a number of occasions and has made many friends by his comprehensive sermons, his pleasing manner, and his executive talents. Mr. Smith's Falls has been fortunate for six years in having the duties of minister in a way which has more than satisfied those to whom he has ministered. Bridge Street is to be congratulated on having chosen Dr. Semple, a man who has filled a large place in his church during his ministry.

NO LAWS DELAY

The trial of Anton Cermak, slayer of Mayor Cermak of Chicago, in an attempt to kill President Roosevelt, was swift and just. No one can feel that a man who is in a twisted turn of mind could set out to kill and in so doing scatter death around him by his stray bullets has met more than justice. The fact is that a man did such a thing as to require his execution, that the mayor of Chicago was murdered, and that the people of the country disturbed by this strange, ignorant man, Zangara.

Few trials more with such dramatic suddenness as that of the would-be slayer of the president. It has been said that United States law moves slowly and with many points in the course of justice being delayed or thwarted, but this case shows no evidence of law's delay. In this case there are none of those circumstances which would give cause for delay.

The man Zangara came on the world's attention like a meteor and like a meteor he will pass. Even the date of his execution is not known as this rests in the hands of the prison farm superintendent. If there is any satisfaction in this meteoric notoriety Zangara is entitled to it.

THE CLOWN

He can lift up men's hearts on his pinion,
On the scintillant wings of a jest.
He is wise, though the least of Earth's minions,
For he gives to the world-weary, rest.

Any seeker can readily find him
In the midst of the merriest crowd;
He is free, and no sorrow can bind him,
By life's trials his head is unbowed.

He cares nothing for rank or for learning,
He will mock at a sage or a king,
Yet he eases the heavy heart's yearning,
And he teaches the silent to sing.

With scant honor his fellows endow him,
Little dignity there to revere;
But the highest among them allow him
To give them a smile for a tear!

BABE RUTH, "King of Swat," who knows what's what as regards batting out home runs, has spurned the offer of fifty thousand dollars for his next summer's work at the bat for the New York Yankees, and will work with chickenfeed, says the lordly Babe, in effect. If that's all you can offer I'd rather spend the summer playing golf now that I have made my "hundred-grand." Believe me, Babe knows his value as a box-office attraction and his disappearance from the picture would be a tragic blow to baseball of much of its attractiveness.

CANADA'S MINING INDUSTRY continues to be "top hole" especially in the gold mines, with strong demand for shares of producing mines and rising prices. This is true also of the base metal mines, with the mines in the Sudbury area and Northern Ontario Railway from Cochrane to Moosonee on the shores of James Bay will have a busy year opening up new mining fields, just as every other extention of that road has, and more would be, if it were not for the fact that millionaires made from the bed rock of buried treasure. The building of the T. & N. O. Railway in the first place was a colonization road opened up the Cobalt silver camp, Elk Lake, Gowganda, Shining Tree and other silver sections, then swept northward again up the Porcupine to Kirkland Lake, and other sections where great heaps of gold were waiting to be taken away. Besides gold and silver the northland there is abundant wealth in the fisheries, furs, and timber resources, with unlimited power waiting development in the turbulent streams of the north country.

ANTON CERMAK and Guiseppe Zangara left their native Hungary and Italy and came to the United States to make or mar their fortunes. Anton Cermak became rich and respected and made a name for himself in Chicago, a great honor for a boy who had come out in the steerage not many years before. Mayor Cermak made a corrupt town and started to clean up the city of Chicago, free it of graft, gunmen and gangsters. He was a friend of President Roosevelt and took the bullet intended for his friend from the revolver of Guiseppe Zangara, who also had come in the steerage, but unsuccessful to make or mar his fortune in the rich United States. He was not content, however, to work his way up the step and stairs to success, but chose the lesser part of standing at the bottom and reviling the climbers. Finding no short road to riches he wasted his life in the proving of two immigrants — one dies from an assassin's bullet, universally respected—the other dies in the electric chair as a felon. Both had the same start but just finished—Cermak's name will live and be loved for his achievements, Zangara's name and ill-fame will die and only be remembered by it all, with loathing.

RATHER A GOOD STORY told of a Kingston man who died and went to the hereafter, has been handed in for this column by a Sidelight reader. Having arrived he looked 'round with that critical air which is rather peculiar to Kingston people and remarked: "I don't see that Heaven is so much better than the Limestone City." "But this isn't Heaven," remarked an earlier arrival from Brockville.

MAKE HABITS ASSETS NOT LIABILITIES

Human Being is Habit-forming Animal And Must Beware

BY LOUIS E. HISCH, M.D.P.H.
Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

The human being is a habit-forming animal. He is constantly creating the habits which he usually establishes new habits to do him more harm than good.

Smoking too much is one of these bad habits. Eating too much is another unwisely is another. Worrying over trifles consumes more energy than a hard day's work. Wanting to be amused and distracted constantly is another pernicious habit; that saps vitality and weakens character.

Other types of habit are equally undesirable. Never getting up on time and turning the alarm clock off for an extra snooze is one of them. Being late for work, or reaching Him mad for the morning train, is another habit. Putting things off letter writing or visits to friends, failing to take needed exercise, waiting overlong about changing the oil in the family car, neglecting about dentists and doctors until infection occurs or an organ becomes definitely diseased, are habits of sundries as reminders of what I mean by bad habits.

Indeed we hear so much about bad habits that we begin to think all habits are liabilities; while, as a matter of fact, our habits not only can but distinctly should be turned into assets.

Habits may be looked upon as automatic reactions about which we have unconscious control. Basically, all once they have become established. Besides, when you do a thing by habit you do it more economically, spontaneously. Good habits, therefore, become valuable assets which is another way of saying that habits can be turned into assets.

All our necessary personal functions are habits of a kind. Breathing, living can and should be linked to habits. In this way one can save valuable minutes for other activities, not to mention the lessening of fatigue that results therefrom.

We should, for instance, arrange our daily programme so that it will follow one another in the most convenient and practical manner possible. Odds to be laid that several activities connected with getting ready for breakfast the identical reactions that repeat themselves day-after-day. Once we expedited if planned ahead and carried out faithfully according to the plan of the program.

And the best of it is that, as new habits are formed, old and lasting capping ones tend to die of disuse. Then, after all, the body and mind want to function as smoothly and economically as possible. All we have to do is give them a chance. They invariably take care of the rest.

Let us see how valuable habits are permanently fixed by the age of twenty-one. Habits of thrift could be done to alter them after that. That people is happily quite false. All of us actually possess more brain cells than we need or use. Even though we are not old as an individual may be, there are always plenty of unused cells ready to be made to function as habit cells.

New habits cannot, of course, be established in a day or a week. It takes time. It also requires a will to succeed. Nevertheless, the harder we try the faster the habit is formed, and soon we wonder why we ever allowed that habit to dominate us.

Give yourself a month of honest trial and you will be glad to fashion your own habits exactly as it pleases you.

SHAKE-UP EXPECTED IN ITALIAN BANK

Director and Board of Management Resign

MILAN, March 10.—(AP)—Giuseppe Toeplitz, managing director since 1906 of Italy's largest bank, the Banco Commerciale Italiana, resigned today, explaining he desired a less active post. He becomes a vice president of the institution.

Subsequently, the twenty-five members of the administrative board announced they would tender their resignations at an assembly meeting March 26 to allow the election of a new board of eleven members. This they explained, would be in keeping with the general tendency of business concerns to reduce board memberships.

A recommendation to the assembly for a 5 per cent dividend and a proposal that two directors, Alberto Pirelli-Pacconi and Raffaele Mattioli, be appointed joint administrators to replace Signor Toeplitz were decided upon by the board today.

Nineteen new lakes and creeks in the Canadian Rockies forteen of which were previously barren, were stocked with trout last season.

RADIO SETS—

Whether you know it or not there is more than one radio in this city of ours. Twelve years ago according to figures released by the authority of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, from a census taken in this province that year. Total registrations of radios for the city of Belleville is given as 1,117, while the population when the census was taken last year was given as 13,426. Travelling with a population of 6,278, has a total of 677 radios registered. Picton, borough has 2,963, with a total population of 32,376. Trenton has 1,755 radios with a population of 23,439. Lindsay has 326 radios with a population given as 7,102. Orillia has 1,755 with a population of 631,507 (lists 91,656 radios.

THE EDITOR—

The manner of getting out the news on a daily paper may not always please everybody, but as Bernard Shaw, Bernards, but sometimes things are liked by a different name.

Example, in Hawaii an editor is called "Big Chief Mucka-Muck," and evidently likes it. Curious newspaperman received a copy of "The Leader" from there not long ago, and through an interpreter, discovered that "Big Chief" was the name used in the paper, but only 12 of the 24 letters used. The first column bears the heading, "Ke Kipa I Na Mahinahi Mahakai," translated "Hawaii Welcome the Newsmen."

Mr. Jonah Kumalae is the "humbug" responsible.

THE COLLEGIANS—

Even the lack of cash at present in the country does not bother the youthful collegians. The following which is self explanatory was copied from the Peterboro Examiner Democrat:

"A lot of high school boys who were rooting at the basketball game the other evening were cake eater trousers. Now the floods boll botomed pants aren't the rage, but if they haven't the bells on them. This old joint is a little slow, and the hard to get. Some of the boys have been going into the store where they sell ready made ing baby rattles, cutting the handles off and serving them to the girls in bottoms of their cake eater trousers.

OLDEST TYPEWRITER—

In cases of nothing in particular we've strolled through the business office and they are stumbled on perhaps what is the oldest typewriter in the section of the country. It is an old, dial and punch machine of the 19th Century style, ages seldom seen these days, but it is still capable of doing the work capable of pounding out many more hundreds of miles of good solid copy before its lengthy career finally ends and it is laid on the shelf for good. In almost daily use, the owner would think twice before parting with it, even though many fancy prices have been offered. Originally it served in a lawyer's office— one who has long passed on. Then it was sold at auction. From hand to hand it passed until it finally came to rest in many years ago. So long ago, he has almost forgotten. It is an antique that is still serviceable. It is unique. Perhaps Mr. John Lomax, curator of Americana at the Belleville city courthouse could also make a strong bid for honors in that regard. It still hangs away on one of the shelves in the basement awaiting a new one. In that respect he is much like the old Model T Ford, Vivid Baron, of Grand Hotel fame. Vicki, so it is said, was the most beautiful girl and punch machine and is capable of quite high speed when in the proper mechanic. However, for speed, Mr. Lomax has them in both hands. He has been many years since he won the title of champion typewriter with a record of 102 words per minute. He claims that his old machine is still more actually faster than a present day model, and he has only two fingers to do it with. He owns has its days numbered. Mr. Lomax, by the way, is a two-finger artist with the machine, thereby upholding the tradition of reporters everywhere.

Use of motion pictures in court may become general in England. After the trial of 30 persons in the council of Eastbourne, England, decided to borrow the talkie apparatus to have the project turned down by the government. Reason for the necessity for financial caution.

Advertising for the Merchant of To-Day

ARTICLE NO. 20

"More Food Advertising"

Last week we mentioned a few of the lines of food products supported by National Advertising.

While emphasizing the value of the advertising of the manufacturer in assisting the merchant to make sales, I would not for one moment lose sight of the fact that the Retail Merchant is the man who finally places the goods.

The local merchant knows his customers and knows the goods he carries and the advertising of which he takes advantage helps him to make his task easier.

We continue with the advertised products, supporting and supported by the manufacturer and merchant.

Teas and Coffees. Here again the same change has been taking place. Years ago Tea was sold in bulk only. It is approximately 40 years since the late Mr. P. C. Larkin started packing a blend of tea under the trade name of Salada. The name Salada Tea Company — it took hold at once and people asked for it as Salada Tea or as "Salada" and the peculiar style of lettering adopted then, has been outstanding in almost every paper and many other mediums on the North American continent. A contemporary, Batchelors & Company, from the Maritime Provinces, followed very quickly with "Red Rose Tea," and there are many others whose names are familiar to the readers of our papers through their persistent and clever advertising of the merits of their brands of tea.

The roasters and blenders of coffee have not been backward in placing the merits of their products before the consumer and the name of Chase & Sandborn's "Seal Brand," followed later by Maxwell House and others, has been kept before the progry public through the medium of the press.

In cocoa and chocolate there are many outstanding names, Fry's, Rowntree's, Cadbury's, are familiar as a beverage, as an ingredient in cooking. We should not overlook those beverages of later introduction, such as Ovaltine, Viavi, Bovril, and Instant Postum known to your customers through the advertising.

Milk—In the old days when the only way that milk was sold was in the fresh state direct from the farm or dairy, but milk has become a the fresh state now found on the shelves under the well known grocery store product and appears on the counters of Carnation and Nestle's and in its sterilized and canned form of Borden's.

Milk—In the old days when the only way that milk was sold was in the fresh state direct from the farm or dairy, but milk has become a the fresh state now found on the shelves under the well known grocery store product and appears on the counters of Carnation and Nestle's and in its sterilized and canned form of Borden's.

Among our well known aids in cooking that are impressed upon the customer in mind, through the medium of, advertising, is Magic and Quaker Oats, Kellogg's Corn Flakes, Shredded Wheat, Shredded Wheat Royal Baking Powder, Edwardsburg Starch, Benson's Corn Starch, Borden's Eagle Brand, Merrill meat extracts; Baker's and McLean's and Purity Salt; Crisco, Spry, Primrose, Jelly Powders, etc.

Cocoanut; Shirriff's and McKerrow's Extracts, Clark's and Crosse & Blackwell, H. P., Lea & Perrin's, branded and advertised lines with which we are familiar, and Heinz, Libby's, Kraft's, Kemp's and Kraft, with the exception of the latter, that is as well known in Canada and the United States as it is in Great Britain and Europe.

In cheese advertising has changed the market from that of an unknown mass, cut by the merchant from a round cheese, and sold as new, mild or old, to the present day packaged cheese in tinfoil packing of a carton and sold to the customer under the trade mark name of it in carton and sold to the customer under the trade mark name of Kraft, Chateau or Ingersoll. The advertising of this new type of cheese has built up a market for the grocer that he would not otherwise possess.

Your customers also buy their biscuits by name through the advertising of Christie's, Christie's, Paterson's and tisting which has helped make Canada biscuits famous throughout the others as well known in the Provincial or National Markets of Canada as their own city and district.

In laundry soap—the soaps which the people are buying are the brands which have been made known to them by advertising. The Canadian National Exhibition support was Surprise, followed by Sunlight, Comfort and P. & G. The new type of flaked soap, Lifebuoy, Lux, Lux Flakes and others. Then there are the dealers' customers Lye, Soap and others.

In those articles sold by the grocer and hardware store alike for use in the brightening of the home, Old Dutch, Bon Ami, Liquid Veneer, Cyclone, Brasso, Silvo—the stove polishes, Sultana and Zebra, and floor wax, Johnson, Hawes', Pulfine and many others.

NEXT WEEK—WHAT SHALL BE MY ADVERTISING BUDGET?

OLD DOBBIN SNIFFS SPRING

"A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE" — You've heard it lots of times. It's 'as old as the hills' — nevertheless it is as true today as it was when first uttered by some wise person many years ago, who ever he was.

Good advice, however, is not accepted always and as a consequence people find themselves often in "a fix" and time and money are lost by not having heeded the advice. Spring work is being anticipated now on farms and there are many things to be put in readiness — harness for one thing must be in good condition so that no time will be lost in getting on the land. It may be that in many stables there is harness which requires repairing and the winter has been allowed to pass without having it done — the result will be that just when the harness is required it will be rushed to the harness maker — his shop will be filled with harness to be repaired and everyone wanting harness shop of T. G. Wells, 13 their work done immediately. Here Campbell street, Belleville, and you is where the maxim 'a stitch in will receive good service. Mr. Wells time saves nine' should have been is noted throughout the district for acted upon — the work could have turning out nothing but good work been done during the winter and — so in addition to service you will everyone satisfied.

If you have harness which needs repairing don't put off longer but—'save nine' — so get busy and let Mr. Wells do the stitching.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY in the morning, all day in fact, is more or less recognized as the real beginning of Spring. As the patron saint of Ireland Saint Patrick is noted for his goodness and good nature in the popular conception. Saint Patrick lived in a difficult time when historians were scarce and newspapers were not yet invented. Whatever has come down through the ages about his life and works has been good, and there is no doubt that the world was better for his having lived. St. Patrick's Day is still enthusiastically commemorated, especially as it makes a welcome break in the more or less rigorous rules of Lent. Friday is St. Patrick's Day.

On Thursday evening, the Women's Conservative Club held their monthly meeting in the Orange Lodge rooms. After the usual business, there was discussion regarding a euchre and bridge to be held in the near future. At the close of the meeting a social hour was spent in cards and dancing, presided over by Mrs. Geo. Reid and assisted by Mrs. Harry Hanks. . . to show with the hus-

The home of Miss Beatrice Jones was the scene of a charmingly-arranged shower last evening, when Miss Jones, Miss Olive Nightingale and Miss Jessie Anderson were entertained for Miss Marjorie Breed, bride-elect. About forty guests from Bloomfield, Demorestville, Hurst's Island, Macks and Trenton were present at the shower and extended hearty congratulations and good wishes to the bride-elect. A most enjoyable evening was spent in contests and progressive card games, contests and music were supplied. Near the close of the evening was the presentation of the many beautiful gifts of glass to Miss Breed and the reading of the address by Miss Olive Nightingale and Mr. Ketchepaw by Mrs. Gordon Anderson. A dainty lunch was served which was a very enjoyable evening.

MINERVA CHAPTER CELEBRATES 7TH ANNIVERSARY

Minerva Chapter 132, order of the Eastern Star, celebrated the seventh anniversary last night, in the Masonic auditorium. After the usual business, Worthy Matron Sister Ethel Vanner and Brother Rainbird in the chair, the ceremony of the Past Matrons' Degree, officers of Past Worthy Matrons and Past Worthy Patrons, as found in the Bible, true making a file in front of the altar, reciting their respective words were made by those signing. The social hour followed, Sister Lindsay, W.P., every member was kindly enjoyed. Mrs. Elderly, piano solo; Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Mackintosh, piano solo; Doug-las Madden and Evelyn Lamont, in charming dance, Jack Andrews, and Stella, Oswald Hyde, recitation; novel form of amusement was that of tables named after the colors used in the decorations, at which one elected to sit according to his or her favorite color. Each group was given a song to be sung unaccompanied, the appreciation of which was shown in the way a regret that the first Worthy Matron to hold office, Sister Mrs. Scott was unavoidably absent, but sent a letter of good wishes which were graciously on the birthday cake. It being the seventh year, Sister Lindsay, P.W.M. of Chap., Sister Bessey presented Sister Scott with a gift of silver, after which all the felicitations of 180 guests from all parts, an informal dance followed.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

MOUTH CLOSED!

Perhaps the very first hurdle that we have to take in the determination to have good table manners is to keep the mouth closed when we are eating. It's a revolting habit . . . to chew with the mouth open, or to talk when we have food in the mouth, or to eat "wired for sound".

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Once Overs

It is a well known fact that the majority of people even to give advice are least likely to proved something to their own decisions

No matter how experienced or expert a man may be in doing a certain thing in a public way there are always those who insist they could do it better.

In a crowd, perhaps watching a crane operator, there will be those who will criticize the manner in which the crane is done.

In all kinds of establishments there are sure to be men who think they know more than the boss and don't hesitate to say so to the others.

No matter how successful the foreman is, his superior, many of the methods he lauded upon thus having followed are alluded to as far inferior to those of previous practice.

And that is one of the reasons why men, and women too, do not advance faster in the places where they are employed, than they do, because to carry out to the letter the assigned duty given them by those above them.

Often the one who gives orders sets a place of work go through because it would take too long to give additional instructions.

But he does not forget such occasions.

And when he finds a man that takes orders with alacrity he knows whom to advance when the time comes.

SALADA MAN TO GIVE AWAY MONEY

Watch For Announcement in Monday's Issue of This Paper

Housewives of Belleville are urged to watch for a special announcement which will be made in this paper on Monday, March 13th, concerning the offer of a special campaign which is to be conducted in the city for several days by Salada Tea Co. of Toronto, of Canada, Limited, in which scores of Belleville ladies will receive either the gift or a crisp dollar bill.

Details of the campaign by Salada man will spend several days in the city calling at random at many local homes. Each housewife who has a one pound or half pound package of Salada tea in the house will be presented with a one dollar bill. There are no other conditions of any kind in connection with this campaign, except that the man is merely anxious to find out how many Belleville housewives are using Salada Tea, when he leaves a dollar to every housewife who can produce a package of Salada tea that is using it.

Watch for the announcement in Monday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer. Salada men are expected to be quickly picked up these days, and this will provide many Belleville women with a chance to receive absolutely this dollar without any effort.

Jealousy the Arch Enemy of Health and Good Looks

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

Famous Authority on "Love and Marriage"

Letters to this column usually come in waves. The latest wave—a regular tidal inundation—has been about jealousy. Married people are jealous; engaged couples are jealous; and the unmarried are angry because they have no one to be jealous about.

Medical science has been studying the emotion of jealousy and has come to the conclusion that it is as destructive of health as fear to which it is closely related. It is almost as bad for you physically to give way to jealousy as to fear or to distrust. Indeed, jealousy is a form of distrust, because it is evidence of a lack of will-power and self-control and, far from establishing this most corroding of emotions, you need to put a pretty stiff price in health and good looks.

Professor William James, discussing fear, said in effect: "You do not run because you are afraid, but on the contrary, you're afraid because you run."

Your running adds to your fear, just as your suspicion creates you

Alanza was well educated, well poised and possessed of good looks. She was twenty years old and she had been engaged four times—but only a brief acquaintance with shocked Chesterfield, and lately to an English Indian prince whom she had met in London. Her two intervening affairs had been of a character so much advertising as the others, both famous having been stars, or-chestra leaders, physicians, aviators or her set who danced well. Each had provoked a scandal over her intimate friends and suffered interior decorations and grooms. She had just tarded seventeen months that engagement to wed for her father and she had defied Al Wagner with much spirit. The latter had played up to the local newspapers but she laughed at his money or it.

Her engagement to the prince she had announced to a million dollars was altogether too dark-skinned —but it had been an interesting affair. It had provoked much amusing social chatter and had resulted in a number of sensational pictures. In terminating it of her own accord and without unpleasant consequences she had fortified her status in the fickle social conviction that she had inherited her common sense and could pretty well take care of herself. Her father knew it.

This by the way, was one of the few details that he had overlooked.

This afternoon, Mr. Wagner looked up from his newspapers as Alanza came through the Rghi-orford door, drawing room of their suite on her way to the private "lift," she was wearing an afternoon dress which he had never seen and he stopped her to admire it.

"I like that get-up," he told her. "You look like a million dollars. Where are you going?"

"Over to Cedric Cadine."

Something that Leo fellow again?"

The daughter nodded. Spying her father's cigar, she took it from him and approached it and approached, herself, to be lighted.

"It seems to me he's giving you a lot of time," the father went on. "Still pestering before the glass, Alanza shook her head in negation.

"I'm not going to see him."

"No? That's one of the ordinary, Where are you going?"

"I wish I knew. I'm beginning to get a little homesick. I'm thinking of going over to Paris, or Monte Carlo, or somewhere. I'm sick of Chesterfield."

"Say! Who is he?"

He got lifted her brows. She turned and interrogated him over her father. "Who—is he?"

"Why, Nothing.... All I know is he's afecta me. I've been waiting to meet him ever since I was three years old."

"Really?" With a frown Wagner laid aside his newspaper and rose. His dark brown of another Prince Indiadalaine.

"Why yes: I presume it is. He's a regular Indian Prince, I mean a pretty good golfer. He swims well and he—understands—horses, and—man—dances!" The speaker lifted her eyes heavenward, a sensuous delight transfiguring her face, to flow through her supple body. "Oh, he's wonderful! He's a Magnetism! Charm! It! He has it!"

"Hm—m! Foreigner, isn't he? Not—not Hindu Francisco: Lives in New York."

"Lee! I don't place the name. And I—can't find out, either, for he talks like an Englishman or something. Anyhow he's said what's he?....Has he got any money?"

Alanza raised her brows in mock astonishment. "Why, apparently he has, darling, but I will do that right away, and let you know."

Wagner's face clouded and when she inquired, "It he interests me, dear," he began to wonder why.

"Oh, I know—"

"You are him win two hundred thousand francs that night I met him—"

"Yes, and I've seen him win half a dozen times since. He behaves like a perfect gentleman—gambler."

He's living with Cyril Balhurst. They're writing a play together." Alanza's voice was expressive. And meanwhile he's making a play at you, ahh!"

"Oh, damn it!" Alanza exploded. "Now, see here," her father began with decision, "I don't like this business.

Say, Reverend, are you off on another bachelajah? . Why all the secret interest in this man and his friend?"

"Because I won't have my daughter running around with every Tout, Dick and Harry. If he's a somebody and he likes me, there's nothing if he's merely after your money—"

"I dare say those show girls in Cedric's Revue, Dora Tremaine, and Dicky Birds and Harriets were not after your money, were they? I could have handled him."

After a moment of thought Alanza said without the slightest heat: "Let's understand each other, Albert dear. Surely you don't think a girl should consult her father about her intimate personal affairs? That's an unpardonable confidence. I'm free white and unbiassed. I'm not in the least angry with you for what you do, for you're still young enough to look after yourself. I hope it will be a long while before you become too become a burden on me. As to this man, I'm a great kick out of him. So that's that."

"Well, I say, I say, Is he—frank?" Alanza widened her eyes. "What a queer idea. No, he hasn't kissed me, yet. But he will. After that, I'll tell you. Then you'll have a lot more about him and about myself. I'm the best sort in a fierce revealing light and possibly you'll begin to wonder why he is and what he is and whether he has money or merely personal appeal. There's plenty of time to find out. Now, I'm going to lunch —that's forty by the old Roman calendar—and what good are ex-pensive dresses if nobody sees them except a maid?"

"Alanza, I repeat I believe you're in earnest about this fellow! Wagner was perplexed. "I'm going to look him up."

"Please don't! You might discover something that would make you unhappy. It's really my affair."

"Hm—m! You're a common crook or—"

"So may be, indeed."

"Or a miserable fortune hunter."

"How dreadful!" Alanza mocked. "But don't you see, I have more than only so much money on herself. Now, please ring your own business and begin to wonder why the kindest way, honestly. You have had your experience and I've had mine. Experience." She kissed her father lightly and turned left the room.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

Ever since Sam Lee's childhood he had received on the eve of the Feast of Lanterns a letter from his father. Having gambled all his life, he looked upon this annual event as more than an amusement. He had been born in Shanghai, and being by nature in a state of being, a posture, to be met only by proper preparation and under favorable circumstances, that belief still remained in him.

On the day of the celebration then Sam had not entirely shaken off the effects of his dissipation, but, reflecting of a fatalist, too, therefore he played upon his weakness, and put out trace of cupidity.

He was starting again tonight and the table at which he played was crowded. As usual, other players had gathered to watch the play-ing as he did. Alanza Wagner sat at his side, so close in fact that her body touched his. Her face turned fixed upon the table, her chin and her cupped hands. Her eyes followed Sam's movements, for the most, as usual, and now she surreptitiously glanced at him occasionally observing him.

Alanza Wagner was more than good-looking even in repose, when animated by the excitement of play-ing she was comfortably aware of the fact, and no opportunity to look all possible advantages escaped her feminine attractions. Her hair was red-dish brown and her skin a delicate of rebellious quality and she wore it powdered like a boy's. Her eyes were wilful and impetuous and in it were set at a slant. Smoked, brown, tawny eyes, hazel in the sunlight, green in the shade, at night. Between were rather heavily pencilled for a girl, which lent her face a certain mysterious.

Heretofore she had represented everything that was fashionable, extravagant and intractable, but she had also possessed a certain charm and the Peralta Casino started curiously to at the imperturbable young man who had won from them so much and for unusual qualities of mind or manner. Sam was an unconcerning figure.

"Come along, darling. I'm tired," Alanza said suddenly.

Sam looked up, and bulp-playing to arouse you," he told her.

Then they left their places she in-quired: "Are you ready to leave?"

"Oh, quite a lot, I believe!"

"Don't you know?"

Sam shrugged expressively. "What's the difference? I already have more money than I need."

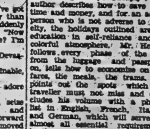
He inclined his head and smiled. "I'm glad I haven't any embarrassment."

"I glost like a miser when I pick up a bet and I'm sorry when I lose. I can't bear to lose any-thing."

"If I felt that way I wouldn't gamble. There are things I enjoy infinitely more than money. Love, beautiful things —silks, ivories, jade, marbles, paintings, flowers."

"Why don't you like me? I'm beautiful." Alanza asked this question abruptly and she fixed her dark eyes upon her companion's face with characteristic directness. She did not heed what he said, it was only a meaningless pleasantry anyhow, but she noted a certain change in his voice and a slow attraction in his color which content-ed her.

They had passed out of the Grande Salon and were in the adjacent corridor promenade, the Peacock Alley of Paradia. with its mellow paintings, its tapestries, its palms and cut flowers. Ahead of them two officers in lighter rain ing pulled together or separately and a number of men and boys, compared with a group of naval officers, confronted with an unfamiliar aspect of life". In his essays About Women he writes of "The Blind Spot" and "The Two Eyes" "The wife", "The Woman Nobody Knows", He combines his volume with a number of amusing episodes which happened in such varied places as Cairo, Rome, the Desert, the Home Express, and the Isle of Wight.



A. A. Milne, for many years on the staff of Punch, has collected many of his contributions to that publication in a book entitled "The Sunny Side". The book is made up of poems and sketches and among the latter is included the some adventures in war-time, a film which, by which one speaks of review, the complete dramatist, suggested by the recent Christmas holiday of a group of friends at a villa in the Riviera.

In the same spirit of charming nonsense, Anthony Armstrong writes the parody of a French fame, has presented a volume of modern-day tales called "The Prince Who Hiccupped and Other Tales". If you want to know how the challenge of two rival magicians for the Court Magicianship would be carried out in the mod-ern age, or if you have ever wondered what would be the old fairy tales why the Prince, who given three wishes by the Fairy, did not wish with his last one for three more and so on, ad infinitum, you will find in A. A. Milne the answer to these problems and many more besides. Then follow the bewildering adventures of Humphrey Leveson who in place of a fleshpot and spirits came into pos-session of a bottled spirit or Genii and the complications which ensued when Julius an Oxford undergraduate discovered the Elixir of Life.

All these persons with a willing-ness to be amused and an urging wanderlust will find in Sid. G. Hedges a friendly and an urging companion for "Seeing Europe Cheaply", the book describes how to save both time and money and for an active person who is not adverse to nov-elty, but is nevertheless inclined as an education in self-reliance and in-ternational atmosphere, Mr. Hedges follows every phase of the trip from the luggage and passports on, tells how to economize on the fares, the meals, the trains. He points out the spots which the traveller must not miss and con-cludes his volume with a chapter list in English, French, Italian, and German, which will serve for almost all essential requirements in the tours described. BASE METALS ON UPSIDE

Firm But Rather Quiet Performance Marked Close For Week

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—A firm but rather quiet performance took place at the close of the Standard Mining Exchange for the week. Prices have firmed on the whole over the last session on the prospect appreciably of a better demand for the New York Board next week. Most of the trading seems to have been in their gains through the slow market prevailing yesterday and this morning.

In today's session the base metals shows some further evidence of upgrade. Nickel advanced 3 to 9.00, Noranda 5 to 32, Hudson Bay 25 to 33.25, Sudbury Basin 2 to 10.00 and Falconbridge 5 to 2.60, while Mining Corporation, Kerr Addison were down a few cents each, throughout the session.

RELIEF WORK

Dobbin, who said State aid would be available. More than 1,000 men were called to clean up the city today.

Los Angeles, which counted five dead and an estimated $2,000,000 worth of the crumbling of many brick walls, the collapse of a few structures and the destruction of cracks in its new 28-storey city hall.

The first shock came at 5.45 p.m. Pacific time, and the last at 7.30 p.m. today. Seismologists said the shocks might continue for weeks.

129 Deaths Reported

From more than 200 communities came reports of casualties and damage. Long Beach, nearest large city to the modern history of the Los Angeles area, virtually was wiped out. Under daylight search of the debris might push the death toll to many hundreds.

Compton counted 13 dead and 150 injured. Santa Ana, Huntington Park, Inglewood, Whittier, Burbank, Glendale, Pasadena, Redlands, Riverside, Orange, Pomona, Monrovia, Norwalk Park had at least one dead each.

Search was speeded at Long Beach and other cities as the daylight revealed the full extent of the damage. Authorities there feared the dead might reach 1,000, or even more.

Property damage certainly amounted to millions or beyond. Smaller communities were hard hit because the shock and in many cases were crowded to piles of brick and twisted steel.

Fires Added to Standing

The stouter buildings were crashed but did not fall. The shock was felt from San Diego to Santa Barbara, a great upheaval in the Pacific Ocean and in Mexico. Tidal waves struck the front of a two-storey hotel but fell away almost immediately. Fires broke out and had to be fought in a slow window.

Fire added its menace to the shocks from the quivering earth and the crash of falling walls. Santa Monica Park and Norwalk were burning.

Police, naval and military units and other relief agencies were rushed to the stricken area. Many were stricken front and thousands of volunteers reported for duty with the regular forces. National Guard units were hurriedly mobilized for police duty, and Admiral Reeve, leader from the fleet at anchor in the Long Beach harbor, said 1,000 men had patched to Long Beach and nearby cities. Others were to come ashore today.

Fear Short Several

Although later observers seemed more severe than the first, the injured carrying list was small. The fear for part of the damage, was actually the severest. Many buildings, heavily brick caused bricks already loosened to fall.

Reports of a tidal wave, actually in evidence or threatened caused widespread alarm along the Pacific coast.

The first death, and destruction was centred in a triangular region with an apex in the centre of Redlands, California, a brother of Long Beach, and the base running southwest through the Indian Wells Valley to Santa Barbara, inclusive. 'Tis the south this area fanned out to Los Angeles, to Santa Ana, Santa Fe Springs, La Brea and the groves of Orange County.

In the south, the shock right down the heart of the industrial section Compton, Whittier, Inglewood, cities, dealing with each in greater or lesser with the worst havoc in Long Beach.

Senior Girl Cagers Down Owen Sound 54-12 Entering Finals for C. O. S. S. A. Title

Amassed Score of 21 to 1 at Half Time And Coasted Home

BOY'S TEAMS LOSE

Juniors Defeated by St. Kits And Seniors by Niagara Falls

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—Belleville and Northern will meet here today in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association girls' basketball final. Belleville defeated Owen Sound, 54-12 here last night and won their way into the title event, against the Barrington girls, champions of Wellesley High. Owen Sound's representatives put up a stirring battle against the more experienced Belleville team but were outplayed in every department. At half-time Belleville had amassed a 21-1 lead, which continued to increase as the game progressed.

A three-banner splurge in the first 30 minutes by Annie Crum, centre, assisted the Owen Sounders, and balls were bopped with speed from end to thereafter. Marie Duncan tallied the lone point for the losers in this half.

A nice passing attack by the City twenty girls and also the ball luck of the opponents net a number of times when the two forward lines overanxiousness spoiled their marksmanship, split they were unable to capitalize upon it. Dale Bage, star forward of the losers, sank two pretty shots and Jean Hall dropped three souls to aid the Owen Sound team.

In the final quarter Belleville polished some plays, while the Owen Sound could produce was two one-one each by Meg Bage and Ruth Middleboro.

Stars of the winning team were Ana Gartley, Mary Mercier and Annie Crull, with 18 points apiece.

Miss Dyer was outstanding for the losers and Ruth Middleboro played a steady game at centre. Mary Brindle got three of her points in total with foul shots.

A default by Cobourg advanced Owen Sound juniors into the finals against Belleville.

The line up:

Owen Sound—S. Middleboro 2; Dale Bage 6; Mary Brindle 3; Marie Duncan 1; Ana Sears; Helen Taylor; Hazel Hall; Nora Meade and Jean Akin.

Belleville—Ana Gartley, 18; Bergenia May; Hether Mercier 16; Annie Croft 18; Marian MacLean; Stella Mellroy; Mary Merrick; Elizabeth Steer and Mary Walbridge.

This is their second game the Belleville C. I. juniors were defeated by the score of 31 to 10 by St. Catharines, while the Owen Sound boys went down to defeat at the hands of Niagara Falls entering by the score of 34 to 30. Both contests were fast throughout with the winning teams continuing on in quest of the Provincial honors today.

AMATEUR PLAYOFFS IN HOCKEY

Trail Leading to Titles is Thinned Out

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—Survival of the fittest in the annual trek along the Allan Cup and Memorial Cup trails today had the field of Canada's Amateur Hockeyists weeded down to about half a dozen each as the last of the nine provinces, in both senior and junior ranks with at least two major championships declared and playdowns already underway in the junior event.

British Columbia champions by virtue of three straight victories over Vancouver, Trail are marking time until Fleischmann Gunners and Regina settle which of them will meet the British Columbia titlists. The Saskatchewan teams enter the picture at a two-game series tonight at Saskatoon on even terms.

Edmonton Eskimos, champions of Alberta, after defeating Calgary Bronks in the finals are standing pat for the winner of the Saskatchewan series. Fisherman hold a one game margin in the Manitoba senior championship round with Winnipeg Monarchs and the title is theirs if William, winners of the Thunder Bay.

Port Colborne and Niagara Falls are tied at one game each in the Ontario senior "A" group with Hockey Association with the deciding contest to be played in St. Catharines Tuesday. Northern senior titlists battle with Hamilton Wildcats O.H.A. Senior B winners in Allan Cup play. The winner has to meet the O.H.A. champions in the next round.

Montreal Royals have a 3-0 lead to their credit in the Quebec semi-final with St. Francois Xavier, second of the three game series. The winner in this round will engage the survivors of Ottawa Rideau Rangers and Intermediate final in the Quebec championship round.

Montreal leads Halifax in the fight for the big three Maritime title, Montreal having won the first two games set for Monday night, while Saint John Beavers have a 4-0 lead on Antigonish Bulldogs in their semi-final series for the right to meet either Halifax or Moncton.

Brockville Awarded Title.

Brockville was awarded the championship of the Rideau district when Shannacks and Rideau's of Ottawa City League failed to decide which would meet Brockville in the Allan Cup playdowns. Rideau's refused to play-off with Shannacks on neutral ice at Kingston and will enter the Allan Cup playdowns with Brockville as the result of the play-offs.

Down east, Trop. Nova Scotia's junior champions wet fight it out with Moncton Victorias for supremacy of Moncton, to decide which will meet St. John champions for Memorial Cup play. Montreal Royal juniors have a six-goal lead to take into their game with Quebec champs with Crane A.A. for Quebec honors.

Ottawa Rideau Rangers' line combine Howie Morenz and Frank Carson and Glen Boll is counted tonight in 1932 are in the O.H.A. junior finals with Newmarket, unsuccessful in three previous title attempts, as the first game this afternoon for the right to meet Sudbury Cubs in the next round. Tuesday.

Toronto Shamrocks, Ottawa District winners, will meet the surviving Northern duo for south Ontario clash. Winnipeg juniors meet Moosejaw tonight in the first of a three game series for the Manitoba title.

Regina Pats won the Saskatchewan junior crown from Saskatoon and will meet the winners of the Calgary-Trail series the second game of which is to be played at Calgary tonight. Alberta champions won the first of the two game series with the British Columbians.

"You Hit Him and Bounce" is Opinion of Other Players

This is the third of a series of dom they handle defensive duties players chosen for the Canadian with anything like the same care all-star National League hockey team.

New York, March 11 (CP)— It would be all right with Otto Johnson, the massive Manitoban, if he had Eddie Shore for a regular goal tender. The two were chosen for the Canadian Press 1933 all-star National Hockey League team.

If he had Eddie beside him, the mighty one of Lester Patrick's New York Rangers could forget about his duties otherwise. Eddie would look after that end of the business and allow Otto to concentrate on stopping 'em—his end.

Johnson has long been the biggest obstacle to Ranger foemen all around the circuit. They don't often come as big as the veteran from Winnipeg and when they do it's usually a case of "You hit him and bounce," said Teddy Graham, who is something of a bouncer himself on the Chicago Black Hawk defense.

Offensively Johnson is no back number. He—or—rather, he skates fast enough to break away effectively, barges through an opposing defence frequently enough for any defence man and can score. He and Shore have been paired on hockey's best defence players for two straight seasons.

Johnson came to the National League when Rangers were organized in 1926. Conny Smythe, who signed up the squad that Patrick stocked his new club with, got Minneapolis Millers of the American Association.

Pre-Game Comment as N. H. L. Teams Take Ice

Toronto, March 11 (CP)— Battle for first, second and third in the National Hockey League's American section and the last play-off berth in the Canadian group may be well on the way to settlement over the week-end as all nine clubs go into action either on Saturday night or Sunday.

New York Americans have a chance to take third place in the Canadian group with a double win, as they are scheduled to meet Ottawa Senators at the Capitol tonight, then travel back to New York to meet Rangers on Sunday night. Canadiens, now holding third spot with a two-point margin face a hard task when they meet Detroit on Sunday night.

Meanwhile Boston, also in the three-cornered fight for third place in the American group with Detroit and Chicago, make their final appearance of the regular schedule in Toronto tonight. The other Saturday night attraction has Montreal Maroons and the Chicago Black Hawks in a game that will not materially affect the standings. Montreal Maroons have both their week-end games it would practically eliminate them from play-off competition, even if Canadiens beat Detroit till. Rangers and Boston have an advantage over Detroit in the fight for first place in their group in games still to play with Detroit leading by two points and Rangers only one point behind the second-place Bostonians.

Training Camp News

Boston, March 11 (AP)— The holdout plaza of Bill Urbanchuk, the bald-headed barber of Perth Amboy, N.J., had received a rude jolt today after President Emil Fuchs of the Boston Bruins served notice on the stubborn shortstop that he would slice sign on the dotted line or stay out of baseball this coming season.

"You will not be traded in the event you refuse to accept the Bruins' terms," Fuchs wrote to Urbanchuk.

Urbanak, only Bruins' holdout, has been signed by all clubs except Detroit, and has threatened to quit baseball if it is not forthcoming.

REGION TEAMS ARE PICKED TO OPEN LOOP

District League is Ready For Real Round Robin Series

TWO GROUPS

All Teams Will be Strengthened For Series

The two winners of the recent Intermediate hockey tournament staged in Peterboro, the Campbellford Maroons and the Cobourg "All-stars", clash on the opening night of the Belleville and District league on Monday evening at the Belleville arena with Bill Hewitt in charge of the city officiating. The first game of the night sees the Trenton entry in group 1 engage the Tweed entry in group 2 in the first league series clash with the same official in charge.

Following the marked success of the Peterboro league last season, the members of the loop feel that with the added entry of the Maroons and the "All stars" the league should see a better class of hockey throughout the current post season schedule.

Coach Billy Whitty of the Maroons will run the identical same group in the league house of O.H.A. competition, while Manager Max Gerald of the Cobourg team has served a smart band of pucksters for his "All-Stars".

While the "All-Stars" were playing in Peterboro recently many followers were delighted at the clever work of Jimmie Ziebler on the defence for the Cobourgites and this coming McCoubrey, in the nets for the Gerald-managed crew, is also a big reinforcement of the first letter while brother Gerald, "Shad" Ebbler (same name different spelling) Gerald, himself, cavorts along the left boards with Jerry Dunn. Also the ball game, consis along the right boards with Archie Gerald, while the Belleville intermediates, making the plays at centre ice. This trio is playing smart hockey and scoring ability, while the alternates include Ferris, Bill Gerald and Freeman all fast skating forwards. Ken Campbell, Bill Gerald and Ted Campbellford outfit will come down in force to the game and Manager Whitty this year but the Cities Service will have a say as to where the cup will rest.

Group 1 at home the Trenton seconds meet a Belleville entry to be made up of Players, Canadian Celanese, Peterboro, London, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Windsor and Toronto. It has been suggested that all winners at the sectional bouts will be presented with the Golden Gloves, while major prizes will be awarded to the winners of the provincial bouts in Toronto.

The lineups for the senior games follow:

Campbellford—Goal Hulin; defence, R. Ingram and H. Ingram; centre, Davis; wings, McKay and Hall; alternates, Brady and Copperwaite.

Cobourg—Goal, McCoubrey; defence, J. Ebbler and G. Ebbler; centre, Campbell; wings, Dey and Ziebler; alternates, Freeman, Gibson, Henderson and Baker.

SENIOR "A" SERIES TIED

Port Colborne Hands Niagara Falls a 5-2 Trimming

Port Colborne, Ont., March 11— All square again, Niagara Falls and Port Colborne will stage preliminaries on the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" group race when they come coming to grips again in an effort to decide the title of the district.

In the second game of the best two-of-three final series at Port Colborne last night, Port Colborne led by one, Fan Hershey, Niagara Falls goalie, registered a 5-2 defeat upon the Cataracts and discounted the Wednesday night victory of the Falls' Canadian rivals.

The third game will be played at Toronto Friday, Hershey, Niagara Falls shekeeper, feeling running high in the first 40 minutes, brought a total of 18 penalties, a fight between the Cataract goalie and Bill Cook, Port Colborne and rendered the spectacle of a lone Sailor defense man defending his citadel while Niagara Falls shekeeper Tension slackened in the last period as the game assumed a routine aspect.

Gardiner, smooth-skating left winger of the Sailors, shuffled in the first and last goals of the game, and helped Cook, Hershey another former Falls player, score a third. Goals by Fan Upper and Bobby Morfit completed the total.

Henry Lamont and Merle Kaminsky pounded in the Falls' tallies, Kaminsky producing in the second period when a combination of penalties placed four Sailors on the bench at one time.

Canada has one of the finest entomological services in the world, and in size is second only to the United States.

We recently were in receipt of a letter from the Canadian Legion Executive Company Athletic Club in the effect, that they were staging the Golden Glove Boxing Tournament in the Limestone City some time this month, most likely the third week in March. These Golden Glove Tournaments are purely amateur and are conducted with boxing staged in the United States as well as Canada.

It is proposed to have right classified bouts and sectional or district meets which the winners of these meeting in a provincial final meet at the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on April 17th and 24th next. The centres designated for these sectional meets are Kingston, Belleville, Peterboro, London, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Windsor and Toronto. It has been suggested that all winners at the sectional bouts will be presented with the Golden Gloves, while major prizes will be awarded to the winners of the provincial bouts in Toronto.

All local boxers or athletic clubs interested in entering the local tournament to be held in Kingston, should communicate with O. J. "Ollie" Otter, secretary of the C.L.C.A.C., in Kingston as the draw for the Kingston bouts will be made next week.

In all probability the Senith End A.C. of Belleville will send a stable of boxing athletes to Kingston with the prevalent cries all over the province regarding "home town officials" in boxing, perhaps, it would be a good idea if outside officials be used, as in other matches, were appointed for these all-important bouts. No need to refer where one goes to a boxing bout in Ontario there is always the cry, "we want a home town official's decision". By bringing in outside officials the home town would no longer be able to set up such a wail. Admission fees are to be charged at these sectional meets with the net proceeds going over towards the financing of the winner's expenses to Toronto.

With such excellent material on hand as Freddy Parry, Geo. Hewitt, Art Angell, Gordie Morris, McGill and Ted Lloyd, to mention a few, the leather pushers the Senith End A.C. should be able to make a real showing at the district meet at Kingston. Of course, if the local boxers are interested in such a project they should get down to rock bottom training immediately. Lack of condition has spelt defeat for more than one local athletic lately.

With yesterday's release of the scoring averages of the Belleville intermediates for All Ontario honors in 1932 Doug "Red" MacDonald was found to be the one scorer. "The surreil top" always played a heady steady game and was rewarded for his efforts with one point less than Jack Hall, who was the leading scorer in the United States as well as Canada.

We just heard that the boys at the Air Port who are working for the Government fig practically their entire time endeavouring to develop a baseball team for next season. We understand that there are a couple of smart ball tossers living in the camp and they intend communicating with Frank Shannessy of the Montreal Royals and Dan Howley of the Toronto Maple Leafs regarding the possibilities of procuring their out-of baseball personalities after their annual spring training trip. Should they get a couple and if the boys of the "Powder Magazine" would but stage their games at the local ball park they would derive a certain amount of revenue towards the upkeep of their club.

So as to give patrons ample shelter from the rain, the Intermediate double header at the Arena will start at 7 p.m. with the junior fracas taking over. At eight o'clock there will toss his senior over the boards and they will form a three game affair at the hands of the Marmoras. If the weather permits the public skating will be enjoyed for an hour or so.

HARLEM CLOWN STILL RULES

Maxey Rosenbloom Turns Back Challenge of Adolph Heusel

New York, March 11 (AP)—Maxey Rosenbloom still ruled over his realm of the wrestling heavyweights today but only by turning back a formidable challenge by the rambling German, Adolph Heusel.

The Harlem clown, in grand shape for once, eked out a decision in a wrestling match at the Madison Garden last night in a spectacular 1-round bout, surprising because it was the first no-decision affair. The result left Maxey still holding New York State recognition as 175-pound titleholder.

Rosenbloom, always hard to beat, was a two to one betting favorite and had been expected to win without trouble.

Not So Dumb, Indeed!

By Tordy Mitchell

It was five-thirty, the most tiresome time in the day for Jerry Ann Jones, keeper of the exclusive Jiffy-Mistee Beauty Shoppe. He stood at the door, though the closing room would be open until the early dinner hour. He was waiting for then on Lucy Ann would be busy checking the hats and wraps of the dinner guests.

Lucy Ann made a pretty picture in her trim brown uniform as she sat on the stool in the doorway of the cloak room. Her pretty curling hair seemed fairer in contrast with the dark brown of her dress. Her brown eyes were flecked with gold and in the eyes of the boy she loved, because of her sweet smile and genuine interest, her home almost overnight with a nice little sum in tips. Then now of course, the big event was all about Lucy Ann and were very pleasant to her.

Perched there on her stool in the doorway of the cloak room, the "Hello girls" operators, come into the shop this evening, were early for Jerry. Why he didn't go on duty until six o'clock, the eyes of the boy he is acting, he surely is up over something about Lucy Ann.

But at this moment her attention was drawn from Jerry by the appearance of a tall, looking man, a well dressed, nonchalant, typical man-about-town. He paused a moment as he entered and looked about the shop before he saw Lucy Ann looking for thought Lucy Ann.

But she had hardly settled herself this comfort before it was answered for, to her amazement, Jerry hurried over to him.

Good grief! she thought, what on earth did Jerry want? Why the stranger looks just like a movie actor! and she blushed furiously as Jerry came to see if Miss Parks at the cigar counter had had this produced. Lucy Ann could not help looking the stranger over. No, Miss Parks had her beautifully manicured hand held in a bandage and was obvious to all around her. Why wasn't Mr. Patrick, the floor detective, was nowhere to be seen. Not that it makes any difference, thought Lucy Ann, Jerry seems to know him very well.

Jerry and the stranger sauntered over until they were quite near the check room which was out of sight and sound of Miss Parks and the desk clerk. The stranger spoke to Jerry and lo and behold he handed over a bill. Lucy Ann, Lucy Ann turned her head quickly to hide her confusion. Rushed check. She knew what Jerry would tell her. Some important customer, which his thick dark eyebrows in surprise, had asked Jerry to keep his visit very earnest conversation, which Jerry listened to very attentively. Lucy Ann watched them intently as they walked. Then the stranger turned abruptly, Jerry and Lucy Ann out of the main entrance. Jerry, after looking around cautiously, came back to the elevators and disappeared from view.

Lucy Ann took out a note book and pencil from her uniform pocket and, head bent, writing in furious haste. When she had finished she tore out what she had written and although she wanted to run in her excitement, she walked deliberately, attention. So she walked as promptly as possible, she knocked at the door, waiting a second, opened it, and went in.

What luck! Mr. Williams the manager and the two house detectives were both there. They looked up in surprise as Lucy Ann closed the door behind her. She put her note on the desk in front of Mr. Williams. Then she turned and walked rapidly from one of casual interest to one of keen excitement. She would be reading and turned abruptly:

"Pal Pat! Come here. Read this!"

The house detective took the paper from Williams hand. As he read, a low whistle slid out from between his teeth.

Mr. Williams looked up his watch and said: "Snap into it, Pat, there isn't a minute to lose."

Lucy Ann, having delivered her message, stayed on the door and hurried back to her check room.

Well, now it was about time for Jerry and all the excitement was over and, although Lucy Ann could hardly believe it, here he was sitting in the manager's office with a check for one thousand dollars in her hands!

That good looking stranger—he was a bad one all right. Why he had a gun and was going to use it, too, if the detectives hadn't been right on the job—She took the piece of paper he handed her and read:

Congratulations, Lucy Ann, and getting the reward! Pat had told me how in the world did you know?

Jerry and Lucy Ann were fond out that the cat—he is the notorious "Hotel Henry" whom every hotel detective in the United States coast has been trying to nail for months—had planned to rob the lady Van Loom's jewels?

Lucy Ann took the pencil from Pat and wrote:

"I thought it safe to bring his friend to my corner to talk over their plans. Then I found out of sight and sound of Miss Parks and the desk clerk, she could not see what I was doing, the rest of the hotel was quiet and I had time to do the writing. Jerry started it by telling "Big-ed Eddie" to keep his eye on Henry for what time Mrs. Van Loom would leave the room to go to dinner because he had been bringing her packages all the afternoon. Jerry and Eddie put the up to her room again at 7:30 and talked to her. Then Jerry came down and told Eddie to tell me. So I went up to her room again and told her that I had seen a man who looked like Henry on the check-room. She checked up and went in."

DUNLOP BEGINS NEW FORT TIRE

Dunlop Fort Tire Has Been Making World Reputation

Dunlop this month began the manufacture in Canada of a tire which has built for itself a unique place in the tire world.

It is called the Dunlop Fort Tire. Developed by Dunlop in England some years ago to meet a growing demand for a tire which had no a tire, but to an uncompromising standard of dependability the Dunlop Fort Tire has become the accepted guarantee of dependability and mark of distinction on fine cars everywhere in the Empire. It is on the cars of His Majesty King George V, His Excellency Lord Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, and many notables in governmental and social life.

The decision of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Co., Limited, Toronto, to build and market the Dunlop Fort Tire in Canada is thus a step of considerable Empire importance. It is a definite, constructive linking of two units of the Empire in a common manufacturing endeavour.

The Dunlop Fort Tire is, therefore, a new tire only in the sense that it is now being made in Canada. It comes to this country with a proved background.

Its building in the Dunlop Fort Tire in Canada Dunlop is insuring upon the same standards of quality in raw materials and the same rigid control of every step in manufacturing that has placed this Empire achievement in its position of supremacy.

In making its debut in the trade with such a background, the Dunlop Fort Tire takes with it a good maintenance policy. The tires will be sold through legitimate trade channels only, and at prices fitted to guarantee a fair and adequate profit to Dunlop dealers.

Backing the Dunlop Fort Tire will be one of the most extensive advertising campaigns ever put behind a tire. Large space will be used in newspapers, while magazines, billboards and other supplementary media will be used.

Even at a glance the Dunlop Fort Tire is unmistakable. Its unusually bold appearance compels admiration.

The tread is a triple anti-skid pattern, thick and deeply moulded, which extends in reinforcing thickness down the side-walls. The tread is composed of a scientifically compounded rubber which has been given a perfect blend of stones, the destructive forces of high temperature, the grinding effect of fierce acceleration and sudden braking to a new high-water mark.

Below the tread is a body built up from heavy cord material with a special triple insulation to give high value of strength and supple elasticity. Each cord is thoroughly insulated, and the whole structure is cushioned in resilient, finely rubber.

The completed tire is then subjected to the resourcefulness of Empire engineering and to the most exacting of the world-wide chain of Dunlop Research Laboratories.

HUNDREDS DIE WHEN QUAKES ROCK SOUTH CALIFORNIA CITIES

4000 Injured According to Early Report at Los Angeles

200 MILE EXTENT

Military Law in Some of Stricken Centres is in Force

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 11 (CP)—Rumbling quakes continued today to terrify residents of many California cities, shifting a stretch some 200 miles along the coast and 30 miles wide. At least 112 are known dead and 2,000 injured during the series of earthquakes which shook the Pacific Coast State last night and early this morning.

Damage in the richest section in the State and settled by more than 1,000,000 people, the best business districts and residential sections of the Long Beach-Santa Monica area, in the heart of the motion picture industry and a large number of homes.

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—(CP)—Heaped by 16 major tremors and several hundred lesser shocks, Southern California today, counted 120 dead, long more than 4,000 injured, feared the already high toll might be increased in search of the debris revealed in daylight.

From more than 100 communities came reports of casualties and heavy damages, amounting to millions of dollars as the earth continued its successive upheavals throughout the night. Long Beach, suffered perhaps half of total deaths of the earthquake, the most severe in the history of the region.

200 Miles in Length

The spearhead of death and destruction centred upon a widespread area from San Diego to Santa Barbara, some 200 miles and from the coast inshore for some 30 miles, with the point of the disturbance district of Los Angeles. Many old buildings and some new, were completely crumbled under the intermittent shocks, windows were shattered, power and transmission lines disrupted and gas mains were crushed.

Big Ores and other emergency services were taxed to the utmost to meet the situation as hundreds of injured were rushed to hospitals. Martial law was proclaimed in some of the more seriously devastated areas to maintain order and prevent looting. Sailors and Marines were detailed to patrol business districts and special measures were taken to forestall possible outbreak of disease.

Flames broke out in a score of cities and towns within the affected area, with regular and emergency fire companies fighting the destruction.

LONG BEACH, March 11.—The earthquake occurred at 5.54 pm. Pacific Standard time, when thousands were going people. Fire Street, a central business street of Long Beach, was reported in ruins, and it was there that many were believed to have been killed. Whole walls of buildings fell on crowds.

The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green, who directed Mr. Arliss in "The Millionaire," "The Man Who Reclaimed Head" and "Alexander Hamilton."

TWO CHILDREN BURN NEAR MOOSE JAW

Fire Originates in Heater Stove in Bed Room

Moose Jaw, March 11.—(CP)—Two children of Mrs. Nellie Dong are dead tonight and a third lies in a serious condition in the hospital here following a blaze in the small story of their home which broke out while Mrs. Dong was at church.

Daniel, 12-months-old boy, was suffocated in the smoke while the flames destroyed the bed in which he was sleeping. Pauline, aged three, was taken to the hospital and died a few hours later. Nora the third child, was found under a table in an adjoining room, suffering from severe burns.

The fire is believed to have originated from a heater stove in the bedroom.

SCHOOL BILLS ARE INTRODUCED

TORONTO, March 11.—Numerous bills were given second reading and sent on to various committees for consideration when the Legislature met in course of a short session of the Legislature yesterday. Among bills affecting school acts were introduced by W. J. Stewart, Conservative Leader. An amendment to the Public Schools Act sought to raise the starting attendance age from five to six years, and an amendment to the Adolescent School Attendance Act would reduce the compulsory age of high school pupils from 16 years to 18.

The thing amendment was to the High School Act and provided for the payment of fees by repeaters in final high school examinations.

REACH SHORE IN SAFETY

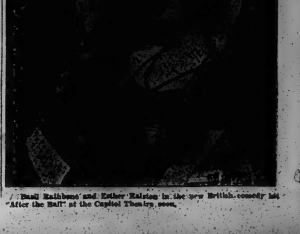
13 Seal Hunters Carried to Sea on Ice Floes Get Off

St. John's, Nfld., March 11(CP)—Thirteen ice hunters, carried to sea on floes drifting in Conception's Cove late yesterday, reached Horse Island safely over the floes to safety, according to word received from Bobby today.

No details as to whether the 13 men had reached the island through their own efforts, or through the assistance of neighbors along the coast, who put out in boats, when the wind carried the ice seaward, could be secured here immediately Nor was there any word as to how the seekers had come through their hard ordeal.

They were "land seakers," not members of the crew of the sealing steamers, which are now in the ice off Cape Bonavista. Yesterday they drew their two small boats up on the pack and scattered over its surface.

Then, hour hours later the floe had been carried far off shore, and drifting rapidly in would break up before boats could reach the marooned men.



All nightfall the icepack had travelled over the horizon toward Horse Island, pokes of ridges reached by survivors from the Viking which blew up with a loss of 27 lives two years ago.

It was presumed the missing men had salvaged their hobels and rowed across to the island as the sea-farers' fire nearest it.

BEER LEGISLATION IS SPRUNG BY ROOSEVELT BY SURPRISE
TAX FROM MANUFACTURE, SALE NEEDED AS REVENUE
FIRST STEP IN BUDGET BALANCING IS TAKEN

125 Millions Revenue From Beer Sale is Much Needed Says Roosevelt

"I Deem This Action to be of Highest Importance", He Declares in Surprise Message Today to United States Congress Calling For Immediate Action

MODIFICATION OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Decision Reached When it is Realized House is Standing by Without Business, While Waiting Senate Action on Economy

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a surprise special message to the United States Congress today asked for immediate enactment of beer legislation.

In a message of two sentences, the President said:

"I recommend to the Congress the passage of legislation for the immediate modification of the Volstead Act, in order to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution, and to provide through such manufacturing and sale, by substantial taxes, a proper and much needed revenue for the government.

"I deem action at this time to be of the highest importance."

The President considers revenue to be derived from beer taxes very important to his budget balancing programme, estimating the amount expected running to more than $125,000,000 annually.

The President reached his decision suddenly to ask for the beer measure at this time. It was an elemental part of his budget balancing programme which he hopes to put into immediate effect.

Apparently the decision to propose the measure was reached when it was realized the House is standing by without any business while the Senate takes up consideration today of the Roosevelt economic measure.

BOTH HOUSES AGREE TO AID BEER POLICY

Two Sentence Beer Message Sent to Senate Committee

WILL USE SPEED

Few Members Knew Message on Beer Law Was Coming

Washington, March 13 (AP)—In a surprise message of two sentences, President Roosevelt asked the United States Congress today to enact beer legislation immediately.

Democratic leaders of both Senate and House let it be known they had their legislative machinery in readiness for the first step if there is to be an effective Prohibition repeal.

Hence it is expected direct negotiations be carried on with the Italian Premier. No formal invitation, however, has yet been forwarded.

The British statesmen arrived here Saturday following a conference in Paris with Premier Edouard Daladier. While here they hope to consult with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, Britain. United States and Czechoslovakian representatives, Hon. Harry and Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, and Stanley Bruce, Australian High Commissioner to London, are also attending the discussions, which have been opened with the aim of bringing some order out of the uncertainty surrounding the conference.

French Absence At Stake.

French alarm at the spread of Hitlerism through Germany and other signs of trouble in the continent have precipitated Premier Mussolini's drive towards assuring disarmament, less international mistrust and fear arising out of present misgivings.

N. ITALY SCENE OF MEETING FOR MACDONALD, MUSSOLINI TO PREVENT PARLEY FAILURE

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, Switzerland, Mar. 13.—A meeting of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Premier Edouard Daladier and Premier Benito Mussolini in some town in Northern Italy is a possible development of discussions being carried on here with a view to saving the World Disarmament Conference from threatened failure.

Conversations at the British headquarters between Mr. MacDonald and Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir John Simon, and delegates from other countries, have continued throughout the day but it is apparent more important matters will have to be dealt with at this stage if there is to be an effective disarmament.

Hence it is suggested direct negotiations be carried on with the Italian Premier. No formal invitation,

CIVILIZATION THREATENED

His Holiness Pope Pius Eleven Tells Consistory Today

VATICAN CITY, March 13.—(AP)—Christian civilization is threatened by "a war on human society, on religion and on God himself", the Pope told the Cardinals Consistory today in the most dark picture of the "critical" international situation the Pope said disaster—moral, intellectual and spiritual—was being prepared inevitably for nations wherever the church is persecuted.

The Pontiff promised he would daily pray that God confer "counsel upon the conferences and conversations that will take place privately during this Holy Year for world economic readjustment, for international peace and for effective mutual aid morally and for the welfare of all." He invited every one to pray with him.

World Situation.

Of the world situation, His Holiness commented, "is rendered uncertain uneasy and disquieting by religious mistrust, by conflicting interests and by inadequate and frequently contradictory measures that are proposed, tried and abandoned, and by exaggerated and unjust mistrustion than that which there is nothing that does not bear the heavy brood of man and people."

In the face of this sad, "again one hears the voice of fraternal hatred and from the stained and devastated earth there rises to heaven the voice of a bewildered humanity."

The Pontiff then asked "is not this a call for all to reflect and consider, especially at the present time the present war on God is responsible for the moral relationships of war and economic crisis."

Seeking Peace.

Seated on a crimson-gold throne in the beautiful Consistory Hall the Pope solemnly said his voice has been "alone indicating a radical cure and remedy, namely sound and quick provisions, fraternal peace and fundamental indestructible bonds and obligations of the love of souls and the dignity of the human person, the sacredness of life and destiny and his essential relations with God, his Creator and Redeemer and Lord and Master, and with his fellowmen in the rest of creation."

Enumerating, according to his custom, his joys and sorrows since the last Consistory, His Holiness mentioned among the latter "the most painful one that he could not help feeling at the baptism of a child of Israel, considered by a non-Catholic minister."

Persecution Denounced.

...He referred to the Orthodox baptism of Princess Irene Romanoff, the daughter born in January to King George and Queen Joanna of Greece.

In granting permission for the marriage of the Catholic Princess and Orthodox King, the Pope had required that all their future children were to be baptized Roman Catholics.

Another sorrow, the Pope said, was Protestant Germany, at one time cauldrons and cunning, as unfortunately the present persecution, that is freely and impudently pursued in all fairly of the country of our principles, dignity and in Rome itself, our city and Episcopate.

The Pontiff's face was lighter, as he faded among the Pope the spread of missions, the increasing number of Catholics in Northern Europe, progress in Dublin and the development of the Catholic action organization.

EMBARGO ON ARMS TO EAST IS TAKEN OFF

Provisional Embargo is Removed by Great Britain

NO AGREEMENT

No Useful Purpose is Served, Says Baldwin

London, March 13 (AP)— Great Britain has decided to remove its embargo on the shipments of arms to China and Japan Stanley Baldwin, Lord Privy Seal announced the House of Commons today.

He explained the embargo announcement was made of a provisional nature, pending an opportunity for international discussion.

"Since then," he said, "the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have had an opportunity to discuss the matter with representatives of the various other countries and they have now informes us that in their opinion the time is not ripe for any International agreement on the subject in the near future.

"Under these circumstances no useful purpose would be served by maintaining an embargo observed by this country alone."

Partial Embargo Feb. 22

On Feb. 27 the British Government announced a partial embargo on the shipment of arms to the Far East. Permission to fulfil contracts already undertaken was granted, but the government announced, that no more licenses for the export of arms to China or Japan would be granted.

Lord Cushendun, who yesterday only after considerable thought by the Cabinet and when it was announced that the Government had decided to permit the export of munitions, explained that the League of Nations Assembly had made an embargo really effective it would be necessary for all the British Government believed that any sacrifice was worth making if it would assist the restoration of peace between Japan and China.

The Opposition in Parliament had campaigned energetically for application of sanctions against China when it was adopted the Chinese Ambassador protested vigorously, as his country would result only in sending arms to Japan, which he declared was already well supplied with war material.

TREMOR HEAVY DAMAGE LIGHT

Long Beach Again Hardest Hit in The Quake Zone

Los Angeles, Calif., Mar. 13 (AP)— Dazed by one of the most severe earthquakes of Friday brought another tremor which sent thousands scurrying from their homes at 6.30 a.m. at 5.18 a.m. today and caused slight damage in the Long Beach area, most destruction.

Reports to police and newspaper offices rang frequently for the first few moments after the latest disturbance, but subsided quickly.

New information today cut down the list of Canadian missing to one. Earl Adamson, formerly of Saskatchewan, but now living at Dundas, Hamilton; and Dr. Ashley Firth, formerly of Edmonton. Three other Canadians reported missing proved the dead were discovered to have been Mrs. Thomas Bowers, formerly of Winnipeg, Man., Mrs. Frank Ball, formerly of Edmonton, and John Young, formerly of Plympton Township, Western Ontario.

Reports of Canadian casualties reported, although a short time before, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Ball have been reported the death of the 19th. Harry Gillen, 45, Los Angeles.

United States Dollar Opens Stronger Upon International Marts

Unexpected Drop in Canadian Dollar And British Pound Features Trading Today in New York City

F. I. KENT, EXCHANGE DICTATOR

Canadian Dollar Quoted at 83 1-2 in New York While British Pound Reaches $4.14 in Canadian Currency

(By the Canadian Press)

The United States dollar made a cautious reappearance on world foreign exchange markets today after an absence of more than a week, and first effect was a strengthening against both the British pound and the Canadian dollar.

Early afternoon showed a nominal quotation of 83 1-2 cents for the Canadian dollar at New York. A premium of 19 3-4 per cent. for the United States dollar. The Canadian dollar had been at 86 1-8 cents in New York on March 3, just before the banking holiday was announced.

The United States dollar also showed initial improvement both in London and Paris. At Montreal there was a nominal premium of 20 per cent for the United States dollar, but the pound went down three cents to $4.14 in terms of the Canadian dollar and the franc slipped from 4.72 cents to 4.70.

The increase in the premium of the United States dollar in Canada came as a surprise to those of the general public who had expected the Canadian dollar to approach nearer to United States counterpart as a result of the financial crisis in the United States.

Foreign exchange authorities, however, monetary experts at Ottawa, however, were not surprised at the increase. It is their opinion that the recovery is as a "hangover" from the last day of banking transactions in the United States when foreign exchange traders all over the world were just feeling their way and rates quoted today. It was explained, could be taken as a fair indication of the eventual relationship of the two currencies in the United States.

In view of the uncertainty which is likely to exist for some time the Canadian Government is not taking immediate action to alter the ruling that for customs duty purposes the United States dollar would be considered as par in Canada. Imports from the United States have increased considerably since the ruling was made.

Markets Active.

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)— The National Foreign Trade, a member of the New York Clearing House Association, will not open for business today. As provided for in the Emergency Banking Act passed last week by Congress, a Conservator has been appointed and the affairs of the bank will be handled by the Harriman Bank.

The Island Clearing House statement showed capital of $1,000,000; surplus and undivided profits $1,491,000; net demand deposits, $18,917,000; time deposits, $2,000,000; circulation $1,000,000.

It was announced today the private bank of Brown Brothers Harriman and Company, which has no connection with the Harriman Bank mentioned above, was opening for business as usual today.

Washington.

Washington, March 12—(AP)—Reopening of National Corporations today ordered contemporary relief from the rigid bank holidays was $181,000 to Oregon.

Purpose of the loan is to be used in 25 political sub-divisions during March.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12—(AP)—All San Francisco banks, both state and national received licenses today to reopen for normal business.

Exchange Dictator

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)— Fred I. Kent, New York Banker, was named Foreign Exchange Dictator today pending resumption of exchange dealings on a normal basis.

Kent, who had a similar position during the World War, immediately began the task of setting up a central office for control of United States dollar exchange until restrictions on such dealings are lifted by the Federal Government.

Attendant is Killed by Mad Patient at Whitby

Cyril Ethelbert Rich is Found Dead in Bath-room

MARKS ON HEAD

Whitby, Ont., March 13 (CP) Cyril Ethelbert Rich, an attendant at the Ontario Hospital here, was killed in No. 14 Cottage at the hospital late last night.

Rich was killed in the bathroom of the cottage. It was said his attacker had been in the institution for some years.

Attendants were no eye-witnesses to the tragedy, hospital officials have been unable to ascertain what led up Rich's death. It is possible that a heavy shovel or axe will be known when an inquest is held.

First intimation of the tragedy came when one of the other patients in the cottage, a Mr. Hobson ran from Rich lying on the floor with his skull battered in, a shovel in the room.

The patient called for help and another attendant came to the scene and immediately notified Dr. Ross Stevenson, superintendent.

An examination of Rich's body revealed marks on the head and neck, but medical authorities have not yet established the exact cause of death.

Theory of hospital officials is that Rich had been persuading the patient to retire to his bed for the night and that when they were alone in the bathroom the man struck a blow on Rich and attacked him.

Rich was 32.
